REDS STRIP U. S. FACTORIES IN GERMAN ZONE

Eight Big Plants Are Raided

BERLIN, July 7 (AP)—Arthur E. Dunning of Bath, Me., secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce in Germany, said today that great concerns owned by American interests had been stripped of their machinery during the Russian occupation of the German areas in which the plants were situated.

"National Cash Register, Frigidaire, Ford, Opel [owned by General Motors], Hollerith [owned by International Business Machines], Singer, Mix & Genest, and Woolworth all have been raided," Dunning said.

"In many cases, delicate precision instruments were involved which are now lying around in Berlin railway stations awaiting shipment. Some of these need to be kept in a certain even temperature, which, of course, is impossible if they lie exposed outdoors. Much of this machinery, in my opinion, is now junk."

U. S. Holdings 200 Million

Dunning estimated the value of American holdings thruout Germany at $200,000,000. He said virtually all of the plants were compelled to work for Hitler's war machine, once war with the United States started.

Dunning further asserted that a Germany attorney, Heinrich Richter, who in peace time was legal representative of General Motors and associated with other American firms, had been held incommunicado for the last eight weeks because he opposed the Russians in dismantling the Opel plant.

Personally, Dunning has been treated respectfully by the Russians who also allowed the American chamber of commerce offices to remain intact. He said he was on friendly terms with local soviet commandants who were courteous and told him they wanted to help but were bound by instructions.

Once Seized by Nazis

The chamber of commerce secretary is probably the only American who lived in Germany as an enemy thru two world wars. His wife was an invalid in 1941 when Germany declared war on the United States. The Dunnings' passports were extended by the state department, working thru the Swiss legation.

Dunning said the Nazis arrested him once in September 1942, but freed him after eight days. He has lost 40 pounds and appeared emaciated.

At present, he said, 95 per cent of Berlin residents are suffering from dysentery and the water is badly polluted.

"In the subway, from the Anhalter to Stettin stations," Dunning declared, "there is now water instead of open tunnels and hundreds of bodies still float around. The Spree river stinks from decaying bodies."

TRUMAN AND BYRNES WON'T RIDE IN SAME PLANE ON JOURNEYS

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—If President Truman and State Secretary Byrnes do any traveling by air on their trip to Berlin for the Big Three conference, they will ride in separate planes.

Altho the date of departure and method of travel is being kept secret, Eben Ayers, White House press secretary, made this clear at his news conference today.

Secretary Byrnes would succeed to the Presidency, under existing law, should anything happen to the President.

"I am not saying how the trip is going to be made," Ayers told reporters, "but if the President and secretary of state do any traveling by air the two will not travel in the same plane."

2 Shot Down on Street Car; Woman Killed

Passengers aboard an eastbound 16th street car were thrown into confusion last night when shots rang out above the clatter of the car as it approached Keeler av. and a woman and a man slumped to the floor.

Standing near them was a man with a gun. Passengers swarmed about him, and before he could fire again the conductor, Joseph Fiala Sr., disarmed him and leaped off the car with the weapon in his hand. The motorman, John Glass, stopped the car and ran up with his controler in his hand and seized the gunman.

The woman on the floor was Mrs. Mildred Rychlik, 33, 1532 S. Kenneth av., who died of a bullet wound in the back shortly after she was removed to Mount Sinai hospital. Her husband, Edward, 32, a box maker, was shot in the right arm.

Brother-in-Law Arrested

The shots were fired by Mrs. Rychlik's brother-in-law, George Dubravec, 55, a retired grocer, of 3944 27th st. Dubravec, who had been drinking, accused Mrs. Rychlik of breaking up his home by encouraging her sister, Anna, to divorce him, detectives said.

After he had been seized, Dubravec said that he intended to kill himself. When he was searched at the Lawndale police station, a quantity of poison was found in his pocket.

The couple, preparing to leave on a vacation trip to join their daughter, Vivian, 13, in Wisconsin, encountered Dubravec when they boarded the street car on their way to the North Western station.

Hear Him Upbraid Woman

Passengers said they had overheard Dubravec upbraiding Mrs. Rychlik immediately before he fired at her. Her husband was wounded when he attempted to disarm Dubravec.

The wounded couple were taken to the hospital by Lt. Sam Cohen, 1636 S. Drake av., an air force officer.

SEN. EASTLAND AMAZED AT RAPE STORY DENIAL

Ruleville, Miss., July 7 [Special]—Sen. Eastland [D., Miss.] said at his home here tonight he is amazed at a statement from supreme headquarters in Europe, reported in a dispatch July 2, that SHAEF had no knowledge of the mass raping of German girls by French Sengalese troops in Stuttgart, Germany.

"I don't know how supreme headquarters can say it has no knowledge of this incident," he said. "Several high ranking generals and government officials have full knowledge of it and not only told me about it but told the other members of the committee."

Sen. Eastland was a member of a joint senate military-naval affairs committee which recently visited Europe. Last week in the senate he reported that several thousand German young women were rounded up in Stuttgart and raped by Sengalese and Berber troops wearing American uniforms.

The senator said he will reiterate his story of this atrocity when he returns to Washington next week.

VACATION FUN! CHICAGO HAS IT ALL BUT ALPS

Chicagoans do not have to leave home to find vacation fun. Whatever holiday pleasure fits your fancy Chicago has it, unless you are a mountain climber. We have steep hills but no Alps. Everything else is virtually at your front door.

This is particularly good this year because of the difficulties besetting civilian travel. Many Chicagoans are discovering for the first time and with delight that the city where they live and work provides myriad opportunities for play.

Today's Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE contains one of a series of articles by Oney Fred Sweet detailing the interesting things to see and do at home. This article, dealing with the forest preserves, is accompanied by a map showing how they may be reached. Pictures on Chicago outdoor activities are on page 3 of the sports section.

3,000 Troops Sail Daily from Antwerp to Pacific

LONDON, July 7 [Reuters]—The port of Antwerp is playing an increasingly important part in dispatching men and materials to the Pacific front, Belgian radio reported today. An army transit camp has been established in the city capable of holding 60,000 men, and 3,000 men are leaving daily, the radio said.

AUSSIES DRIVE TOWARD LAST TWO OIL FIELDS

Thrust Beyond Port of Balikpapan

MANILA, P. I., July 8 [Sunday]—(AP)—Australian 7th division troops have pushed six miles northeastward beyond the Borneo oil port of Balikpapan, which has been secured, and are thrusting steadily inland from Penadjam point, across Balikpapan bay, a southwest Pacific bulletin reported today.

Other elements of the 7th were driving northward toward the Sambodja and Samarinda oil fields, 23 and 55 miles, respectively, northeast of Balikpapan. Mined roads and artillery fire were used by the withdrawing Japanese to defend these last two important Japanese-held oil areas.

One Japanese plane raided the Balikpapan area without result, and allied planes supporting the ground offensive ranged at will over Borneo, Gen. MacArthur's bulletin said.

Destroy Two Jap Freighters

Two Japanese freighters were destroyed at the southern port of Bandjermasin.

In their flight northward, the Japanese had the choice of a death stand, surrender in the marshy oil lands, or escape into the unexplored jungle domain of the head hunting Dyaks to the westward.

"The Dyaks probably will finish them off," said Capt. J. W. Zylstra, of Amsterdam, commander of a Netherlands unit of Indonesians and West Indians scouting for the Aussies. Poisonous snakes and insects are other hazards of the jungle.

Make New Landings

Balikpapan was secured Thursday with a swift cross-bay thrust in which the Australians captured Penadjam point, putting Japanese coastal batteries out of action.

But the Aussies met stiff opposition in hand-to-hand fighting with an enemy naval ground force defending the Pandansari refinery north of Balikpapan

Capture of Penadjam point, achieved with the aid of American-manned amphibious craft, put a swift end to the first five day phase of the campaign, which is ahead of schedule, Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines reported from the battle zone.

Jap Shells Fall Short

"They dropped a few mortar and 20 millimeter shells but didn't come close," said Sgt. Orrie R. Magnin, Oconto Falls, Wis., who was in one of the leading tanks.

More than 50 amtracs of the 672d amphibious tractor battalion ferried the Aussies on their four hour trip from the beachhead to the narrow point of land across the bay.

"After all that, we ran into heavy muck ashore," said T/5 Edward Schearer, Hoagland, Ind., in Magnin's tractor.

The speedy five day initial operation gave the Aussies command of 18 miles of the coast, from Penadjam to Manggar air field to the northeast, and two air fields—the 4,000 foot strip at Manggar and Sepinggan drome.

Brines said the Japanese around Balikpapan had some of the strongest defenses allied forces had encountered in the Southwest Pacific.

Australian casualties, which would have been heavy had the Nipponese stayed to fight on the shore, were remarkably low. Headquarters reported yesterday 214 Aussies had been killed, with 22 more missing and 420 wounded.

Japanese dead, counted thru all Borneo operations, including the Australian invasions on the north coast, were 3,031, headquarters said. Prisoners totaled 274.

FLOURISHES GUN AS NEIGHBOR'S FIRE SPREADS

When fire last night spread from I. D. Opat's frame dwelling, 5530 S. Racine av., to the building of the Western Furnace Repair company, next door, Ervin Kropp, owner of the business, drew a revolver and threatened to shoot Orpat for maintaining a fire trap. Policeman William Nolan and Arthur Tighe disarmed him and took him to Englewood station.

Firemen, who responded to a 2-11 alarm, said the first floor of Orpat's house was crammed with old furniture, papers and other rubbish.

TRAIN CROWDING VEXES SOLDIERS

Vets Home from Europe Voice Complaints

BY DOROTHY JOHNSON

Tired, dirty and discouraged, 600 veterans of the war in Europe declared late last night on a troop train that they were sick of long trips on crowded coaches.

Sprawled three and more to a seat, they were half slumbering, with their neighbors' knees on their chests, or with the other fellow's boot at their heads. Chicago and middle western members of the 3d, 7th and 9th armies, they boarded the train directly from a troopship at Newport News, Va., on Friday, and were on their way to Camp Grant to receive furloughs. They will be redeployed later to the Pacific.

The soldiers heard last night for the first time that the office of defense transportation has curbed civilian railroad facilities in order to reroute better equipment for the use of veterans to he discharged or redeployed.

News Greeted by Cheers

The news was greeted by roars of cheers. "It's about time," one of them shouted. "Take a look at this coach. There are about 70 of us in here, and it's damned crowded."

"You said it," another yelled. "As soon as it was over in Germany, a guy thought of nothing but getting home. This sure is doing it the hard way."

Some of the soldiers, members of the 43d cavalry, said they were the first of "Gen. Patton's boys" to be sent back to the United States. Others were with the 772d tank outfit, the 643d tank destroyers, and the 3051st quartermaster regiment. They'd been thru campaigns in Austria, France, and Germany.

Chicagoans on Train

Chicagoans among the veterans included Pvts. Edward J. Agnew, 6338 S. Winchester av.; Kenneth LeMaire, 4265 Montrose av.; Willard Emerson, 5840 S. Carpenter st.; Chris Nelson, 5333 Lake Park av.; Romain Hayes, 1542 N. Wood st.; Joseph Lisak, 2649 S. Kolin av., and Carl C. Kramer, 851 Cabrini st.

GI Joe in the Pacific

By ARTHUR VEYSEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SANGA-SANGA, Tawi-Tawi, Sulu Archipelago, July 7—It may be the army and it may be the tropics, but there comes a time in the life of nearly every soldier out here when he becomes an expert in doing nothing. Just plain nothing.

MINDANAO
NORTH BORNEO
JOLO
TAWI-TAWI
Celebes Sea
SANGA SANGA
200 MILES

Doing nothing, expertly and contentedly, takes lots of practice. But time to practice is what the soldiers here have the most of.

Replacements just in from the United States chafe at doing nothing. They want to put on a whirl and get the war over. Thwarted, they go swimming and whittle and make watch bands and take hikes to native villages and play volley ball and clean guns and write letters and haunt the army postoffice and talk and talk and talk.

It is true that some soldiers, poor guys, fall into jobs where they work from dawn to dusk, and then they are so tired they sleep from dusk till dawn. Fortunately these are exceptions.

Now Take the Infantry

For most people's money the infantry guy can be the busiest and yet the least busy of all service men.

During advances he hikes and fights and has so much to do that 48 hours a day would be only half enough. But in time the day arrives when the infantry does what is known as setting up a perimeter. Setting up a perimeter is about the same as what Chicago firemen do between fires. It boils down to just plain sitting.

The newcomers will build de luxe fox holes with just about all the comforts except controled running water, or if they are in tents they will steal mattresses and sheets from the navy and build floors and furniture and hire a house boy. Work, work, work. "Just can't sit around and do nothing," they say.

But the old timers—these are the experts.

Take It Lying Down

The best way to do nothing is to stretch out flat. Here it is on a wonderful beach or on the grass under the trees just over there. You may keep one eye open to watch the white clouds play tag across the blue sky or the fish jump in the bay, so brilliant it makes aquamarine gems seem like sandstone.

Once in a while, every couple of hours, you roll over to rest the part you have been lying on, and occasionally you may glance toward the kitchen to see if it's time to eat. In the evening you watch the moon come up over those purple trees, the same ones that during the day combined all the hues in the gamut of greens.

Sometime before the moon is a third of the way up you close the half open eye and dream.

No Banga-Banga at Sanga-Sanga

For learning to do nothing there is no place better than Sanga-Sanga on the island of Tawi-Tawi in the Sulu archipelago. Even the name is languorous. Listen to it roll: On the sands of Sanga-Sanga, at the tip of Tawi-Tawi, in the Sulu archipelago.

What the song writers could do with that! Sanga-Sanga. Linga longa. The heart goes pinga ponga, maybe even makes you singa songa. Song writers will do almost anything for a rhyme.

The near experts at doing nothing are relaxed of body but busy of mind. They do some solid thinking, settling old problems and planning for happier days when, they hope, they will still be doing nothing but will do it in company which they, not Gen. Marshall select.

Rock Bottom Philosophy

But the real expert does no such thing. In words of one syllable he is the ultimate manifestation of the childhood ode that goes:

I wish I was a little rock settin' on a hill,
And doin' nothing all day long but just a-settin' still.
I wouldn't eat, I wouldn't sleep, I wouldn't even wash;
I'd set and set a thousand years and rest myself, by gosh.

Report Germans Barred from Polish Silesia

LONDON, July 7 (AP)—The Lublin radio said tonight that Maj. Gen. Zavadski, governor of the Polish province of Silesia, had issued an order categorically forbidding German nationals to inhabit the province.

At 6:08 a. m. tomorrow Chicagoans will be able to see the moon begin to pass between the earth and sun, providing the first solar eclipse here since April 7, 1940. The peak of the eclipse will be at 7:02 a. m., when 73 per cent of the sun will be blotted out, and at 8:02 a. m. the celestial show will be over.

The eclipse will be total over a narrow strip beginning near Boise, Idaho, northeast thru Montana, Manitoba, Hudson Bay, Greenland, Norway, Sweden, Russia, and Siberia. Along this strip scientists will try to learn more about the mysteries of the sun's surface.

The moon will be first to come on the celestial stage, rising in the Chicago area in the northeast at 5:21 a. m. The sun will rise three minutes later a bit farther north.

Warning by Eye Specialists

Two astronomers from the University of Chicago's observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., will study the eclipse from a camp near Pine River, Manitoba, using a 6 inch photographic telescope and a stationary camera. They will photograph the inner and outer corona envelope] of the sun and seek clews to the generation of energy which creates the corona.

Eye specialists warned that the eclipse should not be watched thru ordinary sunglasses, or with the naked eye, or with field glasses. They suggested a simple way to play safe is to hold a piece of glass over a lighted candle until its entire surface is blackened by soot and to use this in looking at the phenomenon.

Radio Reception to Be Studied

Radio reception during the eclipse will be studied by physicists. Radio signals near eclipse time are reflected differently from the sky as the electrified layers of upper air that cause this reflection change their heights.

One study aims at verifying the belief that part of this electrical change is caused by a hail of fine particles from the sun which travel much slower than light and whose impact with the upper air disrupts gas molecules and in that way electrifies them.

SCIENTISTS' SIGHTS SET

Milwaukee, Wis., July 7 [Special]—Equipped with instruments never before used to observe an eclipse, an Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company scientific expedition today left Winnipeg, Man., by plane to study the eclipse of the sun Monday at one of the most northern points of any expedition. Walter Geist, president of the company, said the expedition, led by J. T. Wilson, the company's chief physicist, will camp at God's Lake, 800 miles northeast of Winnipeg, which was chosen because it furnishes a higher angle of observation and because the period of total eclipse there will last 43½ seconds.

LONDON, July 7 [Reuters]—At intervals along a 50 mile wide corridor stretching across Canada, Greenland, Norway, Sweden, Finland, and Russia scientists are keyed up for the great moment on Monday—only 72½ seconds at the longest—of the first total eclipse of the sun for 13 years. It will be photographed spectroscopically by royal Canadian air force crews flying a British Spitfire seven miles high and an American Mitchell bomber at five miles. Russia began preparing eight months ago for 20 major expeditions to observe the eclipse.

WOLSELEY, Sask., July 7 (AP)—The weathered brick school of this little community, 70 miles east of Regina, became a center of unseasonal activity today as astronomical scientists, representing the Franklin institute of Philadelphia, Pa., prepared to photograph and study the total solar eclipse Monday morning. Carpenters were on hand to construct wooden tunnels which will serve as the "bellows" of 18 foot and 40 foot astronomical cameras.

MORE BUTTER, FEWER POINTS OPA PROMISE

Increase of 12 Pct. August Outlook

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—Civilians will get a little more butter for fewer ration points next month.

The agriculture department and the office of price administration, in a joint announcement today, said revised war requirements will make possible an increase of about 12 per cent in the civilian butter supply.

The new point value will be announced later. It is expected to be 20 points a pound instead of the current 24 points, effective July 29.

The August civilian butter supply will total 90 million pounds, 10 million more than the allotment for each of the last few months.

Cut War Demand

Reflecting somewhat reduced military requirements and a prospective lower level of production, the government will require butter makers to set aside only 30 per cent of their August output for war uses. This compares with 50 per cent this month.

Decision to lower ration values followed reports that butter is accumulating in civilian distribution channels.

An Associated Press survey showed this to be the situation generally thruout the country.

Egg Supply Tightens

Meanwhile, the egg supply tightened further. With production running below a year ago, the agriculture department reported that demand exceeded the available current supply by an increasing margin during June and early July. Many grocers limited customers to as few as three eggs each.

Live and dressed poultry supplies at terminal markets continued far below trade demands, reflecting heavier consumption nearer points of production.

The meat situation, like some of the meat, remained tough. Adequate supplies apparently are several generations of cattle and pigs away.

BOGUS STAMP FLOOD

Eight million counterfeit red ration points were passed over the nation's retail meat counters last month and the flood of bogus coupons, distributed by gangs operating principally from Chicago, threatens to wash away the entire food rationing structure if the meat shortage grows worse, an office of price administration executive admitted here yesterday.

Blames Chicago Gangs

"The use of counterfeit red coupons is at its height and the situation may become worse before it gets better," Robert R. Ehrlich, chief investigator for the rationing currency protective branch of the OPA in Washington, D. C., said at a press conference. "If counterfeiting ever gets entirely out of hand, we will have a complete breakdown of the rationing system."

Distribution of counterfeit rationing currency is heaviest in New York and Chicago is second, Ehrlich said, but he declared that "Chicago gangs undoubtedly are the main source."

65 Under Investigation

Sixty-five meat dealers in Chicago, he said, have handled a "great volume" of counterfeit coupons and the OPA is investigating them.

James F. Riley, acting OPA director in the Chicago area, said yesterday that his office is asking the severest penalty possible, suspension from business for the duration of the war, in suits against two grocers charged with depositing counterfeit stamps in their ration bank accounts. The defendants are Alvin Horn, 6510 Cermak rd., Cicero, and Benjamin A. and Al Taubin, operators of the store at 720 N. Clark st.

FISH RETAILERS' STRIKE

Members of the Chicago Retail Fish Dealers association have decided to join in a "protest strike" against fish wholesalers because of the allegedly high prices and tie-in sales they are declared to have forced on retail distributors, it was learned yesterday.

"The membership is wholeheartedly for the strike," said Max Bleck, association president. "The executive board will meet tomorrow to set the strike date.

"Calling of the strike will shut the doors of 133 retail fish stores owned by the 126 association members."

Block charged wholesaler prices have been "much too high," forcing retailers to charge Chicago consumers more than they should have to pay. No ceiling prices are in effect on fresh water fish caught in the United States, he said.

"The wholesalers are trying to force the office of price administration to place ceilings on domestically caught fresh water fish in order to open a new channel for black market activities," Block declared. "If the government places ceilings on fresh water fish, they will move overnight from normal market channels into the black market and at least one-half of the city's retailers will close their shops."

BULL BROWSES ON BENT LAWN; POLICE BELLOW

A bull that strayed from a truck farm to the greener pastures of creeping bent grass in the 1700 block in Wilmette av., Wilmette, was chased home yesterday by three village policemen who discovered it is easier to make a bull run than to make it stop and do a left turn.

The animal wandered from the lot of Benny Gerschefski, 602 Locust rd., Wilmette, just eight blocks from the lawn where Policemen Joseph Steffens and Joseph Schmidt found it nibbling. Police Capt. Henry Brautigan arrived a few minutes later in another radio car. "I just had to come to see this," the captain said.

It was agreed that the bull should be shooed west because [1] Benny Gerschefski lived that way, and [2] the bull was headed west. The police made a commotion with sticks and yells and the bull took off, west of Wilmette av. It crossed Locust rd. in high. Capt. Brautigan blocked the bull with a squad car at Hibbard rd., four blocks past Locust. About 20 boys helped the police head the animal back to the farm.

CROWDS LINE UP FOR BLOCKS TO BUY N. Y. PAPERS

New York, July 7 (AP)—New Yorkers descended upon newspaper offices by the thousands to buy Sunday editions tonight as a strike of delivery men entered its second week.

The largest throng—estimated by police at more than 11,000—was at the Daily News building, where men, women, and children stood three abreast for five blocks. They were buying papers at the rate of more than 15,000 an hour. Thirty policemen kept the lines orderly.

Crows at offices of other papers which published Sunday editions ranged from 200 to 1,500.

Earlier, the Publishers Association of New York City said in a statement that delivery of the city's newspapers would be resumed when the strikers complied with a war labor board order to return to work.

The union is demanding higher pay and asking employers to contribute a sum equal to three per cent of the union members' wages to a union general fund.

15 Million More Needed to Fill City's Bond Quota

Lawrence F. Stern, chairman of the Chicago and Cook county war finance committee, said yesterday that sales of $15,719,000 in war bonds by 5 p. m. tomorrow will be necessary in order to fill the district's $171,146,000 quota in series E securities. Thru last Friday, E bond sales in the city and county reached $155,427,000, or 90.8 per cent of the quota.

'Today I Atè Steak!' Texas Note Says

BY GAIL COMPTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Fort Worth, Tex., July 7—Today I ate steak.

Here is the one day saga of a guy from Chicago who came to the cattle country to find out where all the meat has gone.

But after reading it, don't rush down. I still may be down here and and do not want any competition in steak eating. Besides, train reservations are hard to get.

This morning I wandered into the coffee shop at the hotel for breakfast. I asked for two fried eggs. Then it happened.

Recovers—Takes Ham

"What kind of meat do you want with the eggs? Ham, bacon or sausage?" the waitress asked.

After recovering, I took the ham. It came in four slices, cut paper thin and frizzled a delicious brown. With only a few words I got a rasher of bacon to go with it. I never did get around to eating the eggs.

I ate lunch at the Fort Worth stock yards. I timidly asked the cattleman I lunched with if it were possible to get a steak.

Steak and French Fries

"Huh," he grunted in surprise. "Of course, but why not try some of the fish. It's fresh in and pretty good I hear."

I wound up, naturally, with the steak. It was a beautifully done minute steak with French fried potatoes and a sliced tomato. Price 65 cents.

Tonight I went to a restaurant with high hopes and I wasn't disappointed. I called the waitress over and in my best Chicago manner asked out of the side of my mouth if she could fix me up with a steak, price no object.

What a Menu!

Her eyebrows lifted in surprise and she shoved a menu before me. Here it is in part.

Broiled club steak, $1.25; small tenderloin steak, $1.25; fillet mignon steak, rasher of bacon, $1.50; porterhouse steak, $1.75; rib steak, $1.25; Kansas City sirloin steak, $1.75; cured ham steak, 90 cents; broiled lamb chops [2] no toast, 90 cents.

After I have been here a few more days, I am going to complain to the manager about not serving toast with their lamb chops [2]. Its an outrage.

Seven Mile Ride

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 7 (AP)—William [Red] Hill Jr. was ready today for his seven mile ride thru the Niagara rapids and whirlpool tomorrow in a steel barrel, unperturbed that Niagara park commission police had orders to prevent him from making the trip unless he obtained a permit.

"At 2 p. m. Sunday I'll take off from the Maid of the Mist landing at the foot of the Horseshoe Falls," said the 32 year old Hill, adding that he had a couple of aces up his sleeve to offset any action by the police. For one thing, he planned to have two lawyers on hand to do any talking in his behalf.

Hill is making the trip to raise funds to buy life saving equipment as a memorial to his late father, who made the same trip three times —in 1910, 1930, and 1931. The barrel he will use was built in 1930 to his father's specifications. It weighs 750 pounds and has 150 pounds of ballast in the bottom to keep it upright.

It was expected that 200,000 persons would be on hand to watch Hill's barrel on its course thru the swirling whirlpool and the seething rapids.

Remembering his father's plight in 1931 when his barrel was caught in the whirlpool for 2½ hours, Hill will have two brothers both expert swimmers, and other river men ready to come to his assistance. In his father's case, he swam out and got a line on the barrel to get it out of the whirlpool.

CAN GI JOE FIND A JOB AT HOME? ANSWER IS 'YES'

(This is the first article of a series on employment and business opportunities for discharged veterans.)

What are the job opportunities for veterans?

Can a man get into business for himself?

Is the country heading for a boom or a depression or both?

These are questions being asked by men returning to civilian life after spending two, three, or five of their best years in military service.

Many of these returning veterans are seeking their first civilian jobs. Some who held jobs during the war are not content to return to their former positions. Others are eager to take up where they left off, resuming old jobs that are waiting for them.

Problems of Two Groups

It is to the first two groups that this and subsequent articles in the series starting today are directed. The articles will report on the opportunities for veterans in various fields, single out those fields which promise the greatest development, and tell something of the problems of veterans who launch their own business ventures.

The preponderant opinion is that there is excellent promise for a high level of private employment in the United States after the war.

The limited economic objectives with which the country was preoccupied in the pre-war decade are going into the discard. A period of economic growth and expansion lies ahead. There is more recognition in the ranks of government that the elusive economic security for which so much legislation was adopted in the pre-war period ultimately depends on a thriving economy. Such an economy cannot be forced by government action, but it can be fostered by government policies.

Big Demand for Goods

All the factors exist to create a high level of business and industrial activity after the war. Pentup demand for goods and the purchasing power with which to buy are present. This demand, it is estimated, is sufficient to keep industry and business humming for three years after the war ends. After this demand has been satisfied, there will be the stimulation of demand for new and improved products and expanding residential and industrial construction.

Emphasizing the prospect for future economic growth of the United States, Dr. Sumner H. Slichter, Harvard university economics professor, points out that "in every decade of our history but the 1930s there was an increase of 15 per cent per capita production in the United States."

"This rate of progress," said Slichter, "would mean that the gross national production should rise from 156 billion dollars shortly after the war to 229 billions by 1960 and 279 billions by 1970. Let us keep clearly before us these great potentialities of our economy. Awareness of them will help keep our sights high, it will stimulate confidence in our power to achieve, and it will encourage us to insist that public policies foster pioneering and expansion."

Second Economist Cited

This is the statement of one of the country's top economists, who is chairman of the research advisory board of the committee on economic development. Does it sound like day dreaming? Consider then the opinion of a nonacademic economist, Murray Shields, who is on the staff of the Irving Trust company of New York and is a member of the committee on post-war problems that has been studying the economic outlook.

"After the immediate post-war adjustments have been made," said Shields, "we probably will enter a period marked by an increasing standard of living, active, and expanding industries, and perhaps a really great prosperity. One reason for genuine encouragement is that we are not likely to repeat some of the costly economic errors of the past, for many of the sure-fire economic panaceas so popular a few years ago do not now have much of a following."

Why are these men optimistic about the future? Let Shields explain:

"If we give our technicians and scientists an incentive to use their imaginations, if we turn the practical administrators of American industry loose on cutting costs, and if we use the techniques of salesmanship and market exploitation developed to so high an art in the United States, we will have many new industries and they will astound us with their size."

[Future articles will examine in detail the fields in which economic opportunities are foreseen.]

YANKS ON FOOT TIP SCALES ON ISLES: MORROW

Tribune Writer Tells of Iwo, Okinawa Victories

Thomas Morrow

Incredible courage and devotion of the American foot soldier—fighting against fortified Japanese positions in terrain that did not permit the full use of modern mechanized weapons—was the deciding factor in the successful invasions of Iwo and Okinawa Islands, Thomas Morrow, Chicago Tribune war correspondent who has just returned from the Pacific, asserted yesterday.

In both these campaigns, Morrow said, the use of tanks and other mobile weapons was held to only a fraction of their full potential power because of the sharp ridges and gullies that marked the islands' terrain and the ever present sea of clinging red mud. The Japs also have developed a new gun, which was used with some effect against us, he said.

Courage and Devotion Win

Furthermore, the marine and army infantry men on these islands were facing probably the best planned and most strongly fortified defense system yet devised by the Japanese, Morrow pointed out.

"The reason we now hold Iwo and Okinawa," he said, "is because our troops possess a brand of courage and devotion to their job beyond belief.

"On Iwo, I saw the 4th division marines tear at Japanese machine gun emplacements with their bare hands. I saw dead marines with their bodies still in the attitude of charging. I've seen a small group of soldiers charge into a cross-fire of nearly 50 machine guns with only small arms: carbines, side arms, grenades, and things like that.

Blanket of Fire on Iwo

"In the battle for Iwo, the whole island was a front line. Every inch of it was ranged by mortar shells and Japanese 77s. There was no area to which a man could go for rest. You crawled ashore under fire, and all the time you were on the island there was a solid blanket of fire in front, behind, and above you.

"On Okinawa, soldiers and marines were forced to move against a series of sharp ridges, pocketed with caves. Often when they were trying to take one ridge, cross-fire would sweep down on our troops from two or three other adjoining hills.

"Both islands provided the horrible experience of moving against an enemy who is an artist at concealment and a maniac for killing. Slaughter and confusion and obliteration—all a crazy chaos you never are able to describe or understand. Yet our men went into it and went on to victory."

New Enemy Tactics on Okinawa

In the Okinawa campaign, Morrow said, the Japs used defensive tactics never met before by our troops: They manned some of their cave pitted ridges with entire companies equipped with machine guns. Thus American troops often were facing 40 or 50 machine guns in a single small area.

The Japanese also used bombing tactics against ground troops, sending half trained pilots in every rickety plane they had available. This was unsuccessful, Morrow pointed out, because navy flyers joined with land based marine and army pilots to form a protective screen that let only a very few planes get thru.

As in previous campaigns, Morrow said, the Japanese made full use of their suicidal [kamikaze] flyers during the invasions of Iwo and Okinawa. Such attacks, he said, are the most terrifying experiences of war.

Japs Crazy! That's No Help

"When you're at sea there is no cover," he said. "There's no place to hide on a ship. Even if a suicide pilot is killed—and a lot of them are—the kamikaze plane screeches down on its course. It's an unearthly experience. You know the Japs are crazy, but that knowledge isn't much comfort somehow."

Morrow told several stories illustrating the spirit and humor of the marines and soldiers fighting on Okinawa.

One was about a young sergeant who came around the corner of a huge rock and suddenly met a Japanese officer carrying his big samurai sword. The sergeant wrested the sword away from the Jap and with one sweep neatly lopped off the officer's head.

Tosses Satchel Charges

"I always thought these were dangerous things for the Japs to carry," said the sergeant as he wiped the blade.

Another marine, Sgt. George Derderian of Chicago, was described by Morrow as taking delight in tossing satchel charges [a box filled with high explosives] overhand like a grenade. Once while on patrol Sgt. Derderian came upon a Jap supply train of several trucks. He awaited an ammunition truck before throwing his satchel charge. One came—and he threw.

"It was the nicest explosion I've ever seen," Sgt. Derderian said, "tho it was a little hard on the ears."

Yank Irked—Six Japs Perish

Lt. William Bellano, described by Lt. Gen. H. M. Smith as an "itinerant miner who joined the marine corps because he couldn't find enough explosions," was laying mines in an open field one day when six Jap snipers began to heckle him from the surrounding woods. When they seriously began to interfere with his work, Lt. Bellano picked up his pistol. A few minutes later, all six were dead and Lt. Bellano continued his mine laying.

"There are innumerable such stories about individuals," Morrow said, "and it is those stories that make up the whole pattern of war.

"You have to give immense credit to the navy, which has taken us to every island and then stood by to protect our landing against everything the Japs have. On Iwo and Okinawa the 1st, 4th, and 6th marine divisions and the 96th army division were tremendous fighting outfits. The commanding officers did a magnificent job, but basically the real credit has to go to the individual—the guy who grabs his gun and moves forward.

Individuals Winning the War

"You have to give credit to men like Capt. Joe McCarthy, a former Chicago fireman, who spent 19 days under constant fire on Iwo before he was wounded, to Lt. Bellano, to Sgt. Derderian. They are the ones who fight the war. It isn't a whole fleet or division.

"In the Pacific, we have what learned gentlemen call 'a war of attrition.' That means you kill Japs and they kill you until the last cluster of survivors can't find any more enemies to kill. Then the battle is over. The losers are dead. The survivors are victors."

Morrow, who spent 10 months in the Pacific, is home on leave. He told of his experiences last night over radio station W-G-N.

$100,000 BLAZE HITS HAMMOND LUMBER FIRM

Damage estimated at $100,000 was caused last night by a fire which swept the two block long lumber yards of the L. Fischer company at 2227 New York av., Hammond. Hammond, Whiting, and Gary firemen fought the fire several hours before it was brought under control.

Fire Chief Joseph Scherer of Hammond said the blaze originated from a rubbish fire started behind a tin shed adjoining the yards. It quickly spread thru five lumber and machinery sheds, then attacked a brick building in which the company stored milling machinery.

Five car loads of paper cartons owned by another company and stored in the yards also were destroyed. Harvey Radloff, 8015 Kingston av., manager of the Fischer company, said all the machinery destroyed is irreplacable at this time.

MISS SWARTHOUT LATEST TO JOIN FESTIVAL STARS

BY PHILIP MAXWELL

Gladys Swarthout, beautiful mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company and star of the concert stage, radio, and the movies, will be one of the two great artists to be heard Saturday night, Aug. 18, at the 16th annual Chicago Music Festival to be held in Soldiers' field. She will sing several arias, accompanied by the festival symphony orchestra, conducted by Henry Weber, the general musical director.

Miss Swarthout will return to the city of her early musical triumphs. Her rise to stardom is the story of a little country girl who made good. She was born in Deepwater, Mo., a village even now of less than 1,000 inhabitants. She was graduated from Central High school in Kansas City, Mo., and received her early training at the Bush Conservatory here.

Her appearance at the festival will be a happy occasion for both Miss Swarthout and Mr. Weber. Miss Swarthout sang the role of the Little Shepherd in "Tannhäuser," directed by Mr. Weber in his debut as conductor for the opera company here. It was on the night of Nov. 11, 1924.

Miss Swarthout also was a member of the Ravinia company and made her debut at the Metropolitan as La Cieca in "La Gioconda" on Nov. 15, 1929.

Popular as a concert star, Miss Swarthout has toured the United States frequently and of late has been featured on the "Firestone Hour" on radio.

The deadline for entry of singers in the Festival Cook county voice contests will be 6 p. m. Monday, July 16. All entry blanks must be in the Festival headquarters in Tribune Tower at that time. The deadline for out of Cook county entrants is July 30.

Reserved seats at 80 cents and $1.25 for the festival concert are now on sale by mail. Money order or check should be made payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and sent with enclosed self-addressed stamped envelope to Festival Ticket Manager, Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

COWBOY ELLIOTT WINS FORTUNE IN FADING NETWORK

Texans Recall His Deals in Radio Stations

BY GUY GENTRY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Gen. Roosevelt

Ft. Worth, Tex., July 7—Elliott Roosevelt, a young man who came to Fort Worth in 1933 seeking his fortune and seven years later had a salary larger than his father's, is the chief topic of conversation in this city's country club set, but is nearly forgotten up and down Main st.

Every news dispatch disclosing another episode in Elliott's hectic radio financing increases the buzz of conversation around the tables at the River Crest and Colonial Country clubs and at the Fort Worth club, but creates scarcely a ripple among most of Fort Worth's 280,000 citizens, more than 60,000 of whom are recently arrived war workers.

Fred Marshall, taxi driver, commented, "Yes, Elliott used to be around here some but haven't heard much about him since the war started." And a war worker answered, "Elliott—He's the son of the President. Never knew he lived here."

Found Elliott Active

"Yes, Elliott was quite active while he lived here," said William Holden, general manager of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce. "Of course, he was out of town much of the time and didn't serve on any of our committees but in those things in which we did work together he was very coöperative."

A member of the Fort Worth club, reading of a $120,000 loan Elliott had negotiated in New York when he was president of the Texas state network here, chuckled and remarked, "Elliott certainly gave those easterners a good selling."

Business men of Fort Worth agree Elliott is a salesman of first rank but also agree almost unanimously that he's not a good business man. Raymond Buck, attorney, summed up the general view thus: "Elliott found out you can't practice New Deal spending methods unless you have the United States treasury behind you."

Oil Men Optimistic

Only two Fort Worth oil men admit they are among the many financial backers of Elliott's radio enterprises. These two, Charles F. Roeser and Sid W. Richardson, who took over the direction of Elliott's radio business when he went into the army in 1940, have expressed confidence they will be able to get their money back eventually.

Elliott created quite a stir in Fort Worth when he first arrived here as the guest of the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock show in March, 1933, a week after his father had taken his first Presidential oath. Standing 6 feet 2 inches and weighing more than 200 pounds, the high heeled cowboy boots and 10 gallon hat Elliott donned then made even Texans turn and stare. He met Ruth Googins, Fort Worth society girl, on that visit and four months later married her.

Radio Career Started

Elliott's entry into the radio business was on Oct. 1, 1935 when A. P. Barrett, who had amassed a fortune in Texas utilities and in the operation of pioneer airplane passenger lines, gave him a job. Barrett owned five Texas radio stations and had eight others affiliated in the Southwest Broadcasting company. He made Elliott vice president in charge of sales.

A few months later Elliott arranged for the sale of four of the five stations to Hearst Radio Inc., getting a commission of $30,000 from Barrett and a vice presidency at $20,000 a year from Hearst. Buck, who acted as attorney for Elliott and Barrett in the deal, bought the fifth station, KTAT, in Fort Worth.

Elliott's first station of his own was KFJZ, a 250-watt station in Fort Worth purchased Sept. 7, 1937 in his wife's name for $57,500.

On August 11, 1938, a charter was issued to the Texas state network with 1,000 shares of no par value and with $50,000 cash paid in. Elliott, Buck, and Harry Hutchinson, manager of KFJZ, were incorporators, Buck and Hutchinson holding one share each.

1,000 Shares Issued

The network, its 23 stations then comprising the largest regional hook-up in the country, made its bow on Sept. 25, 1938 with a program of national stars headed by Bob Hope. Elliott immediately launched an aggressive business expansion program.

He admitted later in testimony before the federal communications commission that the network lost more than $100,000 in the first three months of operation. Estimates here are that $350,000 was poured into the network the next year.

Offices Opened in Chicago

Elaborate offices were opened in Rockefeller Center in New York and in the Wrigley building in Chicago. Elliott hired so many vice presidents that one of the jokes at the Fort Worth club at that time was that every stranger getting off a plane at Meacham field was a new vice president. A beautiful studio building was constructed for KFJZ in Fort Worth.

Elliott met the mounting deficits by borrowing. Much of his money was raised in the east, the $200,000 loan from John Hartford, Atlantic and Pacific head, which started an official investigation, being one of many.

He approached Roeser and Richardson, both major independent oil men who had made their fortunes largely in wildcat fields. They agreed to invest and started with $50,000 later boosting the ante until reports here are they put in more than $300,000. Roeser and Richardson say only they have the stock to show for their money and they are satisfied with the future prospects of their investments.

Stock Is Collateral

In Elliott's financial deals the collateral was largely Texas State network stock, the assets of which consisted solely of Elliott's agreement with 23 radio stations to furnish programs, sell advertising, and, in the case of five stations, to act as manager.

Elliott wanted a bigger station than his 250 watt KFJZ so he paid Buck $101,450 for station KTAT, junked the station and transferred its 1,000 watt license to KFJZ. Later he succeeded in getting the station's power boosted to 5,000 watts, and made it the key station of his network.

Elliott pooled some of his funds with money Roeser and Richardson put up and paid $34,000 for 70 per cent of the stock in station KABC in San Antonio. Roeser and Richardson pooled another $50,000 and bought 50 per cent of the stock in station WACO at Waco and KNOW at Austin.

A Widened Network

Late in 1939 Elliott plunged into the formation of a national radio network to be known as the Transcontinental Broadcasting company, with the objective of making it bigger than any of the then existing national networks. Largely on the promise that sufficient advertising would be forthcoming to assure success of the network, 113 stations were signed up and New Year's eve was set as the formal opening date.

But trouble started almost immediately. Elliott resigned as president of the new network on Dec. 21, only 10 days before it was scheduled to open. The opening was first delayed a month, then canceled. In the receivership that followed Elliott filed claim for $70,000 stating he had put that much in the new venture.

When Elliott was commissioned a captain in the air corps on his 30th birthday, Sept. 23, 1940, he was making $76,000 a year, $1,000 more than the salary of the President.

The news of Elliott's entry into the army came with slight warning to Roeser and Richardson. Hutchinson, manager of KFJZ, was placed in charge temporarily and then Gene Cagle, another member of the organization, was elected president of the network. Cagle started an economy program.

Cagle this year obtained permission from the FCC to purchase for the network a 50,000 watt station that had been operated by Dr. Norman Baker in Mexico across the border from Laredo, Tex.

Cagle said the cost of the station, dismantling it and setting it up again, would be more than $250,000. The increased power is being added to station KABC at San Antonio, in which Roeser, Richardson, and Elliott own 70 per cent of the stock.

Elliott was divorced by his Texas wife in 1944. R. L. Hanger, Fort Worth attorney, represented Mrs. Roosevelt and the property settlement arranged with Elliott thru the United States embassy in London, gave half their property, including a 1,500 acre ranch near Fort Worth, to Mrs. Roosevelt.

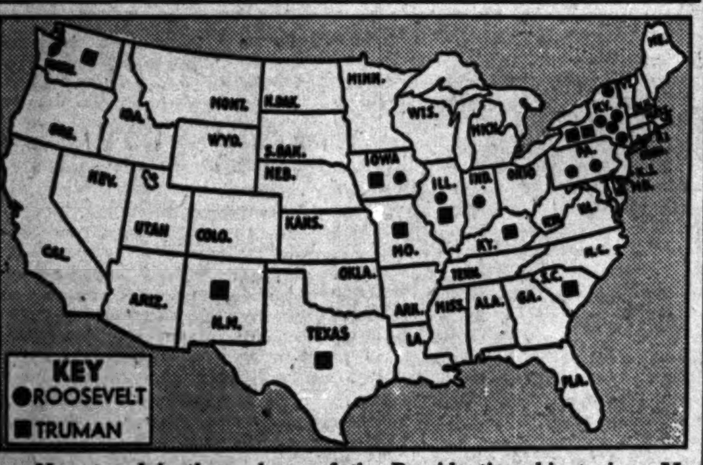
Trust Fund for Children

It also provided a trust fund for the three children from the remainder of Elliott's Texas properties, with the exception of a small share of Texas state network stock and his holdings in station KABC at San Antonio.

An application filed by the Texas state network in May, 1945, with the FCC and now pending, calls for the sale of stock now owned by Elliott Roeser and Richardson in station KABC, WACO, and KNOW, as well as the 99 per cent of the stock in station KFJZ owned by Elliott's divorced wife, now Mrs. Harry Eidson, to the network. Cagle said the sale would be largely a matter of stock transfer, since the ownership involves tangible property for the first time since its formation.

Present network stockholders include Elliott, who owns 5 per cent, Mrs. Eidson, Elliott's three children, and Roeser, Richardson, Cagle, and a few minor stockholders. Cagle rates it now as a half million dollar enterprise.

West Winning a Voice in Cabinet



New trend in the makeup of the President's cabinet since Mr. Truman assumed office.

East Loses Grip

Washington, D. C., July 7 [Special]—President Truman's recent appointments are making his cabinet more representative of the nation as a whole than the cabinet was under the late President Roosevelt.

The present membership of the cabinet, which includes four holdovers, is composed of Byrnes of South Carolina, Vinson of Kentucky, Stimson of New York, Forrestal of New York, Clark of Texas, Ickes of Illinois, Schwellenbach of Washington, Anderson of New Mexico, Wallace of Iowa, and Hannegan of Missouri. At the time of Mr. Roosevelt's death his cabinet included Stettinius of New York, Morgenthau of New York, Stimson of New York, Forrestal of New York, Biddle of Pennsylvania, Ickes of Illinois, Perkins of New York, Wickard of Indiana, Wallace of Iowa, and Walker of Pennsylvania.

Others who served in the cabinet under Mr. Roosevelt during his three previous terms included Hull of Tennessee, Woodring of Kansas, Murphy of Michigan, Farley of New York, Edison of New Jersey, Hopkins of New York, Cummings of Connecticut, Swanson of Virginia, Roper of South Carolina, Wooden of New York, and Dern of Utah.

RAILROADS ACT TO CUT CIVILIAN SLEEPING CARS

ODT Ban Is Expected to Last 3 to 5 Months

Chicago railroads acted yesterday to comply with the office of defense transportation order removing sleeping cars from runs of 450 miles or less to make them available for military use. The lines, faced with the necessity of handling a record passenger volume this summer and fall because of troop redeployment, expressed concern over possible interference with domestic economy.

The removal order, effective next Sunday, will freeze nearly 900 Pullmans and other sleeping cars for troop movements. The ban may last three to five months, the Association of American Railroads predicted in Washington, D. C.

Civilian transportation faces difficulties for an even longer period, said C. E. Johnston, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives, which represents 40 railroads. The next 10 or 12 months, he predicted, will be hard for travelers.

Pressure on Western Lines

The redeployment of soldiers from Europe to the Pacific, Johnston warned, will put severe pressure on western lines. "The railroads," he asserted, "have just about run out of miracles. Unless redeployment is geared to railroad capacity, anything can happen."

Johnston said that the army is returning troops from Europe one-third faster than expected and that arrivals this month apparently will run 40 per cent greater. This makes it impossible to supply the transportation that veterans deserve, he said. He emphasized the need of new equipment and more workers.

Sleepers are being removed from runs between Chicago and such cities as Detroit, Mich.; Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, and Cincinnati, O.; Louisville, Ky.; St. Louis, Mo., and St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn. Day coaches will replace Pullmans when possible.

Difficult to Substitute Coaches

The ODT recently took 400 coaches for military use. This will make it difficult for some roads to replace pullmans with coaches. The North Western, for example, said it probably would be impossible to do so on night trains to the northern Wisconsin resort country. Various officials doubted that trains could be taken off night schedules and put on day runs.

"Like every one else, we want our returning soldiers to have the best accommodations," one executive said. "However, we also must provide for war plant executives and other employes whose duties require them to travel. Planning for reconversion from war to peace requires much travel."

The order, it was pointed out, will increase the demand for hotel accommodations in cities where space already is at a premium because essential travelers will make stopovers to avoid sitting up in coaches.

The Illinois Central railroad is removing 16 sleepers on runs from Chicago to St. Louis, Springfield, Ill., and Waterloo, Ia. The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy is dropping 19 Pullmans, six of them from trains between Chicago and Minneapolis, Minn., and Quincy, Ill.

Rock Island Takes Off Five

The Rock Island is taking off five Pullmans on runs from Chicago to Des Moines, Ia., Peoria, Ill., and Davenport, Ia. On the North Western, seven runs will lose sleeping cars—to St. Paul, Des Moines, and Cedar Rapids, Ia., Green Bay and Ashland, Wis., and Watersmeet and Ishpeming, Mich. The Wabash will eliminate three sleepers between Chicago and St. Louis.

The ODT clarified some of the effects of its order. It said persons traveling less than 450 miles may take sleeping car space, if available, on trains making longer runs. The order applies to soldiers and sailors on leaves as well as civilians. The army will take care of wounded soldiers whom the ODT order will deprive of their automatic priority for short trips on Pullmans.

PULLMAN RIDING WAR PRISONERS PUT IN COACHES

Omaha, Neb., July 7 [Special]—A detachment of Italian prisoners of war who arrived in Omaha today in tourist Pullman cars was taken off the train and made to continue its trip by coach, the 7th service command headquarters disclosed.

American veterans of the European war who arrived yesterday at Salt Lake City, Utah, were indignant as they told of seeing Italian service unit members led aboard sleepers at Kansas Ciy, Mo. The veterans had ridden from Camp Myles Standish near Boston, Mass., in day coaches that were dirty and lacking in adequate sanitation facilities.

The Italians who were transferred here today were en route from Monticello, Ark., prison camp to work at the Sioux ordnance depot, Sidney, Neb., the army said.

C. J. Collins, Union Pacific passenger traffic manager, said that on learning of the Italians' arrival in the sleepers, the railroad refused to let them continue their trip until they were put on coaches.

PATCH IS NAMED COMMANDER OF U. S. 4TH ARMY

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Patch, who led the 7th army thru southern France and into Germany, today was assigned to command the 4th army at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

The war department said that Patch will have charge of training thousands of troops for duty in the Pacific, where he saw action against the Japanese on Guadalcanal. The 4th army served during the European war as a training organization and presumably will continue in that capacity.

Patch replaces Maj. Gen. John P. Lucas, who has served as deputy commander or commander of the 4th since March, 1944. Gen. Lucas' next assignment was not immediately announced.

42 U.S. DIVISIONS IN EUROPE TO BE BACK THIS YEAR

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—The war department said tonight that 42 of the 68 divisions which fought in Europe and the Mediterranean will be back home or on the way by the end of the year.

Three full infantry divisions—the 86th, 97th, and 95th—have arrived and most of a fourth infantry division—the 104th—is back.

Advance detachments of seven other divisions, the 2d, 4th, 5th, 8th, 44th, and 87th infantry and the 13th armored, have reached this country and the remainder of the units will arrive shortly.

Under present plans, 31 divisions will embark for home from August to January. Eight will remain in Europe as occupation forces and 18 will remain in Europe at least until the end of this year.

The shifting of the 42 divisions will involve the movement of more than 500,000 men.

Embarkation Schedule

Here is the schedule for embarkation of the divisions for the five months beginning in August.

August: 85th, 28th, and 30 infantry divisions and the 20th armored division.

September: 14th, 5th, 6th, and 7th armored divisions; the 17th air borne division; 88th, 91st, 35th, 45th, and 103d infantry divisions.

October: 9th armored division and the 92d, 26th, 79th, and 99th infantry divisions.

November: 10th armored division; 10th mountain division; 13th air borne; 83d, 63d, and 106th infantry divisions.

List Occupation Groups

December: 2d and 11th armored divisions; and the 34th, 90th, 80th, and 76th infantry divisions.

The eight divisions which are designated at occupation forces in the European and Mediterranean theaters are the 1st and 4th armored divisions; and the 1st, 3d, 9th, 29th, and 36th infantry divisions and the 82d air borne division.

The 18 divisions scheduled to remain in the European theater for the remainder of 1945 are the 3d, 8th, 12th, and 16th armored divisions; the 101st air borne division; and the 42d, 65th, 66th, 69th, 70th, 71st, 75th, 78th, 84th, 89th, 94th, 100th, and 102d infantry divisions.

The Europa, third largest ship afloat, will be used this fall to bring soldiers to the United States, the war department said.

The 52,000 ton craft is expected to make two round trips monthly. Its capacity is being increased to more than 5,000.

The Europa was moved recently, for the first time in four years, from Bremerhaven, Germany, to a nearby drydock where German workmen are reconditioning her.

1,144 Men Arrive

New York, July 7 (AP)—Three transports, the Benjamin Huntington, Eleazer Wheelock, and Justin Morrill, arrived today with 1,144 army men from Europe.

Aboard the Morrill were 379 troops, returned because of high point scores or over age and were not for redeployment.

The 14th Chemical company, the 187th Signal Repair company, and 53 liberated prisoners of war were among 383 on the Huntington.

The Wheelock carried 382 men, including the 634th M. P. Escort Guard company, headquarters, and headquarters company of the 8th tank destroyer group, and some reassignment men.

Capt. Joseph H. Purvis, Sullivan, Ill., commanded the Morrill.

DOZEN JAP SPIES HANGED; HUNTED GEN. MacARTHUR

One Filipino in the Group Executed in Manila

MANILA, P. I., July 7 (AP)—The Japanese sent spies into Manila after the capital's liberation with instructions to determine the location of Gen. MacArthur's headquarters, and a dozen of them were caught and hanged in June, military authorities disclosed today.

One officer said the spies insisted they were given no instructions for any action against the American commander but only to find where he was living.

One Filipino also was hanged. All were caught in civilian clothes. Some had hand grenades and written instructions. They were arrested by the counter-intelligence corps as they entered Manila and were condemned by military court on pleas of guilty.

Enemy Methods Called Crude

Officers declined to disclose details of how the spies were apprehended, but they described the enemy's methods as crude.

Most of the Japanese were former civilian residents of Manila who were taken into the enemy's military before the American invasion of Luzon.

The spies also were instructed to obtain the location of military objectives and to find out the current value of the yen.

The espionage center itself was moved toward Luzon's hills as the Americans advanced.

None of Spies Returns

One officer said none of the spies was believed to have returned to the Japanese with any information. Usually they did not even reach Manila. Some of those picked up later said they were sent out because the earlier spies had never returned.

The Japanese spies insisted their lives already were forfeited when they accepted the mission and they refused to worry about death sentences. Instead they said they were happy to be alive as long as they were.

Regimental Chief Killed

WITH 24TH DIVISION NEAR DAVAO, June 24 [Delayed] (AP)—The famed old "rock of Chickamauga" infantry regiment has lost one of the finest leaders in its long line of heroes. Col. Thomas E. [Jock] Clifford Jr., commander of the 19th regiment of the 24th division, was killed by successive enemy mortar shells while directing the bloody assault on the village of Tamogan.

Clifford won nation-wide acclaim as center of the Army football teams of 1933, '34 and '35. His home was Ceredo, W. Va.

He won the silver star for gallantry in the Hollandia campaign, and the distinguished service cross for extraordinary heroism in the Leyte campaign. The battalion he led during the latter fight won a Presidential citation.

Chicagoan Wounded

As regimental commander, Clifford led his men in the assault and capture of Davao city and the subsequent cleanup of the Japanese at the head of Davao gulf.

His death came quickly and without warning. The first mortar shell crumpled Clifford to the ground, seriously wounded. His operations officer, Capt. Robert B. Chapman, 17 N. Parkside av., Chicago, Ill., ran to his aid. A second mortar burst landed almost on top of the two men, killing Clifford and wounding Chapman.

Japs Who Work Hard Get Wild Boar Soup

San Francisco, Cal., July 7 (AP)—Radio Tokyo said today that workers in a Japanese aircraft factory who were not too bored with their tasks to overcome production difficulties received a reward of six wild boars. They immediately "made a delicious boar soup and distributed it among the plant workers," said the broadcast, "and then were very eager to increase production by exerting their utmost efforts."

KYUSHU RAIDED FROM OKINAWA 3D STRAIGHT DAY

GUAM, July 8 [Sunday]—(AP)—More attacks on Japanese shipping and air bases extending from the Ryukyus to the coast of Honshu, where 600 Super Fortresses raided five homeland cities without loss Saturday, were disclosed today in latest bulletins.

Kyushu, southernmost Japanese island, has been raided for the third straight day by 5th air force planes newly based on Okinawa, Gen. MacArthur reported from Manila. They shot down four of six planes encountered Thursday and probably destroyed the other two, without loss to themselves.

More than 40 Liberators escorted by Mustangs dropped 48 tons of fragmentation bombs on the Formosan west coast storage area at Kamioka and an additional 40 tons on Toyohara and Taikhoku air fields.

Nine Vessels Bagged

Marine planes sank two junks in the Amoy area of China Thursday, and also hit barracks there. Fifth air force Liberators dropped incendiaries on the Canton arms plants.

Off the south coast of Honshu, Adm. Nimitz reported Mitchell marine bombers sent rockets into four Japanese ships Friday.

Enemy air bases north and south of Okinawa were pounced on Friday and Saturday by marine aircraft which set seven grounded planes ablaze. Nimitz listed a bag of nine enemy ships, including five cargo vessels damaged at anchor off the China coast.

B-29s Burn Five Cities

The B-29s, making their fourth attack in six days, burned and blasted five aluminum, oil, rail, and industrial centers with 4,000 tons of bombs Saturday.

No Japanese fighters challenged the raiding mission, probably the largest yet, the 20th air force announced today. Anti-aircraft fire was meager and inaccurate.

Lt. Melvin C. Flak of Chicago, said the smoke over Kofu rose as high as 16,000 feet, and "we could see the glow of fire more than 50 miles."

Sgt. Oren Stembel of Elkhart, Ind., one of the flyers over the Maruzen refinery, said he could smell burning oil.

PETAIN TRIAL LESS THAN MONTH AWAY, PARIS OFFICIAL SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, July 7—A ministry of justice spokesman today said that suggestions that the trial of Marshal Petain, which was scheduled to open either June 28 or July 5, has been indefinitely postponed, are without foundation.

According to the spokesman, the trial "will almost certainly open in less than a month's time."

Authorities have not yet decided whether the trial will be held in the palace of justice, which is too small, or in the chamber of deputies.

CHICAGO YANK IN BURMA RIVER RESCUED BY AIR

AIR BASE IN INDIA—Sgt. Ewald Brenner, 5026 W. Fulton st., Chicago, member of an air commando group, recently was rescued from a sand bar in the Chindwin river in north Burma.

He was a passenger in a light airplane that, with the others, was forced off its course while flying from Mandalay to their base. With their last gas the planes made a landing on the sand bar. Fuel, blankets, rations, and tar paper for a runway were dropped by a transport plane, but the extra weight of passengers and baggage prevented a take-off.

After the men had been exposed for three days to a broiling sun and mosquitoes, a PBY plane landed and took off the passengers and luggage. One of the light planes they flew was piloted by Sgt. Charles Fessler, Detroit, Mich.

CHINESE BATTLE AGAINST NEW JAP LANDING

Seen as Effort to Block Allied Invasion

CHUNGKING, July 7 (AP)—The Chinese central news agency reported tonight that Japanese marines had landed on the coast of southeast China 140 miles west of Formosa in an apparent attempt to frustrate any allied plans for an invasion of the Asiatic mainland.

Several enemy landing parties beached on the bay-cut shores of Fukien province near Changpu, an important coastal highway center 35 miles southwest of the former treaty port of Amoy, the agency said.

Test of Strength Seen

The landings—second Japanese coastal operation in six weeks—were made June 30, but the invaders were tackled by local Chinese militia and "severe fighting" is in progress, the front dispatch said.

Chungking observers believed the landings may have been actuated by an enemy desire to test Chinese strength in the coastal region south of Japanese held Amoy, and to learn whether any preparations for an Anglo-American invasion were in progress.

It also was believed that the Japanese operation was designed to safeguard the depleted Japanese garrison in Amoy—the only Japanese held strongpoint along the coast of Fukien province—from Chinese attack.

Fight Way into Pass

As China entered her ninth year of war against the Japanese, the Chinese high command said that Chinese mountain fighters, extending to 160 miles their battle front along the Indo-Chinese frontier, had plunged into heavily fortified Chennakwan [Nam Quan or "South Guard"] pass 85 miles northeast of Hanoi.

Braving Japanese cross fire in the narrow 1,500-foot defile on the shortest route to the capital of the French colony, troops under Gen. Chang Fah-Kwei fought into the frontier pass after retaking Pingsiang, 11 miles from the Indo-Chinese town of Dong Dang.

24 CUB PLANES HOP 748 MI. TO OKINAWA BASE

OKINAWA, July 5 [Delayed]—(AP)—In close formation, unarmed and skirting Japanese held islands, 24 little army liaison planes flew today from Luzon to Yontan air field on Okinawa, 748 miles, in seven and one-half hours. It was the longest over water hop ever made by the L-5 planes, which are two-place "Cubs" used for evacuation of wounded, artillery spotting, or messenger work.

Pilots of larger planes frankly were skeptical that the small craft could make it. The planes have only the most essential instruments and no navigation equipment.

MORE CLASSICS OF ART FOUND IN HOMES OF NAZIS

NEUWIED, Germany, July 7 (AP)—A special army task force raided the homes of two nazi underlings today and discovered another cache of famous European art works.

The collection, valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars, included paintings owned by Nancy Astor, former English parliament member, seized by the Germans in Antwerp as they were being moved to England from the Astor castle at Hoffmansthal, Austria.

Works by Rembrandt, Van Dyck, and Hoffman were among those recovered. The most valuable was believed to be Van Dyck's "Professor in His Study." Some were found in the home of Heinrich Aviszius, former agent for Alfred Rosenberg, nazi ideological chief. The second cache, with art works belonging to Amsterdam and Antwerp museums, was found in the home of Gauleiter Rudolf Reppert at Remagen.

SUFFERS LACERATIONS IN ROBBERY

Samuel Welch, 51, of 4536 Lake Park av., a painter, was treated at Wesley Memorial hospital yesterday for lacerations which he said were inflicted by two Negroes who robbed him of $30 in front of 810 Rush st.

JAP-AMERICAN HERO OFFICER ON HOSPITAL LEAVE

Lt. Harold Tsukuno, 29, who fought in Italy with the all-Japanese-American 442d combat team, is spending a hospital leave at the home of his father, Toyogiro Tsukuno, 1333 N. La Salle st., a retired importer. He was wounded April 11 in Italy and returned to the United States for hospitalization at the Harmon General hospital, Longview, Tex.

Lt. Harold Tsukuno

After the war, Lt. Tsukuno said, he plans to go into the importing business. "The possibilities of trade in that field with China will be unlimited," he predicted. Because of serious hip, leg and hand wounds, he said he hopes to be discharged soon. He entered the army before Pearl Harbor.

Lt. Tsukuno was a member of a detachment which went to the rescue in France of a lost battalion of the 36th division. The Tsukuno's family home is in Seattle, Wash., but they were moved here by the war relocation authority. His sister, Mrs. Tony Fujimura, works for the WRA here.

FRANCE TO LET SYRIA CONTROL NATIVE TROOPS

PARIS, July 8 [Sunday] (AP)—The foreign office announced today that France has agreed to restore control of native Syrian and Lebanese armies to their respective governments in what obviously was a first step toward reopening negotiations with the two middle-east states. The French said the transfer would be effected within 45 days.

This action will place between 20,000 and 25,000 troops, the total force of both countries, under control of their respective governments. Heretofore they have been commanded by French officers and paid by the French government.

The situation constituted one of the principal points of controversy between France and the two countries.

RUSSIA'S ROLE IN PACIFIC HAS LONDON TALKING

Diplomats Believe Big 3 Will Discuss Reds' Part

BY E. R. NODERER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 7 — Diplomatic circles in London tonight were buzzing with speculation that Russia may enter the war against Japan.

Many diplomats said that President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill undoubtedly would discuss the far eastern situation with Marshal Stalin at the Big Three conference expected to be held at Potsdam, 16 miles from Berlin, within two weeks.

In addition there is the fact that Dr. T. V. Soong, Chinese prime minister, is in Moscow conferring with Stalin. Another arrival in Moscow this week was Marshal Choibalsan, prime minister of the Mongolian republic, whose country lies on the route to the far east theater of war.

Believe U. S. Backs Soong

Dr. Soong is believed here to enjoy United States economic and diplomatic support. On the other hand it is thought that the Kremlin would not like to see China become a paramount interest of the United States while Russian influences were confined to the poorer areas controled by the Chinese Reds.

The big obstacle to Chinese-Moscow harmony apparently is Chungking's suspicion that the Russians ultimately will insist on a settlement which will bring Manchuria and Korea into the Russian sphere of influence.

It is believed that Stalin will offer the Chinese central government substantial economic and military aid as compensation for its acceptance of the fact that the northern provinces of Mongolia, Manchuria, and Korea have moved outside the Chinese orbit. It is for this reason that the Mongolian prime minister is believed to be in Moscow.

Chinese quarters in London, however, feel that signing away large sections of Chinese territory will be out of the question. Soong is said to be in communication with Chungking now on this point.

Victory Near, Says Chiang

CHUNGKING, China, July 7 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek said today that total victory was no longer in doubt and that Chinese preparations for a general offensive against the Japanese were proceeding. He spoke at the opening meeting of the fourth people's political council, which makes recommendations to the central executive committee of the kuomintang.

Chiang disclosed that a considerable part of China's army units under his command had been reorganized and brought up to strength.

He said the treatment, equipment, and training of Chinese soldiers had been improved, and "particularly gratifying to us all is the coöperation between Chinese and American military authorities, which has become even more intimate."

Celebration on Top of Hill 89

[Associated Press Wirephoto: From Marine Corps]

First division marines and 7th division soldiers, atop Okinawa's hill 89, celebrate, on June 27, the American victory. The sign reads: "Within this hill is sealed the command post where Lt. Gen. Ushijima, commander of the Japanese army, surrounded by his senior officers, made his final organized stand. This hill was seized by troops of the 7th infantry division on June 21, 1945, thus ending the battle of Okinawa."

Swiss Get Jap Apology for Killings at Manila

LONDON, July 6 (AP)—Japan has apologized to Switzerland and offered to pay damages for the deaths of 12 Swiss Nationals in Manila, P. I., the Swiss radio said tonight.

BATTLE IS OVER, BUT MEN STILL DIE ON OKINAWA

OKINAWA, July 8 [Sunday]—(AP)—This is a tour of the Okinawa battle field after the guns have fallen silent—a battlefield where many valorous young Americans fell but carried with them into eternity an even greater number of Japanese.

The jeep bumps along—moving slowly thru the dust clouds to keep from running down Okinawans—past the ruined and deserted villages into the rubble heap of what was once Naha, the capital of Okinawa.

Then up the hill to Shuri castle, where the Japanese had their headquarters until the shells and bombs pulverized the walls, five feet thick.

Monuments to Valor

There was Chocolate Drop hill, where the wreckage of 15 American tanks stopped by Japanese shells are mute monuments to the valor of the men who fell in the battle to conquer it.

It is peaceful now on Conical hill, where the Americans fought up and were driven back, and finally went up to stay.

Not far away is a cemetery where many of those who fought on Conical hill lie buried. Helmeted soldiers are painting white crosses.

In the center of one cemetery was a low picket fence around the grave of Lt. Gen. Buckner, commander of the United States 10th army, who fell just as final victory was in view.

The sporadic fire of Japanese snipers from distant hill 89 reminds the visitor that men still are falling altho the campaign itself long since has ended.

There is a cave, running two miles underground, containing a subterranean lake. The Japanese fought fiercely here.

Pumps Lake for Shower

Today a soldier pumped water from the lake for a shower bath.

On the way up to the mountains the roads are lined with the wreckage of Japanese equipment—planes, tanks, trucks, and carts. And there are some American tanks and planes there, too.

The Okinawa mountaineers are used to Americans now. For the Okinawans, too—once terrorized by the guns and bombs—the war now seemed far away.

SON OF ANTHONY EDEN IS MISSING WITH CREW OF PLANE IN BURMA

Sgt. Simon Eden

LONDON, July 7 (AP)—Sgt. Simon Eden, eldest son of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, was reported missing today on an operational flight in Burma. The air ministry said the British aircraft on which he was flying as a crew member has been unreported for several days.

Sgt. Eden, 20, trained in Canada as a navigator with the R. A. F. after attending Eton.

The air ministry reported "no developments" in the search for a missing R. A. F. Liberator bringing a foreign office group home from the San Francisco conference. Airplanes continued to scan wide reaches of the Atlantic for the plane, which left Montreal Tuesday.

CHICAGO COWBOY LASSOES A JAP OUT OF HIS CAVE

Grenade Helps Wild West Tactics

BY WALTER SIMMONS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., July 7—Pvt. Lee Mills, 6425 S. Rockwell st., Chicago, reached into the book for an old cowboy trick when his patrol saw a wounded Jap's feet sticking out of a cave east of Manila. Suspecting the presence of other Japs, the patrol fashioned a lariat and lassoed the protruding feet. Then, tying the rope to a bamboo pole, they pulled.

The Jap emerged a little, then disappeared inside the cave. Somebody was pulling from the other end. Cowboy Mills could see a hand tugging industriously on the arm of the Jap.

The infantry has an answer for such situations. Mills tossed a white phosphorous grenade into the cave. Smoke and two high stepping Japs emerged from the cave's other entrance 30 feet away. After caring for the sprinters in typical GI fashion Mills and the other cowboys returned to the cave and hauled out the wounded man.

Elsewhere in the Philippines a 24th division infantry squad which included Sgt. Ted Majcher, 3811 S. Honore st., and Tech. Sgt. Stephen Lazing, both of Chicago, was advancing with the tanks in a bitterly fought encounter in the Davao sector. Without opposition the tanks rumbled across a series of winding Jap trenches. But the enemy had a trick up his sleeve. When the Yank tanks had passed concealed Japs sprang from the trenches and slashed at the Yank infantry.

"We were looking for that," said Sgt. Majcher afterward as the squad counted 27 enemy dead. "It was a bit of a go," he said, "but with one thing and another including rifle butts, bayonets, and Jap sabers we took care of them pretty well."

Corp. Ray Budelski, 8629 Escanaba av., Chicago, and his forward observer group were pinned down by strong Jap fire at a road block near Gumalang on Mindanao. Artillery shells, mortar and machine gun fire, and snipers' bullets rocketed overhead.

Things were too hot to permit a withdrawal. So the group stayed and directed fire which resulted in the death of 16 Japs and the capture of two machine gun positions and two 75 mm. anti-aircraft guns.

PREMIER FLIES TO 4TH PARLEY WITH LEOPOLD

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 7 [Reuters] — In a last effort to persuade King Leopold to accept "self-effacement," Achille Van Acker, Belgium's "caretaker" premier, flew to Salzburg today for his fourth visit since the king's liberation two months ago.

He was accompanied by Viscompte Charles du Bus de Warnaffe, Conservative Catholic minister of justice in the coalition government, who is also a notary of the crown and therefore permitted to attest any written decision of the king.

Van Acker is expected to return to Brussels tomorrow night, perhaps bringing with him an agreement which will allow the political machinery of Belgium, clogged for the last three weeks, to get going again.

$5,000 Farm Fire Results When Boy Burns Fingers

George Worley, 4, who lives on a 20 acre farm near Aurora, found a match yesterday, struck it, and burnt his fingers. He threw the flaming splinter into a hayloft. The resulting fire consumed the barn, farm machinery, 500 chickens, and 50 ducks, for a loss of $5,000. George's father, E. T. Worley, 28, left for the army two weeks ago.

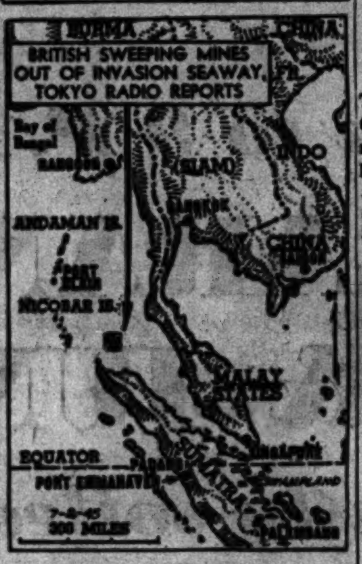
'Mines Cleared'



San Francisco, July 7 (AP)—A British naval task force has "cleared mines" southeast of Car Nicobar Island on the northwest approach to Singapore, the Tokyo radio reported today.

Fourteen warships and two aircraft carriers were the force's mainstay in its operations yesterday, said the broadcast, recorded by the federal communications commission.

The Japanese fear an allied offensive to recapture the great British naval base of Sinapore and are evacuating unnecessary civilians.

CALLS FOR CURB ON SWIVEL CHAIR ARMY SPENDING

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—Rep. Engel [R., Mich.], unofficial appropriations committee "watchdog" of army spending, today asserted the war department was "throwing hard earned tax dollars down a rat hole."

Engel, member of the appropriations subcommittee handling war funds, in a statement in the Congressional Record said billions have been spent on unjustified projects.

He emphasized that his criticism of army spending was not directed at "any one in the theaters of operations" but was aimed at "some of these swivel chair gentlemen who get on a plane and in a few weeks come back with more ribbons on their chests than Eisenhower, Bradley, Clark, or MacArthur ever received."

Negro Officer Gets DSC for Defeating 9 Nazis

ROME, Italy, July 7 (AP)—Lt. Vernon J. Baker, Cheyenne, Wyo., received the distinguished service cross today from Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Trucott Jr., commander of the United States 5th army. He was the first Negro officer of the 92d division to win the award. Baker destroyed three machine gun posts and killed or wounded nine Germans. A silver star was awarded to Pvt. John L. Weakley, Chicago.

ARMY CORPORAL CHAMP FATHER, HAS 12 CHILDREN

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—The war department today named Corp. Chester J. Barrett as the soldier with the most children. He has 12, including two sets of twins. A check of navy records showed no sailor or marine could equal the Barrett mark.

The Barrett family draws $300 monthly in dependency benefits, including $50 for Mrs. Barrett, $30 for the first child and $20 for each additional child.

Barrett is stationed at a prisoner of war branch camp at Spencer Lake, Me.

The 33 year old Mrs. Barrett lives with her children—five boys and seven girls—at Concord, N. H. The oldest child is Chester Jr., 15; the youngest are Thomas Eugene and Kathleen Elizabeth, twins born last May 17.

At their home in Concord, Mrs. Barrett said today she expected Chet to come home on furlough on July 16 for 12 days.

Belgians Fix 1,000 Allied Vessels in Six Months

LONDON, July 7 (AP)—Belgians repaired 1,000 allied vessels in the first six months of this year, using materials hidden from the Germans for four years, the British admiralty announced today. Most of the work on war and merchant ships was done at Antwerp.

BOMBED CRUISER COLUMBIA BACK AFTER 77 DAYS

Navy Reveals Damage in Lingayen Gulf

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—An average of 875 workers spent 77 days at the Terminal Island, Cal., naval dry docks repairing damage to the light cruiser Columbia inflicted by Japanese air attack in Lingayen gulf.

The navy reported today the action cost the Columbia 184 casualties, including 60 killed and 124 wounded.

Hit by a large bomb aft on the main deck while engaged in shore bombardment prior to the Lingayen landings, the Columbia stuck to her post for three days until the beaches were secure before she retired. Now the Columbia is back in action.

She saw action at Guadalcanal, Rennel Island, New Georgia, Rendova, Treasury, Bougainville, Empress Augusta bay, and Palau before being disabled. For more than two months she had operated in Philippine waters. At Leyte she helped cover the 6th army landings.

She participated in the battle of Surigao straits, where she threw more than 85 tons of steel at the enemy. She remained in the Leyte area for more than 30 days, furnishing protection against surface and air attacks.

The Columbia was one of the first ships to enter the Mindanao and Sulu seas to cover the Mindoro landings.

Two Planes Hit Ship

Then came the Lingayen gulf action, beginning Jan. 6. In midafternoon of the first day, two "Zekes" came out of the clouds to strafe and bomb. One, altho hit and burning, crashed aboard. Gasoline sprayed over the ship, but prompt action prevented serious fires. In late afternoon a "Val" scored a hit, and resulting fires put half of the ship's main battery out of action.

Damage control parties worked feverishly to keep the ship afloat while its remaining guns stayed in action.

After the beachhead was secured, and the Columbia retired, her task force commander sent this message to Capt. M. E. Curts of Washington: "Regret to lose you at this time. The courageous conduct of your officers and crew has added to the luster of our navy."

In Russia They Use Steel for Making Guns, Etc.

New York, July 7 (AP)—Col. Harry C. Laster, a Newark, N. J., army officer who returned today from Europe aboard the transport Eleazer Wheelock, had this to report: "The damndest thing I saw in Europe was a Russian captain with a complete set of stainless steel teeth."

Cruiser Bombed

Smoke billows from the light cruiser U. S. S. Columbia (arrow) after she was hit by a Jap aerial bomb during the bombardment of Lingayen gulf in the Philippines Jan. 6. The ship is now back in the Pacific after being repaired.

7 CHICAGOANS HELP BOMBARD OKINAWA JAPS

ABOARD A HEAVY CRUISER OFF OKINAWA—Seven Chicagoans fought aboard this cruiser, whose big guns blasted Jap pillboxes for four weeks.

Every man was at his battle station during most of the operation and men on the anti-aircraft batteries were at their guns more than 400 hours. Their only respite was an occasional nap atop ammunition ready boxes. The ship had its share of enemy aircraft attacks.

The Chicagoans are Stephen Gluck, 840 E. 53d st.; Eugene S. Kosinski, 2248 Kimball av.; Raymond J. Lorkowski, 2701 Haddon av.; Martin A. O'Neill, 440 W. 58th st.; Stephen T. Vukits, 2132 Race av.; C. O. George Wilson, 4251 N. Richmond st., and Ellis Wilson, 2815 Michigan blvd.

ALLIES IN BURMA OUST JAPS FROM RIVER POSITION

ADVANCED HDQS., Burma, July 7 [Reuters]—Japanese troops have been cleared from the positions they established across the allied communications lines on the bend of the Sittang river 25 miles northeast of Pegu, on the Rangoon-Mandalay railway, it was announced today.

Two Gurkha battalions fought bitter foxhole and bunker actions to oust the Japanese.

Thunderbolts, in close support of the Gurkhas, dropped 500 pound bombs on Japanese bunkers. The Gurkhas were supplied by air after the Japanese dug in.

MARINE ATTACK ON NEGRO NAVY CAMP CHARGED

Cincinnati, O., July 7 (AP)—Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the advancement of Colored People, said today a group of marines on a Pacific island threw hand grenades and smoke bombs into camps occupied by Negro navy men in a series of incidents that resulted in a clash.

White, who returned recently from a four month tour of the Pacific, told a radio audience he accepted an invitation to serve as defense counsel before a navy board of inquiry.

"On Christmas eve," he said, "a group of white service men fired upon colored sailors and ran them out of the main town on the island.

"On Christmas day one Negro service man was shot and killed and another shot by white service men. These and other assaults infuriated the men who had been attacked to the point that twice they attempted to go into town to take vengeance. On one occasion they were turned back; on the second they were arrested, charged with rioting and unlawful assemblage."

SUB SAVES 29 U. S. FLYERS OFF JAPAN IN 6 DAYS

GUAM, July 6 (AP)—A submarine skipper and a B-29 group commander told today how one submarine rescued 29 flyers from waters off Japan in six days. With one more man picked up earlier on its five-week patrol, the submarine made a rescue total of 30, and then took aboard 22 more flyers from another submarine for the journey back to base.

In one dramatic episode the crew of the shell damaged B-29 City of Galveston bailed out over the sea. Another plane guided a submarine to the scene. It picked up all 12 men within an hour.

Among the crew were Lt. Waring L. Lynch, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Sgt. Richard Vandel Heuvel, Green Bay, Wis.

NEIGHBOR WOMEN'S PURSES SNATCHED

Two Negroes, one armed with a knife, snatched a purse containing $2.50 from Miss Catherine Ryan, 5620 Wells st., at 59th st. and Princeton av. Friday night, and a purse containing $38 from Miss Theresa Schuber, 5634 Wells st., at 59th st. and Shields av., early yesterday, they reported to police.

DETAILS OF LIFE IN INDO-CHINA LIKE A MOVIE

Replete with Characters and Scenes of Fiction

BY ALFRED WAGG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

KUNMING, China, June 20 [by airmail]—Details of life in Indo-China, resembling somewhat a composite story of a Hollywood film and the old French Riviera, have been filtering thru two cities, one on the Indo-China side of the Red river boundary, the other on the China side.

The cities are Lao Kay in Tonkin, Indo-China, and Hokiou, in Yunnan province, China.

The scene is replete with characters found in fiction—girls of varied types and races, French refugees, Japanese smugglers, American flyers, Chinese dragon ladies. For background there are gay, and sometimes shady, night spots, blended with beach resorts, and even churches.

More a Political Problem

Behind this curtain of carefree life, the problem of Indo-China appears to be more political than military. A military campaign on the Indo-China terrain would seem to be impractical for either the Japanese or the allies. In the lull before the political storm, China, Britain, America, and France appear to be more involved, rather than Japan, which now occupies the country. At the moment, Japanese and Chinese eye each other across the river.

By night Lao Kay, on the Indo-China side of the river, sparkles with life. By day girls in bright colored shorts ride bicycles along the river bank. And from across the river Japanese officers can be seen bathing in their private "Riviera," or resting under the trees. The guard at the end of the old bridge appears to be half asleep.

In contrast, Hokiou, on the China side of the river, is mournful, half deserted.

Church Bells Ring

On Sundays church bells ring with a sardonic undertone on both sides of the river.

Few refugees from Indo-China have managed to reach the border. The Japanese usually place French trying to escape to China in concentration camps at Vietri, a short distance northwest of Hanoi, and other places, where, it is understood, they get little food or care.

The French intelligence branch has been poor. Many of its officers and men have been trapped by the Japanese.

The Japanese have concentrated the loyal French in seven towns in Indo-China. Those who collaborate with the Japanese move about rather freely.

New Jap Policy

The Anamites seem to be easily influenced against the French. The recent Japanese policy in Indo-China is to be kind to any one who will work with them.

The Japanese, after giving up Nanning to the north, apparently have written off their troops in Indo-China. They will be expected to defend themselves as long as possible, with what help they can get from the French and the natives. Their main transportation routes have been cut by the American forces.

Meantime, the night clubs flourish in Lao Kay. Silks, satins, and other luxuries can be bought there.

HAWAII SAYS 'ALOHA' TO ITS 10 P. M. CURFEW

HONOLULU, T. H. July 7 (AP)—Hawaii's 10 p. m. curfew, in effect since the attack on Pearl Harbor, was abolished today.

"With the seizure of Okinawa and as a result of a careful study of security orders, it has been decided to abolish the curfew immediately," announced Lt. Gen. Richardson, commanding general.

The regulation prohibited any one remaining on the streets from 10 p. m. until 5 a. m. unless by special permission. Remaining in effect are censorship rules, regulation of aliens, restrictions on certain areas, harbor control, and travel control. Army and navy liberty hours will remain the same.

Pvt. Rene A. Gagnon and his bride at Baltimore, Md.

Baltimore, Md., July 7 (AP)—Pvt. Rene A. Gagnon, Manchester, N. H., one of the marines who participated in the Mount Suribachi flag raising on Iwo Island recorded pictorially by Associated Press Photographer Joseph Rosenthal, married his boyhood sweetheart in Baltimore today. His bride was Miss Pauline Hernois, 19, also of Manchester, who came here last week to attend an American Legion war bond ball at which 20 year old Pvt. Gagnon was a guest of honor. Pharamcist's Mate John H. Bradley of Appleton, Wis., hospital corpsman who was with the marines on Iwo and was also one of the flag raisers, was best man. The wedding took place in the Catholic cathedral.

British Arrest Amery, India Secretary's Son

LONDON, July 7 [Reuters]—John Amery, son of Britain's India Secretary Leopold Amery, alleged to have broadcast enemy propaganda during the war, was arrested on arrival in this country today and will appear at Bow street police station, Scotland yard announced tonight.

REDS URGE BIG 3 TO EASE UP ON GERMAN PEOPLE

MOSCOW, July 7 (AP)—The Russians, as they approach the "victory" conference of the Big Three in Berlin, are determined to reach agreements with their allies that will snuff out German imperialism forever and insure that a Hitler never again will rise to power.

The soviets do not want just a stopgap measure this time. They believe their allies are making a mistake in handling the German people. They think a better Germany must swell from the German people and not develop from repressive measures imposed upon them.

They feel that the allies are guilty of bad judgment when they outlaw all political parties and do not allow gatherings of Germans for political discussions. The Russian occupying forces have legalized all anti-Fascist parties in their zones. They have recognized trade unions and they allow meetings.

Watch All Meetings

The soviets are keeping an eye on every organization which calls itself anti-Fascist and on every meeting dedicated to German democracy. The first sign that any of these gatherings might be used as an undercover for nazism or for the revival of German militarism will see quick counter-measures.

The Russians also are concerned with the international cartel situation. They will wish proof that German industrialists have not gone underground and found other places of work, possibly in other countries. Russia also probably will require assurances from the United States that there will be no more loans to Germany.

The soviets also are interested in the trial of war criminals. They believe the allies have been very slow in handling this question. With most of the high nazi Germans in British and American hands, they feel these criminals should long ago have been brought to trial. The U. S. S. R. will ask for a speed-up in the process.

To Demand Reparations

The soviets probably will have something to say also about the large number of Germans who are running around free in allied occupied zones, some of them with executive jobs.

Reparations are of paramount interest to the Reds as the major sufferer at the hands of the German invaders. Reparation leaders, if not their missions, are expected to attend the conference.

Diplomatic circles report the Russians are ready to discuss with their allies the status of Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Austria. The Polish question should take little time at this meeting, now that the new government has been formed and recognized by the allies.

The status of Generalissimo Franco of Spain most certainly will be brought up. The Russians do not feel Europe can be secure with Franco playing a role in it.

Federal Court Meets in Aleutians First Time

ADAK, Aleutians, July 7 (AP)—For the first time, federal court met on this remote island today and District Judge Anthony J. Dimond of the 3d judicial district, territory of Alaska, granted citizenship to 30 army and navy men born in other countries. Court was held in the servicemen's theater. The court came by air from Anchorage. Earlier it had held sessions at Dutch Harbor.

NAVY OFFICERS CREATE A RANK WITH NEON STAR

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

WITH ADM. HALSEY'S 3D FLEET, Western Pacific, July 7—Senior grade lieutenants in the navy who have long envied the army's speedier promotion system have taken steps to remedy the situation with creation of a fictitious rank, that of "lieutenant super grade."

Line officers meeting the qualifications for this rank, says a memorandum on the subject, are entitled to wear a neon star with a blinker on their uniform. Cap covers will have a center rosette ringed with a one-half inch band of phosphorescent material.

The collar device will consist of a grape cluster on which the letters USNDASHAFU will be raised, the circular continues in a satiric vein. Short collars and cuffs will be distinguished by a lacy fringe tinted with a darker hue. Lieutenants super grade, the memorandum says, will rank with, but below, lieutenant generals of the army and full generals of the Salvation Army.

JAW BROKEN, WALLET STOLEN

Walter Hitch, 45, an attendant at the West Suburban hospital, 518 N. Austin blvd., suffered a fractured jaw yesterday when he was pushed to the platform at the Loyola av. elevated station by a Negro boy who stole his wallet, containing $12.

RUSSIANS STRIP PLANTS OWNED BY AMERICANS

Ford, Frigidaire Among Reich Factories Raided

city's food supplies. The food producing areas around Berlin are in their hands, as well as local food reserves.

The Americans and English can use only the international corridor that runs from Braunschweig to Berlin, and a closely defined airline to bring material into the capital.

But western Germany has no food to spare. Unless the Russians are willing to share the produce from Berlin's natural supply areas to feed the population in the American, British, and French areas, as well as the people in the Russian zone, food will have to be brought in from other continents.

Health and food offices of Berlin have appealed to the Russian commander in Berlin to allow one of the capital's biggest chemical plants to resume the production of "gesarol," a new insecticide, to destroy the clouds of flies which threaten to spread epidemics in Berlin and insects of all kinds which are attacking crops in the area.

Strip Small Shops

The Schering plant in Berlin has all the material and equipment needed to start production immediately but cannot operate without a special permit from the Russians in whose area the plant is situated.

As the Russians move out slowly from areas that the Americans and British are to control, they are removing machines and tools of all descriptions, even from small shops.

The Rheinmetal Boring plant, in Tegel, for instance, still had 2,000 machine tools after a raid by the 8th air force on March 18, this year, which stopped the plant's production. Of these 440 were damaged. The Russians took 1,500 of them, leaving a total of 60.

In some farming districts around Berlin the villagers complain the Russians carried off scythes, hoes, farm tools, and farm machinery.

CALL STOPGAPS NO SOLUTION FOR ITALIAN CRISIS

Scarcities Remain Despite Efforts

BY P. E. BRIQUET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, July 7—A demonstration by 300,000 Milan strikers that was reëchoed in most northern Italian towns is, in the opinion of well informed observers from Italy in the border press, proof that temporary emergency remedies are incapable of solving the Italian social crisis.

Concessions which have been wrung from the government of Premier Feruccio Parri, according to the Milan Communist newspaper, Unita, include:

1. Immediate grants of special indemnity to all salaried men and women.

2. Partial release of rationed goods and partial suppression of the middleman in the distribution of such goods.

3. Appointment of workmen and employes' representatives to the foodstuffs commission.

4. Increase in salaries to meet rising prices.

None of these measures, it is pointed out, eliminates the real factors in the crisis. Increased prices in northern Italy are inevitable as prices in southern Italy are almost double those in the upper provinces and the suppression of all economic barriers automatically will equalize northern and southern price conditions. Scarcities in food, raw materials, and means of transportation remain the same.

Col. Charles Poletti, head of the allied military government in Italy, has pointed out that the Germans used to provide upper Italy war factories with 600,000 tons of coal monthly. Now the allies, because of the lack of available tonnage, which is necessary for the Pacific war, are not able to bring more than 66,000 tons to the peninsula during July.

The efforts of the Parri government, therefore, are moving in a vicious circle. Wheat and other grains were harvested two weeks earlier than usual in upper Italy, 20,000,000 tons of grain having been provided already, but if this is used immediately the country will be without grain before the end of the year.

These are hard facts which no maneuvers, however clever, will be able to avoid.

RAIL UNIT SPONSORED BY C. & N. W. HANDLES TRAFFIC OVER RHINE

WITH U. S. FORCES IN GERMANY—After eight months of service in Normandy, France, the 720th railway operating battalion, sponsored by the Chicago & North Western Railroad, moved to Germany. One of its crews took the first supply train across the Wesel railroad bridge on April 8, 1945.

This unit, commanded by Lt. Col. Conrad J. Freeman, 2724 Farragut av., Chicago, a former employe of the C. & N. W., took over almost 60 miles of main track between Buderich, on the west bank of the Rhine, and Munster, east of the Rhine. On its division, the unit recovered 32 German locomotives and 2,630 German freight cars, and put the lines into good condition, and handled 366 freight and 128 passenger trains in April.

ENVOY RESIGNS, BUT VOWS FIGHT TO FREE POLAND

BY WILLIAM MOORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Jan Ciechanowski

Washington, D. C., July 7—A fighting little man who seemed suddenly to have aged summoned reporters to the Polish embassy today and quit his job. He was Jan Ciechanowski, Poland's war time ambassador to the United States.

Ciechanowski stroked the sparse gray hair remaining at either side of his head and announced that his work has been interrupted—he did not say stopped—by American recognition Thursday of the Warsaw government of Poland established in Moscow.

The ambassador's voice was weary as he told of the hopes he had held for Poland. But it rang when he said: "I will not perform any functions or duties which even by implication might be considered as being performed by me in behalf of the government of Bierut and Osubka-Morawski!" [Boleslaw Bierut is president of the Warsaw Polish regime and Edward Osubka-Morawski is premier.]

Protests Allied "Discard"

Protesting the allied discard of the London Polish government he represented as "without precedent in law or history," the ambassador pledged his loyalty to the old regime and announced that he will not turn over its property in Washington to the Warsaw government.

"This is also the attitude of all my colleagues in the embassy and of the Polish consulates of this country," he said.

Asked what would become of the embassy and the Polish funds in the United States, the ambassador replied: "You will have to ask your department of state."

The ambassador said he would leave the embassy but would remain in Washington for a time.

Situation Called "Tragic"

He made public a protest he has sent the state department, and said: "Before leaving, I feel it my duty to stress the tragic situation in which the Polish nation now finds itself as a result of a world conflict which brought victory to Poland's allies, while to Poland, who was first to fight and so fully contributed to the common victory, it has brought defeat and loss of her independence.

"The fate of Poland will be better understood when it is realized that even defeated nazi Germany loses less of her territory thru this war than allied Poland has been forced to give up as a result of victory.

"Moreover, Poland has been left under the continued uncontroled occupation of a foreign power [Russia] which is imposing upon her a government and a political, social, and economic system alien to her."

Tells of Resistance

Telling of Poland's resistance in the allied cause, the ambassador said that resistance gave the English and French time to prepare their defenses. He recalled the allied declarations of admiration for his country and its soldiers, and demanded:

"How can one explain to these indomitable fighters for freedom and democracy that after the united nations' victory, the principles in defense of which they fought would not be applied to them?

"How can one explain to the Polish nation that their country is but a home on wheels, to be pushed eastward or westward as may suit the imperialist aims of either of its mighty neighbors in defiance of the principles of self-determination of peoples for which they fought?"

The ambassador's protest to the state department said his government is the constitutional government of Poland and that it recognizes no other.

'SURRENDER' ROOM AT REIMS IS GIVEN TO FRENCH PEOPLE

PARIS, July 7 [Reuters]—The room in the red schoolhouse at Reims where the Germans signed their unconditional surrender two months ago was handed over to the French people by Maj. Gen. Royal B. Lord at a ceremony today. The room has been left as it was when the surrender was signed.

Gen. Lord presented the gold and silver plated keys to the room to Michel Sicre, mayor of Reims, and said:

"To you and to the citizens of Reims I pass the guardianship of the surrender room. The world hopes you will enshrine it. Entrusted to you are not only the keys of the surrender room, but also the keys of the world's freedom. Here the German high command marched thru the gate of your city and for the first time in history delivered itself unconditionally to the massed might of human decency."

REDS THREATEN BRITISH HOLD ON MEDITERRANEAN

Doubtful if Turk Straits Are Saved

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA

On Nov. 13, 1940, Foreign Commissar Molotov of Russia had a conference with Hitler at Berlin. He saw no reason why peace should not prevail indefinitely between Russia and Germany, provided Germany would agree, among other demands, to Russian occupation of Romania and Bulgaria; and to the establishment of Russian bases on the Dardanelles and on the Bosporus.

Molotov was willing to allow the Bulgarian king to continue a local government, and by inference the same arrangement would apply to Romania. No Russian claims were set forth with regard to Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia. These were Slav states. But Molotov admitted that they were more closely associated with Germany and could so remain.

With special regard to the occupation of the straits, Molotov desired that Germany exert diplomatic pressure on Turkey to admit the Russians. He felt that if Turkey understood that no outside aid would come to her, she would never fight Russia alone, and Russia would secure her aims without war.

Made War Inevitable

To these demands, Hitler refused assent. Probably not on moral grounds, but on the military ground that if Russia held Romania and Bulgaria, she would be able to attack Germany from the south, as well as from the east, with a crushing pincer movement.

When Hitler and Molotov parted after that conference each understood that war between them was bound to follow. That war came and has ended. Due to the desertion of Romania and Bulgaria from their alliance with Germany, Russia succeeded in establishing herself in those countries. She then exerted the pincer movement which Germany had feared. Germany has fallen, and Russia remains in possession not only of Romania and Bulgaria, but also Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

With one exception, Russia has already more than secured everything she asked for at the 1940 Berlin conference. The exception is Russian bases on the Bosporus and on the Dardanelles. She is after those now. The other demands—Romania and Bulgaria particularly—were just stepping stones to the main objective.

Present Demand to Turkey

On June 25, Russia presented demands to Turkey with regard to the straits. Her exact demands have not yet been published. Russia is in a good military position to enforce her demands should she desire to do so. She has troops in Bulgaria within 100 miles of Istanbul. But Russia prefers to settle the matter without fighting. Just as five years ago, she feels that if no one will aid Turkey, that country will give in and not risk a war in which she would be hopelessly inferior.

Negotiations are reported under way in London and Washington. Whether the United States and Great Britain will advise Turkey that they will not save her, or will advise her not to yield, remains to be seen.

Should Turkey refuse, Russia has prepared the way for forcible occupation of the straits, for she denounced her nonaggression treaty with Turkey some time ago. That treaty provided that it should remain effective for a number of months after denunciation. Russia got around this by alleging that Turkish violations had invalidated the treaty. This is plain notice that Russia will attack if she thinks this will be necessary to obtain her objective.

May Let Straits Go

Great Britain has long opposed Russia's entry into the Mediterranean, and particularly about the Istanbul straits. In the winter of 1877-1878, when Russian armies were at the gates of Istanbul, the British intervened, and save the straits to Turkey. Ever since the status quo in that area has been maintained.

Whether the British can now save the straits is doubtful. They presumably would like to, but it may be necessary to let the straits go rather than risk a war with Russia. A substitute measure has already been taken, the occupation of Greece and of the Dodecanese Islands.

Between 1941 and 1945, the Germans held Greece and the Dodecanese Islands, and managed to eliminate allied access to the Istanbul straits. The British, with far superior naval and air strength, ought to be able to do as well.

Mediterranean Rival

However, Russian occupation of the Bosporus and the Dardanelles will give her a direct entrance on the Aegean sea. Russian influence is appearing in Albania, where it is reported to be already predominant. With Albania entering the Russian sphere, there will be another entrance directly on the Adriatic sea.

Instead of the Mediterranean being a predominantly British lake, it now seems that Russia is aggressively seeking to become a rival in that troubled area.

All this profoundly affects the general strategical situation in Europe. Regardless of the direct interest of the United States, and of the principles which it has announced, the presence of large American forces in occupied Europe requires us to pay close attention to every new complication that arises.

Report Red Troops Massed on Border; Turks' Fear Grows

BY CLAY GOWRAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 7—Tension rose sharply in this old city today as Turkish newspapers headlined a report that the Russians were massing 24 Red army divisions on the Turko-Bulgarian frontier. Despite the fact that the story was based on a wholly unconfirmed broadcast picked up from the Paris radio, it has increased the fear which has gripped Turkey since the Russian demands upon the nation were revealed a week ago.

[The Istanbul afternoon press gave large headlines today to unconfirmed reports, attributed to the Paris radio, that Russia has informed Turkey she will seize the eastern provinces of Kars and Artvin by force unless Turkey surrenders them peaceably, an Associated Press dispatch from Istanbul said. There were reports of fortification activities along both the Bulgarian-Greek and Turko-Bulgarian borders, but these reports also lacked confirmation, the dispatch said.]

Cooler headed observers, however, were inclined to discount the report as another step in the war of nerves Stalin has been waging against Turkey for more than a year.

They are equally sure Russia has deliberately created a Russo-Turkish crisis at this time in order to make it such an international issue that neither President Truman nor Prime Minister Churchill, reluctant tho they may be to have this traditionally touchy issue brought up now, will be able to side-step it at the coming Big Three meeting.

The observers are beginning to see the situation in its true perspective — not as a Turco-Russian problem—but primarily a contest between Russia and Britain, with Turkey as the pawn, and each seeking to control.

Thruout history England has fought diplomatically and militarily to keep Russia out of the Mediterranean. Today, just as much as 100 years ago, she is interested in preventing Russia from controlling the straits, securing bases on the Aegean, or winning dominance over Turkey which would be an obvious threat to England's position in the mideast.

Russia, on the other hand, has traditionally sought to control the straits which now, more than ever before, she feels lead only to Russian waters. But today there is even a more powerful incentive for her to win dominance over Turkey. Moscow has constructed a cordon of leftist buffer governments across Europe.

Turkey is the strategically and economically vital gap in the cordon, which Russia will do its best to close.

Getting Up Nights Makes Many Feel Old Too Soon

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Worry, Colds, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when over-loaded.

Nearly 20 years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Liberal Trial Offer

To prove that Cystex may be the very medicine you need accept this fair-play trial offer: Get a supply of Cystex from your druggist today. Take it exactly as directed and watch for quick help, a rapid increase in pep, more youthful feeling and a new joy in living. You must be completely satisfied and highly delighted or you simply return the empty package and your money back is guaranteed.

Tear this out. Take it to your druggist. Be sure to get genuine, guaranteed Cystex which is scientifically produced under the direction of a licensed physician, and used by millions throughout the world. Three guaranteed Cystex sizes—35c, 75c, $1.50.

A "Scratching" Dog Is in Torment

Thousands of dog owners have found this good way to keep their pets from constant scratching, biting, rubbing, and digging. Once a week give them a dose of Rex Hunters Dog Powders. These powders usually help to bring prompt ease from an intense itching irritation that has centered in the nerve endings of the dog's skin. The urge to scratch abates—the dog is happier, more contented. No wonder a purchaser writes: "Rex Hunters Dog Powders have given my dog great relief. Many thanks from 'Chink' and self." Why not try them on your own scratching dog. 25c at any good drug store, pet or sport shop. (Economy size box only $1.00).

ARMY REPORTS 102 EXECUTIONS OF YANKS IN WAR

All but One Condemned for Murder or Rape

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—The army disclosed today that 102 soldiers have been executed during this war—all except one for murder or rape.

The exception was a man twice convicted of deserting under fire in Europe. He was the first soldier to be put to death for a purely military offense since the Civil war.

Of the others, 47 were condemned for murder, 43 for rape, and 11 for both murder and rape.

In addition, more than 200 death sentences have been imposed by general courts martial but have been commuted to life imprisonment or lesser terms.

No Navy Executions

The navy, without going into details, reported that no navy, marine corps, or coast guard man has been executed by court martial order during this war. As of mid-April 22,009 members of those services were in confinement.

In the last year, 18,000 soldiers were sentenced by courts martial for offenses comparable to felonies in civilian courts, which carry penalties of at least six months' imprisonment.

At present, 33,519 soldiers convicted and sentenced by general courts martial are in confinement in the United States or overseas.

Patterson Gives Figures

These figures, which do not include soldiers given lighter punishment by special and summary courts martial, were issued by Undersecretary of War Patterson at a news conference discussion of the operation of military justice.

Emphasizing that the 33,519 in confinement represent the total number from the 10 million who have entered the army since the adoption of selective service, Patterson said:

"The manner in which the soldiers have conducted themselves has reflected the highest credit on the American army."

To facilitate the restoration to duty of as many men as possible the army two years ago set up rehabilitation centers to retrain convicted soldiers and get them back into service.

Handle 23,674 Men

The centers have handled 23,674 men, and the measure of their success is reflected in the record. More than half, or 12,206, have been restored to duty.

In the European theater as a whole, Patterson reported, only 10,289 of the 4,182,261 American soldiers under Gen. Eisenhower's command were convicted and sentenced by general courts martial from January, 1942, to June 1, 1945. Of those, 2,235 have been returned to duty.

Patterson said that military offenses—such as desertion, being absent without leave, and disobedience—constitute approximately 60 per cent of the cases handled by the courts martial.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

July 8—Elihu Yale, Philanthropist

This is the anniversary of the death of Elihu Yale, for whom Yale university was named. Yale, a former official of the East India company, died in England in 1721. On his tomb in a church yard at Wrexham, Wales, whence his family sprang, are inscribed these lines:

Born in America, in Europe bred,
In Africa travell'd, and in Asia wed,
Where long he liv'd and thriv'd; in London dead.

The place of Yale's birth was Boston, Mass., and the date April 5, 1649. When Elihu was 3 years old, his father, David Yale, returned with his family to England, and entered his son, when he was 13, in a private school in London.

Appointed a writer [clerk] for the East India company at a salary equivalent to $50 a year, Elihu arrived in Madras, India, in the summer of 1672. From writer he was promoted to factor [agent] and in 1680 he married the widow of Joseph Hynmers, a wealthy councilor of Madras.

Seven years later Yale became president and governor of Fort St. George, one of the company's trading and administrative centers in Madras, India. On being supplanted in office in 1692, he was charged with having favored, at the expense of the company, the private trading ventures of his brother, Thomas, and himself. Before his accounts finally were cleared, he was forced to turn over to the company a sum equal to about $15,000. He sailed back to England in 1699 and settled at the old family estate near Wrexham.

From his fortune of more than $750,000, he made gifts to schools, churches, and missionary societies. It was Yale's reputation as a philanthropist that caused Jeremiah Dummer, agent in London for Connecticut, to appeal to him for aid for the Collegiate school at Saybrook, Conn. Of the books collected for the school in 1714, about 40 volumes came from Yale.

When a new building for the college was begun at New Haven, Conn., Cotton Mather wrote to Yale that the name Yale college "might adorn his munificence with a fame more enduring than the pyramids."

In June, 1718, Yale shipped to the college three bales of goods, some books, and a portrait of King George I. The total value of the gift was about $4,000, and the goods were sold for more than $2,800. In September, at the first commencement in the new building, both building and college received Yale's name.

In 1720 Yale moved from Wrexham to a country estate in Buckinghamshire. The next year he died.

Yale, the third oldest institution of higher learning in the United States [Harvard and William and Mary are older] was founded in 1701 as the Collegiate school. The name was changed from Yale college to Yale university in 1887.

FRENCH COUNCIL AVERTS CRISIS ON CONSTITUTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, July 7—A governmental crisis over the constitutional question, on which Gen. De Gaulle is opposed by all leftwing political parties and resistance groups, was averted this morning in the council of ministers. The council postponed any definite decision until Monday when it will meet in an extraordinary assembly.

The most important feature that emerged from the meeting was the fact that the ministers agreed not to disagree, altho they are apparently far from agreeing on what they are going to agree on.

The council did not consider the question of whether the country should elect two chambers which would sit together in a national assembly to modify the 1875 constitution or whether the former constitution should be junked and elections held for a single assembly. The main problem studied by the ministers was the means of passing from the present provisional stage to a definitive constitutional state approved by the voters.

Slav Paper at Madrid Demands Tito Overthrow

MADRID, Spain, July 7—The Free Voice of Yugoslavia, a 12 page paper demanding the overthrow of the government of Marshal Tito, made its appearance in Madrid yesterday. Edited by Lyoubicha Vichatzky, former Yugoslav charge d'affaires here, the magazine charges Tito with seeking to bolshevize Yugoslavia.

DARNAND TELLS WHERE HE HID MILITIA FUNDS

PARIS, July 7 [Reuters]—Joseph Darnand, French police chief under the Vichy regime who was captured last month, has disclosed the place in Italy where he hid 7,000,000 reichsmarks [about $2,800,000 at the pre-war exchange rate], 21,000,000 francs [$420,000], and 1,000 gold coins.

Joseph Darnand

This money, which Darnand took when he fled from Germany, represents the funds of the 45,000 militiamen he organized to work with the German Gestapo in France. Darnand now is awaiting trial here.

Segee de Marongin, French Gestapo agent who was responsible for the arrest of Gen. De Gaulle's niece, a member of the French resistance, was seized by the French police while trying to return to France under the guise of a repatriated deportee.

Discovered at Air Port

Police discovered him among a group of repatriates arriving at Orly airdrome, outside Paris.

Marongin was said to be responsible for the arrest of at least 150 patriots. Ten of his victims were executed and the rest deported.

Paul Ferdonnet, 44, French author who is alleged to have been paid $100 a week for propaganda services to Germany, will face the French court of justice Wednesday. Ferdonnet is said to have prepared the daily German broadcasts from Stuttgart.

Aristocrat Sentenced to Jail

PARIS, July 7 (AP)—The marquis of Devillefranche, a member of one of France's oldest aristocratic families, was sentenced at Versailles today to six months imprisonment for friendliness with high German officers during the occupation. His wife, the Belgian born princess of Merode, was acquitted.

THE WILL TO PEACE

Senator Connally, who had had a hand in the work at San Francisco, informed the members of the chamber which must ratify the document that "the world charter for peace is knocking at the doors of the senate." Somewhat inconsistently, he wound up his appeal for ratification by borrowing the words of George Washington, "Let us raise a standard to which the wise and the honest can repair; the event is in the hands of God."

Washington had issued this call to the delegates to the constitutional convention of 1787, who were concerned with devising a system of republican government under which this nation might prosper and maintain its freedom in a world where freedom was not encouraged. The parallel drawn by the senator, as even he might acknowledge, was not exact; especially when the man whose words he borrowed had also laid down the rule, "It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world."

Senator Connally, however, rested his argument upon the contention that "the united nations organization will face failure and futility unless the United States is a member." Certainly the senator could not charge this country with any of the sins of omission and commission which characterized the old league of nations, for we had not been a party to them. But, he said, the prevention of war and preservation of peace "must rest upon the will and the purpose and the desires of the peoples and nations of the world," and all of them look for leadership from us in this cause.

When have we failed them? The great wars which we have twice fought in 25 years did not have their origins in any action of ours. We offered an example which others might easily follow if they had possessed any real will to keep the peace. Now, in the informal and unilateral dispositions of territory in Europe, we are not the aggressors. We are not making demands upon the Turks. We are not running puppet governments in Greece or Poland. We are not planning to despoil Italy of its African possessions. It is for other nations, rather than us, to manifest an inclination toward peaceable behavior.

Mr. Connally did not concern himself with these matters. He expounded the document drafted at San Francisco. He said that the veto power conferred upon the major powers would not be "capriciously or arbitrarily used," and that, in any event, we also had the protection it affords by foreclosing intervention by the league. The test of the veto will come when it is employed to block action against an aggression or to rectify an appalling wrong. That test, it can be predicted, will not grow out of any action of the United States.

The senator said that the trusteeship provision over dependent territories will protect American rights to bases taken from the Japanese. He did not say that it will be of any benefit to subject peoples who aspire to liberty, for it will not. Colonial areas must be voluntarily yielded up as trusteeships by those who possess them before they can look beyond their present masters for assistance.

Mr. Connally was still less specific in discussing the American contingents to be incorporated into the league army to enforce peace. The senate will want to explore this question. Americans will not want this country to be taken into wars undeclared by congress. They will not acquiesce to the commingling of our army, navy, and air force with units of all nations, trained and led by foreigners and owing their loyalty, not to America, but to a world council.

The new league, Sen. Connally said, "creates no super-state." The one existing danger of that sort lies in the military provisions. The senate must establish safeguards so that our capacity for defense is not impaired by any action taken by the league. A wholly different consideration is the disposition of our internationalists to look upon the creation of the new league as a way point along the road to world government. This attitude must be appraised for what it is—a calculated desire to destroy American sovereignty and, with it, our liberty. We are politically more stable, advanced, and mature than any other nation. We cannot gain and must lose by surrendering any part of the independence which safeguards our freedom.

As Mr. Connally remarked, "Mere documents, language, and phrases cannot themselves prevent war and preserve peace." All that the charter offers is the language and phraseology of a covenant similar to dozens which have already been destroyed. The charter cannot be taken on trust or regarded as a guarantee. It will be tested by the actions and intentions of nations other than the United States. Knowing them of old, we can only hope that they will acquire a sense of honor and capacity for self-restraint which have not characterized their behavior in the past.

A league and its commitments may help them find the path to peace. It can perform no similar service to the United States. This country has the will to peace, but have the other partners in this proposed venture? The answer is lost in future time.

WELCOME

The promise of America seems to be advancing with the army and navy in the Pacific. The natives of Okinawa, who were in the middle of the bloody battle to overcome the Japanese garrison, do not regard themselves as taken captive but as liberated. They have petitioned that we assist in making Okinawa a new paradise of the Pacific, impregnated with the seeds of American civilization.

The natives of the Marshall Islands, who were under Jap rule for a quarter of a century, take the same attitude. They want to remain under American protection and control, and have petitioned the naval military government to that effect. "We want the United States as long as we live on the world," read the touching petition.

In Europe there is probably as little enthusiasm in many countries for the Russian occupation as there was for the German. The American zone of occupation, however, is popular, to judge from the repeated news reports of throngs of people rushing into our lines, and the reluctance of displaced persons to leave our jurisdiction and return to their old homes.

The evidence of the welcome which our armies may expect wherever they go is a heartening sign that America still represents the ideals of justice and humanity to people who have never had much experience with either under their old masters. There is a lesson in behavior for other nations in this. If they want to be welcome, they first have to prove themselves disinterested and decent. The apathy or fear with which they at present are greeted is a symptom that so far they have failed to command any considerable degree of conviction on either score.

The American experience of encountering a ready welcome wherever we go would seem to testify that if a country governs itself on standards of common morality it will attain a reputation denied the nations which belie their propaganda by their practices. The United States, with no imperialist objectives, wins converts without effort. The police states and the empires which rest upon colonial exploitation are suffered by their victims, but they are deficient in the essential of winning faith and trust.

BANK DEPOSITS RISE ANOTHER BILLION

Deposits of Chicago banks have gone over the 8 billion dollar mark, the midyear bank call has just disclosed. The increase in a year was a billion dollars. This is a continuation of a billion a year rate of growth which began right after Pearl Harbor. The 8 billion dollar total compares with just under 3 billions at the peak of the boom of the '20s, less than a billion and a half right after the banking moratorium in 1933, and 3½ billions just before the war began in 1939.

Going back further into the records, we find that all Chicago banks had deposits of 1 billion when the other war began, and that during the war there was a half billion dollar expansion. In this war the deposit growth has been nine times as great as in the other one. Measured by banking resources, Chicago is a bigger financial center now than New York was in 1925. Funds to the credit of depositors here exceed the total for the whole country in 1900.

With their vast resources so concentrated that there are two institutions with deposits of more than 2 billions each, four with more than a half billion, and six with more than a hundred million each, Chicago banks have taken a leading part in financing the government during the war. They have nearly 5 billion dollars' worth of United States treasury obligations in their portfolios. This is nearly 2 per cent of the national debt. In addition, they have made loans totaling 1.4 billion dollars, largely to war industries.

However, these banking figures do not mean all that they appear to. The growth in deposits has come largely from bookkeeping magic. A bank buys 10 million dollars worth of securities from the government, adds this amount to its assets, and adds a like amount to the deposit account of the United States treasury. When the treasury issues its checks to pay war contractors, the contractors deposit the checks. The war contractors issue checks to their employes, who spend the money at the stores, which again deposit in the bank. No matter how often passed around, 10 millions have been added to deposits. When the treasury account runs low, the bank does the trick again. It takes in 10 million dollars more bonds, and credits the treasury account with the amount. The treasury proceeds to distribute the money as before. Chiefly by this process Chicago bank deposits got up to 8 billions from the 3½ billion mark in the course of the war.

The writing up of bank deposits gives individuals as well as corporations and storekeepers large amounts of spending money. Actually the amount of liquid funds available to be spent includes not only bank deposits but actual cash in the hands of the people. This has quadrupled since 1939. Another large item is war bonds convertible into cash. The amount of currency in Chicago pockets, mattresses, and safety deposit boxes is no less than a billion dollars, and the amount of E bonds held here is nearly a billion and a half.

The persistent growth in bank deposits, currency, and bonds convertible into cash makes inflation an ever present threat. The government has been complacent in meeting this threat with burocratic price control, which didn't work even in war time. There has been no real effort made to reduce the need for the government to borrow and add to liquid reserves. The same week that congress extended the life of OPA it voted an all-around increase in salaries. Sen. Byrd's pleas for economy make no impression with the appropriations authority.

Congress could prevent inflation, also, by seeing to it that supplies of consumer durable goods are expanded to the greatest possible extent. Instead congress renews the authority of agencies which are determined to let peace time industry produce not enough to prevent price advances, but only enough to whet people's appetites.

We shall not be safe until the additions to the stock of spending from deficits is stopped and the supply of things for which money can be spent is vastly increased. It would be encouraging to find some appreciation of this in Washington, but as yet there is no sign of it. There is much talk about inflation, but no action to dam the flow of money and release an avalanche of goods—the only real ways to keep prices from soaring out of control.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. Which one of these is not called a deciduous tree? Maple Oak Cedar Magnolia
2. The bird that lays its eggs in the nest of another, thus avoiding its maternal duties, is the Oriole Cuckoo Wren Robin
3. Which one of these foods did Jesus never eat? Roast lamb Roasting ears Cheese Roast beef
4. A person who tithes his income contributes how much to religious or charitable purposes? 2% 5% 10% 15%
5. The use of chewing gum is advised when riding on a Plane Bus Train Ship
6. You are to answer the questions below with words that end with the "key" sound, either "ky" or "key." For example: "Which key is frolicsome?" could be answered correctly with the word "Frisky."
   - [a] Which key is called the Rocky Mountain canary?
   - [b] Which key is quite dangerous?
   - [c] Which key is eccentric and irritable?
   - [d] Which key is popular at the zoo?
   - [e] Which key is a very common preliminary factor in venereal infection?

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points].

ANSWERS

1. Cedar. 2. Cuckoo. 3. Roasting ears [an American product]. 4. 10 per cent. 5. Plane, for the frequent swallowing opens the eustachian tube and relieves the pressure on the eardrums. 6. [a] Canary—Donkey. [b] Dangerous—Risky. [c] Eccentric—Cranky. [d] Zoo—Monkey. [e] Prelude to venereal infection—Whisky.

TELEVISION

[Following is an address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, and broadcast on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK

About 80 years ago a young Scotch physicist, James Clerk Maxwell, published a mathematical theory. It was a theory designed to account for the behavior of certain electrical effects seemingly projected thru free space at the then undetermined velocity of light.

In 1888 the German scientist, Heinrich Hertz, basing his work in part on Maxwell's theory and carrying his own experiments forward by means of an electric oscillator, showed that electrical impulses in space might be given the characteristics of wave motion. Such electric waves could be originated, sent into space, and detected by suitable apparatus.

In 1895, a 20 year old Irish-Italian, working with primitive equipment at his father's country house near Bologna, established wireless communication at distances slightly in excess of a mile. The following year, that same Guglielmo Marconi took out the first British patents for telegraphy by means of electric waves.

On Dec. 12, 1901 the first trans-Atlantic signal from Cornwall to Newfoundland began the long distance use of wireless telegraphy, to be dramatized for the world by its bringing rescue craft to the scene of the Titanic disaster in 1912.

Yet even at that time it is significant to note that Marconi and others were already at work on short wave signals and a beam, or directed wave, system.

Even while wireless telegraphy was being perfected, Fleming, an Englishman, and De Forrest, an American, were at work on the invention which made possible radio telephony, which is broadcasting as we know it. That invention was a device for controling the flow of electrons thru an evacuated chamber—the radio tube.

For altho the radio wave, in many lengths and over various ranges, was capable of transmitting a wide variety of delicate impulses, it was not until the full capabilities of the radio tube were realized that the business of broadcasting to the public could go forward. The radio tube brought the reception of voice and sound and music to the average listener. World War I. held back radio broadcasting to the public, while augmenting radio techniques and resources, much as World War II. is holding back and at the same time advancing electronics. In the decade between 1920 and 1930 radio came into public acceptance and established itself in the public interest pretty much as we know it today.

There have been refinements in radio sensitivity and transmission, of course. Frequency modulation is one of them. But, essentially, broadcasting is radio telephony, a process of converting sound waves into electrical impulses and back again to sound.

In the meantime, many investigators had been directing their attention toward another problem. That problem was the transmission of images.

In the last 1920s Vladimir Zworykin's invention of an electronic device called the iconoscope tube and its employment in conjunction with certain photo-electric chemicals made possible a radically different approach. The iconoscope tube brought new efficiency and fidelity to the electronic conversion of light to electrical impulses. Such impulses, when reconverted into light, are visual images. In a word, the new development was television.

Because the ultra-short waves employed in television transmission travel in a direct line of sight rather than follow the curvature of the earth as do standard radio waves, television signals are limited in distance to the altitude at which receiving antennas can reach for them.

This does not mean that we shall be limited to single station telecasts. At the present time television programs are being sent from New York's Empire State building and received in the Helderburg mountains of Schenectady, 190 miles away. From this receiving antenna the programs are relayed to a transmitter and rebroadcast to the upstate New York area. This proves that relay, or network, television is practical and quite imminent.

Fortunately, television can be synchronized with both AM and FM transmission. Television can thus be accompanied by appropriate speech, music, and sound for a wide range of entertainment. Consequently, we shall be able to give telling expression to distinctive and vital regional aspects of the American scene. We may expect, for instance, to see and hear real cowboys—not the Broadway or Hollywood variety—on the television screen.

All this is to say simply that in embarking on an effort to bring television before the American public, we are embarking on an adventure and an experiment. Here we stand where Americans have traditionally stood. Our faces are turned toward the future. Again we are pioneers.

We shall have to develop new skills. We shall face disappointments. Unquestionably we shall face difficulties we do not now imagine. But that is a part of pioneering. Our approach to the whole vast field of television is the pioneer's approach. We don't know what's out there. That's why we're going all out to find out.

Most important of all, we are undertaking our adventure into television in accordance with the most fundamental principle of American pioneering achievement. We are not spending our time and effort to discover, restrict, monopolize, and exploit a new area of a new domain. We are setting out to blaze trails so that others may follow. We are seeking a new development in which all may gain by it. Indeed, we shall profit only as others share our successes with us. The new medium must serve all our people.

Thus in a very real sense, you who will respond to our first television broadcasts will be partners with us on a journey into a new terra incognita.

We are, therefore, undertaking our adventure into television at the earliest possible moment. We are setting out as soon as we can. We are going as far as we are able.

Our partners in the enterprise are the American people. They, and not we, have determined our standards for us. Those standards are the world's best.

SIMON LAKE

[Pittsburgh Post-Gazette]

In view of the fact that German submarines for a short time virtually controled the Atlantic and threatened to starve out Britain, it is difficult to realize how young these undersea boats are in history.

The death of Simon Lake in Bridgeport, Conn., at the age of 78 brings that sharply to mind, for Mr. Lake was the inventor of modern undersea craft. There had been, before that, attempts in the same direction—notably one during the Civil war—but they had little success. The even-keel submarine was invented by Mr. Lake, and the first one was built in 1894. Ironically, American authorities hesitated to buy his submarine, the "Protector," in 1901, and it was sold to Russia.

A little more than 40 years later, submarines with vast cruising radius and tremendous capacity for destruction were lying off our coast and sinking our shipping within sight of shore. And while that menace was subsequently eliminated, the potentialities of this type of craft in the future would probably task the imagination of another Jules Verne.

WHAT OF THE AGED?

MEDICAL science has kept faith with the world and continues to make progress along many lines. For example, in 1942 the life expectancy was 64 years as compared with 46 in 1911. This does not necessarily imply that we all become Methuselahs, but a larger group now has a chance for a more protracted visit on this mortal sphere. The most important gain has been in the reduction of infant mortality. Obviously, when fatalities among babies are enormous, the average age at death among the whole population is lowered.

The situation, however, has created other problems. In 1930 there were approximately 6,500,000 persons in the United States over 65. In 1940 this number had risen to 9,000,000. By 1980 we shall have 22,000,000. In other words, the percentage of oldsters is increasing, so much so that we begin to think of ourselves as a nation of elders. The government is taking care of the economic side, but the physician encounters a problem which cannot be settled over night.

Due to the natural wear and tear on the tissues, these individuals are subject to various ailments. Medical men have been so busy in other realms that this phase has been rather neglected. The field is wide open and research is sorely required. Some day perhaps we will understand the physical troubles of the superannuated and how to treat them adequately. Specialists in this branch [geriatrics] are needed. Thru this means we can expect a longer span—at least one that is comparable to that seen in the animal kingdom.

Why do we become old? This question has never been answered satisfactorily. Ageing may be considered as part of our life cycle. At one period we grow and at another we deteriorate. Possibly the onset is already determined at the time of birth. Inheritance must be an element, as one family is known for its longevity while others develop disorders which accelerate the process, bringing about an early exodus. Environment is certainly a factor. How we live and what we eat comes under this heading. It stands to reason that abuse of the body thru lack of sleep and poorly balanced meals will demand its toll.

Some believe that the decline is the result of a diminishing supply of hormones, especially those from the sex glands. This has never been proved definitely but the proponents of the theory say that vigor returns and certain symptoms disappear in those who receive the secretions hypodermically. Perhaps the effect can be likened to whipping a tired horse.

Others blame hardening of the arteries. The exact origin of this disorder is not understood but, from the experimental standpoint, diet, hormones, infections, high blood pressure, and heredity all play a role. Whether the glandular organs affect the blood channels or vice versa has not been settled. Thus we hear the statement, "Man is as old as his arteries" from one side and "as old as his endocrines" from another.

The subject lends itself to wishful thinking. Can we prevent senility? If we knew the cause, control is conceivable. What influence this would have on our social and economic systems is difficult to guess. On the other hand, if we never find out, we are faced with the necessity of treating the results—loss of elasticity in the lungs, prostate trouble, decreased hearing, diminution of sight, and circulatory disturbances. Many advances have been made, but more are essential in order to give even greater comfort to these venerable individuals.

IRRITABLE VETERAN

Mrs. M. writes: After serving two years overseas, my husband was transferred to this country. He is nervous and touchy and tends to exaggerate little disagreements. We argue like newlyweds instead of acting like a couple married eight years. I'm sure he loves me and I try to keep in mind that his viewpoint has changed after all he has been thru. But I wonder if there is anything more I can do to help him thru this stage.

REPLY

Volumes have been written on this subject and one answer will not fit every individual problem. Both the soldier and the family need to be readjusted to the old environment. Until the storm passes, you may have to sit tight—and not argue too much. Perhaps you can find out why he is nervous. Has he had all the war that he can take or is he dissatisfied with his present setup in the army? Or your friends? By correcting the obstacle or unpleasant situation that he is trying to overcome, cure is possible.

REFLEX PLEASURE

G. T. writes: Why does the mouth water at the smell of a good meal cooking on the stove?

REPLY

Nature is kind in many ways. She has provided us with natural senses—taste, smell, etc. In addition, we develop other responses thru our experiences. We think of food, see it in preparation, and inhale its appetizing aromas, and our saliva glands start secreting. This is known as a "conditioned reflex."

VARIOUS ORIGINS

M. T. writes: Are blood blisters on the body the result of heart trouble?

REPLY

Rarely. The more common causes are injury and certain skin disorders. The tiny hemorrhages sometimes observed in heart disease are located in the epidermis but never protrude in blister fashion.

PAPER SALVAGE PROFITS

Chicago, July 2—In a letter today, R. L. Redcliffe wonders why the proceeds of Chicago's waste paper salvage are "not prorated back to each school involved." Every pound of waste paper collected in Chicago's public schools has been gathered and paid for under the direct supervision of the Chicago Waste Paper Salvage committee, a body composed of key officials of 14 civic, manufacturing, municipal and governmental groups charged with the duty of collecting a critical shortage material.

All money derived by a school from the sale of waste paper is retained by the school itself. Eighty-three authorized dealers, under the absolute control of this committee, pay ceiling prices to the schools for the paper. The funds are kept in a special account by each school and spent for those extra-curricular activities in which all schools engage and for which no budget from the taxpayers' funds is provided.

Schools periodically report the avenues thru which these funds are spent. During the 18 months of the present campaign more than 250 different methods have been used for civic, patriotic, and educational disbursements of the funds. Funds have been spent for service flags, for the cruiser Chicago, government bonds, copies of the Gettysburg address, books for soldiers, the U. S. O., Red Cross, Marine hospital, Hines hospital, service men's centers, Bundles for America, six war relief agencies, and scores of other worthy causes.

Seeds for pupils' Victory gardens, Infantile Paralysis fund, School Children's Aid society, Community fund, Christmas party for Home for Boys, beautification of neighborhood and schools, party for patrol boys, funds for students' council and service groups, Christmas trees, Easter seals, eyeglasses for needy pupils, funds for Illinois Association for Crippled Children, honor pins, plants for school corridors, raincoats for patrol boys, Public School Art society, palms and flowers for graduations, toys and dolls for kindergartens, plant stands, gift books, rest room equipment, books for school library, certificates of honor, drapes and curtains for schools, and more than 100 other items equally valuable represent other disbursements.

Amundsen High school is paying for the recreational equipment for Downey Veterans' hospital. Kelly High school financed the luncheon and expenses of 45 wounded veterans from Camp Custer. Other schools have contributed generously to veterans' welfare work.

Prior to the inauguration of this program, schools needing money for outside activities, held parties under the auspices of the PTA and raised 15 or 20 dollars. Since the program of collecting waste paper started under our system, the 333 Chicago public elementary schools have collected 53,727,628 pounds of paper for which they have received $287,000 from our dealers. The manner in which this money is being spent by the school faculties, the fine charities being benefited, form a pleasing and refreshing chapter in patriotic endeavor.

MUDDLE IN MEAT PRODUCTION

Chicago, June 30—On my way to work I passed housewives waiting in line for the stores to open so they might purchase some meat. When I arrived at my office I found on my desk a copy of a speech of Sen. Moore of Oklahoma, in which he read into the record a telegram from the Tulsa chamber of commerce, as follows:

"We are confronted here with one of the most serious live stock marketing and food situations in the history of our live stock industry. There exists in this important farming area the largest number of food live stock on the hoof in history. As you are aware, the normal marketing period for grass fat cattle is just beginning and will continue until the middle of October. Present government restrictions prevent local slaughtering of more than a very limited number of these cattle. Our local stock yards are daily refusing acceptance of many hundreds of head of cattle and a large percentage are being returned to ranches and farms because these cattle are brought into the stock yards in small numbers by hundreds of farmers who have no other available market. Many other localities in the southwest are confronted with this very serious problem."

How much longer is such muddling going to continue? A. V. F.

THEY WANT A CHOICE

Chicago, June 28—"Democracies prefer distinct alternatives." In that quotation lies the explanation of Republican failure during the last 10 years.

THE MESS OF POTTAGE

Lake Mills, Wis., June 11—Some people believe the countries of Europe have a strong desire for some of our money and other forms of assistance. Such beliefs are unjust to our European friends. The proud old nations of Europe are not interested in our wealth and would refuse to accept any of our money even if we offered to give it to them. Their thoughts are on a higher plane and they would never stoop to the sordid accumulation of material things in the manner we have done. It is true they have sometimes borrowed money from us in the past, but all such loans were promptly repaid in full, in cash, with interest, and with thanks.

The peaceful record of Europe and the exquisite behavior with which the various nations there have always met their national differences by quiet, calm, mutual understanding among themselves should be a lesson to the proclivities of our own crude nature. Wars are unknown to them. Their culture, sustained by centuries of well preserved prerogatives, has made it possible for them to rely on the fine old concepts of hereditary or dictator leadership. The peace which has so abundantly blessed the continent of Europe in the last three centuries should serve as a moral lesson to the rest of the world. The delightful manner in which all European nations, particularly the large ones, attend strictly to their own affairs and make no attempt to dominate other nations or interfere in their forms of government is a feature that commends itself for our consideration. The abiding trust and friendship of one European nation for another is one of the most beautiful and touching phenomena of nature.

Let us, therefore, look to Europe as our mentor and our guide, and follow its divine intentions so that we, too, like them, may know the blessings of a life free from strife and endowed with that fine coöperative instinct which makes all men brothers, regardless of language, boundary, race, class, or creed. For it is only on this basis that we can ever be rescued from the slough of despond which has been our lot ever since we so mistakenly shook ourselves loose from old world influence to flounder in the unknown seas of independence.

Again the mother holds out her arms and welcomes the wandering child to her bosom. Its waywardness will be forgiven and forgotten. Those futile thoughts of honor, truth, and liberty which once blinded all our hopes will fade into oblivion as we again revert to the blessed European concept of the fellowship of man so that all the world may gather under its divine protection and its peaceful form of life to form a united nations world government engendered and guided by the honest, thoughtful, cheerful, peaceful, truthful, trusting, unselfish leaders of Europe, whose example of kindness and fidelity to each other and their fellow subjects must ever be our inspiration and our guide.

Under such guidance, the future of the world is bright, indeed—as bright as the inside of a prison cell. There the internationalists and the victims of imperial and communistic propaganda, awakening from their international dream of world government at last in the cold, damp darkness of a world prison of internationalism, would soon realize that the loss of their personal liberty and national freedom has only served to make them the slaves of an international hell, where the greed of empires would prevail and where imperial wars would never cease and peace would be unknown. Then would those who sold their birthright of national freedom for a mess of international pottage learn at last the bitter truth that freedom, hard to gain and lost with ease, is hard to gain again.

PASSING THE LIBRARY BILL

Chicago, July 2—Your excellent editorial on the library bill was, I believe, one of the deciding factors in senate passage of the bill. As you probably have seen, the vote Saturday afternoon was 44 in favor, none against. I saw that every senator had a copy of the editorial.

Thank you on behalf of the Illinois Library association for your valuable assistance.

ONLY AN INVITATION

Chicago, July 2—A used car is on display in a lot, the price conspicuously shown, but the salesman informs me that the car will not be sold except to a customer who has an automobile to trade in. No. The listing of the article is not legally regarded as an offer to sell but rather as an invitation to the public to make offers.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT

A JUDGMENT ON CONGRESS

Cleveland, O., June 20—President Truman has recommended a raise for our congressmen, giving as his reason that men employed by private industry holding jobs with like powers would be paid more. Let's examine the record and see if they deserve a raise or a cut.

First, they spent many dollars getting a neutrality bill thru that F. D. R. said was the greatest piece of legislation any man had ever signed. He said that it would keep us out of all foreign entanglements. Then they let him break that law by round-about methods. Then they okayed lend-lease, which has given us the largest public debt of any nation in modern times.

They have placed a ceiling on the little man's salary; they have placed none on their own. They are a party to the administration scheme of controling the American way of life from the cradle to the grave. They could not pay the soldiers' bonus in 1932, as it would bankrupt the nation. They have since been a party to or permitted such schemes of graft as are now before them in the Pan-American highway. They have stood by and watched the chief take over Montgomery Ward because he couldn't stand for any one not to take New Deal laws sitting down, yet they permit strike after strike in essential industry to go unheeded.

They stood by and let the chief tell them to pass laws whether or not they were unconstitutional and they did it. They are never in attendance 100 per cent in either house. They are either home or else making speeches somewhere. I don't recall any election where we gave them a mandate to be anywhere except at the capitol while congress is in session. They are a party to letting Commies in the inter-offices of the government. They didn't even have the nerve to be offended when Walter Winchell called them the house of reprehensibles.

On the basis of what they have done for us in getting us into this war, filling up our hospitals, leaving our dead on foreign fields, playing up to England, and not being able to carry on as the people's representatives, it's my humble opinion their salaries should be reduced drastically and they themselves be returned home, to see if they could find a private employer who would have them at any price. A poll would show that the majority of them could not get a job anywhere except on some other public pay roll.

Friend of the YANKS

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

B. F. writes: "My son was enlisted in the army and was sent to school for a year under the specialized training program. Because of an injury he was unable to complete the course and eventually he was discharged. He did not receive his $200 mustering out pay. Where can he apply for payment?"

Persons in the military forces whose entire period of service was as a student assigned to specialized training are specifically barred from receiving mustering out pay.

T. D. writes: "My son says he has been told he can obtain a medical discharge from service if he will sign a paper relieving the government from further responsibility for his condition and health. Should he sign the statement and get out or stay in the hospital and let the government take care of him?"

The statement would be worthless. The law covering pensions and veterans' relief says no person in the armed forces shall be required to sign a statement of any nature relating to the origin, incurrence or aggravation of any disease or injury he may have and any statement against his interest at any time shall be null and void and of no force and effect.

K. P. asks: "Can money borrowed under the guarantee provision of the G. I. bill be used to buy a tractor or other farm equipment or is this loan limited to purchase of land and buildings?"

The loan may be used to buy real or personal property to be used in bona fide farming operations conducted by the veteran.

PEOPLE WHO LIVE IN GLASS HOUSES

or, how—at last—she was able to hold her head up

YESTERDAY—It was a great problem, the problem of the "headless wax models" and the day we solved it was the day our window display really began. Oh, we'd had display—lengths of dry goods puffed up into "tents" in the old State Street windows, but there were no models with or without heads! Finally, in 1890, great bay show windows were built and models moved into the glass houses. But alas and alack, they were headless—for Mr. Field, the founder, wanted no repetition of the awful sight he had seen in New York. There he saw a wax mannequin, whose neck had melted in the beating sun, her head drooped upon her bosom. Our models were doomed to be headless—until one history-making day when a bright young man discovered plaster mannequins, guaranteed against the melting sun. Our models could hold their heads up. Display was off to an illustrious start.

TODAY—Display designs and decorates our famous windows (more show windows than any other store anywhere). Fifteen hundred models (their hair is real and their hair-dos are designed in Hollywood) live in our glass houses. Display uses, each year, enough real flowers to plant a five acre garden, enough paint to paint a town. It builds everything from the life-size bow of an LST to the whole life-size story of "Twas the Night Before Christmas." It's all done by Window Display of Marshall Field & Company, one of the great stores of the world.

TOMORROW—holds our promise! We've answered your needs in the '90's—in a difficult today—and we intend to have the answers in the complicated postwar world ahead! That's our job, our responsibility, our promise—to you who made us what we are today. (Chapter XIV of the story "Marshall Field & Company and Early Chicago.")

BRITISH PUSH RECONVERSION AHEAD OF VOTE

Confident Conservatives Plan Civilian Output

BY E. R NODERER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 7—Confident it will be returned to power when the votes are counted July 26, the present Conservative government is pushing plans to switch labor from war industries to the manufacture of civilian goods, it was reported tonight.

The main transfers will be into the production of construction materials for new homes, clothing, footwear, and furniture and other household necessities which have been relegated to the background during the war years.

These items have been granted first priority after the requirements of the Japanese war have been met. Much of this production will be absorbed domestically but some of it will go into the export trade. It is understood that preliminary reductions in the manufacture of arms and munitions have been agreed upon and already are being carried out.

Estimates Labor Needs

It is considered probable that only utility furniture will be allowed to be manufactured for some time and altho at present there are 402 factories engaged in the work—double the number a year ago—the demand still exceeds the supply. Only bombed outs or couples married since September, 1939, are permitted to buy utility furniture at present.

The minister of labor is at present compiling estimates of the labor to be required for consumer industries, based on information supplied by the manufacturers.

A campaign also is about to be launched to encourage workers no longer needed in war industries to accept ministry of labor direction to jobs in factories producing domestic goods. In many cases this will involve substantial reductions in wages received for war jobs which makes it necessary to sell the idea to the workers.

It also is planned to extend the system under which employers can ask the ministry of labor to return to them key workers employed in peace time work but who have been drafted to munitions jobs. This program already is operative in the clothing and footwear trades in which the public is feeling an acute shortage thru the lack of stocks in the shops.

Given Important Voice

In continuing the operation of this system of conscripted workers the minister of labor must operate in close liaison with the board of trade and the ministries of production and war transport.

These governmental units will have an important voice in the decisions to release or retain workers. There is some feeling that the workers won't all take kindly to being directed to lower paying jobs, some of whom may feel that if they can't keep their present positions they should be allowed to seek their own employment.

In the immediate post-war years the government hopes to be able to direct workers into industries where the needs are greatest rather than turn them loose to find jobs for themselves.

ARREST BROKER ACCUSED IN $525 CHECK FORGERY

Thomas J. Kane, 36, a broker, of 337 Essex rd., Kenilworth, was arrested yesterday and ordered to appear in Felony court tomorrow on a charge of forgery of a $525 check. He was released on $2,000 cash bond.

Kane was arrested by Kenilworth police on a warrant obtained by Zigmund S. Goodman, owner of a currency exchange at 560 Adams st. Goodman said he cashed a bad check for Kane in September but postponed prosecution of the case on Kane's promises to make the check good. Kane was taken to the detective bureau in Chicago to post the bond.

The check bore a forged indorsement, Goodman asserted. It was issued in the name of Kane's wife, Marian, payable to a third person. Mrs. Kane is socially prominent and is the daughter of George Ortseifen, 3314 Lake Shore dr., wealthy brewer.

NAME BUSINESS MEN SOLICITORS FOR FUND DRIVE

William J. Kelly, chairman of the business division of the Chicago Community and War Fund, yesterday announced the appointments of 12 business men to lead the solicitation of 940 large firms in this area. Wade Fetzer Jr. will be chairman, with William A. McSwain as vice chairman. Other appointees are Roy Andreae, Talmadge B. Tribble, Paul C. Clovis, Emil L. Lederer, W. H. Gellersted, A. S. Daniels, John A. Breen, Russel R. Kibbe, W. F. Murdy, and Oliver S. Turner.

GUNMEN TAKE $150 IN TAVERN

Anele Tocius, owner of the tavern at 3824 S. Kedzie av., was robbed of $150 and six boxes of cigars yesterday by two gunmen, Tocius reported to police.

Britain Fears Birth Slump Perils Her Future Defense

Reds Aid Stork

MOSCOW, July 7 (AP)—G. A. Miterev, commissar of public health, said today that motherhood decrees issued a year ago have brought a large increase in Russian births. He said that the birth rate was advanced by expansion of hospital maternity facilities and substantial financial aid for mothers and infants. Thousands of mothers without husbands, he asserted, were paid 1,500,000,000 rubles in state aid.

BY JAMES SLOAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 7—Britain is unhappily anticipating that in 25 years its population will be 3,000,000 [or 7 per cent] less than in 1940. That would bring it down to approximately 42,000,000 and, if other population trends are borne out, these 42,000,000 will be older on the average than the present population.

More Women Working

At the same time, it is expected that the population of Europe, including Russia, will increase from 572,000,000 to 668,000,000, a gain of 17 per cent. Therefore, despite efforts being made now to insure world peace, some British circles fear the country may be in an even worse position to defend itself, should another war break out, than it was in 1939.

One reason for the expected slump in population is that a third more women are working outside their homes today than pre-war and many are expected to continue in business even after the Japanese war ends. This is expected to have an adverse effect on Britain's post-war birthrate in that many of these women will not marry at all while the others will do so at a later age than would nonworking women, thus reducing the number of children they will bear.

Even at the present rate of marriage, it is estimated one in 10 British marriages is childless.

Live Longer Nowadays

One bright spot in the population picture for the British is the fact that people nowadays live longer. For instance, while the number of children in Britain under the age of 14 decreased by 1,000,000 between 1931 and 1939, the number of adults 65 and over increased by about 800,000.

However, the decline in young people seems to counterbalance the nation's longevity with serious effect. In Europe today the United Kingdom has the third highest proportion of men aged 15 to 34 in relation to the total population, with Russia and Germany holding first and second places. But in 25 years it is anticipated that Britain probably will occupy fifth place, the position now held by France.

M'KAY AND FIVE OTHERS SLATED FOR GRAFT TRIAL

Bound Over by Court After Hearing

Lansing, Mich., July 7 [Special]—Frank D. McKay, Grand Rapids industrialist and former Republican national committeeman from Michigan, must stand trial with five co-defendants on a charge of conspiring to corrupt the liquor control commission in 1939 and 1940, Judge Leland W. Carr ruled today.

Carr, who has been investigating graft in state affairs in the role of a one man grand jury, bound over six of the seven defendants at the conclusion of their preliminary examination before him.

Eight Originally Indicted

The original warrant had named eight men, but Isadore Schwartz, Detroit, a McKay lieutenant in various liquor deals, was revealed yesterday as a prosecution witness who had been granted immunity. Judge Carr held that the evidence developed at the hearing was insufficient to hold Donald Flory of Hudson, who had been identified by the prosecution as associated with William H. McKeighan, former Flint mayor and McKay political ally, in liquor agencies doing business with the state commission.

The court continued $5,000 bonds for the respondents, pending their Circuit court arraignment July 13.

Dismissed Motions Denied

The defendants, in addition to McKay and McKeighan, are Charles and Earl J. Williams, Detroit, father and son, partners in the Williams Sales company; Charles Leiter, Detroit, who was associated with McKay in the operation of the Grand Rapids Brewing company at Muskegon, and Fisher L. Layton, Flint, a former McKeighan aid who had been serving as administrative assistant to Charles M. Ziegler, state highway commissioner.

Judge Carr denied motions by defense counsel for dismissal of the charges. William Henry Gallagher, Detroit, arguing in behalf of McKay, contended that no valid evidence had been produced to link the Grand Rapids politician with any criminal conspiracy.

Political Tinge to Orders

Fred C. Ehrmann, Grand Haven, former liquor commission secretary, said the state's orders were placed on a political basis. He said the favored distilleries were those which McKay designated as having made substantial contributions to the campaign of the late Frank D. Fitzgerald when he was elected governor for the second time in November, 1938. Fitzgerald died in office three months after inauguration.

"I figured McKay ran the Republican party in this state, and since I had a political job I knew that if I didn't follow orders I would be fired," Ehrmann testified. "He would name different liquor companies and say they helped elect the administration and should have large orders," he added.

WAR PRIORITIES HALT BUILDING OF WATER MAIN

Construction of a 36 inch water main from the Springfield av. pumping station to the west city limits has been interrupted by war requirements, Public Works Commissioner Hewitt announced yesterday. The line, insuring an adequate water supply for Maywood, was scheduled to be completed July 1.

Half of the main has been completed, Hewitt said, but cast iron pipe for the other half is delayed because the manufacturer is busy on orders for the Philippines and other Pacific islands. As a result, city engineers indicate the remainder of the line will not be ready until Oct. 1.

Hewitt said the western half of the main, which is completed, connects with a large pipe line in North av. Thru a circuitous route, it is hoped to supply Maywood without reducing Chicago pressure unless there is a long period of unusually hot weather.

COUNTY REPORTS 3 TYPHOID CASES IN LAST 10 DAYS

Three new cases of typhoid fever in the suburbs in the last 10 days were reported yesterday by Dr. Edward A. Piszczek, county health director. Three other cases were listed earlier this year, one in January and two in March. There were 14 cases last year.

Dr. Piszczek said none of the new cases originated locally. The patients are a young woman who visited her soldier husband in Kansas, a soldier who had traveled in southern Illinois, and a sailor's wife who accompanied him to a northern Wisconsin lake.

The typhoid cases offer an additional reason why travel should be avoided, Dr. Piszczek said. He said that health problems are bound to result from overcrowding, inadequate sanitation, poor refrigeration, and other adverse factors.

MAKE GI HOME BUYING EASIER, OAK PARK ASKS

Veterans' Group Assails Federal Agencies

BY AL CHASE

[Real Estate Editor]

Arthur E. Fossier
[TRIBUNE Photo]

Authorize more building, release more materials, and create a new federal housing administration division for exclusive use and benefit of returning veterans, were some suggestions to provide them housing advanced by the Veterans' Commission of Oak Park in a letter to President Truman, the Veterans' administration, and Illinois senators and congressmen, made public yesterday.

The communication, signed by O. Allen Postlewait, chairman of the Oak Park organization, asserted government agencies have failed to show proper coöperation in helping veterans acquire homes and their procedures have almost completely broken down.

The veterans' commission is composed of representatives from 30 Oak Park civic, commercial, military, social, and religious organizations, including all churches, the real estate board, and the chamber of commerce.

Termed Heartbreaking

"The housing situation for all persons not home owners has become increasingly desperate as the war has gone on," said Postlewait in his letter. "For veterans returning to start civilian life anew, it is heartbreaking not only because of the difficulty of finding living quarters, but more particularly because the present rules for occupancy of new buildings work against the veteran, giving him the feeling that his government and his community have overlooked him in the housing crisis.

"This heartbreak is aggravated by the failure of the GI Bill of Rights as at present administered to provide any housing relief. We are informed that the FHA refuses to base loans on present construction costs, which defeats the intention of congress to make it possible for the veteran to get help in building. Of thousands of applications in this area, only a few have been approved.

Urges Immediate Action

Postlewait said the discharge of an obligation already assumed—that of making it possible for a veteran to provide decent living quarters for his family—is of "immediate urgency."

Here are three steps he urged be taken at once to make it easier and quicker for a GI to get a home:

"1. Liberalize the occupancy restrictions on war housing to give the veteran and his family at least an equal standing with any and all categories of nonveterans.

"2. Give force to the housing provisions of the GI Bill of Rights as originally intended by the creation of a new FHA title for the exclusive use and benefit of returning veterans.

"3. Recognize the desperateness of the housing shortage by releasing more materials and authorizing more building in the areas of the worst shortages."

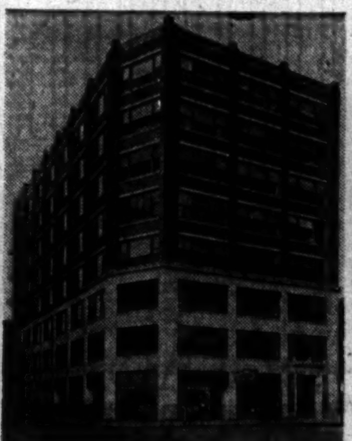
Pledges Preference to GI's

Arthur E. Fossier, president of the Chicago Metropolitan Home Builders' association, commenting on the Oak Park protest, said his organization has pledged its members to give preference to returning veterans' families in the sale and rental of the 2,300 home units recently allotted in the Chicago area under the national housing agency's H-2 program for civilian homes.

$300,000 Addition to Plant

Work has started on a $300,000 three story addition to the one story plant of the Webster-Chicago corporation, maker of automatic record changers for radio sets, at 5622 W. Bloomingdale av. Carl A. Metz is architect and Campbell, Laurie & Lautermilch, contractor.

Will Be Enlarged



Four stories are to be added to this 8 story building at the northwest corner of Wabash av. and 11th st., when conditions permit.

Purchase yesterday of the eight story Gunther building, at the northwest corner of Wabash av. and 11th st., disclosed post-war plans for adding four stories. The property, 80 by 165 feet, was bought by Morris Pancoe, president of the Standard Stationery Supply company, and his two sons, Walter and Arthur, naval engineers in the Pacific, for a reported $265,000. The seller was the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company. William H. Brinkman was broker and Stanley M. Schewel attorneys for the buyers. The building was erected in 1920 at a reported cost of $700,000 with a foundation capable of carrying four additional stories.

Management Firm Sells $458,000 Properties

Sales totaling $458,000 were made recently by Mayfair Management company, the company said yesterday. They included the following apartment buildings: 42 apartments at 5439-57 W. Washington blvd., to Joseph Best, $170,000; 30 at 726-32 Hinman av., Evanston, to Carl Weidner, $142,500; 25 at 1136-48 Pleasant st., Oak Park, to Carl Johnson Jr., for $85,000; and 12 at 5126-38 Agatite av., to Anthony Dzirnkiewicz, $32,500; also sold were 35 acres of vacant at the southwest corner of Dempster st. and Potter rd., Park Ridge, to Harry Dooley, subdivider, for $28,000.

Chestnut Street Flats Are Sold for $87,500

The three story apartment building, 179-85 E. Chestnut st., was sold by Myron H. Spades to the Chicago State corporation for $87,500 thru Sherwood Steel of Ross, Browne & Fleming, sole broker. The building has 14 suites of 6 and 7 rooms.

ILLINOIS TECH TO START WORK ON NAVAL UNIT

Work is expected to start this week on the $300,000 Naval Science building at Illinois Institute of Technology, President Henry T. Heald announced yesterday. This is the first building to be started by the institute since its $13,200,000 campus development program was announced recently.

The two story structure will extend a block from the southwest corner of State and 32d sts., to the southeast corner of Dearborn and 32d sts. Priorities for its construction were made possible by its use to house the new naval reserve officers training corps of 300 men. Dahl-Stedman company has the contract for its erection. It was designed by Mies van der Rohe, professor of architecture at Illinois Tech.

DIAMOND-T HEAD SELLS ESTATE AT BARRINGTON

Ross Siragusa, president of Admiral corporation, bought the 258 acre Barrington estate of Arthur Tilt, president of the Diamond-T Motor Car company, for $108,000, county records showed yesterday. Joseph Allen Pearson, of Pearson, Phalen & Pickard, Evanston, represented the buyer and Wyatt & Coons the seller. The property, on Spring Creek rd., in McHenry county, contains a small lake, and two complete sets of farm buildings in addition to a nine room colonial residence which Siragusa is occupying. Tilt resides at 1500 Lake Shore dr.

STUDY MIDWAY MEDICAL UNIT TO COST MILLION

Plans are under consideration by the University of Chicago for erection of a million dollar permanent memorial to Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers at the southwest corner of Dorchester av. and 58th st., it was announced yesterday. It will replace the Country Home for Convalescent Children at Prince Crossing, near Wheaton, sold recently by the university to Wheaton college for $137,500 cash. The new memorial will form part of the university's integrated medical center and will house the plaques in the various Prince Crossing buildings indicating their donors.

Following the founding of the home in 1914, Mrs. Lolita Armour Mitchell Wilder, the late James A. Patton, Laura Shedd Schweppe, Mrs. Anna M. Raymond, and others erected additional buildings. The home became affiliated with the University of Chicago in 1927 and was merged with it in 1938.

Changes Affect Operation

Changes in methods of handling orthopedic cases have so greatly reduced the time of convalescence that during the last five years it never was operated at more than half of its 120 bed capacity, it was said. This caused the university to sell it. Lyndon Lesch, assistant treasurer of the university, represented it in the sale. Arthur L. Webster of Wheaton was broker for Wheaton college.

The university retained 160½ acres of farm land adjoining the home building group and will liquidate it later, Lesch said.

To Be Used by Academy

Wheaton college will use the Prince Crossing property, comprising 24.6 acres, for the Wheaton college academy which will be moved there from Wheaton in September. It will accommodate 125 boarding students and 75 commuting students.

The 18 children patients now at the home will be transferred either to the University of Chicago clinics or to medical agencies from which they were referred to the home. The several memorial funds which have sustained the home will be continued under the plans for the new Chalmers' memorial.

RAVINIA MUSIC, WEATHER DRAW BUMPER CROWD

Even Trains Co-operate on a Saturday Night

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY

Saturday night, balmy weather, and a Tschaikowsky program—arrange the combination in any order you like—drew one of Ravinia's bumper audiences last night when Artur Rodzinski and the Chicago Symphony orchestra played "Mozartiana," "Romeo and Juliet," and the 5th Symphony.

The pavilion was crowded, the petunia bed was surrounded, and chairs and blankets were strewn companionably over the hospitable grass. Even the trains, no doubt remembering the tribute from their little friend at Caipira, refrained from undue roistering at tactless interludes.

Not Sure of Reason

I'm not sure whether Mr. Rodzinski picked "Mozartiana" because it is rarely played or to remind people that he just recorded it with his own New York Philharmonic. There is better Tschaikowsky and there certainly is better Mozart. However, it has its moments, tho for me most of them come in the theme and variations orchestrated from a piano work Mozart contrived on an aria from a Gluck opera.

This has genuine charm, including a brilliant violin solo played in virtuoso vein by John Weicher, and it comes off better than a rather heavy handed Tschaikowskian version of a gigue and minuet and a plushy prayer based on a Liszt transcription of a Mozart motet.

Because of the composer's fabulous popularity, it is always open season for Tschaikowsky and one of the most hunted victims is the overture-fantasia, "Romeo and Juliet," often mauled beyond recognition until it turns into a maudlin travesty of itself. Mr. Rodzinski did not so much ignore that cheap conception, as he simply did not know that it existed.

Tragedy Its Birthright

He has no illusions about this as a great work, but around its Shakespearean sweep he flung the sable cloak of tragedy that is its birthright, and it regained dignity, reticence, and integrity that made its fire blaze higher and its sensuous curves sink deeper.

The performance was brilliant as a whole, but it would have had more distinction if our wind section had its bygone glories. It still has some good players, but the ensemble is no longer in the class with the sweeping skill of the strings.

The crown of the concert, of course, was the E minor symphony, so designed, so achieved and at its close the orchestra gave Mr. Rodzinski the coveted fanfare. It was a beautiful performance, completely relaxed, completely in control, which seemed to let the music play itself.

Gives Orchestra Its Head

In the waltz Mr. Rodzinski leaned against his little railing and let the orchestra have its head, much as Mr. Stock used to in older days when he knew his boys and trusted their skill. Not only the strings played brilliantly here, and I do include the double basses, but also their orchestral sisters, cousins, and aunts, who shared the cheers.

Mr. Rodzinski ends his engagement this afternoon and there is a change in the program. Instead of the Zelinski piece he will play two excerpts from Moniuszko's "Halka."

CATCH TEEN AGE TRIO WITH $2,500 IN STOLEN GOODS

Three boys who admitted a number of burglaries were arrested yesterday by Shakespeare av. police and turned over to juvenile authorities. Richard Miller, 13, of 3081 Elston av.; Leonard Brzecynski, 12, of 2815 N. Sacramento av., and Nick Erimine, 15, of 3130 N. Richmond st., were caught with $2,500 worth of loot in Erimine's home.

Questioned by Capt. John O'Malley, the boys confessed they had stolen electric drills, auto accessories, tools, fishing tackle, table model and auto radios, bicycles, a typewriter, and a .32 caliber revolver. Much of the loot was stolen from the Great Western Auto Parts and Wrecking company, 2928 N. Western av.

The stolen items will be displayed for identification today at the station. The boys are being held in the Juvenile home.

Program Rewards Music Lovers

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

Cavallo's Symphonic band held forth for its second concert of the season in the Grant park band shell last night, and an unofficial estimate would be that more of the benches were occupied by music loving citizenry than at any previous time this summer. And without extra charge nature painted one of those ravishing sunsets which tend to dwarf even the best efforts of union musicians.

Under the conditions, the overture to Wagner's Tannhäuser," invariably described by announcers as "colorful," seemed a bit pallid, particularly with clarinets forced to gurgle at the top of their register those rushing string passages with which Wagner embroidered the pilgrims' song.

An Unexpected Encore

But as the competition faded from the western sky, Mr. Cavallo and his musicians became the undivided center of attention, and Lecuona's "Malaguena" led up to so neat a performance of Strauss' "Perpetual Motion" that the audience demanded an encore on the spot, receiving an unexpected one in the form of a bit of foolery called "The Jolly Coppersmith" in which the gentlemen of the band whistled and sang when they weren't tootling their instruments.

The Russian Sailor's dance, from Gliere's "Red Poppy," continued its successful career and the first part of the concert came to a finish with a lengthy slice of the second act of "Aida" which left the boys pretty well blown out, as well it might, considering that they had to play all the many notes originally distributed among orchestra, stage band, chorus, and soloists.

Chicago Tenor Soloist

William Miller, a Chicago tenor, was the soloist, singing as his contribution to the first half of the concert the aria with which Faust salutes the chaste and pure dwelling of his beloved. He sang it rather more solidly than rapturously, which is not to be despised, considering that it contains a hazardous high C which Mr. Miller negotiated with disarming ease.

Yet in spite of the virtues of this exhibition, one felt that both the audience and Mr. Miller were happier in the ballad which followed for an encore, "Song of Songs."

ADMITS KILLING GIRL WHO 'STOOD HIM UP' ON DATE

Leo Pascarella

Detroit, Mich., July 7 (AP)—A young man, 19, arrested last night in Saginaw, Mich., today confessed the mysterious killing of Marie Beavers Berridge, Chief Assistant Prosecutor Frank G. Schemanske announced today.

Schemanske said the man, Leo Pascarella, a policeman's brother-in-law, admitted that he strangled the 25 year old waitress because she spurned his attentions.

The body of Mrs. Berridge, estranged from her husband since 1942, was found June 29 under the bed in her room by her landlady. There was a gag made from a man's handkerchief in the young woman's mouth.

Schemanske said Pascarella told how he met Mrs. Berridge on a blind date two months ago and made plans with her to go to Arizona. But, he said, she "stood me up" on a date and the killing followed.

PURSE SNATCHER GETS $10

Mrs. Thelma Kleiman, 1451 N. Spaulding av., was robbed of $10 and an $11 check by a middle aged man who took her purse from her hand on Spaulding av., between Le Moyne st. and Pierce av., she told police yesterday.

Reunited

[Associated Press Wirephoto]

Mrs. Imogene Stevens and her husband, Maj. G. Ralsey Stevens III., reunited at Bridgeport, Conn.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 7 (AP)—Maj. G. Ralsey Stevens III., expressed confidence today that his 24 year old wife, Imogene, held on a manslaughter charge in the slaying of a young submarine sailor, will ultimately be "vindicated and acquitted of any wrongdoing."

The major, who returned from his European post Thursday in response to a "come home at once" cablegram from his wife, asserted that "no judgment should be passed upon any person which is based upon the gossip of scandalmongers and irresponsible persons."

Maj. Stevens, 26 year old member of a prominent New Canaan family, said he had "no doubt as to the accuracy" of his wife's account of how Albert Kovacs, 19, was shot to death June 23.

She told police she shot the sailor in self-defense when she found him and his brother, James, in the home of her neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Milton, thinking they were intruders.

She has been held in the county jail in lieu of $50,000 bonds since the shooting.

HINTS CAPTAINS TO FACE TRIALS OVER GAMBLING

Crime Commission Tells of Open Violations

BY JAMES DOHERTY

Several police captains face trial before the city civil service commission on charges of neglect of duty in failing to suppress gambling in their districts, Virgil W. Peterson, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission, indicated yesterday. Peterson made public a letter he had written to the civil service commission and a reply signed by Walter L. Gregory, chairman of the board which a year ago fired six captains and a lieutenant.

Peterson said independent investigations by the crime commission indicated that gambling "has opened up considerably." Guy E. Reed, president of the business men's anti-crime organization, had announced that the commission had ample funds and as many investigators as it needed to discover what has been going on in Chicago.

Asks Procedure in Inquiries

Peterson asked the police trial board to indicate procedure. His letter follows:

"Recent investigation by the Chicago Crime commission indicates that gambling operations have opened up considerably. It is possible that our investigations may disclose neglect of duty on the part of public officials charged with enforcement of the gambling laws.

"We will appreciate your advice concerning whether under the civil service rules and regulations the crime commission is entitled to file charges directly before the civil service commission or present evidence to the civil service commission on which the commission can initiate its own action. Your opinion concerning this matter will be appreciated."

Gregory's reply was taken as an invitation to the crime commission to do as it pleases—file charges directly against the police officials it believes to be responsible or present its evidence to the trial board and allow the board to determine which officials should be named in charges.

The civil service commission has no jurisdiction over Police Commissioner Allman, it was explained. Allman has appeared before grand juries on several occasions in recent years, crime commission officials recalled, and evaded personal responsibility for conditions shown to have existed. Allman promised the November [1944] grand jury he would take action against the captains he said were not obeying his orders.

It was known that the crime commission was not pleased with the proceedings that followed. Allman accused nine district commanders of failing to see to it that desk sergeants made certain entries in station records. The board, under Gregory's chairmanship, found all nine at fault, but fired only seven.

Appeal Decision Due in Fall

In subsequent court procedure the ousted officials won a court order from Judge Joseph A. Graber in Superior court reinstating them in their positions. This order is now on appeal to the Illinois Supreme court, and a decision is expected in September.

Heretofore the procedure has been for the police commissioner to file the charges before the civil service commission, but crime commission spokesmen agreed that this time Allman is not to be asked to initiate prosecution. Why Allman is being ignored was not explained. Fred Pretzie, assistant to Peterson, said they could not disclose either the evidence amassed by the crime commission nor its plans.

It was generally known, Pretzie admitted, that considerable gambling has been conducted more or less openly in recent months. It was known, for instance, that some night clubs were able to operate a $1,000 a minute gambling game known as chemin de fer, and blackjack was said to be tolerated in some places. Many night dice games and roulette wheel operations have been reported to have been permitted by persons close to powerful Democratic politicians.

The crime commission had information that the Negro districts again were flooded with policy games. Little or no opposition was found, agents said.

HARRIET BOCHSTAHLER

Mrs. Harriet Bochstahler, 26, of 1904 Warren av., was in police custody at the women's lockup in the Central station and two of her three children in the juvenile home yesterday after an attempt on her part to abandon the children at 31st st. and Normal av.

A divorcee, whose former husband, Charles, a truck driver, had been given the custody of the two older children but returned them when he was unable to care for them, Mrs. Bochstahler was arrested early yesterday morning in the home of her mother, Mrs. Bessie Lessaria of 5262 Halsted st. She was found there asleep with her youngest daughter, Patricia, 3.

Police had been notified by Charles Kruchtens, 63, an electrician, of 549 W. 31st st., with whom the two other children, Ida Mae, 7, and Ann, 5, had been left. Two teen-age girls, who had been given 50 cents by Mrs. Bochstahler to take the children to their parental aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Schmitz, 45, of 515 W. 31st st., had turned the children over to Kruchtens when they found no one home at the Schmitz address.

WAR LIGHTENS COOK COUNTY'S HOSPITAL LOAD

County hospital, with 3,300 beds, is only two-thirds filled these days because of a number of war time factors that include the absence of nearly half a million county residents in military service, a lowered automobile accident rate, and the general high level of employment which permits many former public charges to go to private hospitals.

"Four years ago we averaged 3,200 patients daily; the last several months we have run between 2,200 and 2,500," said Gen. Manus MacCloskey, hospital warden, yesterday.

Fewer Traffic Accidents

Gen. MacCloskey said he believed the list of patients closely reflected the proportion of men gone into service from the county's population. The hospital handles the majority of traffic accidents and these, he said, had been reduced noticeably since gasoline has been rationed. Another major cause of lightening the load is the care given by war industries to their workers and their families.

Both Gen. MacCloskey and Dr. Ole C. Nelson, medical director of the hospital, said that with coöperation of the war food administration and the office of price administration, the hospital had been able to uphold its food standards.

"We have had some difficulties getting the variety we would like to serve, but on the whole the patients' food compares very well with what people generally are getting," said Dr. Nelson.

Feel Shortage of Nurses

The greatest single problem at the hospital has been a shortage of trained nurses, Dr. Nelson said. Until the end of the war releases those in military service, County, like private hospitals, is getting along with the help of Red Cross gray ladies.

"We feel very fortunate to have them," said Gen. MacCloskey.

The male orderlies, too, have gone to war or into industry. They have been replaced with women.

AGE LIMIT OF 16 HAILED AS AID TO TRAINING SCHOOL

Discipline Simplified, Experts Say

BY GEORGE TAGGE

Much of the trouble that has plagued the Illinois State Training School for Boys near St. Charles will be eliminated by the reduction in the maximum admittance age from 18 to 16, experts predicted yesterday. The change became effective July 1 under new legislation.

Progress also was reported in keeping boys aged 10 and 11 from being committed to the school, altho the law still permits such commitments. A barrage of appeals to downstate judges to place younger delinquents in foster homes is showing effect, said Judge Bicek of the Juvenile court, a member of the state commission on juvenile delinquency.

"We are holding our own in the battle against juvenile delinquency but it still threatens to increase," Judge Bicek said.

Other Measures to Aid

Tied in with the campaign to keep 10 and 11 year olds out of the school is the aid to dependent children program launched in 1943 with state and federal funds. Also relatively new is legislation under which the state will share county costs of boarding dependent children.

The wide age range of inmates always has made it difficult to maintain segregation of boys committed for truancy and young men convicted of robbery with a gun, Judge Bicek said. This multiplied the problems of achieving discipline, he said.

Richard Eddy, director of the training school, shares the optimism of the commission over the effect of the 1945 legislation.

Pass Building Bill

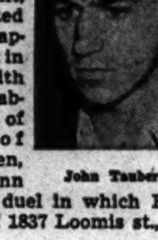
Also passed by the general assembly was a bill appropriating $620,000 to build a second unit at the Sheridan security division of the school. This will make it possible to keep there 120 instead of 60 incorrigibles transferred from the main branch. This appropriation also will pay for vocational, educational, and gym facilities now lacking.

The Sheridan project was halted two years ago when the war production board refused priorities to complete a large part of the original plans. About $250,000 of the initial appropriation lapsed.

The state commission on juvenile delinquency plans to send several of its members to Washington to demand priorities. Headed by State Rep. Tom M. Garman [D., Urbana], the commission is expected to be reappointed with few changes under a bill extending its life two years with $7,000 for expenses.

"We've gone a long way toward stopping the violence and wholesale escapes at St. Charles," said Rep. George Williston [R., Chicago], another commission member. "The next big step will be to provide an intermediate institution to replace Pontiac reformatory, now part of the penal system."

HOLD KNIFE DUELIST TO JURY ON ASSAULT AND MURDER CHARGES



John Taubery

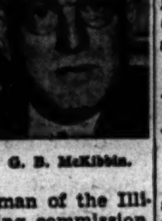
Municipal Judge John J. Griffin in Boys' court yesterday ordered John [Jinks] Taubery, 17, of 1456 W. 18th st., held to the grand jury on charges of murder, assault, and attempted rape. Taubery appeared in court in connection with the fatal stabbing the night of June 30 of Charles Dryden, 14, of 2919 Quinn st., in a knife duel in which Betty Albrecht, 15, of 1837 Loomis st., was injured.

Dryden had come to the rescue of the Albrecht girl in the home of his sister, Mrs. Catherine Brudnicki, of 3150 Green st., where Betty was acting as nursemaid for the three Brudnicki children. Taubery attempted to rape her, Betty told police.

Judge Griffin refused to admit bail on the murder charge, but set $20,000 bonds on each of the charges of assault with intent to kill and assault with intent to rape.

REPORT FINANCE CHIEF M'KIBBIN OFFERS TO QUIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]



G. B. McKibbin.

Springfield, Ill., July 7—One of the first problems Gov. Green is expected to tackle upon returning from Mackinac Island, Mich., July 16 is the reported resignation of State Finance Director George B. McKibbin, considered by some to be the most prominent member of the governor's cabinet.

McKibbin is chairman of the Illinois post-war planning commission, which has charted about 500 million dollars' worth of public improvements. Bills appropriating 139 million dollars for public works were passed by the recent general assembly. McKibbin also is state coal conservator.

Loses to Kelly

Altho not a politician, McKibbin became Republican nominee for mayor of Chicago in 1943 with Green's blessing, losing to Mayor Kelly by 114,000 votes.

Statehouse reports indicate McKibbin was disappointed not to receive one of the three Green appointments to the Chicago metropolitan transit authority. It was conceded that a boost in salary from $8,000 a year to $15,000 would not be as important to McKibbin as the interest of new work. His wife is the daughter of the late B. E. Sunny, who was president of the Illinois Bell Telephone company for many years.

Probably Would Stay On

Green did not act upon McKibbin's reported oral notice that he intends to leave. However, it is said Green offered the finance dictatorship to Mark Saunders, former mayor of Kewanee, who handles legislative contact work and patronage matters for the governor. Saunders, it is reported, did not want it.

If Green asks McKibbin to help out by staying for a while longer it is believed the director will do so. A successor need not have the demonstrated competence of McKibbin in financial matters, it is said, because some months ago the office acquired as budget director Teddie R. Leth. Leth, controler of Oak Park, "world's largest village," since 1931, is said to be able to keep the finance department machinery going but has no interest in politics.

McKibbin, an attorney by profession, has been president of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, president of the Cook County School of Nursing, president of the Chicago Y. M. C. A., board president of the Iowa Wesleyan college, and a leader of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews.

ATTORNEY ASKS MILLION DOLLARS LIBEL DAMAGES

Lester F. Collins of Waukegan, an attorney, recently discharged from the army, yesterday sued the Johns-Manville Products corporation in United States District court, charging he was libeled in a paid advertisement in Waukegan newspapers on Nov. 29, 1941, and asking 1 million dollars damages.

The suit, filed by Atty. J. E. Bairstow, says Collins was brought into public scorn and injury done his law practice in the advertisement which, it declares, related to Collins' purchase of 94 lots north of Waukegan. The Johns-Manville plant was between the lots and the city limits.

Johns-Manville the day before the advertisement appeared sued Collins and 96 other persons, charging Collins gave 93 of the 94 lots to other lawyers in a conspiracy to have the land annexed, and asking an injunction on the ground the annexation would have made annexation of the company's property automatic. The suit was dropped without prejudice on Dec. 6, 1941.

Auroran Dies of Injuries After Auto Strikes Tree

Roy McLinn, 53, of 123 S. La Salle st., Aurora, who was injured Thursday when his automobile struck a tree, died yesterday in St. Charles hospital, Aurora.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL AFTER 8 MONTHS

Injuries received last Oct. 8 in a fall on the street caused the death of Oscar Hoff, 55, of 817 Monroe st., in County hospital yesterday.

CASUALTY ROLL NAMES 76 FROM CHICAGO REGION

OWI Report Includes Dead, Wounded, Missing

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 7—The office of war information today made public a casualty list that includes the names of navy dead, wounded, and missing, and army men dead, wounded, and missing in the Pacific regions. Seventy-six men from Chicago and vicinity are included in the list.

Next of kin have been kept informed of any changes that have occurred in the status of casualties since this report was compiled, the OWI said.

CANCER IS CURABLE

-if Diagnosed and Competently Treated in Time

To countless thousands of persons "cancer" is a dreaded word. But thanks to medical research during the past quarter of a century it is no longer necessary to consider it hopeless. The fight against the tragic and unnecessary toll of cancer is definitely a winning battle. According to leading medical authorities an overwhelming majority of cancer cases can be controlled if the disease is diagnosed early and treated properly. Notwithstanding, there is widespread failure to use this medical knowledge when it can be most effective. The co-operation of the public is now an important factor in cancer control. Seek prompt medical attention for such signs and symptoms as; any strange growths under the skin, lumps in the breasts, moles, old scars, warts or birthmarks that change in color or size, swellings, sores that refuse to heal, persistent stomach or abdominal disturbances, rectal disorders or abnormal discharges. Don't wait until you feel pain! There is rarely any pain in early stages when "cancer is curable." Persons past 40 years of age, regardless of symptoms, should have a complete physical examination at least once a year. And to be fully protective these examinations must be supported by X-rays, clinical laboratory and other scientific facilities. These complete services are available at

UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE

Women Past 40
Such ailments as headache, nervousness, pains in the abdomen, irregular menstruation, frequent or painful urination need medical attention. They may result from some functional disturbance or from a more serious condition. They rarely correct themselves, especially in women past 40 when beginning cancer is a dangerous possibility. A regional examination, including the use of the colposcope, Schiller's test, microscopic study of secretions and discharges, urinalysis and blood tests, is...................... $4.50

Men Past 40
Many men begin to feel the strain of living in the early forties while others take longer. Regardless of age such symptoms as fear, nervousness, frequent or painful urination, blood in the urine, discharges, or pain and discomfort of any kind call for a thorough physical check-up. To be fully protective, the clinical examination by the physician must include microscopic examination of all secretions and discharges, blood and serological tests. Examining fee is.. $4.50

Ear, Nose Throat
These organs are so closely related through connecting sinuses that one is rarely affected without involving all three. That is why severe colds will cause sore throat, inflammation, and infection in tonsils, adenoids, discharge from ears and other serious conditions. Lowered body resistance may account for recurring colds or they may be the result of more serious acute or chronic ailments. Our ear, nose, and throat physicians have the medical knowledge, experience, and facilities to diagnose and successfully treat these conditions. The examination will include tests for hearing, urinalysis, and blood tests. The fee is............ $4.50

Stomach Ailments
While many stomach complaints are the result of abuse and wrong eating habits, persistent cases often indicate a more serious condition. The stomach often produces the first symptoms of beginning disease, such as kidney and liver complaints, gall bladder trouble, and other serious ailments, including cancer. Therefore, never neglect a chronic stomach ailment, particularly if you are past 40 years of age. Diagnosis requires a special gastro-intestinal examination, including a physical check-up by trained physicians, blood pressure, urinalysis, a blood examination, and serological tests. The fee is.... $4.50
A fluoroscopic examination of the stomach and small bowel following a barium meal, and an X-ray film of the abdomen when necessary is.............................. $8.50
A fluoroscopic examination of the colon following a barium enema, including two 14"x17" X-ray films, one of barium-filled colon and one after evacuation, is.............. $8.50
An X-ray examination of the gall bladder is important. The fee is................ $6.50
A laboratory examination of the gastric contents and stool is.................. $5.50

Skin Disease
Many afflictions of the skin are only temporary conditions which proper medical care will quickly heal. Others, however, require the most expert medical knowledge and skill to bring under control. Therefore, if you have a skin disorder it should be accurately diagnosed and competently treated. Many potential skin cancers have been prevented by such timely vigilance. Competent skin therapy is available here by physicians who have adequate knowledge and experience as well as the support of complete examining and treatment facilities. Examination includes urinalysis, blood and serological tests. The fee is............ $4.50

Have Teeth X-rayed
UNDER MEDICAL DIRECTION
When the teeth start to decay there is grave danger to health unless they are treated promptly. An X-ray of all the teeth at regular intervals will disclose their condition before serious damage has occurred. It is the only way to save your teeth and protect your health. Highly trained technicians, unexcelled facilities, insure good service and accurate interpretations. Full mouth X-ray, 14 films and a report are only.............................. $2.50

A Physical Check-up
All persons past 40 years of age should have a complete physical check-up by the physician, an X-ray of the chest showing condition of heart and lungs, and electrocardiogram of heart, blood pressure, a basal metabolism test, a full mouth X-ray of the teeth (14 films), a urological or gynecological examination, and laboratory tests of the blood, urine and other secretions. Treat Rectal Complaints
Diagnosed and Treated Without Pain or Loss of Time from Work
Rectal disorders are dangerous ailments. Several thousand persons die every year from cancer of the rectum. Medical authorities consider them a major disease problem. The most common or beginning type of rectal disorders are small blood tumors or varicose veins, called piles or hemorrhoids. Unless properly and promptly treated a simple hemorrhoid or pile can develop into a

Fistula or Rectal Abscess
When this occurs the physician's problem becomes more difficult and the patient's condition more serious. As soon as the abscess is opened by the physician most of the pain will cease. If it is delayed too long, however, pus may burrow into surrounding tissue, causing more abscesses and fistula tracts to form. Proper medical attention can prevent this constant menace to health. Examinations made here include the services of a competent and experienced physician as well as urinalysis, blood and serological tests. The examining fee is.............................. $4.50

WAR JEEP TAKES $20,000 SKOKIE HANDICAP

POT O' LUCK 2D, FIGHTING STEP 3D IN SPRINT

Mutuels Again Top Million Mark

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

War Jeep, small but mighty son of the great War Admiral, won the fourth running of the $20,000 Skokie handicap at Washington Park yesterday to give Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham another pretty feather for her hat.

The little chestnut, under the steadying influence of the veteran Johnny Adams, scored by a length and a half over the stretch running Pot o' Luck from Calumet farm in a field of 11 of the fleetest 3 year olds in the nation's barns. Fighting Step, a son of Fighting Fox from the Murlogg farms of Mrs. Robert J. Murphy and her daughter, Susan Kellogg of Evansville, Ind., was third a length and a quarter back of Pot o' Luck.

The victory was worth $15,050 to Mrs. Graham who operates the Main Chance farms of New York.

Winner Pays $14.20

War Jeep returned $14.20, $7.20, and $4.80 across the board. Pot o' Luck returned $6.40 and $4.40. Fighting Step paid $5.60. Lt. Comdr. T. D. Buhl's Air Sailor, which went postward the 5 to 2 favorite of the crowd of 22,500, finished sixth. The winner's time for the seven furlongs on a fast track was 1:25, two and three-fifths seconds slower than the track record held by Calumet farm's Twilight Tear, which won the 1944 Skokie.

War Jeep broke first from its No. 10 post position but soon gave way to Fighting Don, H. E. Jacoby's Cracks, and Joe Apostle's Day. He moved up a length and a half behind Fighting Don as the neared the turn in the back stretch, when J. K. Houssel's Santa Anita Derby winner, Bymeabond, also stepped up.

Pot o' Luck Moves Up

Fighting Don began to lose his lead as they swept thru the far turn while War Jeep held a two length advantage over Bymeabond. As they turned into the stretch Fighting Don was just a head in front. Pot o' Luck, ridden by Doug Dodson, made his move from seventh place after lagging far behind from the start while Fighting Step also made his bid.

Pot o' Luck finished boldly and was going like a streak as War Jeep crossed the line with Fighting Step a length and a quarter farther back and a neck in front of Fighting Don. Bymeabond finished fifth and Air Sailor sixth.

Cameron and Plante's well backed Havana Lad, ridden by Bobby Campbell, took the opening event with a driving finish and returned $6 for a $2 ticket. Lustgarten and Weinberg's Silver Ace was second and Davies and Fogel's El Osuna gained the show.

Mutuels Top Million Again

For the fifth time in the 12 days of the 64 day coördinated meeting the mutuel handle went above a million dollars. The total for the nine race program was $1,498,361.

Genie's Mate, owned by H. W. Ostle and piloted by Art Fischer, never was headed in the second race and paid $24 to win, completing a $76.60 daily double.

Trainer Burley Parke saddled a winner for John Marsch in the $2,500 Misstep purse, Good Bunting scoring by a length over the favorite, Lookout Farm's Lookout Dice, in the five furlong dash which drew eight starters.

The $2,500 Bateau purse at seven furlongs for 3 year old fillies went to Col. C. V. Whitney's Flyweight, ridden by Billy Nichols. David Strauss' Corina Lark was second and J. C. Stone's Stonette third in a field of eight. The winner paid $3.20.

HI NEIGHBOR WINS $10,000 DETROIT RACE; ROYAT 2D

Detroit, Mich., July 7 (AP) — Hi Neighbor, 26-to-1 shot from the Bomar stable, came up fast in the stretch today to whipe the 20 to 1 Royat by a nose and win the $10,000 Motor City handicap, mile and 1-16 feature of a nine race program reopening the Detroit Fairgrounds meeting.

Hi Neighbor, ridden by Herbie Claggett, was clocked in 1:47 1-5 and paid $54.60, 16.00 and 8.80. Hortdal was third and Amber Light sixth.

Bold Question, Mrs. Norman Hernandez's sprinter, won its third straight Detroit race in the $5,000 Belle Isle handicap at six furlongs. Bold Question, ridden by the Canadian jockey, Bobby Watson, beat the favored, Bring Me Home, by four lengths, winning in 1:13 4-5 and paying $7.10 straight.

A crowd of 20,231 watched the reopening of racing here after the fair grounds track had been closed five days because of trainers' reluctance to enter their thorobreds.

BRIC A BAC WINS IN $50,000 RACE AT SANTA ANITA

Arcadia, Cal., July 7 (AP)—Bric a Bac won the $50,000 San Juan Capistrano handicap, closing day feature race at Santa Anita Park today, followed by the 10 year old Wing and Wing and Best Effort. The time was 2:30 4/5.

Gay Dalton, hero of Mexico and the overnight favorite, finished fifth.

Bric a Bac, the Freeman and Church entry, carried 122 pounds in defeating nine opponents in the mile and a half run, and was ridden by Jockey Conn McCreary, who flew here from New York for the race.

The winner paid $9.30 to win, $5 to place, $4.60 to show. Wing and Wing returned $12.90 and $6.70; Best Effort, $6.60.

The mutuel pool was $648,853.

Gay Dalton Falters

Gay Dalton, 3-4 favorite, was taken back early but made a sensational advance after six furlongs.

He faltered abruptly, however, when apparently at the peak of his run and thereafter was never a threat altho he plodded along to the finish.

A total of $272,665 was bet on Gay Dalton, which finished out of the money. The winner's net was $36,840.

Bric a Bac, winner of the $20,000 Tijuana handicap, was well rated in the early running, was taken out slightly in the stretch, and finished with a rush, catching Wing and Wing in the last 20 yards to win going away.

Wing and Wing Threatens

Wing and Wing, who has been running in $2,500 claiming races, showed outstanding speed from the start, took a short lead in the stretch and held on with determination.

Best Effort, prominent in the earl running, scurried gamely to the end.

Old English, racing on the outside, lost ground but loomed up in the stretch, then to falter near the end and come in fourth.

Other contestants, used up early, had little left at the finish. They included Fuego, Sickles Choice, Autocrat, Old English, Triplicate, and Patrimony. Paperboy was scratched.

A crowd of 46,000 saw the program.

DANTE'S OWNER SPURNS $420,000 OFFER BY BRITON

ASCOT, England, July 7 (AP)—Sir Eric Ohlson said today he had refused an offer of $420,00 for his 1945 Derby winner, Dante.

"I am not at liberty to say who made that offer," Sir Eric added, "beyond the fact that it came from the British Isles."

The British Press association said the highest price ever paid by an Englishman for a horse was the $240,000 which M. H. Benson gave for Italian Champion, Dante's sire.

Babe Dimancheff of Purdue to Play with College All-Stars

BY WILFRID SMITH

Boris [Babe] Dimancheff, Purdue's versatile backfield star who led the Western conference in scoring and was one of the nation's leading ground gainers last fall, has joined the All-Star football squad which meets the Green Bay Packers Aug. 30 in Soldiers' field in the 12th annual game sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Babe Dimancheff

There isn't anything, apparently, Dimancheff can't do on the gridiron and his talents are firmly founded on competitive spirit and speed. Few conference backs in recent years possess the straight away speed Babe has as witness his success in the recently completed track season. Speed in football is not sustained as long, of course, but Dimancheff also has a shifting stride and a pickup that got him loose for numerous long runs and bolstered his scoring marks.

Dimancheff's acceptance of an invitation to play against the champions of the National Football league insures the colleges coaches they will have a ball carrier who will be a constant threat. Perhaps the best tribute to Dimancheff's all-around ability was paid last fall by Lon Mann, Purdue's veteran trainer. "Pound for pound he's the greatest back I've seen at Purdue," Lon said and he has seen some great backs perform for the Boilermakers in the last two decades including Cecil Isbell, Purdue's head coach who starred for the Packers in their last appearance in Soldiers' field.

Played All Backfield Posts

Dimancheff weighs 178 pounds, is 5 feet 10 inches tall, and will not reach his 23d birthday until a week after the All-Star game. He was chosen as Purdue's most valuable player last fall by his teammates and was elected honorary captain at the conclusion of the season. Normally a half back, Dimancheff evidenced his versatility by pinch hitting as full back and signal caller in the final four games after the Boilermaker backfield had been disrupted by service transfers and injuries. In these games, Babe, an honorably discharged army veteran, directed Purdue's freshman backs with sang froid gained from four years' collegiate experience.

Dimancheff was well up in the scoring race nationally as well as topping the Big Nine. In addition to nine touchdowns he scored in six conference contests, he added

TALBERT ENTERS FINALS; BATTLES SEGURA TODAY

BY DAVID CONDON

The nation's top ranking tennis player, Billy Talbert, the tourist from Wilmington, Del., who last year lived in Indianapolis and gained the midwest's top rating, will meet the three time intercollegiate champion, Francisco [Pancho] Segura, at the River Forest Tennis club for the 1945 National Clay Courts tennis title today.

Talbert is seeded first in the tournament and Segura is the defending champion. Pancho beat Talbert in the Clay finals last year, but, two months later, Billy reversed the decision when he ousted the Ecuadorian from the National meet, on grass, at Forest Hills. They have met twice this year, splitting the honors.

Pancho Beats Cooke

Segura gained the finals by beating Elwood Cooke in a Friday semifinal. Talbert's semi-final assignment came yesterday, and he played outstanding tennis to defeat Lt. Hal Surface Jr. of Berry field, Nashville, Ten., 6-3, 6-3, 6-1.

Starting time today is 1:30 p. m. and following the men's struggle, National Champion Pauline Betz, of Los Angeles, runner-up to Miss Dorothy May Bundy in the Clay courts meet last year will engage Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke. Mrs. Cooke, like Segura, was thru with the semi-finals Friday, but her last round opponent was not determined until yesterday afternoon when Miss Betz beat Doris Hart, of Miami, 6-3, 6-4.

It's a Big Time Match

The Talbert-Segura match today is the best that can be offered in war time tennis. Segura ranks just behind Talbert on the national ladder, and unless Frankie Parker gets around to defending the title he won as an army sergeant last year, it is likely Billy and Pancho will repeat today's act in the Forest Hills finals in September.

Talbert was at his best in beating Surface, who has been absent from national competition due to his service with the Air Transport Command in India. Surface struggled

Moses Steals Home in 1-0 Game; 2d, 12-4

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

The up and down White Sox who unwittingly had attached themselves to a six game losing streak that gave them a quick ride into the second division, revived yesterday and remained in that active state long enough to take a double decision from the eighth place Athletics. They captured the first game 1 to 0, which was exactly the way the Mackmen handled them Friday night, and landed the second, 12 to 4, despite the presence of the talented Russ Christopher.

The first game was principally a matter of Wally Moses' legs and the elbowing of Bill Dietrich, the recent surgical subject. As hitters the Sox were so feeble that they made only six hits off one Luther Knerr, none figuring in the lone run which Moses manipulated thru the simple process of stealing home. Meanwhile, Dietrich was annoyed by nine hits in his quest for his fourth victory.

Moses Scores in First

Moses' act which decided the first game was put on in the first inning shortly after he had opened with a pass. He was bunted to second by LeRoy Schalk and moved to third on Kerby Farrell's infield tap. Either because he didn't know that Moses at times is a frisky fellow on the lines or because he forgot there was a man on base, Knerr took a leisurely windup. Moses promptly broke for home, arriving with so much time to spare that he was skidding across the plate before Catcher Charley George caught what Knerr threw.

Frank Papish, making his first start for the Sox, southpawed the route in the second game. The job, however, wasn't as easy as the lopsided score might indicate. He wasn't given much encouragement by his mates for four innings, but it wasn't long before a 2 to 1 Mack lead was turned into a 4 to 2 credit, then to 7 to 2, and finally to 12 to 2 as the result of a five run eighth in which the hit total off Christopher was raised by seven. It was the season's fifth defeat and the third set back in a row for the slim expert who has won eleven.

A's Collect Slim Dividend

The second game scoring started with a Mack run in the second inning. It was a slim dividend, considering that two hits and two passes were involved. George Kell walked with one out and scored, after two were out, on singles by Ed Busch and Christopher. A base loading pass to Charley Metro followed and Hal Peck provided relief for Papish by fouling to Farrell. The Sox retrieved this run in the third on a double by Mike Tresh and single by Moses, but the A's were out in front, momentarily, again in the fifth when Dick Siebert walked and scored with the aid of singles by Bob Estalella and Buddy Rosar.

Christopher asked for it in the three run fifth by hitting Cass Michaels with an errant pitch. Tresh sacrificed and Papish furnished a surprising development. He singled and Michaels went in with the tying run. Moses singled for his fourth hit of the afternoon. Dan Reynolds, subbing for Schalk, also singled to score Papish and put Moses on third. He dashed home from there while Farrell was being thrown out by Christopher.

Tresh Bats Twice in Eighth

Floyd Baker, who was helping out for Cuccinello, led off the sixth with a single and stepped to third when Hockett poked a two bagger down the left field line. Baker scored on a single by Michaels and Hockett registered on Tresh's infield out. Michaels scored later on Reynolds' third single, making the count 7 to 2.

Tresh started the daffy five run eighth with a single and before Christopher got the side retired Tresh was up again, this time flying to right for the third out. In between his two appearances, Farrell, Curtright and Baker, had singled, Hockett had doubled and Michaels had singled. The Macks followed with a pass and two hits in the ninth, thus doubling their previous run total.

Jockey Hurt at Winnipeg Shows No Improvement

WINNIPEG, July 7 (AP)—Ovidio Lejardi, Cuban jockey injured June 20 at the Polo Park race meet, was reported still in critical condition today by attendants at Winnipeg General hospital. Lejardi suffered a concussion when thrown heavily from his mount and has not fully regained consciousness since.

BY EDWARD BURNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Philadelphia, Pa., July 7—Claude Passeau and his equally pennant-hungry Cub brethren did all they could to put the Cubs in first place this afternoon as they shut out the Phillies, 3 to 0, running their winning streak to eight straight. They weren't too upset, either, when the Dodgers set back the Cards, who entered the day's business only half a game behind the Cubs.

Claude Passeau

The standings of the National league's first division after today's doings thus became:

	W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
Brooklyn	43	29	.597	....
Chicago	40	28	.588	1
St. Louis	40	31	.563	2½
New York	40	35	.533	4½

Tomorrow afternoon the Cubs will wind up what promises to be their most successful eastern trip in many years in a double header with the Phillies. Hank Wyse will go after his 10th victory, his third of the trip, and Paul Erickson will try for his fifth of the season and third of the trip. They will be opposed by two veterans who have seen better days, Whit Wyatt and Bill Lee.

110 Hits in Eight Games

In winning his 10th of the season and his ninth straight today Passeau held the Phils to one single up to the time the 3 to 0 edge first had been afforded him. Then he eased up for a single in the sixth, a double in the seventh, a single in the eighth, and a pair of singles in the ninth. Claude walked the first batsman on four pitches, but issued no passes thereafter. Not a Philly runner got to third.

The Cubs made nine hits. The three runs and nine safe ones brought their totals for the eight game winning streak to 62 runs and 110 hits.

Mickey Livingston, Cubs' first string catcher, was felled in the fifth inning while batting when he was hit in the mouth by one of Charley Schanz's pitches. Seven stitches were taken in his lip and cheek and X-rays were taken of the injury at Jefferson hospital.

In the first two innings the Cubs left the maximum of six runners on base, without making a run.

Cubs Can't Knock 'Em In

In the first inning a pass to Stan Hack, a single by Don Johnson, a foul by Bill Nicholson which advanced the runners, and an intentional pass to Phil Cavarretta had the bases loaded with one out. Then Andy Pafko whiffed and Peanuts Lowrey fouled to Crawford.

A single by Passeau, another pass to Hack, and a click on Johnson's backside from a pitched ball loaded the bases after two were out in the second inning. Schanz pitched three wide ones to Nicholson, then fanned him. At the end of the third the Cubs hadn't got a fair ball out of the infield. In the third Cavarretta lined to Vance Dinges, Pafko walked, Lowrey popped up, and Livingston grounded to Flager. So that was really something—seven men left on base without getting one ball past the infield!

Hack Drives in Merullo

The first fair ball from a Cub bat to pass the Philly infield was a single to center with which Len Merullo opened the fourth inning. He moved to second on Passeau's sacrifice and scored on Hack's single to left, Hack taking second on a throw to the plate. Johnson and Nicholson flied to Vince Di Maggio.

The Cubs added their second run in the fifth inning when Cavarretta walked, advanced on Pafko's sacrifice, and scored on Lowrey's single to center. Livingston then was hit by a pitched ball and Dewey Williams ran for him. Merullo flied to Jim Wasdell and Passeau struck out.

With two out in the sixth Nicholson walked and Cavarretta beat out an infield single. Pafko doubled to left center, Nicholson scoring.

BRAVES WIN, 7-6; HOLMES HITS IN 35TH STRAIGHT!

Pound 3 Giant Pitchers for 10 Hits

Boston, Mass., July 7 (AP)—Tommy Holmes added another tally to his new record today as he hit safely in his 35th consecutive game while the Boston Braves defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7 to 6.

Holmes' 35th was a scratch hit that bounced off Frank Colman's glove. In his other three appearances at the bat the Braves right fielder walked once, grounded out to first and popped to short stop.

With the score tied 6-6, Phil Masi, first man up in the eighth, won the game for the Braves with a home run over the left field fence.

The Braves were leading 6 to 2 going into the Pirates' half of the eighth. With one out, Dick Culler erred on Al Gionfriddo's grounder, Colman singled and three runs came in on Bob Elliott's fourth home run of the season.

After Johnny Hutchings walked Johnny Barrett, Mort Cooper took over the Braves' pitching assignment. Bill Salkeld, pinch hitting for Vic Barnhart, doubled off Cooper, bringing Barrett home.

The Braves built up their early lead with a five run fourth inning when Holmes singled and Chuck Workman walked. Phil Masi's single scored Holmes and Workman came in on Carden Gillenwater's single.

desperately but he couldn't compete with Billy's consistent strokes.

Talbert ran up a 4-0 lead before Surface broke Billy's service to take his first game, and then held his own to make it 4-2. They then traded and Talbert ran out the set at 6-3. He repeated the score in the second, after Surface ran ahead, 2-1, and in the third again ran up a 4-0 lead before Surface won a game, again on Talbert's service. Billy won the next two to close the game, set and match at 6-1.

Talbert Forces Play

Billy played a forcing game thruout. He was calm and slow on his strokes, and ran Surface from corner to corner, at one time sending Hal sprawling as Surface strove to retrieve a far shot. Talbert likewise was uncanny at the net, and when Surface came in, frequently passed him with a placement.

Miss Betz won the first set from Doris Hart after falling behind, 1-0, when Doris broke Pauline's service at love. In the second, Pauline took a 1-0 lead, only to drop behind, 2-1 and later 3-2 before evening it up at 3 all. Here she regained a 5-3 lead by breaking Miss Hart's service and holding her own, then yielded a game to Doris, and on her own service, ended it at 6-4.

Play Doubles Finals

In today's men's doubles final, Surface and Cooke meet Talbert and Segura after the Surface-Cooke duo bested the collegiate pair of Bernard Bartzen and Brendan Macken, 6-4, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6, in a late afternoon semi-final. Talbert and Segura entered the finals with a victory over Harry Buttimer and James Livingstone, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1, in yesterday's other semi-final.

One title, the women's doubles, was settled last evening as Miss Betz and Miss Hart triumphed over Miss Arnold and Mrs. Cooke, 6-3, 4-6, 9-7.

MIXED DOUBLES

Elwood and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke beat Bruce Thomas and Doris Hart, 6-2, 6-3.

Billy Talbert and Pauline Betz beat Nick Buzolich and Mary Arnold, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

Billy Talbert (left) and Francisco (Pancho) Segura, who will meet in today's finals at River Forest. Segura beat Elwood Cooke on Friday to enter the finals, and Talbert defeated Lt. Hal Surface Jr. yesterday to advance to the final match.

INTERLEAGUE GAMES ARE SET FOR NEXT WEEK

New York, July 7 (AP)—The major league all-star game, dropped this year as a travel conservation measure, will be replaced Monday and Tuesday of next week by seven games pitting National league nines against American league teams with war relief getting the receipts.

An eighth game, involving Pittsburgh of the National and Detroit of the American, was planned but was deleted at the request of the ODT because of the traveling it involved.

The program is:

Monday night—Chicago Cubs at Chicago White Sox; New York Yankees at New York Giants, Cincinnati Reds at Cleveland Indians.

Tuesday afternoon—Boston Braves at Boston Red Sox.

Tuesday night—St. Louis Browns vs. St. Louis Cards at Sportsman Park; Brooklyn Dodgers at Washington Senators; Philadelphia Phils at Philadelphia Athletics.

SEAHAWKS BEAT SCHICK NINE, 7-2, IN FIVE INNINGS

Iowa City, Ia., July 7 [Special]—The Iowa Seahawks defeated the Schick army hospital nine today, 7 to 2, in a game which was called in the last half of the fifth inning because of rain.

Six runs in the opening inning gave the Pre-flight boys a comfortable lead which was never threatened. Three hits, including a triple by Mike Franchuk, two bases on balls and two errors produced the winners' six runs.

The victory was Henry Kaiser's fourth of the season. Score:

Schick ....020 00—2 7 2

PURDUE'S BABE DIMANCHEFF TO JOIN ALL-STARS

three more in non-conference games for a total of 12 touchdowns and 72 points for the 10 game season. He was the only Boilermaker back to appear in all 10 games and turned in a brilliant performance in the finale with Indiana despite handicap of a knee injury.

Stars on Pass Defense Too

Babe's ground gaining more than kept pace with his scoring. He averaged nearly 5 yards and official figures show that he carried the ball 175 times from scrimmage for a net gain of 830 yards. Statistics fall far short of telling the story of Dimancheff's value. As a deft pass receiver, he made sensational catches for touchdowns against Great Lakes, Iowa Seahawks, Wisconsin and Indiana. He also was excellent on pass defense, his interception and 65 yard return for a touchdown against Wisconsin providing an outstanding example.

Each play was equally important as far as Dimancheff was concerned and this 100 per cent effort was in evidence in the 1943 season when Babe took a pass from Sam Vacenti, Boilermaker quarter back, in the last 38 seconds of the game at Minnesota. Purdue won, 13 to 7, to march to an undefeated season.

Dimancheff played prep football at Washington High school in Indianapolis, Ind. He was graduated from Purdue this spring with the degree of bachelor of science in physical education. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta.

Squad to Report Aug. 12

It is now apparent that the All-Star squad will number at least between 40 and 50 players. The squad will include as many experienced college players as last year's group when addition of many first year men created a record squad numerically. The players will report Aug. 12 at Northwestern university where the collegians have trained for the preceding 11 games. The All-Stars have won three contests to six for the National league representatives. There have been two ties, the scoreless game in 1934 with the Chicago Bears and the 7 to 7 tie in 1936 with the Detroit Lions.

Mail orders now are being accepted for the Aug. 30 game. All $6.60 seats have been sold but excellent seats remain at lower prices. Checks should be made payable to The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and mailed to All-Star Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower.

EIGHT SEMI-PRO GAMES BOOKED THIS AFTERNOON

Eight games are scheduled in the Midwest Baseball league today. The leading attraction will bring together Krier's Skokie Indians and the Stevens hotel nine in Skokie's Oakton park. The Indians will be after their eighth straight victory. In another major attraction, the Cole Lenzis, league champions, will play a double header on Lezi field in Hodgkins, Ill. Other games:

Chicago Hornets vs. Acme Tools, Berwyn field, 31st st. and East av.; Chicago Firemen at Arlington Heights; Shore Patrol vs. Harvey Moose, 149th st. and Ashland av., Harvey; Ace Fasteners vs. Fernwood All Stars at Fernwood park, 104th st. and Wallace av.; Woodlawn Radio vs. Calumet All Stars at Turner field, Hammond.

Miklos Fans 11; Police Beat Vaughan Nine, 5-2

The Chicago Police department All-Stars defeated the Vaughan General Hospital baseball team, 5 to 2, on the Hines diamond yesterday. John Micklos, former Cub, fanned 11 Vaughan batters. Score:

Batteries—Micklos and Stahlman; Nyenhuis and Catherman.

SIG JAKUCKI AND BROWNS DEFEAT SENATORS, 7 TO 3

St. Louis, Mo., July 7 (AP)—The St. Louis Browns tonight unleashed a 12 hit attack to overpower the Washington Senators, 7 to 3, and halt the Senators' winning streak.

The American league champions' hits included a homer by Mark Christman with one on in the fourth and a rtiple by Pete Gray in the sixth, which scored Don Gutteridge.

George Binks hit a home run in the second with a man on base to account for two Washington runs.

Sig Jakucki went the route for St. Louis, yielding six hits. Roger Wolff was the losing pitcher.

TIGERS, 3; YANKS, 2

Detroit, Mich., July 7 (AP)—Roger Cramer's 10th inning triple with nobody out scored Rudy York, who had singled, and enabled the Detroit Tigers to beat the New York Yankees, 3 to 2, today for lefthander Hal Newhouser's 13th victory.

Cramer's game-winning hit was his fourth of the game in five times at bat and pinned the defeat on righthander Bill Zuber, who went all the way for the Yanks, yielding 13 hits.

RED SOX WIN, 8-6

Cleveland, O., July 7 (AP) — Mike Ryba pitched the Boston Red Sox to an 8 to 6 victory over the Cleveland Indians today as his teammates pounded four pitchers for 11 hits, including home runs by George Metkovich and Ed Lake.

It was the first series victory for the Red Sox in three starts. Ryba relieved Jim Wilson in the fourth inning after each team scored three runs in the opening inning.

Jeff Heath belted his fourth homer of the season in the first inning, scoring Micky Rocco and Paul O'Dea.

SUNDHEIM OF INDIANA ELEVEN TO PLAY AT NAVY

Annapolis, Md., July 7 [Special]—Another football star from Indiana university has been admitted as a member of the fourth class of midshipmen at the United States Naval academy it was revealed today by academy athletic officials. He is George Sundheim, who played full back on the Hoosier eleven in 1944, the same team on which Bob Hoernschmeyer was a full back. Hoernschmeyer entered the academy several days ago, along with Bob Kelly formerly of Notre Dame.

Sundheim weighs 203 pounds, is 19 years old, and stands 5 feet 11 inches. He is said to be of the hard driving type who will fit into Navy's newly adopted T formation.

Nelson, M'Spaden Lose to Cochran, Morey; 3 and 2

St. Louis, Mo., July 7 (AP)—Byron Nelson and Jug McSpaden were defeated in an 18 hole golf match today by Bob Cochran, St. Louis amateur, and Dale Morey, professional, 3 and 2.

Cubs, Sox Play Tomorrow in Charity Game

The Cubs, possessors of an eight game winning streak, will arrive in Chicago from Philadelphia tomorrow afternoon to play an interleague game with the White Sox tomorrow night in Comiskey park for the benefit of the American Red Cross and the National War Fund. Coach Charlie Grimm's greatest worry, after the squad shut out the Phillies, 3 to 0, yesterday, to sweep its final series on the eastern trip, was that the boys might be a bit train weary as a result of ODT contingencies.

The teams met in one contest this spring in which the Cubs scored a 15 to 3 triumph.

Better Than Rated

Both squads are rated much better than when they first started the season, altho perhaps the Sox have a slight advantage on this point. On the part of the Cubs, Grimm has perhaps a half dozen pitchers who should be capable of stopping the Sox. Included are Hank Wyse, Paul Derringer, Hy Vandenberg, Paul Erickson, Bob Chipman, and probably Lon Warnecke, Wally Singer, Ray Prim, and Ray Starr.

Phil Cavarretta is not leading the National league hitting but his average tops Tony Cuccinello's in the junior circuit. The Cubs believe they otherwise can top the Sox in hitting at every defensive position, man for man. The Cubs think they are faster than the Sox but there are those who doubt they are trickier.

It's a Night Battle

One definite advantage for the Sox will be the character of the game, it being at night in a not too familiar setting for the North Siders. The Cubs lost six of their first seven night encounters and Vandenberg had to pitch a one-hitter to salvage that victory.

Match Corp. to Play at Fort Sheridan Today

The Match Corporation of America, Chicago softball champion, will travel to Fort Sheridan this afternoon to face the soldiers. The Matches recently defeated the Wisconsin state champions, Sheboygan, 2 to 0. Bill Bartz, veteran one armed mound star for the Chicago team, is slated to pitch against Fort Sheridan.

HARRY NYE. JR. WINS CHICAGO CLUB'S B SERIES

Harry Nye Jr., sailing his 39 foot R boat Gale, won the Chicago Yacht club's B series of summer races yesterday by capturing the third and final race of the series off Belmont harbor. He won the previous two races in the series. Gale covered the 12 mile course in 1 hour 46 minutes 39 seconds, the fastest for the distance this season. Gale averaged seven miles per hour in a strong southwest wind.

An unusual mishap occurred during the club's racing when a 28 foot Tumlaren class sloop, Atra, sailing by Belmont harbor, was struck by a gust of wind and lost its lead keel. The yacht capsized and was towed into the harbor by Laurie Hendrickson with the schooner Bagheera. Paul Cook of the Chicago and Columbia Yacht clubs, the owner, his wife, and two others, were rescued by the nearest racing craft.

Fifty outboard speedboats are scheduled to compete today on Mineola bay, Fox Lake, Ill., 50 miles northwest of Chicago, in the first official speedboat regatta to be held on the lake since the war began. The regatta, which will start at 2 p. m., is sponoserd by the Outboard Club of Chicago.

Harry Nicodemus, South Bend, Ind., national class C champion pilot, and Harry Vogts, Madison, Wis., national class F champion, will be among the racers. Ernie Erickson, Chicago, will be regatta committee chairman, assisted by William Kramer, commodore of the sponsoring club.

END RACE TODAY

A fleet of Chicago, Milwaukee, Racine, and Grand Rapids sailing yachts left Milwaukee harbor last night headed for Chicago in a new race sponsored by the Chicago Corinthian Yacht club. The 76 mile run will end today off Montrose harbor, where the sponsoring club has its clubhouse and anchorage. It is the first long distance event to be held under the club's auspices and the first race from Milwaukee to Chicago in several years.

Among the yachts competing are Venturon, Commodore H. F. MacNeil's cutter, flagship of the Chicago Corinthian Yacht club; Trident, Commodore P. H. Danly's Chicago Yacht club flagship; Vice Commodore George Sollitt's White Cloud; Falcon II., co-winner o. the Lake Michigan Yachting association regatta last Wednesday at Milwaukee, and H. C. Griffin's 10 meter cutter Tar Baby.

Lightning, Arrow, Sea Gull, and Snipe class sloops of all local yacht clubs have been invited to sail today in the Burnham Park Yacht club's open regatta. The sloops will be started from a race committee boat anchored at the south end of Northerly Island.

The Home Front

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS

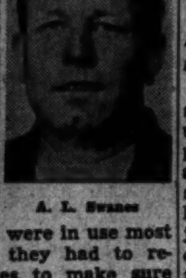
CHICAGO park district centers located thruout the city are among the most valuable factors in the summer industrial recreation program and none of them is doing more efficient work than Gage park on W. 55th st. This is not one of the larger park district layouts, insofar as available playing area is concerned, but it certainly takes a leading role when it comes to utilizing the space which it has. As a result it boasts of one of the largest outdoor programs in the city.

IN HOT WATER

Half the fun of any softball game or other athletic effort of course is the shower which follows it. Last year the Gage park athletic department provided hot showers three nights a week while the teams which played on other nights had to be satisfied with cold ones. This year all of the leagues wanted to play on the "hot water nights" so the park management, in order to be fair to all, worked out a plan whereby hot showers now are available every night.

O. K. Rich, supervisor, and Amber L. Swanee, men's and boys' physical instructor, recently took time out to check over the extent of their softball interests and even they were surprised at what the survey showed. They knew they had playing fields laid out in every available corner of the park and that the diamonds were in use most of the time, but they had to recheck their figures to make sure that it was true they had 150 teams playing there each week, or approximately 2,250 players, since most teams on the park's list have rosters of 15 players each which are turned in to park officials.

O. K. Rich



A. L. Swanee

The No. 1 league, in that it is solely the promotion of the park, is the Gage Park Industrial circuit of eight teams. It well might have been much larger, had any effort been made to build it up above that number. Pacesetters thru the early weeks of the season have been Uarco, Armour & Co., and Dodge-Chicago, followed by Oscar Mayer, Cole's Hot Blast, J. H. Kenney, Rheemmeters, and Rheem Manufacturing.

Staff Co-operates with Area's Industrial Plant Program

The Foote Bros. Gear and Manufacturing corporation, one of the larger industrial plants in the Gage park area, makes full use of the park's facilities and the willingness of the staff to work with the plant's own recreation staff. Employes of the Foote plant alone make up 49 teams playing in four leagues. The company sponsors two leagues, one of 20 teams which plays each Friday evening and another of eight teams of night shift workers who play each Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock. The CIO union at Foote's also has two leagues, one of 12 clubs for both factory and office workers, playing Monday evenings, and the other a nine team morning league each Tuesday.

Other plant leagues with headquarters in Gage park include Dodge-Chicago, whose UAW-CIO organization has a 16 team league of factory employes playing each Thursday evening, and the Swift & Co. office league of 10 teams. This latter group has an interesting history, being the outgrowth of a grudge game between two teams from the Swift plant in the summer of 1943. These two groups had so much fun out of their contest that Rich had little trouble persuading them to organize an eight team league which played the remainder of that season. The Flashes from the transportation, dairy, and Chicago office forces are the current leaders of the Swift league.

Baseball School Popular for Boys on Saturdays

Leagues mentioned thus far, strictly industrial in nature, make up a large part of the Gage park program but the staff finds time for a lot of other softball. The summer schedule also lists a senior open league along with intermediate and junior league circuits which take care of the boys of the community from the seventh grade up. The Southwest Zone Lutheran league squad also plays its games here, as does the St. Rita Knights of Columbus team. In baseball Gage park is represented by the Mazanos in the Metropolitan league and by the Gremlins A. C. in the Chicago Baseball league. Turnouts of 300 or more are common at the park's own baseball school for boys held each Saturday morning.

Baseball and softball, tho the biggest of the Gage park activities, are not the only ones. There are three different dancing groups which meet regularly. Wednesday is square dance night, devotees of this old time pastime having been meeting since last October, with turnouts of 200 common until the warmer weather came. The jitterbugs take over Thursday evenings. Friday night is turned over to the 100 club, a group of younger boys and girls who get instruction in ballroom dancing. Several musical groups from nearby industrial plants make this their regular meeting place and the fieldhouse is used for the showing of educational movies.

Illinois Tools, Danly's Tie for Affiliated Lead

In the Chicago Affiliated Industrial Recreational association, the Motorola girls defeated Harber's, 7 to 6 and the Rauland men routed Danly's, 13 to 6, Monday night. On Thursday night the Motorola girls won their second game, beating Illinois Tools, 8 to 7. Other results: Illinois Tools' men, 9; Motorola, 6; Rauland, 9; National Minerals, 3. Illinois Tools and Danly's are tied for first place.

BELGIAN BUYER AWAITS SHIPPING OF 2 TROTTERS

Batavia, N. Y., July 7 (AP)—Ralph H. Verhurst of Victor, N. Y., said today he had completed a deal sending two American trotters to Belgium and that the animals would be shipped as soon as space could be found for them on a boat.

It is believed the transaction is the first sale of trotters to Europe since the start of the war.

Verhurst said he had sold Provident, 6 year old brown stallion with a mark of 2:07, and Proximity, 3 year old brown mare by Protector, to Karel Wynendaele of Ghent, Belgium. No price was announced.

Until the horses are shipped, Verhurst will race them at Batavia Downs track here.

Eskimo Nine Beats Whites Under Midnight Sun, 24-14

BARROW, Alaska, July 7 (AP)—A baseball game finished in the light of the midnight sun climaxed an Independence day celebration for whites and Eskimos at this American outpost on the north horizon. The Eskimos won, 24 to 14. Beyond the playing field on the deep sand of the ocean shore, the Arctic was jammed with heavy ice that prevented holding the customary July 4 kayak races.

OLLIE ANDERSON, MINOR LEAGUE UMPIRE, DIES

Los Angeles, Cal., July 7 (AP)—Ollie Anderson, 71, veteran baseball umpire who had worked in numerous minor leagues since 1905, died today.

Prior to serving as umpire in the Northern league in 1905, he had been a baseball player. Since then he was an umpire in the Wisconsin-Illinois, Wisconsin-Minnesota, and New York State leagues, the American association, the Western, Federal, Texas, Pacific Coast, Piedmont, South Atlantic, and Northern leagues, the Western association, and California State league.

3 TEAMS PLAY FOR WINDY CITY PLAY-OFF BERTHS

An important double header is scheduled for this evening in the Windy City Softball league in Hilburn stadium, 5500 N. Wolcott av., with three of the four teams battling for a berth in the first round play-offs.

In the opening contest the A. B. C. Freighters face the south side Owl club. A loss for either club will eliminate it from the play-offs. In the second game the Barretts encounter the league leading Fewer Boilers.

PHEASANTS HELP SOUTH DAKOTA'S 1944 FINANCES

BY BOB BECKER

Altho outdoorsmen usually are thinking about the sport of fishing at this time of the year, some of the outdoor fans can't keep their minds off hunting for we continue to receive inquiries on when the South Dakota pheasant season will open. Some readers also ask if we can give any information on what the limit will be this fall. No one knows now, not even South Dakota officials, when the season will open. But these inquiries which are coming our way serve to highlight the most amazing upland game story of the year or any year as far as that goes. It's this: South Dakota hunters last season killed 6,439,508 pheasants!

The figure is from the South Dakota department of conservation, which informs us that the total small game licenses sold in 1944-'45 totaled 135,610. This is 26,769 more than the previous all-time high for that state in 1942. Of this total there were 85,359 residents, 42,315 nonresidents, 4,627 resident service men and 3,309 nonresident service men's small game licenses. In 1943-'44 only 17,448 nonresidents hunted in South Dakota as compared to more than 42,000 last season.

Almost a Million Dollars

At $20 per person those 42,315 nonresidents' licenses meant an income from out of state hunters alone of $846,300 which isn't alfalfa in anybody's game department even in these days of astronomical figures. Moreover, last season hunters bought $100,458 worth of shipping tags, another tidy sum for the game department.

The game department says that according to the game kill reports sent by resident hunters the average kill per hunter was 53 pheasants. Nonresidents averaged 40 pheasants. This brings the total take of ringnecks up to 6,439,508 birds in one season. During the 1943 season 3,168,830 pheasants were bagged.

The thing that puzzles us about long range planning for South Dakota or any hunting is this: What are the boys going to use for ammunition? There can't be many shotgun shells left in the hunter's reserve pile. And there won't be many shells available by September. Anyway, the boys who have been in uniform and are now free to do some hunting in our estimation should get the first call on shotgun shells this fall.

Veterans Deserve Break

If anybody ought to get a break on some outdoor sport with rod or gun it's the fellows who have been missing it for a long time and have done their share and more in busting the Krauts and the Nips. It's our hope that these ex-service men or the fellows still in uniform that can get a few days' leave will be given preference this fall in the purchase of rifle and shotgun shells that come into the open market.

Incidentally, our first and rather sketchy survey of the game crops in South Dakota indicates that there may not be quite as large a hatch this season due to rainy cool weather. For example, Dalton Logue, game warden of Faulkton, S. D. reports that very heavy rains since June 1 undoubtedly have destroyed a lot of pheasant and duck nests. In Spink and northern Hand counties there are plenty of adult pheasants, altho a lot of eggs were frozen during the freezing weather of May. However, it looks like another bumper crop of ducks in the northwest on the basis of early reports. Wardens tell of plenty of water in the sloughs and potholes where the waterfowl will be raising their young.

WHITE SOX AND COLE LENZIS TO SPONSOR CLINIC

The Chicago White Sox, in conjunction with the Cole Lenzis, Chicagoland semi-pro champions, will conduct a four hour baseball school for suburban and Chicago area boys next Saturday, July 14, in Lenzi field, located on route 66 and East av., four miles south of La Grange, beginning at 1 p. m.

Johnny Mostil, former White Sox star center fielder, and Doug Minor, Sox scout, will be in charge of the drills, which will include every phase of the game.

THE LOCKER ROOM

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

THE 12th annual tournament of the Illinois Women's Golf association will get under way tomorrow morning at the Decatur Country club, with more than 100 entries representing 40 clubs thruout the state. . . . Jeanne Cline of Bloomington will head a company which includes Mrs. Lawrence Selz, Virginia Ingram, Mrs. F. J. Krauss, Mrs. Harold Sims, Virginia Nilles, Marjorie Lindsay, Ann Lewis, and Mrs. Charles Jones. . . . The tourney will run thru Friday. . . . More important than the event itself is the objective of it and its companion competitions during this season. . . . That goal is the provision of a $2,000 putting green for the Chicago veterans' rehabilitation center. . . . The I. W. G. A., thru its president, Mrs. A. M. Pike of Aurora, and her associates, contributed $2,150 to the Prisoners of War fund of the Red Cross in the last three years. . . . John H. Rogers shot a 73, one over par, to win the George S. May Independence day trophy, a 72 hole medal play argument. His previous net scores were 73, 69, and 70 for a total of 285.

Joining with the women's state battle in competitive interest this week will be the 18th annual Midwest Public Links Amateur tournament, beginning tomorrow and continuing thru Saturday's championship match over the Waveland av. course in Lincoln park. . . . The tourney is open to all amateurs. . . . The entry fee is $150, and tee entries will be accepted for today's qualifying round. . . . Advance entrants include Bob Dougherty and Lou Esposito, last year's finalists; Dante and Fred Vicini, Harry Wils, and Gunnar Gabrielson. . . . Members of the Lincoln Park Golf club, sponsors of the show, pitched in and weeded the course's traps recently when they encountered a man power shortage in maintenance. . . . Dave Juillard won the title in the recent Postoffice Golf association meet, shooting a 70, one under par, at Bunker Hill.

SHOTS-OF-THE-WEEK

Jack Atten's tee shot and putt for a deuce on the 183 yard 16th hole of Medinah's No. 1 course. They squared his match with Jimmy Love in the C. D. G. A. junior open final.

Women's Program Benefits Hospitalized Veterans

Twenty-eight separate golf outings will benefit approximately 500 veterans in the program set up for service men by the Chicago Women's District Golf association, which will open its annual championship event at Northmoor on July 16. . . . The C. W. D. G. A. and its member clubs deserve a bow for this plan to entertain wounded men from Gardiner, Vaughan, Hines, and Great Lakes hospitals. . . . Matt Jans, Rolling Green's popular pro, came up with an unusual round the other day, matching his club's par hole for hole in shooting a 72. . . . He one-putted the 3d, 11th, and 16th.

LT. ED SAWYER JR., 1942 Chicago district junior closed champion, was around visiting old friends at Medinah last weeks during the C. D. G. A. Junior Open tourney. . . . Ed was a German prisoner of war for 11 months after being shot down. . . . He is just getting around to playing golf again, having three consecutive rounds of 89, 83 and 81 at Park Ridge. . . . S. M. Hill, 1210 Third st., South, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., queries The Locker Room on whether there are any senior golfers who can match his grandfather. . . . The Hill grandpop is 88, and plays several nine hole rounds a week, his most recent best being a 47. . . . The 12th hole at Glenbard, 125 yards long is a favorite with Jim Reedy, 405 S. Kenilworth, Oak Park, and Mike Z. Kline, 126 S. Central ave., Chicago, both of whom recently scored holes in one on same. . . . Eagles to Harry Rosenberg, Oak Park Country club's locker room major-domo these 30 years. . . . Oak Park members honored Harry with a special tribute yesterday.

ROUND-OF-THE-WEEK

Jimmy Love's 36, even par, on the last nine of Medinah's No. 1 course. It enabled him to win the C. D. G. A. junior open championship, 1 up.

Chick Harbert, the long hitting pro from Battle Creek, recently wrote Tom McMahon, past president of the C. D. G. A., from Mansfield, England. . . . Chick is now traveling with a sports exhibition unit which includes Capt. Horton Smith; Boxer Billy Conn, Tennis players Charley Hare and Mary Hardwick Hare, and Table Tennis Star Sol Schiff. . . . They have been covering all of the army hospitals in England, will go on to the air corps installations, and then to France, Germany and Belgium before returning home. . . . Harbert and Smith recently played 21 exhibitions in 21 days. . . . The 18th annual Knights of Columbus all-state golf meet is set for July 19 at Elmhurst, home club of Fred B. Snite, donor of the principal trophy. . . . Tom Griffin, Ridgemoor's president, is general chairman. . . . One of the most popular special contests will be the annual feud between police and fire department golfers for the Judge John O'Connell trophy.

All-America Tourney to Have Ladies' Day

George S. May of Tam o' Shanter is always coming up with new golf gallery angles. . . . His latest will take effect in the forthcoming All-America tournaments, when he has declared a special ladies' day on July 27. . . . Admission for the gentler sex that day will be the payment of the 20 cent federal amusement tax. . . . Art Kilponen of Waukegan, scored the first ace of the year in Lake county when he holed out his tee shot at Sunset Valley's 147 yard sixth. . . . Add foursome attacks on a single hole: Roy Shup, Bill Clohesy, and Gus Souhrada had birds on the 510 yard eighth at Acacia, and their partner, Ed Kantor, delivered a par. . . . The Holy Name society of St. Thomas Aquinas church will hold its annual golf tourney today at Itasca. . . . P. F. Koch captured the Fourth of July flag tournament at Butterfield, carrying the banner to the 19th cup. . . . Ray [Sparky] Adams was low in class A with 80-11-69.

After the entries close, a post card will be mailed to each contestant furnishing a racing number. The card also admits the competitor to the pool without charge.

Expect Team Entries This Week

The majority of the team entries will be filed this week since coaches customarily take as much time as possible to sift their lists. Fifteen teams scored in the boys' and girls' classes in last year's championship meet. Points in the finals are scored for first, second, and third places in each of the 10 races and these are scored 5, 3, and 1 point, respectively. There are two team trophies, one for the winning boys' team and the other for the girls.

Information blanks have been distributed to the parks of the Chicago park district, the board of education playgrounds, and the municipal playgrounds and natatoriums. In this last category, Beilfuss natatorium always has sent a large number of contestants to The Tribune swimming tests. Madison, Wis., Kenosha, Wis., St. Louis, and Milwaukee are included in the group of teams entered from outside Chicago's metropolitan district.

All to Get Examinations

The contestants will report at 1 o'clock at the qualifying centers and will be assigned immediately to heats by the clerks in charge. The first race is expected to start a half hour later. Capt. Roy E. Davis, chairman of the registration committee of the Central A. A. U. is chief of the starters. He will be assisted by Edwin Parkes. All contestants will be examined by the physicians who assist the annual promotion of the Golden Gloves boxing tournaments. Dr. William Rothman is chief physician.

Boys and girls who finish their 100 yard races will receive souvenir buttons emblematic of the ability to negotiate this distance. All winners of qualifying events will be given badges and those who qualify for the championships July 29 will receive gold medals. Gold, silver, and bronze medals are the awards for the first three places in each championship race.

COOPER LEAVES FOR ST. LOUIS TO SEEK ARM CURE

Boston, Mass., July 7 (AP)—Pitcher Mort Cooper, who was credited with the Boston Braves' 7 to 6 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates today after relieving Johnny Hutchings in the eighth, left tonight for St. Louis to have Dr. Robert Hyland examine his pitching arm.

Since Mort's arm has been troubling him, the Braves have been using him only in relief roles.

Pullman Ban Is No Hardship to Major Leagues

New York, July 7 (AP)—New ODT regulations denying the use of sleeping car space to civilians travelling 450 miles or less will work little hardship on athletic teams, sports leaders told the Associated Press today.

Harold Parrott, road secretary of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said most major league teams had been riding day coaches on the shorter jumps for more than a year.

Roy Mack, vice president of the Philadelphia Athletics, declared his team had refrained from buying Pullman space within the new ODT boundaries this season and that on the longer trips he splits the squad if necessary.

College football teams, especially those having naval trainees on their rosters, may be the hardest hit. The trainees are allowed from their campuses for only 48 hours at a time and usually spend Friday night traveling to the site of Saturday's games.

The Association of American railroads in Washington today, however, predicted the Pullman shortage might be over in from three to five months.

Pro football, with games scheduled only for Sundays, likely will have little trouble with the new bans.

Parrott pointed out that the Dodgers completed their most recent western tour by traveling from Cincinnati to Brooklyn, some 600 miles, in day coaches.

Ohio Girl Sets 2½ Mile Swim Record at 1:6.41

Clementon, N. J., July 7 (AP)—Betty Lachok of Akron, O., set a new record of 1:6.41 in winning the national junior A. A. U. women's two and a half mile swimming meet today at Clementon lake.

COL. WHITNEY'S BATTLE HYMN WINS AT ASCOT

48,000 See American Horse Triumph

ASCOT, England, July 7 (AP)—Battle Hymn, 3 year old owned by New York's Col. J. H. Whitney, and Lord Rosebery's Ocean Swell, won the two features of the Royal Ascot race program today.

The event, England's Easter feature in pre-war days, was run off on its home course for the first time since 1939 and was attended by a war time crowd whose lone top hat was worn by an American soldier.

He was Tech. Sgt. J. D. Harrison of Clara, Miss., who was garbed otherwise in khaki and who was smoking a Churchill sized cigar. With him were Sgt. Morris Gilmore of Mauckport, Ind., and Staff Sgt. Gordon Kirkham of Mullusk, Va.

It's a Military Secret

Where they got the top hat, they said, was a military secret. Harrison added, quickly "I just hope my dad doesn't hear that I was at a horse race."

Battle Hymn, paying 51 to 1, triumphed by three lengths in the Royal Hunt cup over M. H. Benson's Sir Edward. The Solicitor, wearing Col. J. W. Boyle's colors but recently sold to a Brazilian interest, was third.

Ocean Swell, the 6 to 1 second choice, spurted in the final 300 yards to take the gold cup, beating the Aga Khan's Tehran.

King George was there in an admiralty uniform. He was accompanied by Princess Elizabeth, wearing a blue-gray dress and flowered hat in place of her usual ATS uniform.

Race Attracts 48,000

An estimated 48,000 spectators were there, 28,000 cash customers and 20,000 who got in for nothing by standing in the infield.

"Can't they see as well as the people over here who pay $6?" an American asked.

"Of course," replied a ruddy faced Briton, "but can't you see they are on the wrong side of the track? You really should see the race in peace time when it is a fashion parade, not an outing for war workers."

Start P. G. A. Medal Round Tomorrow

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Golf's toughest man-to-man show, the 27th annual tournament of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, will get down to business tomorrow morning on the difficult Moraine Country club course in Dayton, O., which will be entertaining that city's first major event since 1931 when Ed Dudley, present national P. G. A. president, captured the Western Open at Miami Valley.

Fred J. Corcoran, the hustling manager of the association's tournament bureau, and Dayton officials have brought off a remarkable job in assembling the largest field in the big show's career. A company of 155 players will gather at Moraine's first tee tomorrow morning for the first 18 holes of the 36 hole qualifying round, which will be completed with another 18 on Tuesday. Out of that medal play wrangle, in itself quite a dispute, will come the 31 low scorers who will join with Pvt. Bob Hamilton of the army, the defending champion, in the match play struggle beginning Wednesday.

Hamilton Back This Year

Pvt. Hamilton, who engineered one of the big upsets of 1944 by defeating Byron Nelson of Toledo, 1 up, in the finals of the meet held in Spokane, will be on hand to defend his championship. Hamilton, former Evansville, Ind., pro, was exempt from the various sectional qualifying rounds held thruout the country early last month.

Sixteen match play arguments will be waged Wednesday, eight on Thursday, the quarter-finals on Friday, the semi-finals on Saturday, and the championship duel on Sunday.

Nelson, the game's acknowledged No. 1 star, has won the title only once altho he has the remarkable record of having been in four of the last five title bouts, finishing as runner-up in 1939, 1941, and last year.

Hagen's Record Intact

The P. G. A. record book is one loaded with myriad thrills. In his heyday Walter Hagen, since retired from competitive golf, established a mark which since hasn't been touched, that of winning five championships, four of them in a row, before Leo Diegel broke that string with a double victory in 1928 and 1929.

ARCARO RIDES FOUR WINNERS AT AQUEDUCT

New York, July 7 (AP)—Ace Card, fleet filly owned by Mrs. W. M. Jeffords, and Jockey Eddie Arcaro shared the limelight at Aqueduct today.

The daughter of Case Ace won the $10,000 added Gazelle stakes by six lengths after traveling the mile and a sixteenth in 1:45 3-5. The winner paid $3.90.

Arcaro, up on Ace Card, had only four mounts and won with all, closing the program by bringing in And Upward eight lengths in front of Oatmeal. And Upward was worth $8.30 at the $2 window. Arcaro scored on Greek Warrior [$4.70] in the second, and Dustman [$9.50] in the fourth for his other two victories.

$5,000 HANDICAP AT SUFFOLK WON BY WEST FLEET

Boston, Mass., July 7 (AP)—H. Theodore Darling's West Fleet, ridden by George Seabo, today won the $5,000 added Joseph A. Tomasello handicap of six furlongs at Suffolk Downs today before 22,529.

A length and a half behind was E. C. Eastwood's Challamore, two lengths in front of E. J. Daily's Johnny Jr. Windmill was fourth.

ORGANIZE NINE STATE GROUP TO PROMOTE MVA

Omaha, Neb., July 7 (AP)—Organization of a nine state Missouri Valley regional committee to promote establishment of a Missouri Valley authority was completed today with the election of officers. Former Montana Supreme Court Justice Leif Erickson of Helena, Mont., was named president.

Raymond R. Trucker, professor of mechanical engineering at Washington university, St. Louis, and former St. Louis smoke commissioner, was named vice president. John E. Wetzig, business manager of local 124 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical workers [AFL], Kansas City, was elected treasurer.

The delegates were told by S. R. Finley of the Chattanooga [Tenn.] electric power board that it will be more difficult to create an MVA than it was to establish TVA because "the folks and interests opposed to regional development by the federal government are much smarter than they were when TVA was established and have developed much better techniques in their opposition."

TRANSIT SYSTEM OF SCRANTON, PA., IS FREED BY ODT

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—The office of defense transportation today announced it is relinquishing control of the Scranton [Pa.] Transit company system at one minute after midnight tonight.

Government seizure of the system was ordered by President Truman on June 16 following a 26 day strike which halted all bus and street car operations.

The 400 striking employes, members of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, AFL, voted to return to work under ODT operation. The union and the company subsequently agreed on a new contract.

RECORDS MADE IN MORGENTHAU TREASURY STAY

Federal Debt Rises Above 260 Billion

BY THOMAS FURLONG

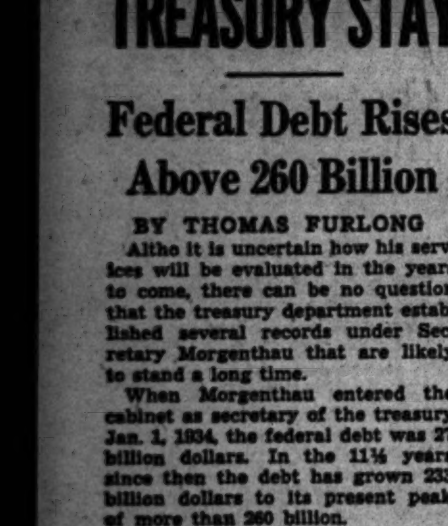
Altho it is uncertain how his services will be evaluated in the years to come, there can be no question that the treasury department established several records under Secretary Morgenthau that are likely to stand a long time.

When Morgenthau entered the cabinet as secretary of the treasury Jan. 1, 1934, the federal debt was 27 billion dollars. In the 11½ years since then the debt has grown 233 billion dollars to its present peak of more than 260 billion.

Morgenthau directed the collection and distribution of more money than any other man in history.

Never Had Balanced Budget

Not only has he served longer in his position than most men who occupied the post, but he has the singular record of never having achieved a balanced budget. The nearest approach to a balance during his period in office was the fiscal year 1938 when federal receipts came within 1 billion 338 million dollars of meeting expenditures.



A man of limited financial experience before his appointment, Morgenthau professed orthodox views on matters of government finance. From time to time he betrayed concern over the state of federal finances and urged measures directed at a balanced budget. On at least one occasion these opinions were publicly proclaimed with some vigor, but they had little influence on the course of government policy.

In the fiscal year just closed the treasury department disbursed more than 100 million dollars, and collected 46 billion dollars, both records. The public debt climbed nearly 57 billion dollars. The year closed with the largest cash balance in treasury history—nearly 25 billions.

Baited By Congressmen

Altho Morgenthau's party was in decisive control of congress thruout his period in office, the secretary's relations with the legislative branch were not happy. Congressmen got into the habit of baiting him when he appeared before committees. Frequently he was in the position of pleading for "must" legislation concerning the merits of which he may have been dubious.

But there was no question that he liked his job. His retirement was often reported, but he held on until the death of President Roosevelt. In their pre-Washington days President Roosevelt and Morgenthau were neighbors, a circumstance which may be considered of substantial historical significance.

B-29 PRODUCTION 4 PCT. AHEAD OF QUOTA IN JUNE

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—Production of B-29 Super Fortresses ran 4 per cent ahead of schedule in June, the WPB reported today, but total aircraft output at 5,794 planes fell short of the objective by 228 planes. For the last three months the schedule had been met.

WPB Chairman Krug termed the over-all June showing a "disappointment," but said B-29 production was on schedule in all plants and that two "exceeded their quotas to such an extent" as to account for the 4 per cent increase over the number of super-bombers scheduled.

Chief production losses occurred in the bomber and transport categories, Krug said. In the bomber group, one plant producing patrol bombers was "far short of schedule, accounting to a large degree for the over-all deficit in the class."

Bakery Drivers Receive $2.50 Weekly Wage Hike

A war labor board award of $2.50 a week in increased wages to the bakery drivers, local 74 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, was announced to the membership last night by the president, William A. Lee. The increase completed the grant under the Little Steel formula and lifted wages of the 1,500 drivers to $57.50 a week plus 4 per cent of their weekly business over $400 and 7 per cent over $500.

Industry Offers Broad Plan to Reduce Burden of Taxes

A reconversion tax program calling for reduction of income taxes on corporations and individuals, repeal of "specialty" taxes, retention of the excess profits levy until the end of the year in which the Japanese surrender, and other forms of tax relief were proposed yesterday by the National Association of Manufacturers.

For corporations the N. A. M. recommended a normal income tax rate of 20 per cent instead of the present 24, and a surtax rate of 12 per cent in place of the current 16. Both would become effective Jan. 1, 1946. For individuals the cut would be a flat 10 per cent, applicable to 1946 income.

Would End Stock Tax

The specialty levies which the N. A. M. wishes to shelve include the capital stock tax, the declared value excess profits tax, the penalty tax on consolidated returns, and the 15 per cent tax on dividends received by corporations. The other measures provide for raising the excess profits tax exemption from $10,000 to $25,000 and expediting payment of post-war credits and refunds. A bill incorporating these two measures was approved by the house and sent to the senate Friday.

The association estimated the proposed reductions at approximately 3 billion dollars and said tax relief may "well follow a reduction in war spending and the cutbacks in war contracts."

"Expenditures for the fiscal year just closed will amount to about 99 billion dollars," the association said. "For the fiscal year 1946, depending on the progress of the Japanese war, we may expect a 20 to 25 billion dollar cut."

Not All Factories Needed

The association said the one front war does not require all of the country's manufacturing facilities and that tax adjustments will induce business men to return to civilian production and enable individuals to invest risk capital in these enterprises.

"We know that a limited supply of goods combined with a vast accumulation of war savings could destroy the purchasing power of the dollar," the N. A. M. said. "Production is the solution. The risk capital that will make the jobs of the future must come from the taxpayers of the country.

"It is the sincere belief of American business men—big and little—that this proposed tax relief will do more to speed reconversion, stimulate investment and production, and create jobs than the government could ever achieve by the unwise spending of double or treble such an amount."

Testify A. & P. Cut Prices in Business War

Danville, Ill., July 7 [Special]—The anti-trust trial of the New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company will enter its 13th week Monday in federal District court when the government will present more witnesses with testimony seeking to prove a "price war charge."

The trial was livened last week by testimony of independent retailers from various parts of the country. L. C. Culwell, Dallas, Tex., volunteered the statement that moving an A. & P. store from next door "saved his life." On motion of defense counsel, this was stricken from the record. Culwell said he had studied A. & P. prices, and learned the A. & P. in his neighborhood sold many items at prices he paid at wholesale, or lower.

Net Profit Falls

Culwell told the court the reduction in A. & P. prices came when a warehouse store was opened in 1940. He read from his records that his net profit dropped from $4,000 in 1937 to $1,174 in 1941.

Defense established in cross-examination that another chain's super-market had been in the same neighborhood in those years. Culwell said he always bought thru wholesalers, not direct from manufacturers as a chain does, and he had no way of knowing what markup the wholesaler took.

Robert C. Bundy of Birmingham, Ala., owner of Bob's Trading Post, a department store and grocery market, testified his grocery department had not shown a profit since 1938. He said he opened his store May 16, 1938, and shortly afterward O. L. Black of A. & P. sought to purchase his store. He said he refused to sell and A. & P. opened a super-market in the same neighborhood early in 1939. He reported A. & P. prices equal in many cases to his cost. Prices in an A. & P. store in another district were a fraction higher, he said.

Met Competitors' Prices

A May 27, 1938, issue of a newspaper advertisment, put in evidence by the defense, was identified as a Trading Post ad authorized by Bundy. It said grocery items would be sold as low or lower than any competitor and if any customer found the same item at a lower price in another store, the difference would be refunded. Bundy said he never had had to make a refund because he had always met competitors' prices.

INDUSTRIES EXPECT TO SPEND 4½ BILLION ON PLANT TRANSITION

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—The department of commerce today reported American manufacturers expect to spend record sums during the next 12 months to gear their plants for high production of civilian goods. Nearly 7,000 representative companies replied to a questionnaire distributed by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

The bureau said planned expenditures for plant, equipment, and alterations will total about 4 billion 500 million dollars, nearly three times the pre-war 1937 to mid 1940 average and more than half that spent in 1929. More than 50 per cent would be for machinery and equipment.

"Of particular significance are the estimated expenditures reported by nonwar groups—food and kindred products, textile mill products, paper and printing, stone, clay, and glass products, lumber and timber products," it said.

CUSHION FOR PROFIT DROP

With the government claiming a major share of present earnings of many industries, any decrease in corporate incomes from the war time peaks will be partly at the expense of the treasury, and in many instances largely so. Thus the high tax rates which have restricted profits during the war will provide a sort of cushion against a possible drop in business and earnings as war contracts are canceled.

This shock absorber in some cases will have a stabilizing effect on profits. It is of especial importance in the case of companies which now have large excess profits. The government takes 95 per cent of such earnings, subject to a post-war refund of 10 per cent of the tax and to the limitation that combined federal taxes on income shall not exceed 80 per cent.

As a hypothetical example, a corporation with 700,000 shares of stock outstanding will earn 4 million dollars from operations this year before income tax deductions. Its excess profits tax credit is $1,500,000, plus the specific exemption of $10,000. This leaves $2,490,000 subject to the 95 per cent levy.

After deducting the post-war refund, the net excess profits tax is $2,128,950. Next to consider is the 40 per cent combined normal tax and surtax. This applies to the earnings after deducting the credit for income subject to the excess profits tax, or to $1,510,000, and the amount of the tax is $604,000. The total taxes are $2,732,950, leaving a profit of $1,267,050, or $1.81 a share.

Assume that after V-J day the company's sales fall sufficiently to cause a decrease of one-fourth in taxable earnings. The earnings will amount to 3 million, on which the excess profits tax will be $1,273,950 after allowance for the refund. The combined tax on income will be $1,877,950, and the net profit $1,122,050, equal to $1.60 a share.

Thus the drop of 1 million in earnings before taxes would be reflected in a decrease of only $145,000, or 21 cents a share, in the net profit.

It is widely expected that congress will give consideration to the reduction or repeal of the excess profits tax soon after the war ends. Whether or not the law is changed in this manner, the fact that the government has taken most of the earnings above prescribed limits will in many cases minimize the effect of a decrease in earnings if it occurs. Nevertheless, it would be a mistake to count heavily on this stabilizing factor in event of severe recessions.

MEAT ANIMAL SUPPLIES DROP TO WAR'S LOW

Steer Prices Strong; Hogs at Ceilings

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON

Meat production in the Chicago area last week slumped to the lowest tonnage of the war. The decline was caused by the Wednesday holiday and abnormally low volume of pork and lamb. Tonnage was substantially below a year ago and the total was one of the smallest on record for a July week.

The Chicago stock yards received a combined total of only 112,957 cattle, calves, hogs, sheep, and lambs, the smallest number of meat animals since December, 1938. The total was 21 per cent below the 143,612 received in the preceding week and 29 per cent below the 160,142 received a year ago. Two years ago 175,915 meat animals arrived.

Other Markets Suffer

All other leading packing centers felt the shortage. The 20 biggest stock yards handled 634,000 head in the week, a reduction of 231,000 for the week and 314,000 fewer than a year ago. Since Jan. 1 these markets have received 24,413,000 animals, compared with 34,479,000 a year earlier, off more than 10 million. Hogs alone dropped from 19,708,000 to 8,848,000 this year.

Last week's Chicago hog run fell to 46,400, second smallest since September, 1939, and one of the lowest on record for July. Offerings sold mostly at office of price administration ceiling levels in the tightest trade of the war. Almost everything brought the limit, regardless of quality, sorting, or weights. Barrows and gilts brought $14.75 and sows and stags, $14.

Steer Average Higher

The steer average price rose 15 cents, to $16.50, only 10 cents below the highest since October, 1919. It was a new record for a July week. Prime long-fed steers have been eligible to the $18 OPA ceiling on every one of the last nine days. Final steer sales were strong to 25 cents higher compared with a week ago. Other classes of cattle were steady to 25 cents higher, with the exception of bulls which slumped 25 to 75 cents.

Lambs held firm, with the $15.65 average equal to the highest since week ended May 5 and highest for a July week since 1928.

UTILITY PROBE WELCOME, SAYS POWER OFFICIAL

Omaha, Neb., July 7 (AP)—Chairman T. H. Maenner of Nebraska Power company said today he will welcome a congressional investigation of the financial transactions involved in the sale of the utility.

"We have submitted all the facts before an Omaha investigating committee and the Nebraska state legislature, but we are willing to submit to an investigation by congress if they so wish," he said.

Rep. Boren [D., Okla.] told the house yesterday the sale of Nebraska Power represented an operation of a "trick corporation plan" which would swindle taxpayers, and with Representatives Murphy [D., Pa.] and Reece [R., Tenn.] was appointed to make investigations with a view to recommendations for tightening up the holding company act of 1935.

LONG HOLIDAY, STRIKES CLOSE 50 COAL MINES

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 7 (AP)—A prolonged July 4 holiday, "abnormal" absenteeism and strikes closed 50 Pennsylvania soft coal mines today, costing an estimated 63,000 tons of coal, the solid fuels administration reported. In the Pittsburgh-Uniontown area, 27 mines remained idle as 4,448 mines continued the holiday. Three other mines were down because of walkouts. Twenty mines, employing about 4,000 men and producing 20,000 tons daily, were closed in the Altoona area.

Rye Declines More Despite Late Buying

Rye futures prices declined approximately 3 cents a bushel in early trading yerterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, making a total of 8 cents in two days. Short covering and evening up started a rally which lifted prices from the bottom to close at net losses of 1⅛ to 2¼.

July rye which sold at $1.59¾ on June 19 was down to $1.45¼ at one time and closed at $1.45⅞. Trading in this contract is limited on exchange order to liquidation of outstanding contracts. The early decline resulted from further selling by scattered longs and additional discounting of the proposed congressional investigation of the Chicago rye market.

Wheat, Corn Close Mixed

The early break in rye caused a decline in other grains, but a rally developed late. Wheat closed unchanged to ⅜ higher, corn unchanged to ⅛ lower, oats ¼ to ⅜ higher and barley ⅝ lower to ⅜ higher.

Liquidation in July rye is progressing rapidly. Uncompleted contracts on the Chicago Board of Trade were reduced 919,000 bushels Friday and only 7,895,000 bushels remain to be liquidated, approximately 10 million less than a month ago.

Wheat strengthened on buying by mills and a department of agriculture report that the 1945 crop of about 1 billion 100 million bushels would be required to meet domestic and export needs. The department estimated that the carryover would not differ materially from the 316 million bushels on hand a year ago. It had estimated earlier that the carryover would be 350 million bushels or more. The change resulted from unexpectedly large exports.

Rains Delay Wheat Harvest

Heavy rains in parts of Oklahoma and Kansas will delay harvesting of winter wheat further and brokers expect receipts to be small for some days. Congestion has developed at some southwestern markets where shortage of man power is delaying unloading of wheat shipments.

A shortage in manufactured feed was forecast unless country offerings of corn increase materially. Only 6,000 bushels were bought by Chicago handlers.

FIRESTONE UNION HEAD HINTS WLB DEFY IN STRIKE

Akron, O., July 7 (AP)—The seven day strike of the 16,500 CIO United Rubber workers at Firestone Tire and Rubber company today lay in the government's lap while the five navy seized Goodyear plants approached normal tire building operations.

I. H. [Ike] Watson, Firestone union local president, indicated his unionists would reject a war labor board order to appear in Washington, D. C., at a Washington show cause hearing Tuesday morning. Watson also said he would not urge the workers to return to their posts "under present conditions." For the first time since the strike began, Firestone pickets steered away the 3,800 office workers.

Tire building and other war goods production lines at Goodyear slowly approached normal operations, reported Capt. H. K. Clark, in charge of the government operated plants for the navy. "It may be possible to ship 9,800 tires, some of them for aircraft, by Sunday as production is increased and shipping facilities are cleared," he said.

RUBBER STRIKES MAY HALT JAPAN ATTACK: ARNOLD

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—Gen. Arnold army air forces chief, said today that unless full production is resumed immediately in strike bound rubber plants fighters and bombers may have to be withdrawn from the attack on Japan.

"Some aircraft in this country are grounded for lack of tires," Arnold said, and air force inventories are now at a "minimum level." Shipment of tires to the fighting fronts is "seriously in danger," he said.

The planes most seriously threatened by the work stoppages are the B-29 Super Fortresses, which have been spearheading the aerial war on Japan, and the P-47N Thunderbolt, long range fighter plane, he said.

New York, July 7 (AP)—The stock market ended a generally declining week yesterday with a showing of irregularity.

Low priced power and light issues and some industrials gave the market a firm tone Monday. Purchasing was based on post-war prospects and the belief the decline of the preceding week had improved the list's technical position.

Volume Low Tuesday

On Tuesday the approaching Independence day recess caused the trimming of accounts and volume fell to the lowest total for a full session since April 10.

The federal reserve board boosted margin requirements to 75 per cent over the holiday and, tho expected, this touched off substantial liquidation Thursday on the belief it was only a first step by Washington to reduce speculation. Selling was heavy in the last half hour and losses were large.

Stock exchanges will not operate on Saturdays during the summer thru Sept. 1.

American Telephone Rises

Sales remained under the million share mark yesterday. A prominent advancer was American Telephone which touched a high mark since 1937 at 177¾.

The Associated Press 60 stock average finished the week at 65.9 with a net loss of 0.4. Bonds were spotty during the week and commodities slipped.

BELL AIRCRAFT LEASES PLANE ALTERING UNIT

Buffalo, N. Y., July 7 (AP)—The modification center at Bell Aircraft corporation, operated under army air forces contract since October, 1942, has been taken over by Bell under a one year lease, the company announced today.

The center will be incorporated into the company's manufacturing division, taking on certain manufacturing operations while retaining its main function of equipping aircraft for special purposes.

Chicago Bank Clearings Decrease to 451 Million

Chicago bank clearings last week were $451,800,000, compared with $545,200,000 in the preceding week and 459 millions a year ago, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The figures:

	Clearings	Balances
Monday	$87,200,000	$6,300,000
Tuesday	99,300,000	9,600,000
Wednesday	Independence Day
Thursday	94,200,000	8,700,000
Friday	89,900,000	4,800,000

DIAMOND MATCH CONTROLS TRADE, HOUSE UNIT TOLD

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP)—A house small business committee investigators' report today said the Diamond Match company "appears to pretty well control" the world market thru a cartel agreement with the Swedish Match company. Chairman Patman [D., Tex.] ordered the investigation.

The report said the American and Swedish companies "apparently control the British Match corporation, the Japanese match industry, and the Russian match production."

In carrying out the cartel agreement, it charged, Diamond agreed to cease production in its plant at Savannah, Ga., to restrict production at Barberton, O., and to limit to not more than 20 per cent of capacity the plants at Chico, Cal., Oswego, N. Y., Oshkosh, Wis., and Springfield, Mass.

ALLEGE ILLEGAL PRICES PAID FOR CANADIAN FISH

Attributed to OPA Control Failure

Fresh water fish imported from Canada are being resold in the United States at prices substantially higher than those permitted by office of price administration regulations and Chicagoans are being forced to pay exorbitant prices, an industry spokesman said yesterday. They attributed the advance to failure of OPA controls.

Large domestic fish distributors have discontinued handling Canadian fish because they cannot legally resell them at a profit, but illegal operators have continued to market them. Fish imports from Canada normally are approximately 30 million pounds a year, which is roughly equivalent to the fish production of the Great Lakes, an executive of a fishery said.

Two Factors Boost Prices

Two factors in fresh fish pricing have helped to cause high prices and illicit dealings in Canadian fish and to discourage legitimate fish distributors from dealing in Canadian fish, the spokesman said.

These factors are the imposition by OPA of price ceilings on fresh water fish caught in the lakes of western Canadian provinces and sold in the United States and the lack of ceiling prices on fish caught domestically, they said.

Domestic fish are caught principally in the Great Lakes and such "international waters" as Lake of the Woods, which lies both in Canada and the United States.

OPA officials in Chicago admitted that violations of price ceilings on imported fish have been widespread and are continuing. The seriousness of the situation is shown by the fact that the agency is considering the removal of price ceilings on Canadian fish, said W. D. Swigert, head of the OPA meat and fish price division, Chicago metropolitan office.

Ceiling May Be Necessary

"Whether OPA will remove the ceilings on Canadian fish is problematical," Swigert said, "but if prices on domestic fish keep rising, OPA may be forced to place ceilings on Great Lakes fish. It is a job OPA has preferred not to do because its officials believe domestic producers and distributors could regulate prices themselves."

Canadian authorities have placed ceilings on fish sold in Canada, but have made no attempt to control prices of fish sold for export. American importers have paid more for Canadian fish than they could legally sell them for in the United States.

Because similar fish caught in this country are not subject to price regulation and because both domestic and Canadian fish are handled by the same dealers, it has been "virtually impossible" to determine violators, Swigert said.

"Prices on domestic fish have increased substantially since 1942," he said, "and this is particularly true of trout and white fish, on which retail prices have been reported as high as $1 to $1.25 a pound."

CONGRESS TOLD WHAT TO READ TO BE WELL-RED

Library's 'Best Books' List Heavily Subversive

BY WILLARD EDWARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 7—The Library of Congress today advised the nation's lawmakers to curl up with a good book this summer—preferably a work with a sound, communistic tinge.

Luther H. Evans

Inaugurating an "experimental program," the library issued its first list of "latest and best books" for the recommended reading of senators and representatives.

Thirty-eight books, in the compilation of which 55 authors took part, were listed as "likely to be of interest in the consideration of issues pending in congress."

17 Linked with Reds

Seventeen of these authors, nearly a third, have extensive affiliations with pro-communist organizations, according to the records of the house committee on un-American activities.

Skimming over the output of these writers, the reader finds communism suggested as a substitute for Christianity ["Faith, Reason, and Civilization," by Harold J. Laski]; the assertion of the Negroes' "theoretical right to revolution" ["What the Negro Wants"—a compendium edited by Rayford W. Logan]; an assault upon the American press and an assertion that anti-communists want to make the world "safe for fascism" ["On a Note of Triumph," by Norman Corwin].

Announcement of the program was submitted in a memorandum to all members of congress from Luther H. Evans, confirmed by the senate last week as librarian of congress, succeeding Archibald MacLeish.

Invited to Browse

The legislators were invited to drop into three book rooms in their office buildings to browse over the collection or copies will be sent to them on request.

Members of the house, going home soon for a two month recess, may take copies with them for perusal. While a number of prominent writers without a communistic bias are also represented on the list, it was noted that any congressman selecting titles at random could not easily avoid picking at least one book lauding communism and deprecating the American system.

In his book, "Faith, Reason, and Civilization," Viking Press, 1944, Laski, an English professor and noted pro-Communist, repeatedly sounds the theme that Christianity has failed and communism must replace it as the faith of mankind.

"The Russian Idea"

"Unless we claim that the churches will renew their hold on men's allegiance," he writes, "and there is no serious evidence for the validity of such a claim, the Russian idea seems likely to be the pivotal urge from which all values will find the means of renewal. . . .

"The soviet union has found a new way of life, faith in which might well play the part supernatural creeds had played elsewhere. . . .

"In every nation, those who accept the noble formula of Aristotle that we should 'strain every nerve to live in accordance with what is best in us,' somehow find in the Russian achievement some hint of that secret which enabled Christianity 2,000 years ago to compensate for the breakdown of a world which lost its nerve.

"It is, I suggest, impossible to doubt that the spectacle of Russian heroism in the two years of the struggle against Hitlerism has convinced the common man, all over the world, that there was a magic in the revolution of 1917 somehow adaptable to his own concerns."

Likened to Christianity

The growth of communism is compared by Laski frequently to the spread of Christianity after the death of Christ. There are also many slighting references to the United States. Examples:

"America ceased after the first World war to be the land of promise. The depression revealed America's foundations were no different in final character from those of the old world."

Another book recommended by the Library of Congress as among the "latest and best" is "What the Negro Wants," edited by Rayford W. Logan and containing articles by him and 13 others.

Of these 14 authors, 12 are cited in the records of the house committee on un-American activities no less than 216 times for procommunistic affiliations.

Claim Right to Revolt

They include such well known followers of the communist cause as Mary McLeod Bethune [40 citations]; Langston Hughes [70 citations]; A. Philip Randolph [29 citations]; Doxey A. Wilkerson [34 citations]; W. E. B. Du Bois [12 citations]; Sterling Brown [eight citations], and Frederick D. Patterson [nine citations].

"We [the Negroes] have, in truth, the same theoretical right to revolution that the Declaration of Independence asserts," writes Logan in his introduction. "In cold reality, 13 millions, largely unarmed, have no chance to win equality by force from an adamant, powerfully armed 120 millions. . . ."

The real threat of "an American communist revolution" would provide American "Fascists with the very pretext that they seek to establish their own totalitarian government," Logan continues, and adds in apparent discouragement that "the infinitesimally small number who looked to Japan as their savior must now realize that Japan is not going to invade the United States."

Radio Scripts Published

Norman Corwin, radio writer, is cited four times in committee on un-American activities records as speaker before and sponsor of pro-communist organizations. His 71 page book recommended for congressional reading is a digest of radio scripts broadcast by Columbia Broadcasting company. Typical excerpts:

"We've learned that a newspaper right at home can lie with a straight face seven days a week and be as filthy and fascist as a handout in Berlin.

"We've learned that those most concerned with saving the world from communism usually turn up making it safe for fascism."

Other works recommended for reading in connection with the consideration of pending congressional issues include:

"America's Far Eastern Policy," by T. A. Bisson [Macmillan company]. Bisson is cited five times for procommunistic connections in the records of the committee on un-American activities. He is listed as a member of the editorial board of Amerasia magazine, of which one of the editors, Philip J. Jaffe, recently was arrested with several others by the FBI and held on a charge of possessing and publishing confidential state department documents.

'Institute' Sponsors Book

Bisson's book was published under the sponsorship of the "international secretariat, institute of Pacific relations." Guiding spirit in this "institute" is Edward C. Carter, president of Russian War Relief Inc.

"The Best Is Yet," by Morris L. Ernst [Harper Brothers]. Ernst has five pro-communistic affiliations listed in the committee's records. He was chairman of the "nopartisan committee" for the reëlection of Rep. Marcantonio [A. L., N. Y.], known in congress as the "Daily Worker's congressman" because of the hero's role consistently given him in that official organ of the American Communist party.

'LEARNED' TO FLY BY READING; HE'S NOT HURT MUCH

Milwaukee, Wis., July 7 [Special]—A 16 year old model plane fan who had never been in the air surrendered to "an uncontrolable desire to fly" today and stole an airplane from Billy Mitchell field here for a dawn solo flight which ended with a plane smashing crash.

He is Hugh Miller, whose parents live near the airport and who has been working this summer on a farm near Muckwonago, in Waukesha county, 20 miles west of here. He climbed out of the wrecked plane with a cut over the right eye as his only injury.

Miller is being held by Milwaukee county juvenile authorities for action by the Juvenile court. He was arrested about an hour after the crash by Waukesha county deputy sheriffs who searched for the pilot after farmers reported the crash.

Plane Crashes in Swamp

The smashup took place in a swamp about seven miles south of Waukesha. Miller told deputies he mistook the swamp for solid ground, and civil aviation authorities who viewed the wreck said that except for this mistake he might have made a successful landing.

Miller's feat in flying the plane was regarded as "amazing" by flyers at the airport, who said the plane, a Stinson, is difficult to manage by persons not thoroly experienced with it. Hugh kept the plane in the air nearly three hours, at one time attaining an altitude of 5,000 feet.

"I didn't have any trouble flying it," Miller said. "I have built many model planes and read lots of books on flying. I had studied diagrams of the instrument board and understood the controls. It was just as easy as I was sure it would be. The only trouble was I didn't know how to land."

Miller said he headed for Waukesha county with the idea of landing near the farm where he was employed.

Plane Owned by Three

The plane, a three passenger model, was the property of Clarence Thiele of 4131 W. Martin dr., Milwaukee, an insurance man, and Dr. Oro McMurray and Paul Schrater of Greendale. Thiele had planned to fly it today in a routine civil air patrol trip to Washington Island at the tip of the Door county peninsula.

Miller went to the airport late yesterday afternoon and watched planes arriving and taking off. He saw Thiele fill his plane with gas and lock it in its hangar.

"I became convinced I could fly," he said. "I knew this plane was full of gas and ready for a trip, so I decided to take it."

He waited until Thiele left the airport, then smashed the lock on the hangar door with a hammer. He entered and spent the night sitting in the plane's cockpit. At dawn he opened the hangar doors, pushed the plane to a runway, spun the propeller, and took off.

Thiele said the plane was wrecked beyond repair. He estimated the loss at $3,000.

WARM SPRINGS TREATS 40 NAVY POLIO PATIENTS

Warm Springs, Ga., July 7 [Special]—Forty polio stricken navy and marine personnel are being treated at the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, Lt. William L. Hoon, Pittsburgh, medical officer in charge, announced today.

The navy has other hospitals for the treatment of polio victims, but this is the only one in which the navy works with the civilian authority. Foundation physicians and physiotherapists tend the navy personnel. Among the patients is Morris William Gooch, Chicago, radio technician 1st class.

Officially the navy unit was established here April 1, but navy personnel had been sent here for eight months previous to that date. An addition costing $343,159 is being constructed to care for additional service men and civilians.

PROTESTS MAY SPEED CALL FOR ARGENTINE VOTE

Predict Move to Rig Election

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, July 7—Increasing criticism of the Argentine government's "face both ways" attitude—professing devotion to democratic ideals while practicing totalitarian repressions—may force announcement of an election date sooner than was anticipated, reports from Buenos Aires indicate.

Argentine observers say that foreign and domestic protests are causing President Edelmiro Farrell and Vice President Juan Peron considerable uneasiness. These sources point out, however, that even the promise of an election will be valueless unless accompanied by immediate lifting of the state of siege and an iron-clad guarantee of freedom of suffrage that will eliminate the preponderance of hand-picked voters.

[Speaking at a dinner in Buenos Aires Friday night, President Farrell said that elections would be held about November.]

Fear Election Farce

Reports from the capital charge that something is cooking in the way of new electioneering dodges to insure handsome majorities for the "right thinking" candidates and declare that unless action is taken to prevent frauds the elections will be a gigantic farce.

These observers say that the existence of a state of siege prior to the election with a probable return to it after the polling, would sink the country deeper into a political morass since it would enable an Argentine government returned thru a fraudulent election to resent foreign criticism as a constitutionally elected regime.

Total Totalitarians

They add that "despite the spectacular cracking down on certain axis entities and fervent expressions of loyalty to the united nations, the Farrellites are dyed in the wool totalitarians."

A comic relief to the nation's serious status was furnished this week by publication of a letter directed to the warden of the Villadevoto jail by an inmate, Dr. Jose Maria Cullen some days after the government announced no prisoners remained there. The letter ironically complained that the jail was plastered with photos of Vice President Peron and demanded they be replaced by photos of "our excellent Gen. Farrell."

READY TO START $2,342,000 WAR HOMES PROJECT

Work is expected to be started within the next few days on a $2,342,000 war housing project at Pershing rd. and Wentworth av., the Chicago housing authority announced yesterday. It will consist of three story apartments and duplex row house units, the latter to be one room in depth and two rooms in width to permit maximum southern exposure. The project is known as Illinois 2-8 and is the seventh public war housing project to be built in Chicago. It is now open only to war workers with children, but after the war the dwellings will be available to low income families on the same basis as the other low rent projects of the housing authority.

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam

ADAMS [ADAMSKI]—Frank Adams. In loving memory of our dear husband and father who passed away one year ago today.
One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away.
WIFE VICTORIA, CHILDREN, IRENE SEDIVEY, ELEANOR, DOLORES and FRANK JR.

CARTWRIGHT—James O. Cartwright. In cherished memory of our beloved husband and father, who passed away two years ago today.
LOVING WIFE AND SON.

KUEHNE—Willard E. Kuehne. In loving memory of our dear son and brother, who was killed at Munda, New Georgia, two years ago today.
Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tried to break, but all in vain.
To have, to love, and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never,
The memory of all those happy days
When we were all together.
MOTHER, DAD, SIS, AND BROTHERS.

SATTERBLOM—Pvt. Arthur M. Satterblom, U. S. army. In loving memory of son and brother, husband, and father, killed in France one year ago today.
One year has passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away;
God took him home; it was His will;
But in our hearts he liveth still.
Our hearts still ache with loneliness.
THE FAMILY.

WAGEMANN—Sgt. Robert W. Wagemann, U. S. army air forces. In loving memory of our dear son and brother, who died July 10, 1943.
We often think of those happy days,
When we were all together.
Your loving smile and cheerful ways,
Will live in our hearts forever.
MOM, DAD, AND CHARLOTTE.

VETERANS—OUR PLAN

In an effort to conscientiously help disabled veterans obtain their full benefits under the G. I. Bill of Rights, we developed a plan whereby we were able to furnish complete loan, priority, and building service without requiring the veteran to make any deposit whatsoever, or in any way to obligate himself. Since first offering this plan 2 months ago, it has been our privilege and pleasure to start some 30 veterans on their way toward satisfied home ownership, and the experience of freedom in its highest sense. Our organization is now able to handle more applications. Please phone for an appointment.

Profitable Farm Production
540 ACRES 45 MILES S. W. OF CHGO.

Productivity is the most important factor influencing the value of farm land. Drainage, erosion, and fertility most greatly effect productivity. Sugar Grove Farm is well tiled and erosion is not present. Fertility on the 480 acres of the best corn belt soil has been maintained and constantly improved thru the liberal application of phosphate, lime, commercial fertilizer, and farm manure. This unusually productive property has changed hands but once in 100 years and, without frills, is laid out to obtain the maximum results in practical farming, live stock raising and feeding, truly a farmer's farm. Modern farm houses, complete and up to date equipment plus an attractive owner's home make this an ideal investment. Forty minutes by rail from Chicago's loop. Growing crops and personal property may be purchased separately. Columbus Healy, Sugar Grove Farm, Aurora, Ill., or Percy Council, 104 Fox-st., Aurora, Ill.

Scaioni presents on this page 20-inch wire fashion dolls designed by Eliane Bonabel and executed by Debull. They are dressed in the exact copies of models shown by the Parisian couturiers in their spring, 1945, collections. Jeanne Lanvin designed the ensemble at left. Marcel Rochas created the suit.

DOLLING UP YOUR PARIS FASHIONS!

By ANNE BRUYERE

Paris

IT WAS Henry IV. of France who first conceived the idea of dressing doll-mannequins in the loveliest of Parisian costumes and sending them as ambassadors to the fashion courts of other countries. Now Scaioni, the celebrated French fashion illustrator who brings to Tribune readers exclusively his portraits of the latest Parisian designs, presents the modern counterpart of Henry's dolls. They are 20-inch wire mannequins created by Eliane Bonabel. The heads were made by the sculptor Debull, and leading Parisian coiffures fashioned the hair-dos. Christian Berard designed the colorful settings in which the dolls are placed. Scaioni photographed the completed dolls and sets, and these black and white pictures were then hand tinted to bring out the colors of the costumes.

YOUTH ON WHAT CAMPUS?

By ELEANOR NANGLE

THERE are dozens of reasons for choosing any particular college where daughter will spend what should be some of the happiest and most constructive years of her life, but who's to say what method of selection is best? This is one of those far-reaching family decisions in which no one concerned—parent, daughter, or high school adviser—can afford to be arbitrary. Rather, all three should have a voice, and parent and high school adviser, in particular, should try to base their advice on knowledge of the girl's personality as well as her intellectual equipment—or lack of it.

Sometimes parents impose their will in strange ways. There are always those who grow misty eyed about the charms of their alma mater. Jane, they say, will love dear old This-or-That, with its traditions that were such fun when mama was a girl, and its pine walk where mama and papa courted. Old This-or-That, in Jane's eyes, is a perfect hole; she won't know any one there, she hates the isolated little town it's in, and she thinks her parents' sentiment is definitely corny. Besides which Jane wants to study journalism, or maybe drama, or costume designing, and old This-or-That simply cannot offer the courses she wants.

What will happen if Jane goes willy-nilly, to the college her parents select is any one's guess. She may go prepared to loathe the place and to learn to love it. Or, rebellious and supercilious, she may get off on the wrong foot with the other students and her teachers, grow more and more unhappy, and kick up one of several kinds of storms that will help turn her parents' hair gray. We've seen it happen.

There are parents who think only of Jane's intellectual welfare, such as the mother who was firm in her decision that her daughter—who was a straight A student in high school—should go to one of the large, well equipped eastern girls' colleges which can easily turn out brain trusters. Her high school adviser thought Jane something of a genius, that she should plunge into serious study at a college strong in the departments where Jane could shine academically. Both were admirably well meaning, but Jane was miserable.

Jane knew she had an aptitude for math, but she had developed a mortal terror of being a drip. Even in high school she had worked up a reputation for being perhaps a shade too brainy for the easy, amiable kind of fun the other kids had—and she was sick of seriousness. Jane wanted to go to a large western university, leaving her reputation behind her, where she could study the things she wanted, but where all the emphasis wouldn't be on study.

She wanted to go to a co-educational school, for one thing, where she had a chance for the kind of social life she'd missed and, she thought, would continue to miss if she went to a girls' school.

On the other hand, there are parents who think college is, or ought to be, one big, beautiful social whirl where Jane meets the "right" people, joins the "right" sorority, and obtains a flossy "finish" that assures her social success forever. This is all that matters to them. Maybe Jane has a different set of values. Or maybe—and this happens often—Jane will be so saturated with the social idea when she lands at a college that she'll be roundly snubbed by the stern young realists who are her fellow students.

There are literally thousands of factors that enter into the choice of a college. What the college offers academically is important—more for some girls, well equipped with brains, than to others. What it offers socially is more important to the casual, not too intellectual girl, than to the girl who is resilient, capable, and in earnest about studying.

Its location can be important. Some girls do very well on their own, far from home; others need to be sustained by the knowledge that mother and father and friends are not too far away.

There are girls who want to go to the college where their dearest friends are going—and maybe they should; maybe they're the kind who won't make new friends easily and who'd be miserable in a new world inhabited by total strangers. Money sometimes is important, too, especially if the school is swanky and there isn't quite enough in the family treasury to permit Jane to keep up with her sister students. Money is far less important at the democratic school, which is usually the large university or the small college where students are all from families of pretty much the same income level.

No college is a reform school. If parents can't handle Jane, the chances are that teachers won't be able to make a good citizen of her. But the choice of a college can affect Jane's manners for better or for worse.

There are colleges where the amenities are more or less ignored; there it is only what's in Jane's head that will count, not the way she balances a tea cup or dresses for dinner. At others, notably the southern schools, from the private ones to the universities, there is an emphasis on the proprieties of dress and behavior that might be salutary for the Jane who is more of a rough diamond than her parents would prefer.

The shy girl, undoubtedly, will be happier in a small and friendly college than in a vast university where she must carve out her own academic and social program with assistance that, however expert, must of necessity be somewhat impersonal. In the small college, where she can participate in everything, it's entirely possible, too, that latent qualities of leadership, have a better chance of development.

The girl's tastes and requirements in recreation are a factor, too. There are the city colleges, where a girl takes gym, and that's the end of that! This suits many girls perfectly. But for the girl who loves outdoor life, the country campus is probably better, and here the climate is an important factor. All other things being equal, she'll be happy at a college where she can indulge in her favorite sports during most of the school year.

There always arises, in every family, the question of whether Jane's college should be co-educational or otherwise. Here again, it depends on Jane's ability to adapt. If she's on the shy side, and ill at ease with boys, working beside them every day will be good for her. If she's perfectly at ease with them she won't think their absence at all important if she attends a girls' school. In these war years, as a matter of fact, the girls are flocking to girls' schools—where they are all in the same, manless boat, with no problems of competition!

Dishes All Done!

Like 2 out of 3 Chicago Women she used American Family Flakes

Cuts grease in a flash... yet helps hands stay soft and smooth!

"Hurrah! My hands feel so much smoother,

I'll tell you why—American Family Flakes are so much milder than strong granulated soaps," says Mrs. M. E. Underwood, 9623 South Beverly. You're exactly right, Mrs. Underwood! These famous flakes are milder—and that's why they are far kinder to hands.

"Presto! Greasy dishes come clean quick when you use American Family Flakes," says Mrs. E. A. Sjostedt, 1511 West Cornelia. Right! Scientific tests prove no soap cuts grease faster than American Family Flakes.

American Family Flakes make more suds faster than strong granulated soaps! These famous flakes are specially made for the hard water of this area. No wonder a new survey reveals they're preferred for dishwashing by twice as many women as any other package soap.

Don't Waste Soap! It's made of vital war materials. Make your American Family Flakes go as far as you can.

BALL OF FIRE— THE STORY OF MOVIEDOM'S WONDERFUL REDHEAD

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood

LUCILLE BALL is called our "Wonder Girl." Every one wonders what the turbulent redhead will do next. Lucille is as unpredictable as a Jap war dispatch. She has kept the second guessers working overtime ever since she arrived here.

She came to Hollywood to become "Queen of the B's." Once settled in the lower budget films, some players never succeed in climbing up to the A's. People wondered what Lucille would do if given a chance at a million-dollar budget.

"So did I," comments Lucille. "Don't think it wasn't discouraging."

Certain picture executives wondered, too, and decided to give her the opportunity. Lucille didn't leave any doubts. She stepped into full-fledged stardom in "DuBarry Was a Lady," at the start of her present Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract, and she's been emoting only in the upper brackets ever since.

Rating attention from reviewers in a picture with Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn isn't easy, but Lucille does that in "Without Love." She and Keenan Wynn made such a hit as a comedy romantic team that they quickly were teamed again in "Early to Wed," now before the cameras.

It was during a final rehearsal of a dance number—her first in several years—for "Early to Wed" that she broke a toe. Nevertheless, she worked thru the next four days filming the routine, with her foot tightly taped and causing her considerable pain. It was just another example of her spirit as a trouper, something she had displayed many times since a doctor told her in 1927 that she might never walk again, and surely would never dance.

"My car had skidded on an icy pavement in New York's Central park," Lucille explained. "I was thrown clear, but landed in a snowbank, and a policeman fished me out looking like a frozen barracuda—I was just as tall and even thinner in those days. Well, first I had pneumonia, then my legs began to ache and paralysis set in.

"I spent the next eight months in bed, and then three years in a wheelchair. Next, it was crutches and weighted shoes, and finally a cane. I was a Ball that couldn't roll, and believe me, I didn't like the inactivity. But it taught me how wonderful good health is."

Lucille as she looked several years ago in "Room Service."

It was five years after her accident that Lucille Ball went back to her job, as a model for Hattie Carnegie. And it was the same year that she first felt the call of Hollywood. She was picked as one of a group of models brought to southern California to appear in Eddie Cantor's "Roman Scandals." Lucille was the only one to reach stardom here.

Typical of Lucille is the fact that today she can remember the names of all those other girls.

"There was Theo Phane, whose ankles made shoes beautiful," she recalls. "Rosalie Fromson, cold cream beauty; Mary Lange, a cigarette model; Katherine Mauk, who was lovely even when she chewed gum, and Dolores Casey, Ruth Stovall, Helen Callahan, Vivian Keefer, Barbara Pepper, who has done very well in pictures, and Jane Vance. They were all famous models—wonderful girls."

Lucille has worked hard at her career in pictures ever since. Inside the studios, where she's a friend of every one from the stars to grips and electricians, she's known as the gal who will tackle any task. During her apprentice days, she once worked in five pictures at once. Today, she's grateful for those past experiences.

Married to Sgt. Desi Arnaz, she's an equally hard trouper as a wife.

"I believe you have to work hard to make a go of marriage," she says.

Hollywood has always found Lucille to be "hot copy." The wires hummed during her whirlwind romance with Desi, following their meeting in "Too Many Girls." Things didn't quiet down any when Desi went to New York for an appearance at the Roxy theater, and when Lucille was ordered by her studio to New York also, something was bound to happen.

It did! While Lucille was still surrounded by interviewers in a crowded hotel room, as she had been for most of her first day in New York, Desi called her to one side.

"We'll never get a minute together this way. Let's get married and tell them all to—vamoose!"

So the knot was tied that night in Greenwich, Conn.

The two have had their marital ups and downs since, a natural consequence.

They're a combination designed for fun: They know how to enjoy life to the hilt. The Desilu ranch, where they live in Chatsworth, is always crowded with friends and many service men, since Desi is in the special service office at the Birmingham General hospital in Van Nuys.

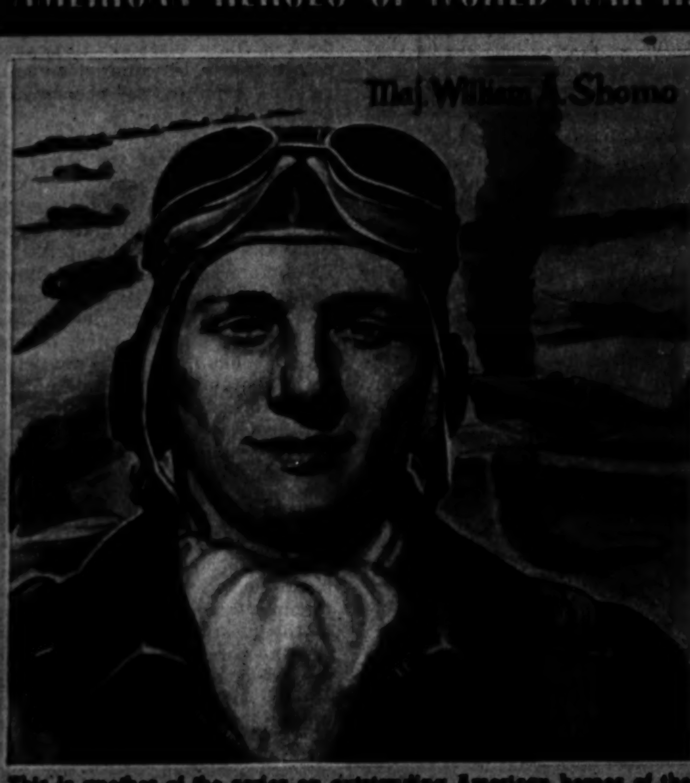
AMERICAN HEROES OF WORLD WAR II.



This is another of the series on outstanding American heroes of the present war. Subjects are heroes who have been decorated for valor. Illustrations are by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Vernick.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

FLYING from an army air base on Mindoro Island, Philippines, last Jan. 11, two American airmen on an armed reconnaissance mission encountered a formation of 13 Japanese planes northeast of Baguio, Luzon. The Americans were Maj. (then Capt.) William A. Shomo of Jeannette Pa., and Lt. Paul M. Lipscomb of Fort Worth, Tex.

A single twin-engined bomber led the enemy formation, followed by 12 fighter planes. Both Americans nosed up thru the clouds in steep climbs and at an altitude of 3,000 feet leveled off on the tail of the Japanese. Before the latter scarcely were aware of the presence of the Yank flyers Shomo had shot down three of them and his wingman one.

With the left wing of the enemy flight thus almost wiped out, the two Americans crossed over to the right wing. Shomo's fourth and fifth targets dropped in flames as Lipscomb downed his second and attacked the bomber leading the formation. He missed the bomber, however, but Shomo bored into it and downed it in a mass of flames. No sooner had he finished firing on his run on the bomber than he maneuvered to get another enemy plane in his sights. As Shomo was shooting down this one (his seventh), his companion knocked his third one from the sky, making a total for the two of 10 planes.

The fight lasted 10 minutes, Shomo expending 1,500 rounds, or an average of about 36 shots for each of his six guns for each plane he shot down. Neither American plane was touched by a Japanese bullet in the encounter.

On April 3 at an advanced air base in the Philippines, Major Shomo was decorated with the medal of honor (congressional medal) by Maj. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead, commander of the 5th air force. Lipscomb at the same time was awarded the distinguished service cross.

Some Like It COLD

Quick and easy to prepare is this main dish of cold cuts arranged with colorful fresh vegetables.

By MARY MEADE

SLICES of liver sausage, bologna, salami, and ham loaf temptingly arranged on a large serving dish make a beautiful showing for a summer meal.

It has been a long time since we've been able to find complete variety in cold cuts, but some are almost always available, and canned luncheon meats and left-over cooked meat are two more possibilities from which to make an assortment.

To sharpen the most sun-struck appetite, place the cold cuts among tomato wedges, cucumber slices, carrot sticks, whole radishes, green onions, and spiced crab apples. This bit of showmanship not only allows something for every individual's taste, but also changes the familiar cold cuts into a festive party "special."

Since the main dish is cold, let the hot item in the menu be creamed new potatoes. Serve assorted breads, dessert, and a beverage and the meal is complete.

A fitting way to end this menu is with the blackberry sherry cake pictured. Luscious blackberries are just beginning to appear at the markets, but red raspberries may be used.

To prepare this dessert, form a trench at the top of a sponge cake made from your favorite recipe by scooping out about one cup of cake crumbs. Pour three-fourths of a cup of sherry wine over the cake and chill it over night to allow plenty of time for the wine to soak in. When ready to serve, mix a pint of berries with a cup of sugar and arrange in the top of the cake. Serve with the following sauce:

SHERRY SAUCE

4 egg yolks, beaten
⅓ cup sugar
1¾ cups milk
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla
3 tablespoons sherry wine

Beat egg yolks and add sugar. Scald milk and gradually add to egg mixture, stirring constantly. Add salt and cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until custard is thickened and coats a spoon. Remove from heat. Cool slightly, add vanilla and wine. Chill.

LAMB THRIFTIES

(Serves four)

1 pound lamb, ground
1 cup grated raw carrot
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons minced onion
3 tablespoons flour
1½ cups bouillon or water

Combine all ingredients except flour and bouillon and form into small balls. Roll in flour and brown in small amount of fat. Cover pan and simmer about 15 minutes. Remove meat, add 3 tablespoons flour and blend. Add bouillon and cook until thickened. Pour over meat and serve piping hot.—MRS. SAMUEL A. SMITH, R. R. 4, Box 254, Corydon, Ind.

Portland, Ore.—Middle Ground of the Coast

This is the sixth article in a series of regional surveys of America. Written by a Tribune man who has spent most of the last twenty years in Europe as foreign correspondent they reveal a detachment and a fresh viewpoint not possible to a stay-at-home. The opinions expressed by Mr. Small do not necessarily coincide with those of The Tribune.

By ALEX SMALL

THE map shows Oregon sandwiched in between Washington and California. The position is symbolic of its moral climate. It's a sort of middle term, or hyphen, between the bursting energy of Seattle and the complex variety of San Francisco. The metropolis and only city of any size in Oregon, Portland, partakes of both characters without a decided inclination either way.

It's a good place for the traveler down the Pacific coast to pause and get his wits about him. For a long time Portland has called itself "a city of homes," and for once a slogan expresses the dominant feature of a community. Geographically Portland is a suburb of nothing; yet it definitely is suburban. The war has put it under the same strain as all other localities of the Pacific coast; yet underneath the turmoil of today can be detected the definite preference for conservative thinking and conduct, for reasonable ambition and domestic joys.

Outside of the Portland area, Oregon is definitely a rural state. Its total population density, even today, is only about 11 to the square mile. When due allowance is made for urban areas, that means a good part of Oregon's surface is deserted. Its forests, mountains and lakes provide scenery as magnificent as any in the world.

Then there are the river valleys and plateaus, which produce almost everything, animal or vegetable, which men can grow in temperate zones. There are livestock and sheep, apples and other fruits, wheat and potatoes in immense quantity, and all sorts of common table vegetables. This varied agricultural production constitutes, along with lumber and lumber products, the major part of the exports of Portland in peace time. The next biggest item is canned fish, mostly salmon.

Portland, you will notice, is a river port, over 100 miles from the mouth of the Columbia river. It is on the Willamette, practically at the junction of that river with the Columbia. It grew from its population of 60 in 1846 because it was a convenient point for assembling the lumber and other products of interior Oregon. Ships could come up the Columbia river to it, and thus exporters avoided the difficult and expensive transport of their products over the coastal range.

In volume of traffic, before the war, Portland exceeded both Seattle and San Francisco, but its 9,267,000 tons were far behind the 20,000,000 tons of Los Angeles. During the war, it has naturally become an important supply-base for our Pacific fleet and other forces. It has also won special distinction as the chief lend-lease port for Russia. As you come into the Portland area from the north, from those gigantic bridges which span the Columbia, you can see the freighters of the Soviet republic lying at the wharf sides. An experienced eye would hardly heed to see the flags nor the hammer-and-sickle painted on their sides, to identify them. The great scabby patches where paint has scaled off their sides, the general ramshackle and untidy air about them, proclaim their nationality clearly.

It's not as a port that Portland deserves present attention; it's as another of those congested areas, like Seattle, which are booming with war-industry. The population figures tell the story. By the 1940 federal census, Portland proper was credited with 305,394 inhabitants. An estimate of June 1, 1944, based on ration-book registrations, showed an increase to 403,459. The Portland area, which stretches beyond the city limits mostly to the north and the Columbia river, and includes as its most important permanent feature the city of Vancouver (across the state line in Washington), had 406,406 in 1940; by the same estimate as above in 1944 it had 648,417.

The figures of industrial employment show an even greater contrast. In 1939 a manufacturers' census gave 26,700 as the total number of industrially employed in the Portland metropolitan area. Today the number is close to 160,000. At the time of the first census Portland's shipyards employed only 189 persons; today they are giving work to over 116,000.

That number of 116,000 out of a possible total of 160,000 gives an idea of how completely shipbuilding (with repairs, maintenance, etc.) dominates the present industrial activity of the region. Of eight other forms of activity considered worth listing, the next largest in employed is iron and steel working, with 8,907 workers.

There has been a successful attempt made to solve the transport and housing problems together, by building the temporary workers' settlements usual in such cases close to the workshops, in this case mainly close to the three huge shipyards of Oregonship, Vancouver, and Swan Island.

One of these settlements is so large that it constitutes a city in itself. It has had close to 34,000 inhabitants and has become the second city in the state of Oregon. It has been named Vanport, by virtue of its being between the cities of Vancouver (Washington) and Portland. Its one-story barracks-like wooden buildings are arranged in regularly named streets; it has all the shops needed for local trade; it has a regular municipal administration, with the usual services of fire protection, police, and sanitation. Vanport was unpeopled swampy ground on Pearl Harbor day. It may well be the most quickly created municipality on record. It was built by the U. S. Maritime commission, and is entirely reserved for workers, and their families, in Henry Kaiser's Vancouver shipyard.

There's a catch to living in Vanport, besides the required employment at the shipyard. It was assumed that a certain proportion of the inhabitants would not show proper pride in the appearance of their allotted cubic space. So each lodging is liable to a visit from official inspectors, who are empowered to take appropriate action wherever they find conditions unsatisfactory.

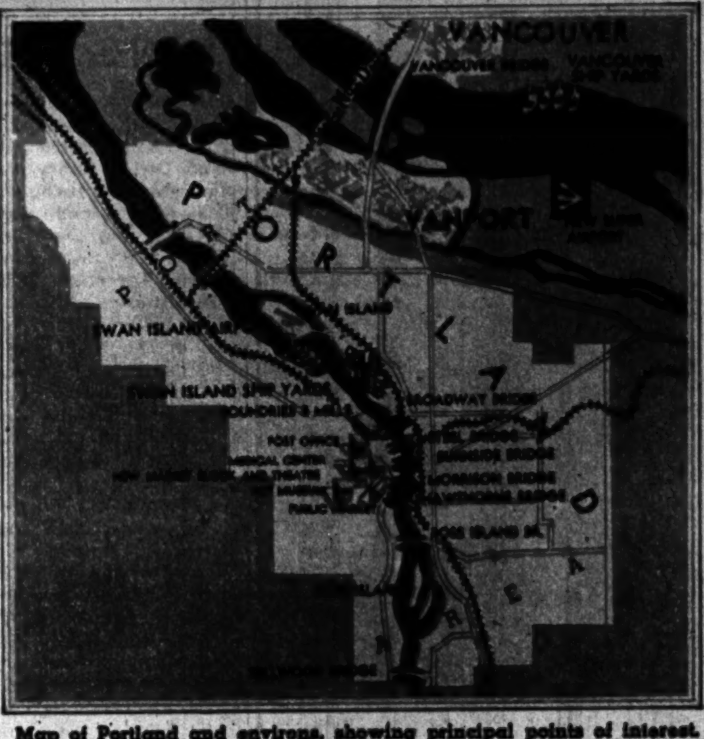
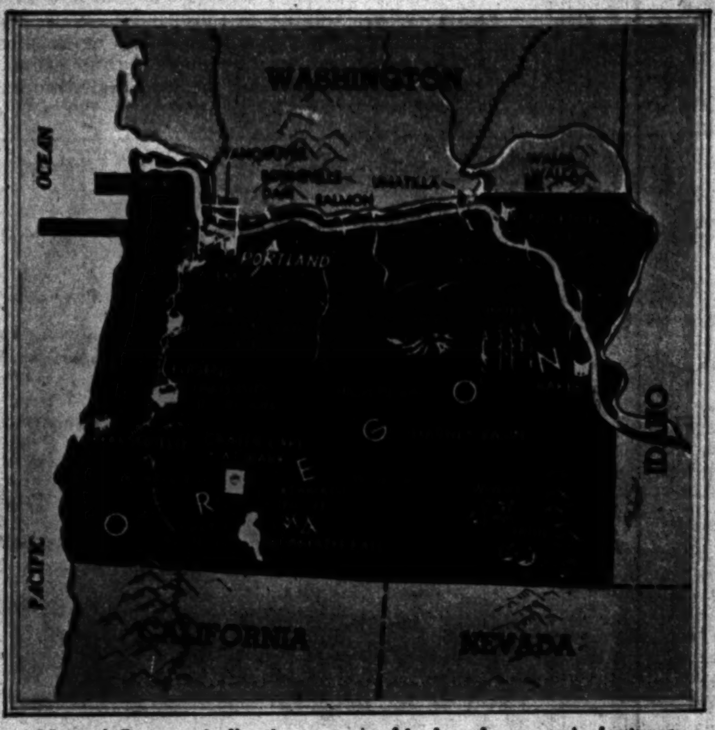
Possibly this danger of official snooping and reproof explains the shantytown which I saw along the highway on the hill above Vanport. It was composed of marooned trailers, shacks of odd boards, bits of tin or sheetiron, and tarpaper, and a considerable amount of miscellaneous rubbish. The good Portland citizens who accompanied me would, I am sure, have preferred that I had not seen it. Some of its denizens, I was told, undoubtedly worked; they were profiting by the current high wages like other people. Workers or not, they had had no taste for the standardized and inspected sanitary "dwelling-units" of Vanport. They prefer their squalor, and freedom. The solid citizens are shocked at so much shiftlessness, and independence of character. One good result, they think, of possible hard times which may be coming will be that these squatters will be forced to move away.



Map of Portland and environs, showing principal points of interest.



Map of Oregon, indicating geographical and economic features.

You may see some curious sights if you go roving about near these Portland shipyards, as near as unauthorized persons are allowed to go. You may see freighters being loaded with cargo while bustling crews of workers are still going thru the last stages of construction. You may see railway tracks which have been built to the Russian gauge (wider than ours), and on them brand-new fully assembled locomotives.

The impact of sudden war-time industrial expansion has been greater proportionately on the Portland area than on any other along the Pacific coast. The ratio of expansion to what existed before has been higher than elsewhere and also the effect on the minds of the residents. For a while, conservative home-loving Portland (its critics even call it "stuck-in-the-mud") was astounded and dismayed, as if it had been visited by an earthquake or other natural calamity.

The next reaction, I was told, was one of consolation, people assuring themselves that this hurly-burly could not last, that with the peace would come hard times. The newcomers would fade away, and Portland could go back to sleep again.

The story had entirely changed when I reached there. Now the civic leaders' only fear is that of the in-migrants only the "undesirables" will stay, and that the "desirables" will go back to the Middle West or other places that they came from. In any case, they hope to keep a good percentage of the influx. They take heart at the thought that the newcomers have bought a large amount of real property, and that many of them have become householders for the first time in their lives.

Inquiries have shown that 42 per cent of the population increase would like to make Portland their permanent home, and four-fifths of this 42 per cent are service men. This popularity with the services is attributed to the extraordinarily good job of hospitality which Portland has done (second only to that of Chicago) for men in the services.

There is the goal—to keep in the Portland area approximately 42 per cent of the 242,000 people who have swarmed into it since 1941. The means of keeping them as solvent citizens and desirable additions to the community seem at this moment largely in the stage of plan and project. Among the civic leaders there is plenty of optimism and enthusiasm, which will of course help.

Let's see both what these leaders expect and what may reasonably be thought of their expectations.

They have first of all few illusions about the future of Portland's present dominating industry, shipbuilding. That, they feel certain, will collapse, and the major part, nearly the totality, of its 116,000 employed will be thrown out of work. Only, it is hoped that it will not collapse entirely, that there will be need for at least a few thousands for repair and maintenance work if nothing else, and that the shipyards will not come down to the skeleton force of 1939.

For the miscellaneous industrial activities of the area, now employing about 40,000, the hope is to keep most about as they are, then to expand, and to attract new enterprise. "Portland now has the population it needed," one civic spokesman told me, "its next need is for risk-capital."

Surest hope can be built on the handling, processing, and shipping of the products of Portland's hinterland, which is not merely Oregon but part of Washington and Idaho as well. The salmon will still be in the Columbia river to be caught and canned. The farms of Oregon's lush valleys can be counted on, especially with the stimulus of the Columbia Basin project, to produce even more wheat, fruit, vegetables, beef, and mutton than they do now.

Oregon's first great industry was "mining timber." The city of Portland grew as a settlement of lumberjacks, many of them Scandinavians. So hopes for the future turn in good part toward the traditional industry of the state. It is not merely lumbering; it is all the industrial activity involved in handling wood according to the latest discoveries and techniques. Properly treated—if we may believe the enthusiasts—wood can serve practically any human need.

At first sight, there would seem to be no difficulty here. Lumber seems to be on hand, literally to burn, for bricks of compressed sawdust are used for kitchen stoves and other domestic heating apparatus. Cheap power for some small industries is obtained from "hog fuel," the coarse residue of timber at the sawmill.

A promotion booklet, now before me, gives a rosy view of Oregon's future in lumber. It claims that the enormous war demands amount to 2 percent of the "mature" supply of timber in the state, that Oregon at this moment possesses almost 8,000,000 acres of growing forests under saw-timber size. It adds this highly dubious statement, "And the more we cut, the more we grow."

An authority in whom I have more confidence asserts that today timber in Oregon is being cut twice as fast as the forest grows. The annual loss caused by the ravages of beetles alone exceeds the annual growth—728 million board feet as against 665 million board feet for each year of the 1930 decade. It looks as if the industry will have to devise new methods, maybe undergo a complete reorganization and adopt devices like disaster insurance, before it can be counted on as a reliable prop to the economy of Oregon.

Beyond that, the boosters of Portland point out the many advantages which should attract capital and population to their region. It is a pleasant place to live, with the caressing dampness of its climate and the grandiose mass of Mount Hood as its background. That can be admitted, as well as its low taxes on industry, its supply of cheap gas, its municipal water, so pure that people pour it into storage batteries instead of distilled water, the prospects of an ever increasing abundance of cheap electric power from Bonneville and other dams on the Columbia river.

Still remains the consideration that the problem will not be solved by attracting capital nor even by manufacturing cheaply. There will be the question of finding a market for the products, of transport to centers of distribution, of the new energy and ingenuity which the old-established centers of industry in the Middle West will put into their production after the war, and which may prove too sharp competition for the young industry of Portland.

Serious investigators have reason to doubt, for instance, that the future of light-metals will in any calculable future be anywhere so rosy as the optimists of our Northwest would like to believe it. Then

Admiral Clark—on Watery Warpath

By TOM MORROW

JOSEPH JAMES CLARK is a highly audible, often profane, and always efficient rear admiral in charge of a fast carrier division.

He is known as one of the master ship handlers in the navy and as a man who has shaped a portion of the tactics now in use by carriers in striking at the Japs. The navy has recognized his merit with the navy cross and distinguished service medal.

These baubles, however, likely mean little to Rear Admiral Clark in comparison with his self-appointed chore. He is concerned to the depths of his Cherokee Indian soul with swiftest possible annihilation of all available Japanese.

Fiercely loyal to his ships and men, Clark expects nothing short of perfection in performance. His searing comments, bellowed from the bridge, have brought murmurs of admiration from naval veterans who fancied themselves with an epithet.

"He can make more noise on the bridge than a 5 inch gun," said an officer who had served under Admiral Clark. "He knows how things should be done. If they are not done that way, life is going to be unbearable until they are."

He is as quick to award alacrity and efficiency as he is to denounce failure and inefficiency. His men recall a number of spot promotions made from the bridge.

One day, aboard a carrier which Clark then captained, a new bugler hit a true tone and a couple of hot licks to general quarters call, which sends the ship's company to their battle stations. The previous bugler had been a little brutal with the same tune.

Clark paused and listened, entranced.

"Rate [promote] that man," he bellowed, and went back to the business at hand.

If it were not for his colorful mode of operation the physique of Rear Admiral Clark could not leave him long unnoticed. His abdomen protrudes and he tops his close-cropped, bullet-shaped head with a baseball cap. His jaw is outthrust and his lower lip is likewise protruding.

This lip is not to be dismissed merely by saying that it protrudes. It is the pride and awe of all his men.

Admiral Clark has acquired the nickname Jocke during his naval career. This name is bandied back and forth with affection, even by enlisted men.

His fabulous lip has acquired him a name less often bruited about in public—Liver Lip. This, too, was bestowed in affection and thru the fact that the member often becomes painfully sunburned.

After commanding an auxiliary carrier in the invasion of North Africa, Clark was given command of an Essex type plane bearer. He was given the chore of whipping a green crew into shape in record time and taking the ship into the Pacific war.

Men who worked with him in this endeavor will not soon forget it. Officers still shudder as they remember this activity-filled period.

Clark, they report, was everywhere—on the flight deck, on the bridge. Each day was filled with ear-slitting shrieks of encouragement and screamed and sulphurous denunciations.

Stop watch in hand, Clark personally supervised each take-off and landing. He demanded more speed, better timing. When a gun crew failed to hit a target sleeve the members heard about it, and so did any other inhabitants of the sea for several miles. Not only that, but the gun crew kept right on shooting until the sleeve was a tattered remnant.

When the big carrier got to the Pacific the crew and air group were ready for action, and the torrid training period bore fruit.

The ship took part in attacks on the Marshalls, Gilberts, on Wotje, Kwajalein, Marcus, Kavieng, Wake. Success of the projects is indicated by a citation sent Clark by the commander, air force, United States Pacific fleet.

"For extraordinary performance," the document read, "and distinguished service in the line of his profession as commanding officer of an aircraft carrier during the operations against Marcus Island on 31 August, 1943, and against Wake Island on 5-6 October, 1943. On the first-mentioned date the air group of the carrier was launched at night and after a successful rendezvous was sent to Marcus Island and delivered the first attack before dawn. In this attack the enemy was taken completely by surprise and all aircraft were destroyed on the ground. The subsequent attacks delivered by his air group contributed to the destruction of approximately 80 per cent of the installations on the island.

"On 5 October, 1943, his air group repeated a successful and effective attack on Wake Island before dawn. During this attack eight enemy airplanes were destroyed in the air by his air group and five strafed on the ground.

"Eight additional airplanes were destroyed in the air by his air group and 11 on the runways. Repeated bombing and strafing attacks were effectively delivered against all assigned objectives on that date.

"On 6 October additional airplanes were strafed on the runways during a pre-dawn attack and severe damage wrought by dive bombing and strafing attacks on anti-aircraft and shore battery emplacements, fuel dumps, barracks, shops, and warehouses.

"A total of 89 tons of bombs were dropped by his air group on assigned objectives. His outstanding leadership, his exceptional ability to organize, and his courageous conduct thruout these engagements contributed immeasurably to the destruction of the enemy forces on these islands. His performance of duty was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States naval service."

It was noted that during his carrier captaincy Clark exhibited a high reluctance to post the usual signs concerning the position of each man at the order "Abandon ship." He felt that such signs might lead to a premature abandonment.

Rear Adm. Joseph J. Clark

By this time Clark had bestowed upon his vessel the complete love which any ship under his command eventually wins. He practically crooned over the carrier, his men report, and sought to anticipate its every need.

This condition was evinced one day when an unwary tanker captain got too close while coming alongside and scraped a bit of paint off the carrier's side. Clark was on the bridge, and the reaction was immediate, vocal, and awesome.

Clark wound up a masterful address with the warning that if the captain didn't take the such-and-such tanker the so-and-so out of there that he, Clark, would personally sink it. The tanker captain shuddered and moved away at a great rate. Nor could he be persuaded to return.

Nor was Clark's joy unbounded when he received word that on Jan. 31, 1944, he had been appointed rear admiral, for temporary service, and would command a carrier division. His grief at being torn from his beloved carrier overshadowed the rise in rank.

He verbally nipped officers right and left while he waited for his relief. When he turned over the command to the new captain and started for the gangplank, tears rolled down his cheeks as he took farewell of the carrier.

Rear Admiral Clark began his career in Pryor, Okla., where he was born Nov. 12, 1893. Before winning appointment to the naval academy he attended Willie Halsell college, Vinita, Okla., and Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college in Stillwater.

During his stay at the academy he led a normal life except for an odd predilection for soccer and lacrosse. He also was considered one of the most masterful hazers ever to attend the school.

He was graduated with the class of 1918 in June, 1917, and had World War I. service in the U. S. S. North Carolina, convoying troops across the Atlantic. From 1919 to 1922 he served with destroyers in the Atlantic, European waters, and the Mediterranean, and in the latter part of the duty was with the American relief administration in the near east.

Recalled to the academy in 1922-'23, he served as instructor in the department of seamanship and navigation. In March, 1925, he turned his attention to the air and qualified as a naval aviator at Pensacola, Fla.

Later in 1925 he was attached to the aircraft squadrons of the battle fleet and aided Comdr. John Rodgers in preparing navigational data for the first west coast-Hawaii flight. He received a letter of commendation for this service.

Clark joined the U. S. S. Mississippi in 1926 and served as senior aviation officer. The following year he was aide on the staff of the commander, battleship division 3, and served as division aviation officer.

From 1928 to 1931 Clark was executive officer at the naval air station, Anacostia, D. C., and was commanding officer of fighter squadron 2 attached to the Lexington during the next two years. From 1933 to May, 1939, he held jobs as aeronautical member of the board of inspection and survey, navy department; air officer of the Lexington, and executive officer, fleet air base, Pearl Harbor.

Then Clark served as inspector of naval aircraft at the Curtiss corporation, Buffalo, N. Y. He was transferred to the naval air station, Jacksonville, Fla., in December, 1940, and was executive officer until May, 1941. Then he reported for duty as executive officer of the old Yorktown.

He was relieved of this post to outfit an auxiliary carrier, the U. S. S. Suwanee, which he commanded until given his large carrier in 1943.

And that is about all about Rear Admiral Clark except that since beset by a stomach ulcer some time ago his main tipple has been milk. It is fetched to him on the bridge and he quaffs it with apparent enjoyment as he goes about his chores.

BARE NECESSITIES

By ELEANOR NANGLE

YOUR skin is showing! Looking at the O-so-brief fashions you can add "And How!" to that. The bathing suits, for example . . . the play suits . . . even the little wash dresses we are supposed to wear to work, without sleeves, without backs, even without the waistband in front. Never has so much skin been covered by so little as it is this summer.

What this means for every woman who adopts these bare fashions is easy to see. It means figure slimming, for one thing. Who but the slender would dare wear brief bras and short, short pants? It's just not aesthetic for the stout woman to make herself conspicuous by revealing so much of her figure facade.

It also means skin grooming on an over-all scale.

Backs and elbows can no longer be given the usual daily scrubbing and forgotten about. The skin there must be just as presentable, just as pretty as the skin of the face. Use soap, as always, but use other things, too—a bath brush, or a friction cloth, to remove all the rough, horny nubbins—and then softening cream in the most generous quantities.

If the elbows have a muddy look, one that persists after the scrubbings and oilings, use a little bleaching cream now and again and remember, particularly, that a little hand lotion is a fine final dressing for them before you go out in the public view.

Superfluous hair, of course, is unforgivable. The merest suggestion of it under the arms is offensive, so watch this when you wear backless gowns. If the arms themselves are covered with down, they, too, will need hair removal—professional if you can afford it, otherwise the kind that is carefully accomplished at home by following the directions of your depilatory with exactness.

The midriff, as a rule, doesn't need much in the way of skin grooming but if you've tanned your arms, face, back, and legs to a toast shade you'd better not appear in a bare midriff number without applying makeup to the skin surface there. You can use leg makeup, preferably the kind that doesn't rub off.

On the beach, and off it too this year, there's a lot of your skin showing. See that it's smooth and artfully groomed or on you the bare fashions won't look good! Here's a lass with normal skin, not too sensitive. She uses oil in a honey color, to promote an even, silky tan.

Not even the most beautiful legs are lovely to look at when the skin is unadorned. Superfluous hair on the underpinnings, or prominent veins, or rough, coarse skin are not pretty. Neither is the kind of skin that is milky white; somehow it always looks flabby and old beneath a brief skirt or shorts. Tan it, by all means, or dress it up with makeup in a tan tint. When you apply your pet leg makeup be sure you bring it well up under the hem of skirt or shorts. The line of demarcation isn't attractive at all.

Your skin will be showing on your feet too this summer. The shoes are mere fluffs. Here again you have to remember that what shows must be as pretty as you can make it. Use cream every single night on your feet to help soften the skin. See your chiropodist if you have corns or calluses, and by all means make your toenails as jewel-like as possible. Toenails just aren't pretty, but they will pass inspection if you have them free of cuticle, perfectly shaped, almost straight across the top (never pointed), and flawlessly lacquered in a brilliant shade that makes the skin look whiter—or tanner, as you wish—by contrast.

With skin out from under its traditional wrappings, women must revise their thinking about its care. Grooming and makeup do not end at the neck and the wrists, as in the past; they must be employed to enhance every inch of the epidermis from the head to the toes.

PORTLAND, OREGON

there is increased foreign trade, of which they talk as if it were a certainty. Against this prospect are the considerations discussed in the article on Seattle.

In this somewhat cloudy prospect, there is one bright spot. The tourist business in Oregon before 1941 was annually a $45,000,000 industry. That can be counted on to expand, maybe to as much as $100,000,000 annually. The state has everything that the American vacationist could wish—seacoast and mountains, magnificent vistas and exhilirating sport.

Then there is the Moses report, with which in part Portland would seem to be on solid ground. At the cost of $100,000 the authorities of the Portland area engaged the services of Robert Moses, of New York City, to prepare a report on possibilities of post-war public employment in the area.

The findings of Moses and his assistant experts are embodied in a report of 55 pages of fine print. It includes a program for the expenditure of $51,500,000, the source of which would be partly federal, partly state, partly county, partly city, partly school, partly dock commission, partly Port of Portland, funds.

The first section of this program, called "Portland Arterial," proposes thruways, drives, new bridges, improvements to bridges now existing. The second section is headed "Major Municipal Improvements," with these sub-headings: Sewage Disposal and Treatment System; School Buildings and Improvements; Fire and Police Structures and Systems; Water Distribution; Airport; Transfer Platform at Southeast Water Ave.; North Peninsula Improvement.

As you see, it's another scheme for keeping the idle busy at public works financed by public funds. It is not to be taken as a solution to the problem of the future industrial development of the Portland area, but simply as a device to tide people over the shock of the end of the war, till difficulties can be liquidated and the situation of private industry stabilized.

The program outlined by Moses apparently is to be carried out, partially at least. Portland has voted a bond issue of $15,000,000, to be devoted to some of the items listed in the report.

BARI NICE!

1 When Ben Bogeaus was publicizing his production, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," you saw a good many shots like this of one of its stars, Lynn Bari. Now The Tribune's Hollywood photographer, Louis Wolf, has literally gone behind the scenes to bring you Lynn Bari, housewife. Lynn was born Marjorie Bitzer in Roanoke, Va., on Dec. 18, 1918. As a minister's daughter she caused much tongue clucking for her tomboy antics, but by the time the family moved to California she was maturing fast into a potential actress.

Does BORDERLINE ANEMIA

Say You're Older Than You Are?

HAVE you lost your "push" and "drive"—is there a slump in your spirits? Borderline Anemia can make you feel like a failure!

Borderline Anemia is a highly prevalent condition! Doctors say thousands upon thousands of men—up to one out of two women—suffer from it.

Healthy Red Blood Cells Are Needed for Energy

Many people who should enjoy life have a Borderline Anemia, resulting from a ferro-nutritional blood deficiency. Their blood cells are not red and big enough for full vigor.

Without full health in these red blood cells, which control the amount of energy you get, you can't expect to feel alert and "on your toes."

Ironized Yeast Helps Build Up Blood and Energy

If you're threatened with Borderline Anemia—if you're tired, pale, listless—you need Ironized Yeast Tablets!

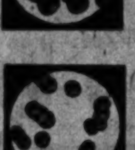
Of course, your condition may come from some other cause—so it's wise to consult your doctor at regular intervals. But, if you've a Borderline Anemia*—if you need to build healthy red blood cells, to improve your energy—take Ironized Yeast. It contains the very elements that half of us don't get enough of for red blood, for fullest energy. Insist on genuine Ironized Yeast Tablets. At all drug stores.

Resulting from a ferro-nutritional blood deficiency.*

Energy-Building Blood

This is what the doctor sees in his microscope looking at blood rich in energy-elements. Note big, plentiful red cells that carry oxygen to release energy to every muscle, limb, tissue.

Borderline Anemia



Thousands have blood like this—and never know it. Note puny size and irregular shape of red cells. Blood like this can't generate the energy you need! Only sturdy blood can give you top energy.

AN HONORED NAME IN SHIPBUILDING

THE MAIL BOX—THE WAIL BOX

BY SHEILA JOHN DALY

(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune)

HERE'S opening the mail box, the wail box, again. "I have four older brothers and since I've seen them go thru all the pains of puppy love, first dates, and first proms, I never thought I'd have to ask any one for advice on the male situation. But now the two oldest are in service and the other two know the lad in question too well for me to talk to them about it. So here goes:

"I know a boy whom I think is terrific, but I often wonder what he thinks of me. He goes to an all-boy school and I go to an all-girl school, so the only time I see him is at night or on week-ends. Then he is usually with his gang of fellows and I am with my girl friend.

"These boys, my girl friend, and I often go to the movies together, and we all frequently sit together in the back booth of the drug store and talk for hours. Some of the fellows have asked us to go on single dates, but this particular joe is too shy. He always walks me home from the drug store, tells me his post-high school plans and calls me up frequently just to check on the state of my health, but still no dates. What to do?"

It isn't just a coincidence that this fellow calls you every time he wants to "just talk," tells you all about what he's going to do after he gets out of school and sees to it that you never have to walk home alone of an evening. You're on his mind. You're Number one on his hit parade—even tho he hasn't yet suggested that you make duet evening plans. When the boy in question gets over being so girl-shy, yours will undoubtedly be the first phone number to come to his mind. He's not quite ready for the Van Johnson department. In the meantime, you're both having fun. Can you wait?

"I dated a boy steadily for a few months and I fell for him pretty hard. No other boy has mattered since I met him, and I know that for a while he felt the same way. I can't think of anything I did to hurt him or change his feelings for me, but just before he left for the navy he stopped calling and dating me. He was always very nice to me whenever I saw him during that time, but we never went out. He didn't date any other girls either, and the night before he left he came over to say good-by. I only received three letters from him all the time he was in boot camp and he wrote a lot to all the other kids in the gang.

"When he came home on leave he almost completely ignored me. The first day he visited school and was very nice to me, told me all about the navy and mentioned that he would call the next day. He never did, and altho I saw him frequently the rest of his leave, he hardly spoke to me at all, and didn't say good-by when he left.

"He is on the west coast now and has written to apologize for all that happened, telling me that I was still tops with him and begging me to write. I answered and told him how hurt and confused I had been by his actions. He wrote immediately, saying he didn't know what had happened to him on that leave, but if he could have it all over again things would be different. Now I don't know what to do."

Sometimes young fellows about to leave for service get a little confused themselves. With such a big change in their lives and plans, they aren't quite sure what they want. This young character may have been still unadjusted to life in service when he was home on his last leave, so be a good sport and write him as he asks. There's nothing like friendly, casual letters from home to make a fellow realize that you're the girl he's been waiting for. (Or the girl he'd like to have waiting for him!) Keep the fe-mail rolling westward—and wait till the next leave!

"I am a 13 year old eighth grader who has a parent problem. They don't seem to realize that I'm growing up and they still treat me like a child. They object when I want to go on a date as other girls do, and even when I promise to be in by 1 o'clock they practically blow the roof off the house. I hate to resort to sneaking off on dates, but I'm afraid that's what it will lead to if they don't begin to be more lenient. The girls I go with do not have parents like this and we always go out with nice boys who promise to bring us in by one.

"My mother always waits up for me, too, because she's afraid that my date will kiss me good-night on the front porch. She can't seem to understand that kids of our age should be allowed to do a little necking. If she would even turn off the porch light it wouldn't be so bad, as it wouldn't seem so embarrassing to the boys. I think girls should be allowed to mix with boys during their few short years in junior and senior high school, but my family just doesn't understand."

That's a fine story, morning glory—but give a little thought to the ending. You're 13 and suddenly think you're a big gal simply because you've found some boy who wants to kiss you good-night on the front porch. So what does that make you—still just a 13 year old girl, but unfortunately one who doesn't know the difference between being smooth and being downright cheap. Or do you? Are you trying to fool yourself or your mother?—because you won't fool those fellows you're so worried about (with or without the porch light on). Be honest with yourself. At your pace, what sort of friends do you expect to have by the time you're 21?

TOPS AMONG TEENS

LYN APPLEGIT . . . Ventriloquist

UNLIKE Jerry O'Flaherty, her sailor boy friend, Lyn Applegit, 16 year old ventriloquist from Sewanhaka High school in Floral Park, New York, is no dummy. She knows that her smart patter and skilful two-voice technique is just the kind of light entertainment that takes the spotlight for amusement in service men's canteens. Besides repeat performances at the famous Stage Door canteen and the Merchant Seamen's canteen in New York City, Lyn has made frequent hospital visits, carrying her dummy from cot to cot to entertain the boys who cannot get to the auditorium for shows.

The attractive young senior began practicing ventriloquism at the age of 8 when her father, a magician by hobby, gave her a department store dummy for Christmas and showed her how it worked. After several years of hard practice, her father presented her with her present professional dummy, a "fresh boy" character dressed in a sailor suit, and Lyn made her first important appearance before the Society of American Magicians. Since then she has filled an almost professional schedule at service men's canteens, school programs, local organizations, and on television shows. Lyn likes to use a boy dummy because she believes it is more unusual for a girl ventriloquist to use a boy's voice. She hopes to find a future in television, especially in providing suitable presentations for commercials.

Besides her entertainment schedule, Lyn has managed good grades in school, is president of the history club, and feature editor of the school paper, often arranging interviews with celebrities with whom she appears at the canteens. With a varied line of chatter slanted toward different audiences, Lyn often uses scripts which she writes herself, ending her act by walking down the aisle with Jerry while he sings a popular song. "Seeing these returned service men," says the young entertainer, "makes one realize how little we have done in comparison." This pretty teen-age trouper, Lyn Applegit, has found a way to get in the show.

Crosby the Collaborator Scores Some New Hits

Judy Garland . . . talk, talk, talk with Bing

FOR sheer quality of performance you have to hand the king size laurel to Bing Crosby. He was great back in the anonymous days of the Paul Whiteman Rhythm Boys, even tho the delightful Harry Baris got more notice for his scat singing. Bing was great when he first went on the air as a singing star (remember "The Blue of the Night"?). And he's great today, after having sung just about every song written. He maintains the highest level of quality of any singer I know. No Crosby record is completely lacking in interest. Each one has his impeccable timing, his incomparable vocal quality. And any longhairs who wish to deny his vocal stature will have to come up with some one equally warm, equally versatile before they can prove their point.

Recently DECCA has been giving us a lot of Crosby, and best of all, Crosby with other stars. There is that magnificent "Baia" with Cugat—a superb collaboration. In an entirely different vein there is his Louis Jordan co-starrer—"My Baby Said Yes" and "Your Socks Don't Match." Louis and Bing create some good harmony and some elegant musical fooling. These sides are a lot of fun. Then there is the disc Bing shares with Judy Garland—an unusual and entertaining version of "Yah-Ta-Ta, Yah-Ta-Ta" and a more standard "You've Got Me Where You Want Me." I'm not Judy's most loyal fan, insofar as her singing is concerned, but she works well with Bing. As a straight Crosby couplet the DECCA disc "June Comes Around Every Year," and "Out of This World" is in the best ballad vein. So is the more recent "If I Loved You"—"Close as the Pages in a Book."

Harry James fans may be a little puzzled over his two new COLUMBIA recordings, "Oh, Brother!"—"If I Loved You," and "I Wish I Knew"—"The More I See You." All four sides are nicely played, with good symphonic treatment and well done vocals—but they aren't the James most of us like. I certainly have no prejudice against strings as such, but I suggest that Dorsey, and Krupa, and James, and others take a few lessons from Wayne King if they want to go sweet. Wayne has never wanted to be identified with swing. Instead, he attempts to preserve all that is beautiful in modern music without being a slave to decadent musical forms.

BALL OF FIRE

pool, badminton court, and barbecue, and they know they're welcome at any time," Lucille says.

She frequently visits the veterans at the hospital. When Desi was asked to get together a show for the men, Lucille joined him in planning a revue of musical sketches and black-outs.

"We call it 'G I 'm Happy,'" explains Lucille, "and that's the whole idea of it. We don't try for any great artistic triumph, but just to make the fellows happy. So far, I think we've been pretty successful."

When Lucille tells you that she wears a different gown in each skit, and that each gown is as slinky as she can find, you know darned well they're successful!

Her chief interest, besides husband and career, is their ranch. She does many chores herself, and wherever she goes, she's followed by three dogs and 30 chickens. Whatever live stock is added to the ranch immediately becomes a pet. She takes pride in raising her chickens and delivering eggs, neatly boxed, to fellow actors.

The mere mention of chickens, tho, starts Lucille to laughing.

LUCILLE BALL in "That Girl from Paris"

"It happened the night we moved into the ranch," she recounts. "I was sitting on a box, waiting for Desi to arrive with the first chairs, tables, and a bed.

"When he walked in, what do you think he brought? A hundred baby chicks in an incubator!

"It was raining cats and dogs outside, and of course we had no chicken coops. So we put the chicks to bed in what is now our guest room, and we slept on blankets spread on the floor in an adjoining room. I should say we tried to sleep. We kept peeking into the chicks' room every few minutes to see if they were still alive."

Lucille has one fear—that her clowning might be misunderstood. She can go along with any gag, and has perpetrated some of the best at M-G-M. Her latest was on Jack Donohue, who coached her in the dances for "Early to Wed."

The second day she found that the strenuous use of long-idle muscles had left her stiff and sore. So, she got together with Buster Keaton, another whiz with a gag. When she arrived at the rehearsal hall, Keaton was wheeling her in a hospital chair. She had one arm in a sling, a black eye, bruised cheek, blacked-out front teeth, and touseled hair. Her one good hand held a sign that read, "I am now working with Donohue, period." First she confronted Donohue, then toured the studio in that getup, which was strictly a product of the make-up department.

But, later the "wonder gal" began to wonder, herself. Approaching Donohue she asked if her prank had embarrassed him.

"You don't think any one took me seriously, do you? They should never do that, you know," she said.

Yes, she's a great gal, that red-head named Lucille Ball.

Discovery by Noted Veterinarian

STOPS DOG-ITCH

For years, veterinarians were baffled by a common skin disease that caused untold agony to dogs and cats. Starting as a burning itch, it soon develops dandruff-like scales and brownish edged sores with a mouldy odor in ears, on paws, under-body, back or around tail. Treatments for mange, fleas, allergy or faulty diet result only in costly care or actual loss. Now, noted veterinarian, Dr. A. C. Merrick, has positively identified this disease as a fungus infection comparable to "Athlete's Foot." He has named it "Fungitch" and has also developed SULFADENE, a treatment proved amazingly effective in thousands of clinical cases. Applied externally, Dr. Merrick's SULFADENE stops the itch in a few minutes—scales and sores vanish in a few days. Buy today where you get pet foods or remedies—or send $1.00 for generous treatment; money back if it fails to give complete satisfaction. Address Brookfield Laboratories, Dept. G125 Brookfield, Ill.

"Salome"

(Portrait in Picture Section)

● Ever hear of Peggy Middleton? Probably not. But a couple of Royal Canadian air force officers who were childhood chums of hers in Vancouver, B. C., got their buddies together and practically bombarded her studio with pictures and mail until she got a choice role. The part was that of Salome in the picture "Salome, Where She Danced." And Peggy, of course, is Yvonne De Carlo, who by now is one of the most publicized actresses in the movies. The Yvonne is Peggy's own middle name; De Carlo is her mother's maiden name.

● Yvonne was born on Sept. 1, 1924. She weighs 117 pounds, stands 5 feet 4. You'll see her next in "Frontier Gal."

This army sentry dog named Wolf was taught to be suspicious of strangers and attack if necessary.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

HUNDREDS of war dogs which have had a tour of duty with the army are now being detrained by the K-9 corps and then returned to their former owners. One of the largest canine reception and rehabilitation centers which convert belligerent sentry dogs into docile, friendly pets is at Fort Robinson, Neb. Several midwestern trainers helped train dogs for sentry work at Fort Robinson during the early days of the war, and Sgt. J. W. Mehren, a Chicagoan, is now at the fort directing much of the detraining work.

With few exceptions dogs which have been with the army are establishing new standards as man's best friend. The answer lies in the fact that a dog fully trained to obey his handler always is under control.

Unlike his soldier counterpart, however, veterans of the army's quartermaster K-9 section are not ready for return to civilian life when their service is ended. Instead they must undergo a detraining course comparable to the breaking of a colt or wild horse. Any undesirable traits must be eliminated.

In most instances a war dog is more easily detrained than trained, says the quartermaster corps. The reprocessing procedure is a direct reversal of the training program with the exception of the fundamental obedience commands such as heel, sit, stay, etc. A list of these commands is sent home with each dog so the owner will know how to handle it. We asked the quartermaster corps to explain how they prepare war dogs for civilian life.

Here is the routine the corps follows in rehabilitating a war dog: First, the dog gets much attention from many men. Accustomed to obeying a single soldier, the dogs are handled, groomed, and petted and fed by a succession of different persons to prove that the world is a friendly place after all. During the processing temptation is placed in the dog's way, trained men constantly teasing him or attempting to stir him up to a high pitch where he will grab or bite the aggressor.

The handler restrains and corrects him with a sharp "no" or a light slap with a folded newspaper. Then the aggravator makes up to the dog to show him it was all good, clean fun, perhaps taking the dog for a walk. If one routine doesn't work, the procedure is changed.

When a dog has progressed favorably he is given more freedom. He is permitted to romp at the end of a 30 foot rope and is still tempted in many ways and corrected for each display of belligerency. About this time he renews his acquaintance with the sight and smells of civilians (trainers in civilian clothes), and if he shows no desire to chase or bite he has learned his lesson well.

The dog also is subjected to different types of confusion. For example, people whiz about him on bicycles, blow whistles, rattle noise makers, etc., while his handler teaches him that these things just have to be accepted as a part of his new life.

In the next test the surprise element is introduced—men jumping from behind buildings or obstacles waving sacks and shouting. If he shows no unusual alarm and is willing to make friends with the aggravator the dog is ready for the final test. This consists of being taken to town to walk about and mingle with the crowds and traffic. If he behaves himself he is ready to be shipped back to his former owner.

In the event that the original donors decline to accept the dogs, cannot care for them, or do not reply within three weeks, the animals are listed with the office of surplus property, commerce department. Thru Dogs for Defense suitable homes and owners will be selected from applicants for such dogs. A minimum fee will be charged, usually $15 to $25, to cover cost of transportation.

Any one who wants to obtain one of these detrained war dogs should write to Dogs for Defense, Inc., 22 E. 60th st., New York. Each request is investigated to make sure that the applicant is in a position to provide a good home and good treatment.

The quartermaster corps still needs big, strong dogs like farm shepherds, collies, and German shepherds for war service. The latest request is for 1,600 dogs to be trained for service on battle fronts, and owners all over the United States are being asked to donate that number.

No longer needed for sentry work Wolf was returned to the army's war dog and reception center, Fort Robinson, Neb., for rehabilitation before being sent back to its owner, Mrs. S. Duncan of Pomona, Cal. Sgt. J. W. Mehren, well known Chicago dog trainer, jumps out at Wolf who now pays no attention to this surprise attack, proving that he's ready for civilian life.

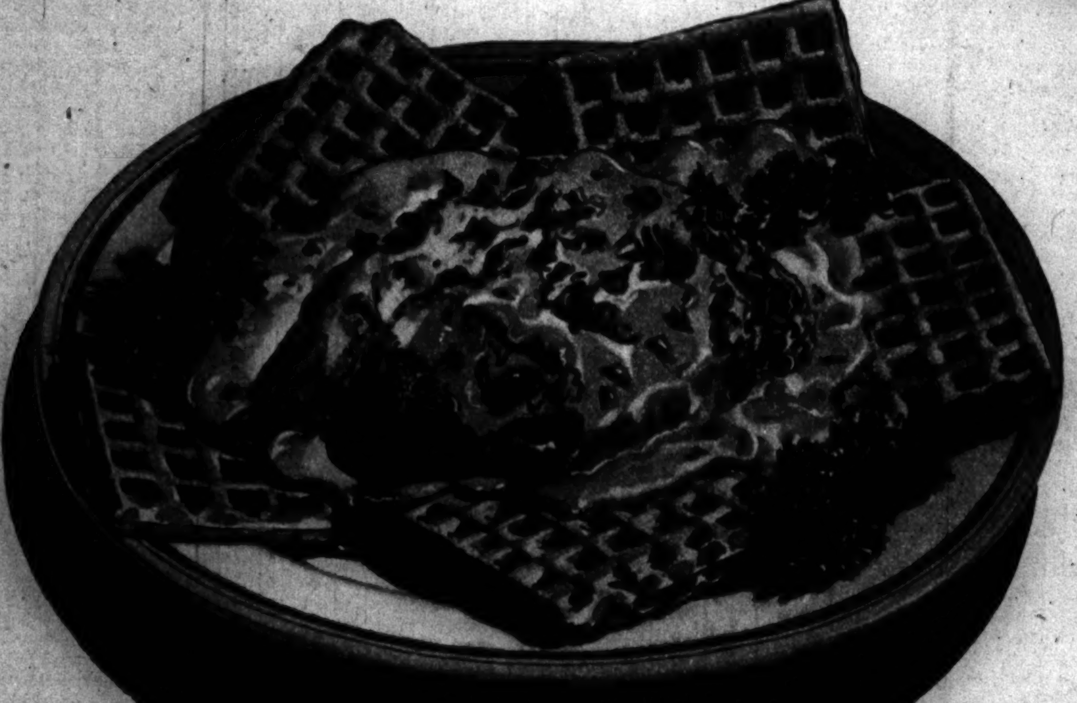
Jane Foster Edison's Director of Home Economics, brings you her own favorite tested recipes, selected especially for Edison Home Service readers. Try them—you'll like them!



FRIZZLED DRIED BEEF

4 fresh tomatoes or 2 cups canned tomatoes	2 tbsp. margarine
½ tsp. salt	2 tbsp. flour
¼ tsp. pepper	¼ lb. dried beef
1 onion, sliced	2 tbsp. fat
	½ green pepper
4 eggs

Cook tomatoes, seasonings and onions 10 minutes; strain. Make tomato sauce by melting margarine and stirring in flour. Gradually add strained tomato; cook until thick. Saute dried beef in 2 tbsp. fat until "frizzled." Add chopped green pepper. Beat 4 eggs until fluffy; add to beef. Cook on low heat, stirring until almost "set". Add tomato sauce to egg mixture. Serve on waffle. 6 servings.

POTATO WAFFLE

Mix together 2 cups sifted flour, 3 tsp. baking powder and 1 tsp. salt. Cut in 3 tbsp. fat with pastry blender or 2 knives until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add 1 cup cold mashed potatoes, 1 egg, beaten, and ½ cup milk or enough to make a soft dough. Pour into pre-heated waffle baker. Bake until done. Batter can be formed into biscuits and baked in a 400° oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 8 waffles.

A cool, tempting supper idea for a hot July night

A Just Right for Summer Menu:

Frizzled Dried Beef on Potato Waffles
Garden Medley
Fresh Fruit Salad

FROM Jane Foster's NOTEBOOK

Remember, hot weather meals can be prepared out of the kitchen. Get out the waffle baker and electric grill and let the family help. It's more fun if work is shared.

Evaporated and condensed milk are wonderful foundations for refrigerator desserts. Either one makes frozen tray mixtures extra smooth. Use lemon juice to improve texture, too.

FROSTY BROWNIE

¼ cup shortening	1 tsp. vanilla
⅓ cup sugar	1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup dark corn syrup	¼ tsp. baking powder
2 eggs	¼ tsp. salt
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted	½ cup nut meats, chopped

Cream shortening, add sugar, then corn syrup and blend thoroughly. Drop in each egg and beat until light. Add melted chocolate and vanilla, and lastly, dry ingredients and nuts. Spread in 8-inch greased pan. Bake at 375° for 35-40 minutes. Remove from pan and cool. Split into 2 layers and fill with mint ice cream. Serves 8.

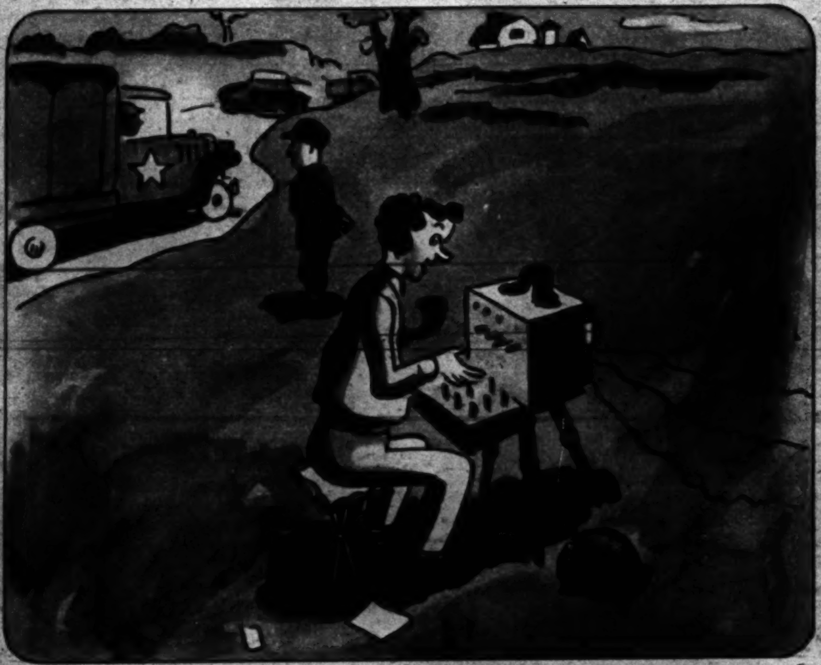
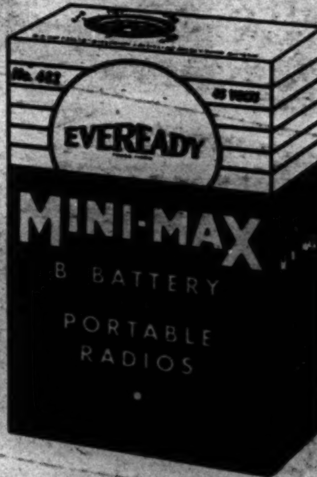
LIGHTER MOMENTS with fresh Eveready Batteries



"And listen, Honey—here's how you can recognize me. I'll be wearing a tan suit and a tan tie to match."



YOU'LL be glad to know that your dealer—right now—probably has fresh stocks of powerful "Eveready" "Mini-Max" batteries to fit your portable radio.

Although these famous batteries continue to power walkie-talkies, handy-talkies, and other vital equipment for our Armed Forces, some can now be made for civilians.

Ask for "Eveready" "Mini-Max" batteries by name. Remember—size for size they pack far more power than any other "B" battery you can buy!

Something special to serve in a heat wave

. . . a cool-tasting salad . . .

deliciously satisfying with Real Mayonnaise

It's simple to prepare

Simmer tomato juice, bay leaf, cloves, ¼ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, 1 tbs. chopped onion, ½ cup water and sugar, for 15 minutes. Strain. Soak plain gelatin in ½ cup cold water; dissolve in hot tomato juice. Pour half into 2-quart loaf pan, allow to set. Dissolve lime gelatin in 2 cups hot water, add vinegar, ½ tsp. salt, dash of pepper, 2 tsp. chopped onion. When slightly thickened, add cucumber. Pour into pan. Allow to set. Pour remaining tomato gelatin on top. Chill.

Here are your ingredients

2 cups tomato juice
1 bay leaf
2 cloves
Salt, pepper, onion
1 tsp. sugar
2 tbs. plain gelatin
Water

1 pkg. lime-flavored gelatin
1 tbs. vinegar
1 cup chopped cucumber
Hellmann's Real
Mayonnaise
Cream cheese balls
Salad greens

Here's how you dazzle 'em

Unmold on salad greens. Arrange your Real Mayonnaise on top of loaf, as illustrated, and garnish with cream cheese balls. What a picture! And what a treat! The rich, satisfying flavor of Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise is a high spot in this exciting salad. Better serve extra Real Mayonnaise for the folks who always ask for more! This summer salad is smooth eating!

That Extra Something

For extra-thin sandwiches, Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise is swell—spreads so quickly and evenly. It's grand, too, as a sauce for steaming-hot vegetables . . . creamy in texture even when thinned.

For extra nutrition—Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise provides almost the same amount of food energy, spoonful for spoonful, as Nucoa or butter.

For extra-fine ingredients—Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise contains only eggs freshly broken from the shell . . . added egg yolks . . . our own "Fresh-Press" salad oil . . . mild vinegar and spices—all double-whipped to a delightful smoothness.

"Don't tell me women aren't smart mechanically!"...

"THIS war has certainly kicked over the old idea that women are helpless about mechanical things. Not just in war plants, but right in their homes, the ladies have shown real know-how. The coming Avco post-war household equipment is going to bring some wonderful new conveniences and advantages to women who really appreciate mechanical improvements . . .

"At AVCO we make aviation products for the war. We'll stay in aviation post-war, too. But we'll also need something else to keep our plants and workers employed after the war.

"We have decided on household equipment, and expect to manufacture a new AVCO Kitchen Range. And immediately we hit on something big!

"By applying new mechanical methods and ingenuity from our aviation experience . . . we found a new way to build ranges and other household appliances that are both better and simpler. This enabled us to put on more quality operating features . . . to give you MORE conveniences and advantages in cooking.

"So keep watch for the coming AVCO household appliance line. The more you appreciate mechanical advances, the more you'll cheer what you see!"

One of the greatest advancements in Intimate Feminine Hygiene ever discovered!

You Can Now Enjoy Hours of Continuous Medication

Here is a blessing for you exacting women who have long desired an easier, daintier, and more convenient method of intimate feminine cleanliness—ZONITORS.

1. Zonitors are snow-white, greaseless, stainless vaginal suppositories which offer an easier, daintier and more convenient method.
2. Powerfully germicidal yet so safe to delicate tissues. Non-irritating, non-poisonous, non-smarting.
3. When inserted—Zonitors quickly begin to release their powerful germicidal qualities. Yet they're not the type which quickly melt away.
4. Zonitors are especially made to afford continuous medication and they keep on releasing their precious properties for hours.
5. Zonitors immediately kill every germ they touch. Of course it's not always possible to contact all germs in the tract, BUT YOU CAN BE SURE—Zonitors kill all reachable living germs and keep them from multiplying.
6. Zonitors destroy offending odor.
7. They never leave any sticky residue. Buy today—any drugstore.

Extra Swims for Women ... thanks to Tampax

This modern monthly sanitary protection may be worn in the water

Summer at best is all too short and for women who love to swim the customary "belt-pin-pad days" can bring bitter disappointment. . . . But a great many women have now adopted a method of monthly sanitary protection that is quite different from the "usual." This is the Tampax method—and Tampax may be worn in lake, pool or ocean because it is worn internally.

The principle of internal absorption is by no means new to the medical profession—and now Tampax makes it available for women generally. . . . Highly absorbent cotton is compressed in dainty applicators. The hands need never touch the Tampax and when it is in place the user is unaware of its presence. . . . No belts, no pins, no external pads with Tampax—no bulk, no chafing, no odor!

Take Tampax with you on vacation. It is compact to carry, quick to change, easy to dispose of. Comes in 3 absorbency-sizes: Regular, Super, Junior. Tampax is sold at drug stores and notion counters. A whole month's supply will go into your purse. Economy box contains 4 months' supply (average). Don't forget to try Tampax for those "extra" swims. Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

A SONG IN THE LAUNDRY

THE Teenie Weenie Chinaman hasn't been singing lately as he goes about his work in the Teenie Weenie laundry. He is too sad to sing, and that's because his beloved stove has worn out. The Chinaman has always had the best stove in the Teenie Weenie village, which is only right, for he uses a stove even more than the one in the Teenie Weenie kitchen. He heats his flat irons almost every day, besides boiling his laundry clothes and cooking his meals. His stove is the best, for it was made out of an iron pipe tee. The rest of the Teenie Weenie stoves in the village are made out of tin. Of course there was a tin top and ash pit in the Chinaman's stove, and those parts had to be renewed occasionally, but the iron pipe tee which is the body of the stove served the tiny laundry for many years. However, even a pipe tee stove will wear out in time.

There had been a crack in the stove for some time. The Chinaman had filled it with fire clay, and that kept it useful for a time, but finally it completely played out. The Turk rigged up a stove out of a metal bottle cap, but it wasn't very good, and the Chinaman was unhappy. The Chinaman spent all his spare time hunting for another pipe tee stove. He hunted thru every inch within a mile of the Teenie Weenie village, and then one evening he came shouting to the village that he had found a stove.

"Me flind way down cleek," he shouted pointing in the direction of the creek that lay near the Teenie Weenie village. "Come click! We go get."

"It's too late to get it tonight," the General said. "We'll get it first thing in the morning."

"O!" wailed the Chinaman. "We get slove now. Maybe somebodys steal."

The General tried to convince the Chinaman that no one would steal the pipe tee during the night, but the Chinaman wasn't taking any chances on losing that stove. He went back to the spot where he had found the pipe tee and he spent the night there guarding it.

In the morning a number of the Teenie Weenies went after the pipe tee. They tied it to a long twig, and four of the strongest men carried it along the steep bank of the creek. It was a very hot day, and the little chaps found that carrying a one inch pipe tee is a mighty heavy load, but finally they brought it to the Teenie Weenie work shop. The Turk soon put in a grate, and then set it up in the laundry. Now the Chinaman is happy

"CAN IT HAPPEN AT MY AGE?"
IT CAN HAPPEN TO ANYONE OVER 21. BETTER WATCH WHAT YOU PUT ON YOUR TOOTHBRUSH.
WHY? WHAT DO YOU MEAN?
HERE'S WHAT I MEAN! READ IT FOR YOURSELF!
THAT MEANS I RISK CAVITIES EVERY TIME I BRUSH MY TEETH
YES – BUT NOT IF YOU BRUSH THEM WITH TEEL. IT SAYS HERE TEEL CLEANS TEETH WITHOUT ABRASIVES.
NEXT DAY
TEEL, PLEASE!
TEEL'S MY DENTIFRICE, TOO! YOU'LL LIKE THE NICE CLEAN FEEL IT GIVES YOUR MOUTH AND TEETH!
THAT EVENING
GEE, MOM... I LIKE TEEL! IT TASTES SWELL!
AND TEEL WON'T EVER GRIND CAVITIES INTO YOUR TEETH, JIMMY. THAT'S WHY I LIKE IT!

PROCTER & GAMBLE

REPORT BASED ON NATION-WIDE SURVEY BY DENTISTS!

Out of every 10 adults, 8 have receding gums! When gums recede, parts of the teeth are exposed which are 25 times softer than tooth enamel. The daily use of toothpastes or powders containing abrasives grinds cavities into these softer parts of the teeth.

HOW LIQUID TEEL CLEANS TEETH—AND PROTECTS THEM AT SAME TIME!

TEEL cleans teeth the newer, safer way—by means of a patented ingredient instead of abrasives. Therefore TEEL protects teeth from ground-in gumline cavities. And it's the only leading dentifrice that can make this claim!

Millions now use TEEL on their toothbrush—enjoy its foamy, cleansing action—the way it helps sweeten the breath.

The New TEEL Way takes only one extra minute a week to brighten teeth safely.

There's plenty of TEEL available. Get your bottle today and follow directions on the package.

THE COMMANDING OFFICER OF THE LIBERATED ISLAND MADE ARRANGEMENTS FOR JACK, JUNGLE JOLLY AND WICKIE TO FLY, VIA ATC, TO JACK'S B-29 BASE---- JACK, IT'S GREAT TO SEE YOU AGAIN--WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO WITH JUNGLE JOLLY, NOW THAT YOU'RE BACK--?
THIS GIRL, WICKIE, WHOM I MET IN THE PRISON CAMP IS AN AMERICAN CITIZEN AN' WANTS TO TAKE HIM BACK TO THE UNITED STATES WITH HER----
WICKIE IS HEAD OVER HEELS IN LOVE WITH JUNGLE JOLLY--- WELL, FROM TH' WAY SHE LOOKS AT YOU, BROTHER, JUNGLE JOLLY ISN'T TH' ONLY ONE SHE'S IN LOVE WITH-- AW, IT'S NOTHING SERIOUS--
HA! HA! HA!--AN' WHILE WE'RE ON TH' SUBJECT OF LOVE---I'VE WATCHED THAT LI'L' BLONDE WAC, SUSAN BROWNIZE--
SHE'S CARRYING A FIFTY-CANDLE-POWER TORCH FOR YOU, TOO---I DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU HAVE BUT, BROTHER, WHATEVER IT IS IT'S MOONLIT DYNAMITE--
OH, DON'T BE SILLY--THAT LI'L' WAC JUST LOVES JUNGLE JOLLY--
MEANWHILE--
WICKIE, I'D LIKE TO HAVE A LITTLE STRAIGHT TALK WITH YOU---
GO AHEAD, LIEUTENANT--WHAT'S ON YOUR MIND?
I HEAR THAT YOU WANT TO TAKE JUNGLE JOLLY WITH YOU AND BE A MOTHER TO HIM UNTIL COLONEL MARTIN IS SHIPPED HOME--
WELL, GET THIS--I WAS LIKE A MOTHER TO JUNGLE JOLLY BEFORE YOU EVER MET HIM---
--AND I'M WARNING YOU--YOU'D BETTER NOT DO ANYTHING THAT WILL HURT JUNGLE JOLLY OR COL. MARTIN--
SO THAT'S IT--YOU'RE CARRYIN' TH' TORCH FOR COL. MARTIN--WELL, GET THIS, FRAIL ONE, YOU HAVEN'T GOT A CHANCE--
OH, OH, HERE'S JACK NOW--SHH! QUIET---
BY TH' WAY, LT. BROWNIZE, IT WAS AWFULLY DECENT OF YOU TO OFFER ME SOME CLOTHES FOR MY TRIP--
WICKIE, I'LL SEE YOU AT THE DOCK! YOUR BOAT WILL LEAVE SOON!
I DIDN'T OFFER YOU ANY CLOTHES! GET YOUR OWN CLOTHES--AND REMEMBER, WICKIE, IF YOU HURT JUNGLE JOLLY OR COLONEL MARTIN, YOU'LL PAY FOR IT---
AN' DON'T FORGET WHAT I SAID EITHER, TOOTS! YOU HAVEN'T GOT A CHANCE--

TOM'S A SWELL GUY... TOO BAD HE ISN'T A REAL MIND READER... THEN HE'D KNOW HOW MUCH WE DISLIKE "B.O."
IDEA
QUICK, GIVE ME YOUR LIPSTICK, MARY!
NOW, TO GET THIS DONE BEFORE TOM GETS BACK!
HOT
LADIES AND GENTLEMEN! AS I GAZE INTO MY CRYSTAL BALL... GULP!... ER!... GULP!
HOT WEATHER IS "B.O." WEATHER— PLAY SAFE— USE LIFEBUOY
LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP
USE IT DAILY
LIFEBUOY SURE IS COOLING AND REFRESHING THESE HOT, STICKY DAYS. WHAT A FOOL I'VE BEEN TO RISK "B.O." FROM NOW ON IT'S LIFEBUOY'S ALL-OVER, LASTING PROTECTION FOR ME!
USE WHAT YOU NEED, BUT— DON'T WASTE SOAP
I DON'T NEED A CRYSTAL BALL TO TELL ME THAT YOU'RE THE GIRL FOR ME!
OH, TOM, YOU SAY THE NICEST THINGS!
BE POPULAR— USE LIFEBUOY!

● Summer increases danger of "B.O." because you perspire more in hot weather! Play safe. Use cooling, refreshing Lifebuoy. Its purifying lather gives you all-over protection and lasting protection—yes, DOUBLE PROTECTION from "B.O."

BUSINESS MEN ENJOY RETURN TO COLLEGE LIFE

Learn, Also Teach at U. of C.

BY GENEVIEVE FLAVIN

In step—that is where Edwin J. Heimer Sr. of Highland Park will be when his only son, an ensign serving with the Seebees in the Pacific, comes sailing home.

Prompted by the desire "to speak the same language as my son" Heimer, president of the Barrett-Cravens Co., recently was graduated from the executive's course at the University of Chicago. He enrolled in the study program organized two years ago at the same time young Heimer was studying for his masters degree in the school of business administration at Harvard university, Cambridge, Mass. His son already had obtained his degree in civil engineering.

Secondary reason for entering the University of Chicago experiment was his development, during 26 years of employment, of the belief that there must be an alignment between theoretical processes and business angles. Heimer wanted to learn wherein these lines lie.

"Tired of Chasing Dollars"

"I'm getting tired of chasing the dollar bill," he continued and "I'd like to repay civilization for some of the nice things it has done for me. I know no better way than to pass along to the youth, by teaching, some of the lessons I've learned thru living and working among my fellow men."

Heimer at 48 is the oldest member of the executive's graduation class. The average age was 40. He deemed this the reason, and because he cherished the hope of school teaching, for his being dubbed Dean by his classmates. He also serves as president of the alumni association, which functions on a budget in the neighborhood of 355, which, according to Heimer, requires real business genius.

The University of Chicago originated the executive's course when it was discovered that business men enrolling in various business courses, such as accounting, merchandising, production, and expediting, did not fit into the regular university class, or rather the classes did not exactly fit them. Therefore the program was drawn up with the help of a number of business executives acting as guides.

Gets to Repeat Courses

Charles C. Holloway, Winnetka, merchandise supervisor of the furniture division of Marshall Field & Co., joined the course "because I often thought I would like to repeat certain courses taken at the University of Notre Dame, now that I am armed with business experience." He had developed a practical appreciation for his education, and thought it would be stimulating to review some phases of it.

He found association with persons from all phases of industry as instructive as many classes. Such extracurricular activities as a cup of coffee slipped in during class hours, a poker game, or a hand of bridge. He and his wife hope to enroll in the fall, along with Heimer, in art classes at the Art institute.

For the two year program, the 27 graduates, survivors of the original enrollment of 55, attended two three-hour evening classes a week. Expected to put in from 12 to 15 hours of home study per week the majority had to fit this outside work into traveling schedules which took them away for several weeks at a time. Making up classwork took "some doing."

Students Teach Teacher

Harold D. Wakefield, 1640 Sheridan rd., Evanston, market analyst for Wilson and Co., Inc., entered as a student because he wanted a comprehensive course in business practices and fundamental government. Like the instructors, who had to step aside and let practical application of business practice override theoretical planning, Wakefield learned much about business practices from fellow students. Many evenings these men, spurred by theory that contradicted practice, took over the class and wound up instructing the instructor.

Eugene P. Berg, 902 Oakton st., Evanston, industrial engineer for Link Belt Co., not only learned plenty from the course but also will complete work on the masters degree which he sought to attain, if bulk means anything. He wrote 45 pages on the final test.

As far as his report card [still to come] is concerned Berg "doesn't care much." He would like to have made that degree, however. As to additional educational pursuits, Berg emphatically stated, "This is the end."

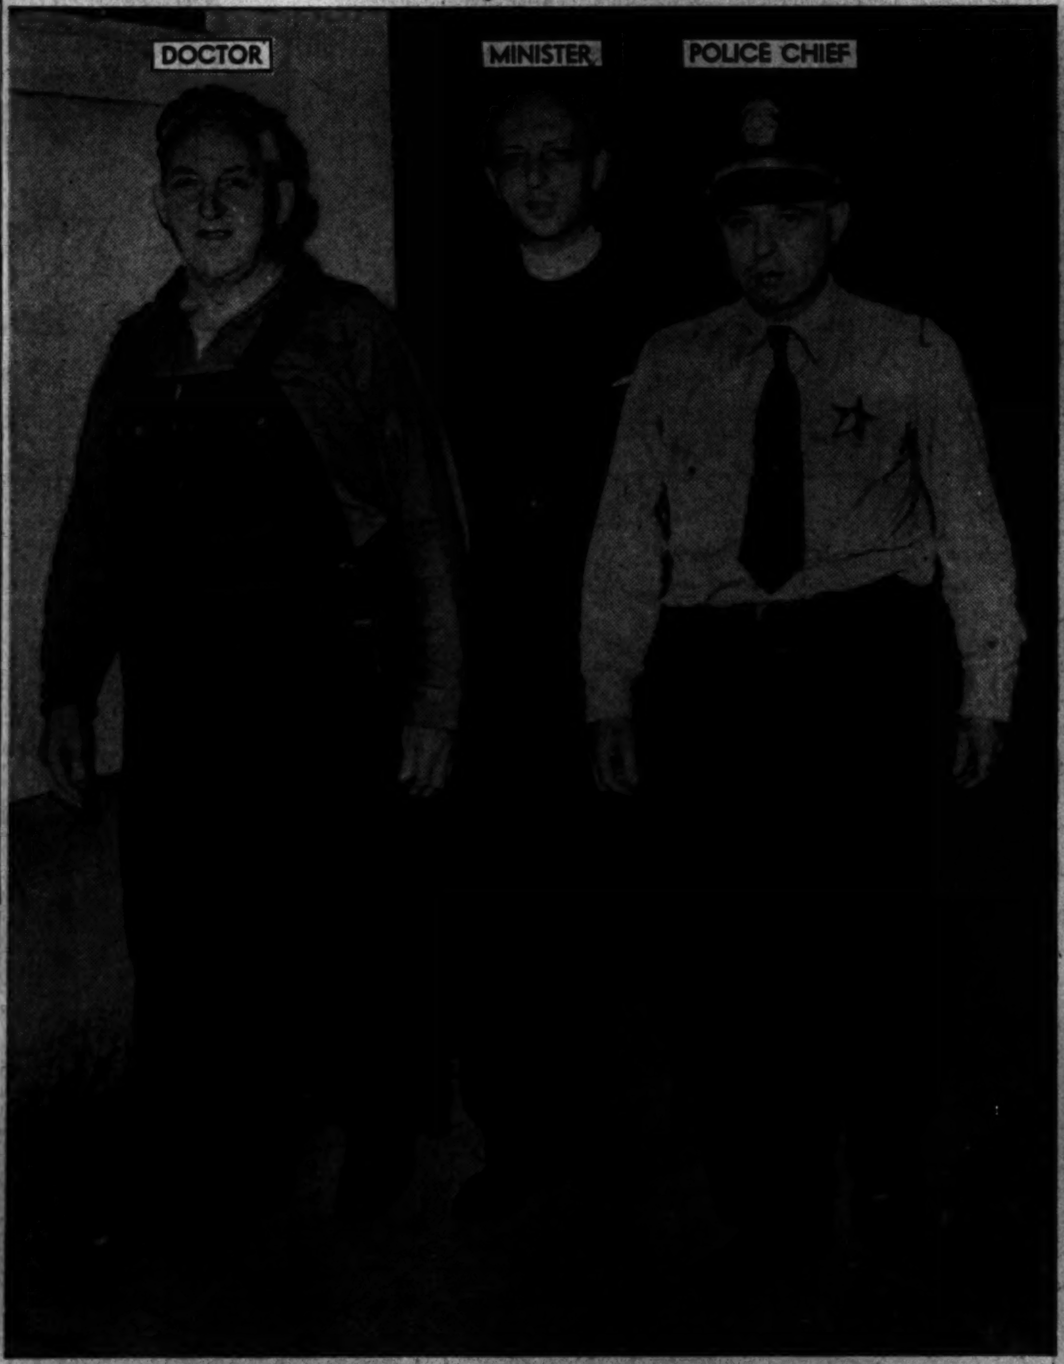
N. SIDE GIRLS REHEARSE DANCE FETE TUESDAY

North area girls participating in the dance pageant, "Buckingham Fountain," will meet at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning in the Ideal studios, 3907 Madison st., for their first rehearsal. Miss Mayblossom Macdonald will direct the pageant, which will be given Saturday night, Aug. 18, at the 16th annual Chicago Music Festival in Soldiers' field.

Regina Isabellans Will Give Benefit Dinner

Regina council, Ladies of Isabella, will give a benefit dinner at 6:30 p. m. Thursday at the Home Arts Guild, 205 N. Michigan av. Miss Clara Kloss is grand lady, and Mrs. Anna G. Flynn, arrangements chairman. Proceeds will be used for philanthropic work.

Yank Forks Encircled as Libertyville Spaghetti Girdles Globe



In Libertyville the butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker have a common denominator—patriotism. Last April when Foulds Milling company called for help in packing spaghetti for fighters overseas, men of every profession and occupation hastened to volunteer for evening shifts. Dr. James Morgan Grove (left), the Rev. Thomas K. Rogers, pastor of Libertyville Episcopal church, and Police Chief Joseph Saam at the close of a regular working day hurry to put in five hours on the assembly line with the Lions club group.

Wearing their firemen's shirts, members of the volunteer fire department maintain their traditional record for speed by packing 900 cases a night. Here George Wolff (1) holds a mallet used for blunting corners of cartons so that sharp edges will not tear waterproof bags. Frank Gould (2) shows how it's done, and Dudley McClain (12) slips a bag over a carton. Other workers are Fred Stocke (3), Fire Chief Ed Schneider (4), William Nickoley (5), Assistant Chief J. C. Treptow (6), Eugene Luce (7), Factory Manager J. J. Jaeger (8), who supervises work; Township Supervisor Guy Grinnell (9), Harry McDonald (10), and Bob Lyons (11).

PUTTING STEEL BANDS ON SHIPPING CARTONS
BUSINESS MEN'S GROUP

Tuesday night packers, the business men's group, are putting steel bands around sturdy boxes, made especially for overseas shipment. Each box contains two cartons. Left to right are Kenneth Varney, Bank Cashier Roy F. Wright, S. M. Wardwell, war plant chemist; Robert G. Folger, lumber merchant; Lyle Howell, Draft Board Chairman Mark Neville, William L. Legate, war plant official, and Dr. James M. Grove.

4 COUPLES MARK 50TH WEDDINGS WITH FRIENDS

Three Are Residents of Evanston

Tho the divorce rate is reported to be increasing daily, proof that marriages can last is offered by four north side couples who recently celebrated 50th weddings. Three husbands of these June brides of 50 years ago also have marked half a century in their vocations.

Residents of Evanston since their wedding June 25, 1895, in the suburb's Second Presbyterian church, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad H. Poppenhusen celebrated with an open house for friends and relatives in their home at 1741 Hinman av., Evanston. The couple has a son, Conrad Jr., who lives in California, and a daughter, Mrs. George S. Fox, and granddaughter, Virginia Fox, who live at the Hinman av. address.

Admitted to Bar in '93

Poppenhusen, whose parents came to Evanston in 1884, was admitted to the bar in 1893 and is a member of a law firm at 11 S. La Salle st. He is a member of the Chicago, Illinois State, and American Bar associations. He is a former president of National College of Education.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Wright, 1141 Oak av., Evanston, marked the day by repeating their vows in St. Mary's church, Evanston. Mass was said by two nephews, the Rev. George G. Kearney and the Rev. Fred Wenthe. A breakfast in the Georgian hotel followed. Mary Irene Wright, a granddaughter, was maid of honor. Flower girls were Karen Kearney and Barbara Wenthe, grandnieces.

One hundred guests attended a reception for the couple in the evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Kearney, 1405 Lincoln av., Evanston. Mrs. Wright is past Illinois president of Daughters of the G. A. R. and past president of the Edgewater Catholic Woman's club. They have two sons and a grandson, Pvt. Robert Wright, with the army in Italy.

30 Relatives at Party

Before his retirement in 1940 as an assistant secretary for the Chicago Title and Trust Co., Robert H. Mueller, 5956 Magnolia av., was in the firm's employ 51 years and says he'd rather "work than loaf. Playing solitaire and listening to the radio isn't much fun," he declared. "My wife is luckier; she works with the Red Cross."

The Muellers celebrated their 50th anniversary with a party for 93 guests, including almost 30 nephews and nieces, in the parish hall of Bethany Lutheran church, Thorndale and Magnolia avs. Mrs. Mueller is a past president of the women's society of the church. The couple has one son, Irwin C., 4826 Parker av., and a grandson, Robert.

Residents of Chicago since 1911 and north siders for 34 years, Mr. and Mrs. David W. F. Turbyfill, 4345 Kenmore av., were guests at a reception at 4557 Broadway, given by friends and attended by more than 150 guests.

WAR FUND AIDS APPOINTED FOR NORTH DISTRICTS

Announce Plans for Suburban Areas

Plans for the 1945 Community and War Fund campaign already are under way, with the announcement by north side volunteer leader James R. Sterling of 3750 Lake Shore dr., city division chairman.

Regional co-directors will be John N. Elliott, 5100 N. Clark st., and C. G. Wilson, 2847 N. Clark st., who will supervise solicitation in residences and small businesses in the area bounded by Ohio and Howard sts. and Western av. and Lake Michigan.

Leaders of '44 to Repeat

In the women's cabinet of the city division, Mrs. Snelling Robinson, 1242 N. State st., and Mrs. A. R. Adolph, 6621 N. Ashland av., leaders in the 1944 women's division, will help in recruiting north side solicitors and directing the drive.

Heading Near North Side solicitors in the women's special gifts division will be Mrs. R. Winfield Ellis, 70 Cedar st., and Mrs. Seymour Oppenheimer, 2430 Lakeview av., who will direct 18 captains and 90 workers, the largest women's contingent in the city.

Mrs. Martin P. Murphy, 1216 Roscoe st., will have charge of about 12 workers in the far north side women's special gifts group. Their drive will begin early in September and will conclude before the campaign proper opens Oct. 1.

Goals Yet to Be Fixed

Suburban Division Chairman Stuart W. Cochran has announced that E. F. Nelson of Deerfield will be north side regional chairman. His assistants will be C. A. Faulkner of Gurnee, Carl W. Reinbach of Lake Villa, and James W. Collins of Deerfield.

Altho no national goal has been set, officials predicted it would be larger than $13,000,000, approximately the amount raised last year. Contributions go into the national fund, which raises money for 16 allied war relief agencies and five American groups, and the community fund, which gives to 187 health and welfare agencies in the Chicago area. Money subscribed in suburban areas goes only to suburban chests and charities and war related agencies.

BARGAIN DAY ON BIAK: NATIVE OFFERS A BABY FOR RING (NO TAKERS)

W. F. La Plant

Coast Guardsman Wilber L. La Plant has come home to his wife, Rosalie, 7464 Greenview av., from the Pacific—but he almost didn't come home alone. At Biak he nearly made a trade which probably would have cooled his reception by quite a few degrees.

The natives had paddled out in their outrigger canoes to see the patrol frigate and do a little business. "The boys were swapping trinkets for Jap souvenirs," Bill explains, "when I spied a native baby brought out by one of the men.

"Well, I made signs to tell the father I thought his kid was cute—and the guy held him up to me, offering to swap him for my coast guard ring." It was a bargain—but not for Wilbur. He didn't think his wife would appreciate this addition—and besides, she had given him the ring for his birthday.

First Methodist Choir

The summer choir of First Methodist church, Evanston, will sing selections from Haydn's oratorio, "The Creation," in a concert at 4:30 p. m. next Sunday.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

The bronze star for heroism at Bittersdorf, Germany, has been awarded Corp. Jerome X. Buxbaum, son of Mrs. Marion Buxbaum, 4401 N. Hamilton st. A field artillery radio operator, Corp. Buxbaum entered service in February, 1942. He is a graduate of Lane Technical High school.

Lt. Murray

Marine Lt. Douglas G. Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Murray, 2118 Farwell av., has returned to the United States for reassignment. Pilot of a Corsair, Lt. Murray completed 450 overseas flying hours. He is a graduate of Evanston Township High school, and was attending Curtis Wright Technical school when he joined the marines.

Sgt. Charles J. McGivern, son of Mrs. Alice J. McGivern, 1408 Belle Plaine av., has been discharged from the army under the point system. In service 56 months, he was in the Aleutian Islands 27 months.

Flight Officer Philip Camerano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Camerano, 1418 Sedgwick st., has been assigned to John H. Payne field, Cairo, Egypt. He attended Northwestern university.

Pvt. Harry Schubert, 2030 Mohawk st., is at Miami, Fla., redistribution center. He served 12 months with a transportation corps unit in the South Pacific.

VICTORIAN AGE DANCE HALL TO ECHO TO JIVE

Youths Will Attend Saturday Nights

Saturday night the old Huntinghouse Dance academy, 4616 N. Clark st., again will open its doors to the youth of the north shore. The ballroom will cater to bobby soxers, 14 to 20, in its roccoco decor of the Victorian era.

At the turn of the century the Huntinghouse and its master, R. G. Huntinghouse, welcomed youngsters interested in learning to waltz or schottische. Young people who became well known civic and social leaders once stepped off to the counting of the dancing master.

Civic Groups Back Plan

The new era, however, will be one of jitterbugging, the carioca, and a speeded up version of the tango. The program will be offered with the sanction of civic and local organizations interested in the teen-age groups of the district.

Activated by the desire of young people for a dance hall where they could fraternize with boys and girls of their own age, and of homes in the community, C. G. Morgan, present owner of the building in which the ballroom is located, decided to open it again on a nonprofit basis.

Morgan, who publishes elementary school textbooks, called a meeting of civic leaders and outlined his plan. The group, which indorsed a series of Saturday night dances thruout the summer, includes Mrs. Walter Hermsdorf and Mrs. H. W. Hartough of the Community Leadership Council, Inc.; Mrs. Helen Cotharin, Ravenswood Woman's club president; Earl Foster, president of the Uptown Clark St. Business Men's association, and representatives of the local American Legion posts, Kiwanis, and Lion clubs.

Huntinghouse to Attend

A five piece band will provide music and a coke bar and hot dog stand will remain open for business thruout the evening which will begin at 8 p. m. and conclude at midnight.

Huntinghouse, originator of the academy, now 85 years of age and retired to his farm in Saugatuck, Mich., will be on hand to welcome the new generation opening night. Attending will be the grandchildren of many of his former pupils. He also promises to waltz to the new tempo.

FOREST SHADE OFFERS SOLACE TO CITY WEARY

Chicago's Fringe: A Cool Green

(Fourth of a series of articles telling of interesting places available to Chicagoans who are vacationing at home due to war time travel restrictions.)

BY ONEY FRED SWEET

In the good old summer time Chicagoans may vacation in the country with a minimum of travel for the forest preserve district of Cook county is a green fringe at the city's edge.

From the loop to the farthest point in the preserves—Deer Grove, Quintens and Dundee rds.—is no more than 30 miles. Dan Ryan woods, 87th st. and Western av., and Caldwell woods, Milwaukee and Devon avs., are no more than 10 miles out. So far as offering any reminder of office and shop routine or household tasks, the woods and waters might well be thousands of miles away.

Nature Has Soothing Message

But a holiday in the preserves does evoke memories of other carefree hours in the out-of-doors. The good earth and the great sky have not changed. The birds have all come back. The shade lies deep beneath the old oak trees and all about there is the clean smell of growing things. A summer's day close to nature is as it has always been and the troubles of man have not altered its soothing message.

For golfers there are 18 hole courses at Northwestern, Harms rd. and Simpson st., Indian Boundary, Forest Preserve dr. and Cumberland av. and Edgebrook, Central and Devon avs. Billy Caldwell course of nine holes is at Caldwell av., north of Elston av.

Swimmers may take on sunburn at Emmett Whealan pool, Milwaukee and Devon avs.; Cermak pool, 7600 Ogden av., Lyons, and Green Lake pool, 159th st. and Torrence av.

Fish Await Anglers

There are plenty of places along the winding banks of the placid Des Plaines, where, in the companionship of serene surroundings, you can lazily wait for the fish to bite. They're all by your side again the gay winged butterfly that flits to a happy landing on your floating cork, the curious turtle that pokes its head above the stream's calm surface, the reflection in the water of, let us hope, a kindly cloud.

Fishing is permitted in all of the streams in the district, either from the banks or from boats. Ten fishing boats were placed in Maple lake three years ago; today the demand has been met for 60.

Today the aroma of coffee in the brewing will blend with the fragrant summer breeze at many a picnic spot in the preserves. Families, churches, lodges, and other groups have applied for permits if they number more than 25. They have been assigned to certain areas according to their needs. There are 96 large groves from which to make a selection.

Tables and benches have been provided. Open air fireplaces also are a part of the picnic facilities. From deep wells at convenient locations water may be drawn for drinking and making the coffee and lemonade—and for putting out the camp fire.

Children's Shouts Echo

The children will play games that call for freedom and the echo of their shouts will be accepted uncomplainingly by friendly foliage alongside the open field. The old folks will rest and visit and look on. And there'll be at least a layer cake to lift from the hamper, even tho the sandwich meat is skimpier than of yore.

There'll be some neighborhood groups that will bring along their musicians and their playing of the "squeeze box" or the zither will lend a gypsy touch to the day of escape.

There'll be dancing couples on many of the 75 platforms scattered thruout the preserves.

If the weather is fair an estimated half million persons will enjoy the preserves today, but there will be plenty of space to absorb a half million more.

Historic Site Restored

The historically minded will be interested in the site of the Old Chicago Portage, 1673-1836, that has been restored at Harlem av. and 47th st. It marks the west end of a strip of land used as the carrying or connecting place uniting the waters of the St. Lawrence with those of the Mississippi river. With the portage are associated such names as Joliet, Marquette, La Salle, and other explorers, and it had much to do with determining the site of Chicago.

Most of the vast acreage is maintained in its native state. Wild flowers have been protected. The toads and the turtles, the hawks and the owls, the chipmunks and the squirrels continue to scamper or fly about as in the days of the horse and buggy when their environs were remote and inaccessible to most city dwellers. Way before that, when there were no white men in the vicinity.

At Trailside museum, Chicago and Thatcher avs., there are on exhibition the living or mounted species of the creatures that make the preserves their habitat. Here interested persons may make a closer study of their furred and feathered friends. Wounded birds are hospitalized, and there is a cage where children may enjoy the tamed animals and birds for playmates.

Hikers may take the same trails

SAVING OF PAPER WILL CONTINUE THRU SUMMER

Name Collection Points for North Side

To enable Chicagoans to continue their contributions of vital waste paper for military use and war industries, 205 city, school, and park playgrounds have been designated collection centers for the summer months. Weekly collections at each point will be substituted for school term collections by pupils thruout the city.

A marked area is provided at each playground for the paper, which may be brought at any time during the week. The summer pickups, under the sponsorship of the Chicago Waste Paper Campaign committee, will continue until Aug. 25.

List Pickup Points

The schedule for pickups at north area playgrounds is as follows:

Monday—Revere park, Irving Park rd. and Campbell av.

Wednesday — Welles park, Montrose and Western avs.; Audubon school, Hoyne and Cornelia avs.; Lake Shore park, Chicago av. and Lake Shore dr., and Hayt school, 1518 Granville av.

REGISTRATION UP 31 PER CENT AT LOYOLA SCHOOLS

Summer enrollment in Loyola university's lake shore and downtown divisions totals 1,237, a 31 per cent increase over that of last summer. In addition, nearly 1,500 students are registered in medical, dental, and nursing schools and the extension and home study programs.

Two courses, which have drawn unusually large enrollments and which are offered in the Chicago area only by Loyola, are physiology and anatomy of speech and voice mechanism. Officials said the courses, which were initiated last spring, are given for teachers of backward children.

Other classes with large registrations include rational psychology, interracial problems, formal logic, and English literature.

Robert B. Pierce, pastor in the pulpit. August services will be held in the Union church of which the Rev. Robert L. Stubbs is pastor.

MANY NO. SIDE SCOUTS EXCEED GEN. IKE GOALS

During the recent Gen. Eisenhower Boy Scout waste paper drive, more than 8,000 north shore district scouts contributed 1,834,175 pounds to the Chicago total of 9,778,366 pounds. Gen. Eisenhower medals, for individuals collecting 1,000 pounds of paper, were won by 2,029 Scouts.

Leading unit was the Cub pack sponsored by the Bryn Mawr community group with a total of 102,979 pounds. Second place, with 59,288 pounds, was won by the Portage Park American Legion sponsored troop. Third and fourth places were taken by Bethlehem Evangelical Lutheran church troop, 55,150 pounds, and Temple Beth Isreal troop, 54,225 pounds, respectively. A total of 53,529 pounds gathered by St. Paul's by the Lake troop, gave it fifth place.

More than 50,000 pounds were collected by Gale Fathers' council sponsored troop, and that of the Ravenswood Methodist church. Troops sponsored by First Methodist church of Irving Park, Our Saviour Lutheran church, Men's club of Emanuel Congregation, Pierce PTA, and Chicago Elevated American Legion post made collections of between 40,000 and 45,000 pounds each.

Troops in the 35,000 to 40,000 pound bracket were those of St. Priscilla church, Uptown Chicago Lions club, Rogers PTA, Lakeview Presbyterian church, Irving Park Baptist church, and St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran church.

Thirteen troops had collections of between 30,000 and 35,000 pounds. They are those sponsored by Pilgrim Evangelical church, St. Alphonsus Catholic church, St. Viator Catholic church, Albany Park American Legion, Amundsen High school, Edison Park Methodist church, Bethel Methodist church, Jamieson's Dad's club, and Mount Calvary Lutheran church, Rogers Park Baptist church, St. Andrew's Catholic church, Shaare Tikvah North Park Congregation, Gross Park Immanuel Baptist church, and Community's Parents auxiliary.

PROWLING CATS ELUDE FIGHTING LADY ON PROWL

Friend of Birds Hopes to Triumph Yet

Waging a valiant war involving "cats, hats, and gats," Miss Gertrude Charny, a frail 5 feet 1 inch woman of determination, has returned to her home, 6972 Greenview av., after several months in Springfield, Ill., where she specialized in fighting cats.

As organizer and president of Friends of the Birds, Inc., an affiliate of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, Miss Charny last winter made her initial appearance as a lobbyist bent on getting a law enacted to keep cats from prowling.

Tho the bill passed the Illinois house June 14, it was killed in a senate committee, much to Miss Charny's disappointment, but not despair. She hopes to continue the fight she's started. If she doesn't finish it some one else will, she believes.

Wars on Feathered Hats

"Birds have three enemies," explained the white haired little lady, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of California. "I can't do much about guns, and I don't have much trouble with hats. Women usually say they never thought about where feathers on hats originated, and after I explain the situation they promise not to wear feathers any more. But cats are a nuisance," she sighed.

Since one cat may kill 300 birds in a season, its destructive power far outweighs its worth as a mouser, Miss Charny declares, asserting that government experiments show a few traps will catch more mice in one night than a cat will in months.

Whereas, she continued, birds are valuable. They daily eat more than their weight in insects, thus increasing the human food supply and decreasing the cost of living. Miss Charny marshaled statistics in proof thereof: one quail makes a meal of 1,000 grasshoppers plus 532 assorted insects, and one covey can clean an acre of potato beetles in a day. One purple martin dines on 1,000 mosquitoes a day, to say nothing of sundry other insects, and a flicker consumes 5,000 ants a meal without overeating.

Finds Law No Aid

Her friendliness for birds dates from her childhood, Miss Charny said. For three years before the war she maintained feeding stations thruout Rogers Park, sometimes trudging 10 miles a day in all kinds of weather because the birds expected her.

Discovering after an appeal to policemen for protection against prowling cats that the bluecoats couldn't help because there was no law to support them, Miss Charny determined to get legal backing for her fight. She read law books and for three years collected information about cats and birds.

Much of her data on felines which nonplused representatives was obtained from an out of print volume, "The Domestic Cat, Bird Killer, Mouser, and Destroyer of Wild Life," by E. H. Forbush, published in 1916. John Crerar library ordered a copy from Washington, D. C., and Miss Charny went to the library daily for more than a week until she had copied the book verbatim.

Tells of Long Struggle

"If the birds and cats weren't so important," she said with a twinkle in her eye, "I could tell quite a story about the adventures of an amateur lobbyist. In Springfield I had nothing and no one to back me up, not even a knowledge of legislative procedure. It was several weeks before I obtained a sponsor for the bill. Then I began to write letters, often till 1:30 a. m., typing them because a typed letter is more effective than a mimeographed copy.

Not content with her efforts in the legislature, Miss Charny conducted a house to house survey on the side, after noticing what seemed to be a prevalence of cats in certain sections of Springfield. She began ringing doorbells at 7 o'clock one morning. "I beg your pardon, but do you have any cats," she would say.

"People were very coöperative," Miss Charny declared, "and I discovered some surprising things. Of 53 families, only one owned a cat. That shows most cats are tramps or strays and should be dealt with. But poison is dangerous and shooting in the city limits is illegal.

"There's got to be a law!"

N. U. MEN TO AID ARMY'S SCHOOL SETUP IN EUROPE

Three Northwestern university professors are expected to arrive in London this week to head sections of an educational program for American troops in Europe. They plan to remain abroad for at least seven months.

The professors are Dean Kenneth E. Olson of Medill school of journalism, Dr. Ward V. Evans, chairman of the chemistry department, and Dr. James Hawkinson, professor of marketing in the school of commerce.

Plan Eight Week Periods

The program, organized to give fighters an opportunity for education while awaiting redeployment, will be held at centers at Shrivenham, England, and Fontainebleau, France. A central technical school will be established at Titworth, England. Each center will enroll 4,000 soldiers and WACs at a time for eight week periods.

Altho some key positions will be filled by civilian teachers from the United States, most of the instructors will come from army ranks. The Shrivenham staff will include 216 civilians, 156 officers, and 843 enlisted men. Students will live in dormitories, since the centers will be organized like American universities rather than army schools.

Courses will be given in agriculture, commerce, engineering, fine arts, liberal arts, journalism, science, and education. In addition, there will be schools offering subjects at elementary and high school levels. Unit schools will serve battalions and other groups away from the centers.

Journalism School Head

In directing his part of the program, Dean Olson, who has been head of the journalism school since 1937, will use experience obtained in 1919, when as a soldier in the AEF he studied in the University of Bordeaux while awaiting transportation home.

Dean Olson is the author of numerous market surveys and studies on newspaper costs. He was president of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism from 1933 to 1935 and president of the American Association of Schools of Journalism in 1939. He is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, national honorary journalism fraternity.

Dr. Evans, a national authority on explosives, has been a member of Northwestern's faculty since 1916. During World War I., he worked with the United States bureau of mines in the testing of high explosives.

Athletic Committee Chairman

Dr. Evans' course on "The Chemistry of Explosives" has been used in the present war as a model for OCD instruction against aerial bombing. For the last two years the professor has been chairman of the faculty committee on athletics. He is a past president of the Chicago chapter of the American Chemical society.

Prof. Hawkinson has been on the faculty since 1926. In 1940-'41 he was a director of the Chicago chapter of the American Marketing association.

In the absence of Dean Olson, Prof. Charles L. Allen will serve as acting dean of the journalism school. Dr. Robert Summerbell, chemistry professor, will replace Dr. Evans, who is retiring.

NEW WINNETKA CHIEF OF POLICE FROM W. COAST

Lt. George C. Bowers of the Berkeley, Cal., police department has been appointed chief of police in Winnetka. He will assume his new duties about Aug. 1.

A member of the Berkeley force since 1936, Bowers was graduated from Berkeley High school and attended the University of California. He has completed a number of courses in police administration.

Before her recent marriage Mrs. Jerome Idelman was Gloria Cassman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cassman, 319 Dempster st., Evanston. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Idelman, 7606 Bosworth av.

EDWIN S. MILLS NAMED LIFE N. U. BOARD MEMBER

Edwin S. Mills, 1804 Hinman av., Evanston, has been elected to life membership on the Northwestern university board of trustees, University President Franklyn B. Snyder has announced.

A board member since 1917, Mills has been treasurer of endowment funds, chairman of the budget committee and the committee on investments, and, since 1930, a vice president of the board. A statement issued by the university said, "He has been intelligently and courageously devoted to the best interests of the university thruout his 28 years on the board."

Other life trustees include Robert W. Campbell, John H. Hardin, Charles H. Thorne, Silas H. Strawn, Irwin Rew, and Theodore W. Robinson. Recently elected board members are Mrs. I. A. Smothers, 204 Davis st., Evanston, and Methodist Bishop Junius Ralph Magee of the Chicago area.

A Northwestern graduate in 1912, Mrs. Smothers served two terms as associate alumnae president, three terms on the Alumni association board, and is a member of the university Y. W. C. A. advisory board. She is active in the University guild, Woman's club, and Red Cross work.

Bishop Magee is a trustee of Cornell college, Mount Vernon, Ia.; Simpson college, Indianola, Ia., and Dakota Wesleyan university, Mitchell, S. D. He was president of Hamline university, St. Paul, Minn., in 1933-'34. Before taking his Chicago post, he was bishop of the St. Paul and Des Moines areas.

Evanston Bride

MRS. L. W. HITCHCOCK

In a recent ceremony at the First Methodist church, Evanston, Dorothy Virginia Barney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Barney, 840 Lincoln st., Evanston, was married to Corp. Lawrence W. Hitchcock Jr., 1032 Ridge ct., Evanston. The couple will be at home in Camp Lockett, Cal., where Corp. Hitchcock is stationed.

DAVID SHIPLEY APPOINTED TO GARRETT STAFF

Dr. David C. Shipley has been elected associate professor of historical theology and ethics at Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, and will assume his duties Sept. 1.

During the last two years Dr. Shipley has served as associate professor in the school of religion, University of Iowa, Iowa City. Previously he was pastor at Elsinor, Cal., Methodist church.

Dr. Shipley took his undergraduate work at Asbury college, Wilmore, Ky., and earned both his master of arts and master of theology degrees at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles. In 1942 he was awarded a doctor of philosophy degree from the graduate school at Yale university, New Haven, Conn.

While at Yale he held a graduate fellowship awarded for scholarship. He also served as director of the Wesley Foundation, a position which he held while at the University of California.

Before entering the field of religious education Dr. Shipley was pastor of Methodist churches in Riverside and Los Angeles, Cal. He is a member of the National Association of Biblical Instructors.

Blackened spaces on the map denote location of the 36,600 acres of the forest preserve and highways leading to them from all parts of the city. The recreation areas may easily be reached by street cars, by elevated and electric lines, and by buses and steam trains, as well as by automobiles.

Preserves Visited by 15 Million Yearly

The forest preserve district of Cook county is the largest area of its kind in the United States within a metropolitan area. It was established in 1915 "to protect and preserve the flora, fauna, and scenic beauties, and to restore, restock protect, and preserve the natural condition, for the purpose of the education, pleasure, and recreation of the public."

The acres dedicated to posterity border the Des Plaines river, the north branches of the Chicago river, the Skokie marsh, Salt creek, Thorn creek, and other inland bodies of water.

Since 1929, a program of improvement to care for large crowds adequately without injury to landscape has been put into effect. The district now has more than 15,000,000 visitors yearly.

The only "don't" at the preserves is "don't destroy."

Clayton F. Smith, president of the forest preserve commissioners, emphasizes that the people should consider the preserves as their property and keep in mind the thought of preservation.

R. J. PENNY WINS CAPTAIN'S RANK AT GREAT LAKES

The bronze star for heroism in Italy from last January until June, has been awarded Lt. Lincoln A. Peterson, 1642 Grace st. In the army since March, 1942, he participated in the North African and Italian campaigns. He has been overseas since May, 1943.

After 36 months with a special service unit in the Asiatic Pacific theater, Technician 5th Grade Angelo B. Pizzi, husband of Mrs. Dorothy Pizzi, 3354 N. Halsted st., has returned to this country and is awaiting reassignment at Miami Beach, Fla.

Chief Petty Officer B. B. Anderson, 1015 Irving Park rd., is home on leave after 18 months in the Aleutians with the Seabees.

Marine Sgt. Ted Hall, 1427 Birchwood av., is in the Hawaiian Islands. He entered service in August, 1943, and has been overseas since June, 1944. He is a graduate of Sullivan High school.

Sgt. Hall

The Purple Heart for wounds received in action at Velden, Germany, has been awarded Pvt. Thomas J. Corrigan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Corrigan, 1420 Edgewater av. He has returned to his regiment with the 3d army in Austria. Pvt. Corrigan entered the army in January, 1943 and went overseas last January. He is a graduate of Senn High school.

The bronze star medal has been awarded to Tech. Sgt. Albert D. Gutsche, whose wife, Ruth, resides at 1620 Ridge av., Evanston. With the 15th army corps in Austria, Lt. Gutsche received the award for meritorious services during the German campaign. He has been overseas 15 months. He is on military leave from THE TRIBUNE.

In recent ceremonies at Kennedy General hospital, Memphis, Tenn., the silver star was presented Sgt. William McHugh, 225 Melrose st. Before returning to the United States as a patient, Sgt. McHugh was a member of the 2d Ranger battalion in the German theater.

CHILDREN ENJOY VACATION SHOW THRU LIBRARIES

Under the slogan, "You Can Have a Circus with Books," Chicago public libraries will sponsor reading courses for grammar school children this summer. In each library large posters decorated with colorful clowns and other circus paraphernalia will give information and list pupils enrolled in the courses, most of which will continue thru Aug. 31.

For the first two books read each child will receive a cardboard clown. Each additional book will win a balloon for the clown to hold. Six books must be read to complete the program, credit for which will apply on school work. In some libraries children will attend weekly meetings to give reports, hear reviews, and discuss their reading.

Adventure Books Are Favorites

Participants will receive credit for reading any approved children's book. Librarians said Terhune's animal stories, Boy Scout, and Sea Scout books, and adventure stories are favorite reading.

Eric Knight's "Lassie Come Home" is one of the most popular books on the shelves of Olivet Institute library, 1441 Cleveland av., where the question "Has Lassie come home?" is a standing joke among children and librarians.

All Grades Like Lassie

Miss Ramona Koenemann, children's librarian in Lincoln Park library, 744 Fullerton pkwy., also reported the popularity of Knight's book and said that, altho the story is on a high school reading level, 1st and 2d grade pupils will pore over it because they like Lassie so much.

Lincoln Park's discussion groups will meet at 2 p. m. Tuesdays and Thursdays and at 10 a. m. Saturdays, with pupils attending any one of the three. At a weekly book auction Miss Koenemann will preside as auctioneer, and, after discussing recent publications and new additions to the shelves, will "sell" books to bidders. No money is exchanged; a book goes to the child who raises his hand and he fills out a library card in the customary manner.

Meet Twice Weekly

At Lakeview library, 644 Belmont av., 3d, 4th, and 5th grade pupils will meet at 2 p. m. Tuesdays, and 6th, 7th, and 8th grade students will meet at 3 p. m. Thursdays. Esther Barlow, children's librarian, will have charge.

Children will make oral book reports between 1:30 and 5 p. m. daily at Hamlin Park library, 2035 N. Hoyne av. Fifth thru 8th grade children will meet Tuesday and Friday afternoons, and kindergarten thru 4th grade pupils will meet at 10:30 a. m. Saturday. Mrs. Audrey E. Faulhaber will supervise the program.

Miss Catherine E. Adamson will have charge of the course at Hild library, 4536 Lincoln av. Third and 4th grade pupils will meet at 2 p. m. Wednesdays; 5th and 6th grade pupils at 2 p. m. Thursdays, and 7th and 8th grade pupils at 2 p. m. Fridays.

Sheridan Library Handicapped

At Rogers Park library, 1733 Greenleaf av., older children will gather at 2 p. m. Mondays and primary grades will meet at 10:30 a. m. Saturdays. Miss Dorothea Federgren will have charge.

Participants in the course at Sheridan library, 4869 Broadway, may give book reports at any time during library hours, said Miss Ruth Erenberg, children's librarian. Because of the lack of help, no special meetings will be held.

A picnic probably will close the course offered at Northtown library, 2502 Devon av., staff members said. Miss Irene Jernberg will conduct the program in the absence of Miss Bernice Perley, children's librarian.

Hold Book Review

Mrs. Otho E. Scott will give a book review sponsored by women of First Methodist church, Evanston, following a dessert luncheon at 1:30 p. m. July 20.

DEERFIELD BUYS CLUBHOUSE FOR NEW CITY HALL

The Deerfield village board of trustees has entered into a contract with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bruce Harris and Frank S. Harris for the purchase of the former Briergate Country club quarters for a village hall and community center.

The trustee board, of which Robert A. Alexander is president, appropriated $10,000 of unused money in the water department fund for purchase of the building.

The village also will acquire more than an acre of land on which the building stands. The new hall is on Deerfield rd., a few blocks east of Waukegan rd.

The village has had rented quarters in the Masonic temple, where the lease will expire Sept. 1. In connection with the purchase of the new hall, funds were voted to recondition it for the village's use. A program will be laid out for use for community purposes of space in the building not needed by the trustee board, the water department, and the police department.

The golf course, now operated on a daily fee basis, has its own clubhouse near-by.

VILLAGE PULLS TOGETHER DOING JOB FOR ARMY

Civic Groups Turn Out to Pack Spaghetti

BY RUTH LOGAN

Spaghetti girdles the globe as smoothly and as saucilly as it wraps about the tines of a fork.

Spaghetti has been washed ashore on a south sea island, traveled by jeep thru Germany and France, and hurdled the Hump in Asia. The army wants spaghetti; and that's what it gets!

But not without the aid of business men in Libertyville, who have as much American spirit as has the name of their village. Bankers, pastors, and bartenders have become night war workers in Foulds Milling company, Libertyville, packing spaghetti according to army specifications for overseas shipment.

Many have sons in service, and others are World War I. veterans. The latter pack a little faster, perhaps, helping the boys who've taken their places in chow lines and behind machine guns overseas.

Meets Army Quota

Since early last April the volunteers have prepared 37 carloads, each containing 60,000 pounds, the amount that was promised by the end of June. A new contract calls for 40 per cent of company production, instead of the 37 per cent previously asked.

"You'd think demand would decrease after V-E day," declared Vice President D. N. Givler. "Instead it's tripled. We're feeding starches to the population of Europe, including patriots, partizans, and prisoners!

"But the plant needs more packers," said Factory Manager J. J. Jaeger, in charge of night shifts. "We'll have to increase production in some way, tho we've run for the last three years on a 24 hour, seven day schedule."

The factory, which employs approximately 90 men and 160 women, permitted women to pack army orders for a time, but the work was too heavy. After the help shortage made it impossible to get men packers, the company called for volunteers to work a 6:30 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. shift.

Get Quick Response

On April 5 A. H. Hagerty and Marshall Schroeder of the two Libertyville newspapers issued calls for help. The first crew began work the following night.

The next week three 12-men crews were organized, each working one night weekly. Soon four groups were working. Tuesday night the business men's group packs, on Wednesday volunteer firemen take over, Thursday is Lions club night, and on Friday the Community club exhibits its skill.

A spirited but friendly rivalry prevails. Firemen consistently are the fastest packers, tho the business men set a record last week of 924 cases packed in a night. The firemen occasionally have quit early to keep from setting too fast a pace for their less rugged competitors.

Production Takes Spurt

Unaccustomed to the work which requires manual dexterity as well as strength, the men packed 300 to 400 cases a night at first. Now they move with effortless speed, wrapping almost 4,000 cases each week.

Workers with sons in service include Jaeger, whose son, Staff Sgt. Richard, recently won the silver star for bravery in administering medical aid under enemy fire on Luzon. He has been overseas more than two years. Another son, Sgt. John Jr., is with the army engineers in Germany.

When William Nickoley takes his place on the firemen's assembly line, he is doing his part to feed Marine Corp. Kenneth Nickoley in the Marshall islands. Dr. James Morgan Grove's son, Maj. Harry M., recently returned from Germany.

SGT. SUMMERS WINS BRONZE STAR; MEDIC COMING HOME SOON

Sgt. Summers

When Sgt. Donald Summers arrives at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Summers, 1762 Juneway terr., some time in August, he will be wearing a bronze star medal in addition to five battle stars.

He received the medal for heroic service in connection with military operations from June 16, 1944, to March 1, 1945, in France, Luxemburg, and Belgium. From the time his outfit, the 65th medics, landed in Normandy, France, until the crossing of the Rhine and the surrender of Germany, Summers, a pharmacist, set up and maintained the chief dispensary for the preparation of medicine for his regiment. As a stretcher bearer, he also helped to rescue wounded Yanks while under fire, and assisted at emergency operations. Sgt. Summers is in Pilsen, Germany, awaiting the trip home after which he expects to be assigned to the Pacific theater. He entered military service in March, 1942. He was graduated from the University of Illinois in 1940.

Wed to Veteran of Trinidad

After a wedding trip to Santa Monica, Cal., Corp. and Mrs. Lee Roy Martin will live in Macon, Ga., where he is stationed with the army air forces. Before her marriage in St. Timothy's Catholic church, Washtenaw and Devon avs., the bride was Mary Mackey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Mackey, 6549 N. Talman av. Corp. Martin, son of Mrs. Frances Money, Santa Monica, recently returned after 27 months in Trinidad. Mr. Mackey is a former deputy fire marshal.

CANVAS PAINT WILL ADD NEW LIFE TO HOME

BY LOUISE BARGELT

There are paints especially made for use on canvas articles which can be applied to the tapes of your venetian blinds when they need freshening. They will not shrink the fabric or crack when the blind is pulled up. Such treatment will preserve as well as decorate the tapes. Both blinds and tapes should be clean and free of all dust so that paint will not streak when applied.

If you have porch chairs, cushions, gliders or other articles which are exposed to constant rubbing, there are clear liquid overcoatings available which can be applied after you have given these articles a coat of paint. The overcoating will seal in the pigments.

Apply Sizing to Rugs

Before painting a grass or fiber rug with this type of paint for canvas articles, sweep and clean it well. Weave or darn any worn place and spread newspapers on a flat surface to cover an area a little larger than the rug. If the rug is very old and porous, use a coat of starch sizing first. [To make this sizing, blend one cup of starch with one cup of water and pour this mixture into two quarts of boiling water. Bring to a smooth paste and you will have enough sizing for a 6 by 9` rug.] When the rug is completely dry, go over it with a dry scrubbing brush to restore its gloss.

Should you be painting your awnings you can obtain a pleasant effect by painting the shabby inside or underneath side of your awnings. If the awnings are over terraces or porches or the underside of garden parasols you can give them a shade in strong contrast to that used on the outside. For awnings at windows, a pale sky blue on the underside would be attractive or you could paint the underside to match the color scheme of the room.

Repaint Convertible Tops

If the family car has a convertible canvas top, this type of paint will be especially suitable, since it won't stiffen the fabric and is sun resistant and water repellent.

Two popular treatments for canvas tops on cars are black or tan. However, if the top is badly discolored, it is better to use black.

In case the car top is worn and the paint makes blotches on the underside, then the inside of the top can be painted—after the outside has dried.

. . . HOWLED the Army Air Force Staff Sergeant as he cast his big, brown peekaboos on a bit of a mellow mouse climbing from a sleek plane out Pal-Waukee Airport way! Flapping his wings, the Sarge took off, swift as the eagle flieth, in her general direction and, in the twinkle of a firefly's eyelash, they were shooting the breeze . . . which brings us to . . .

. . . an EXTRAORDINARY FACT! While that nice Smith boy and his buddies are hunting Japs over the Pacific and generally raising hell over what's left of Tokio, more and more young women are getting their wings out at Pal-Waukee under the skillful guidance of former Army and Navy flight instructors. When their men come back for good these solid numbers will be ready to take off "into the wild blue yonder . . . together they'll be able to keep their wings level and true." Come on out to Pal-Waukee . . . THE AIR'S SWELLEROO!

ARMY HOSPITAL PUTS IN 'QUIET' RADIO SYSTEM

Percy Jones Is First; 33 Others Follow

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A four channel radio and public address system has been installed at the Percy Jones General hospital at Battle Creek, Mich. The hospital is the first of army hospitals to be so equipped and plans are made to make similar installations in 33 other general hospitals. Outstanding network programs are picked up in the hospital's control room and sent out over two channels while live shows from an adjoining radio station go out thru the other two channels. Thus patients have a choice of four programs.

Individual "hushatone" receivers are used. The receivers—about five inches in diameter and three-quarters of an inch thinck—are turned on by pulling a string hanging from a rotary switch above the head of the bed. Various channels are tuned in by pulling the same cord. The program of any patient's choice cannot be heard by the man in an adjoining bed. He can safely choose another program if he desires.

Push Plans for FM

While most of the frequency modulation interests were not in agreement with the federal communications commission's new allocations for FM—from 88-106 megacycles in R. C. Cosgrove, president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, has announced that "all of us will bend our backs behind the new allocation so that we can give FM to the public at the earliest possible date."

Prof. Edwin H. Armstrong, inventor of FM, who opposed moving it from its present location, has stated that "FM will start going forward immediately that licenses are issued for the 400 or more applications on file. . . . If action is taken promptly, then in spite of the handicap imposed by the shift of the band, FM will be a major factor in post-war employment."

The Stromberg-Carlson company, one of the pioneer FM makers, has announced that it has swung into immediate action toward producing an FM receiver to meet the new FCC allocation.

Speed Is Promised

The Hallicrafters company has filed application with the WPB and OPA in Washington for spot authorization to manufacture 250,000 FM converters which make the present FM sets capable of receiving on the new 88-106 megacycle band. Some 400,000 pre-war FM sets are in the hands of the public.

Meanwhile, Paul Porter, chairman of the FCC, has announced that the commission will "move with all possible speed" to revise existing regulations and standards for the operation of FM, television, and facsimile in the new allocations.

The FCC chief said that the commission expects to schedule a meeting sometime this month to formulate the industry's proposals for rules and standards.

NBC Symphony Offers Grieg Program Today

Ania Dorfmann, pianist, will be soloist with the NBC Symphony orchestra in an all-Grieg program to be heard over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. Miss Dorfmann will play Grieg's Piano Concerto in A minor. Dr. Frank Black will direct the orchestra in Norwegian Dances No. 2 in A minor and No. 3 in G minor, and four movements from the "Peer Gynt" Suite No. 1.

New Army Radio

Pvt. George B. Keil, 4846 N. Clark st., listens to the new "quiet" type of radio installed at Percy Jones General hospital.

VARIED MUSIC ON THEATER OF AIR SATURDAY

Varied musical moods and tempo will mark the summer concert to be presented on the Theater of the Air from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak. Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra. Soloists will be Angelo Raffaelli, tenor; Ruth Slater, contralto, and Penny Perry, soprano.

Included in the entertainment will be "Musetta's Waltz" from "La Boheme" to be sung by Miss Perry; "Nina" by Raffaelli. The concert orchestra will present "Espana Rhapsody" and "Scherzo in G Minor" from "Octette." "Home to Our Mountains" will be sung by Miss Slater and Raffaelli, and "Sleeping Beauty Waltz" by the chorus. Miss Perry and chorus will sing "Romany Life" from the "Fortune Teller."

John Barclay will be the narrator and John Mallow, the announcer. Jack La Frandre, writer-producer of the series, will direct the performance.

SENN SENIORS GET N. U., U. OF C. TUITION GRANTS

Three graduates of Senn High school have been awarded scholarships for fall terms at Northwestern university and the University of Chicago.

A $200 tuition award has been made by N. U. to Phyllis Berquist, co-editor of the Senn High School News and January graduate. A second award has been given Electra Kakarakis, also a January graduate.

Helen Harkonen, June graduate, has been named a scholarship winner by the U. of C.

The big C-54 transport planes you can help to build here are even more necessary in the Pacific conflict. Companion planes to the largest bombers, these C-54's carry everything to our fighting men—jeeps, ammunition, supplies of every sort. And as long as men are being shot, and wounded, these C-54's will be needed in increasing numbers to move casualties to hospitals.

Then the C-54 Becomes the Commercial Airliner After the War

PAID LEADERS TO AID PUPILS WITH GARDENS

Space for War Plots in Parks Available

North side school children, who undeterred by heavy spring rains, planted gardens in neighborhood parks, will be guided in their efforts this summer by paid leaders provided by the Chicago Horticultural and Garden society.

As participants in the park district's children's war garden program, these junior gardeners will receive instruction in soil treatment, planting calendar readings, and use of gardening instruments. Staff members will be teachers of north side schools, who launched the project among pupils late in March, and volunteer workers from the society. The leaders wage fund was secured by the society in a drive this spring among business, civic, and fraternal organizations.

Fewer Gardeners This Year

The heavy rains this spring cut down the number of gardeners as compared to last year, leaders say there is still time for grammar school children to secure plots in neighborhood parks. They can expect good crops if planting is done within the next few weeks.

Children in the community served by River park, Foster and Francisco avs., are urged to register for the program with James Vanderbosch, park supervisor, any afternoon. They also may register with Roseanne Gumbinger, garden leader, when she is at the park Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday afternoons. One hundred plots have been planted in the park by school children, but there is still room for additional gardens.

Lincoln Park Division

In Linoln park there are five divisions devoted to gardens. Some of these are headed by volunteer leaders from nearby public schools. All the projects in Lincoln park, however, will be under the supervision of Alice Sanders of the society.

The most southerly division, at the foot of Eugenie st. adjoining the Outer drive, has plots laid out by children of La Salle school. Blaine, Lincoln, and Wellington school children are planting at the foot of Diversey av., north of the lagoon.

Name Other Leaders

Jahn, Nettlehorst, and Morris schools are gardening at the foot of Barry av., under Katherine Minteer, acting leader. At the foot of Montrose av. east of the Outer drive, Graeme Stewart school works under the direction of Mrs. Fred Martin, Mrs. H. B. Sennett, Mrs. Otto Weishaar, Mrs. William Pulaski, Mrs. Agnes Jencks, Mrs. Christian Evers, Mrs. J. J. Sharf, Mrs. A. P. McArthur, Mrs. Hodge Bryan, and Mrs. Ann Paulsen, all volunteers. Mrs. Mary Sullivan, Graeme Stewart principal is in charge of the active children's group.

The fifth Lincoln park section is at the foot of Foster av. just beyond the Outer drive. Goudy school and other neighborhood groups ply their hoes here.

Will Award Prizes

Early planters already are harvesting carrots and lettuce, and radishes, kohlrabi, and beans are well above the ground in this section.

Children joining the projects may enter the Gen. MacArthur medal competition and the Green Thumb contests sponsored by the National War Garden institute, which will award prizes for superior produce this fall.

Miss Sanders will remain the following schedule thruout the summer: Eugenie st. plots, 9 a. m. Mondays and Saturdays; Diversey pkwy., 9 a. m. Tuesdays, 10 a. m. Saturdays; Barry av., 9 a. m. Wednesdays, 11 a. m. Saturdays; Montrose av., 9 a. m. Thursdays, and Foster av., 9 a. m. Fridays and noon Saturdays.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, July 9

This has been one of the worst seasons for insects and it behooves all gardeners to spray or dust regularly if the insects are to be kept under control. With all the bulletins that are available, it is amazing that many gardeners fail to realize the necessity of spraying early and often.

Some gardeners use stomach poisons for sucking insects when only a contact spray should be used; stomach poisons are used when worms or beetles that actually eat the leaves are present.

Tuesday, July 10

All tropical vegetables and decorative plants should be making a fine growth at this time, for they revel in hot weather. However, they need moisture for full development. Liquid manure is excellent when it can be prepared. It supplies some plant food and moisture at the roots, where it does the most good.

Wednesday, July 11

Order pansy seed for immediate sowing. The seed will grow quickly and the young plants can be transplanted in September in coldframes. In spring they will have made a fine growth and can be planted in the garden area.

There is nothing quite as satisfactory as the hearts ease, for they are fine in beds or for cutting. The plants can be cut back now and may send out new flowering stems. In mild locations they will winter outdoors if given slight protection.

Thursday, July 12

Many inquiries are received as to the exact time house plants should be watered. Water when the soil is dry and the plants need water. Clay pots dry out rather rapidly, and when the soil is dry the pot sounds hollow or gives off a ringing sound when tapped with a knife.

Friday, July 13

Give chrysanthemums a slight application of plant food and plenty of water. Watch for pests and spray accordingly. It is a good time to make cuttings for next winter's flowering in the windows of the home.

Cuttings from the handsomely marked coleus, begonias, flowering varieties, geraniums, and others will have time to grow into fine plants before cold weather, but keep all flowers removed and shift whenever necessary, but do not overpot.

Saturday, July 14

Keep the lawn mowed at 1½ inches. It will be much more attractive than when cut shorter. If necessary rake grass clippings from the lawn, for if too many clippings are present it will cause the grass to turn brown.

The clippings are useful for mulching if no weed seeds are present. Remove and destroy if unfit to use as a mulch or for composting.

CHORAL CLINIC STAFF AT N.U. HAS 4 GUESTS

Four guest conductors are assisting George Howerton, conductor of the a cappella choir and glee clubs of Northwestern university, with a choral clinic in progress on the Evanston campus. About 150 directors of music in churches, schools, and colleges thruout the country are attending.

Assistants are Marian Cotton, head of New Trier High school music department; Konrad Neuger, chorus master of the Metropolitan Opera company and Chicago civic opera; J. Russell Paxton, director of Arsenal Technical school a cappella choir, Indianapolis, Ind., and Kenneth B. Billups, director of the Cosmopolitan concert choir, St. Louis, Mo.

Former chorus master of the Vienna opera, Neuger will conduct the clinic Wednesday thru Friday, speaking on "The Place of the Chorus in Operatic Performance." Paxton will appear July 19 and 20 in a discussion of "Materials for the High School a Cappella Choir."

FOREST SHADE OFFERS SOLACE TO CITY WEARY

Chicago's Fringe: A Cool Green

(Fourth of a series of articles telling of interesting places available to Chicagoans who are vacationing at home due to war time travel restrictions.)

BY ONEY FRED SWEET

In the good old summer time Chicagoans may vacation in the country with a minimum of travel for the forest preserve district of Cook county is a green fringe at the city's edge.

From the loop to the farthest point in the preserves—Deer Grove, Quintens and Dundee rds.—is no more than 30 miles. Dan Ryan woods, 87th st. and Western av., and Caldwell woods, Milwaukee and Devon avs., are no more than 10 miles out. So far as offering any reminder of office and shop routine or household tasks, the woods and waters might well be thousands of miles away.

Nature Has Soothing Message

But a holiday in the preserves does evoke memories of other carefree hours in the out-of-doors. The good earth and the great sky have not changed. The birds have all come back. The shade lies deep beneath the old oak trees and all about there is the clean smell of growing things. A summer's day close to nature is as it has always been and the troubles of man have not altered its soothing message.

For golfers there are 18 hole courses at Northwestern, Harms rd. and Simpson st., Indian Boundary, Forest Preserve dr. and Cumberland av., and Edgebrook, Central and Devon avs. Billy Caldwell course of nine holes is at Caldwell av., north of Elston av.

Swimmers may take on sunburn at Emmett Whealan pool, Milwaukee and Devon avs.; Cermak pool, 7600 Ogden av., Lyons, and Green Lake pool, 159th st. and Torrence av.

Fish Await Anglers

There are plenty of places along the winding banks of the placid Des Plaines, where, in the companionship of serene surroundings, you can lazily wait for the fish to bite. They're all by your side again—the gay winged butterfly that flits to a happy landing on your floating cork, the curious turtle that pokes its head above the stream's calm surface, the reflection in the water of, let us hope, a kindly cloud.

Fishing is permitted in all of the streams in the district, either from the banks or from boats. Ten fishing boats were placed in Maple lake three years ago; today the demand has been met for 60.

Today the aroma of coffee in the brewing will blend with the fragrant summer breeze at many a picnic spot in the preserves. Families, churches, lodges, and other groups have applied for permits if they number more than 25. They have been assigned to certain areas according to their needs. There are 96 large groves from which to make a selection.

Tables and benches have been provided. Open air fireplaces also are a part of the picnic facilities. From deep wells at convenient locations water may be drawn for drinking and making the coffee and lemonade—and for putting out the camp fire.

Children's Shouts Echo

The children will play games that call for freedom and the echo of their shouts will be accepted uncomplainingly by friendly foliage alongside the open field. The old folks will rest and visit and look on. And there'll be at least a layer cake to lift from the hamper, even tho the sandwich meat is skimpier than of yore.

There'll be some neighborhood groups that will bring along their musicians and their playing of the "squeeze box" or the zither will lend a gypsy touch to the day of escape.

There'll be dancing couples on many of the 75 platforms scattered thruout the preserves.

If the weather is fair an estimated half million persons will enjoy the preserves today, but there will be plenty of space to absorb a half million more.

Historic Site Restored

The historically minded will be interested in the site of the Old Chicago Portage, 1673-1836, that has been restored at Harlem av. and 47th st. It marks the west end of a strip of land used as the carrying or connecting place uniting the waters of the St. Lawrence with those of the Mississippi river. With the portage are associated such names as Joliet, Marquette, La Salle, and other explorers, and it had much to do with determining the site of Chicago.

Most of the vast acreage is maintained in its native state. Wild flowers have been protected. The toads and the turtles, the hawks and the owls, the chipmunks and the squirrels continue to scamper or fly about as in the days of the horse and buggy when their environs were remote and inaccessible to most city dwellers. Way before that, when there were no white men in the vicinity.

At Trailside museum, Chicago and Thatcher avs., there are on exhibition the living or mounted species of the creatures that make the preserves their habitat. Here interested persons may make a closer study of their furred and feathered friends. Wounded birds are hospitalized, and there is a cage where children may enjoy the tamed animals and birds for playmates.

Hikers may take the same trails

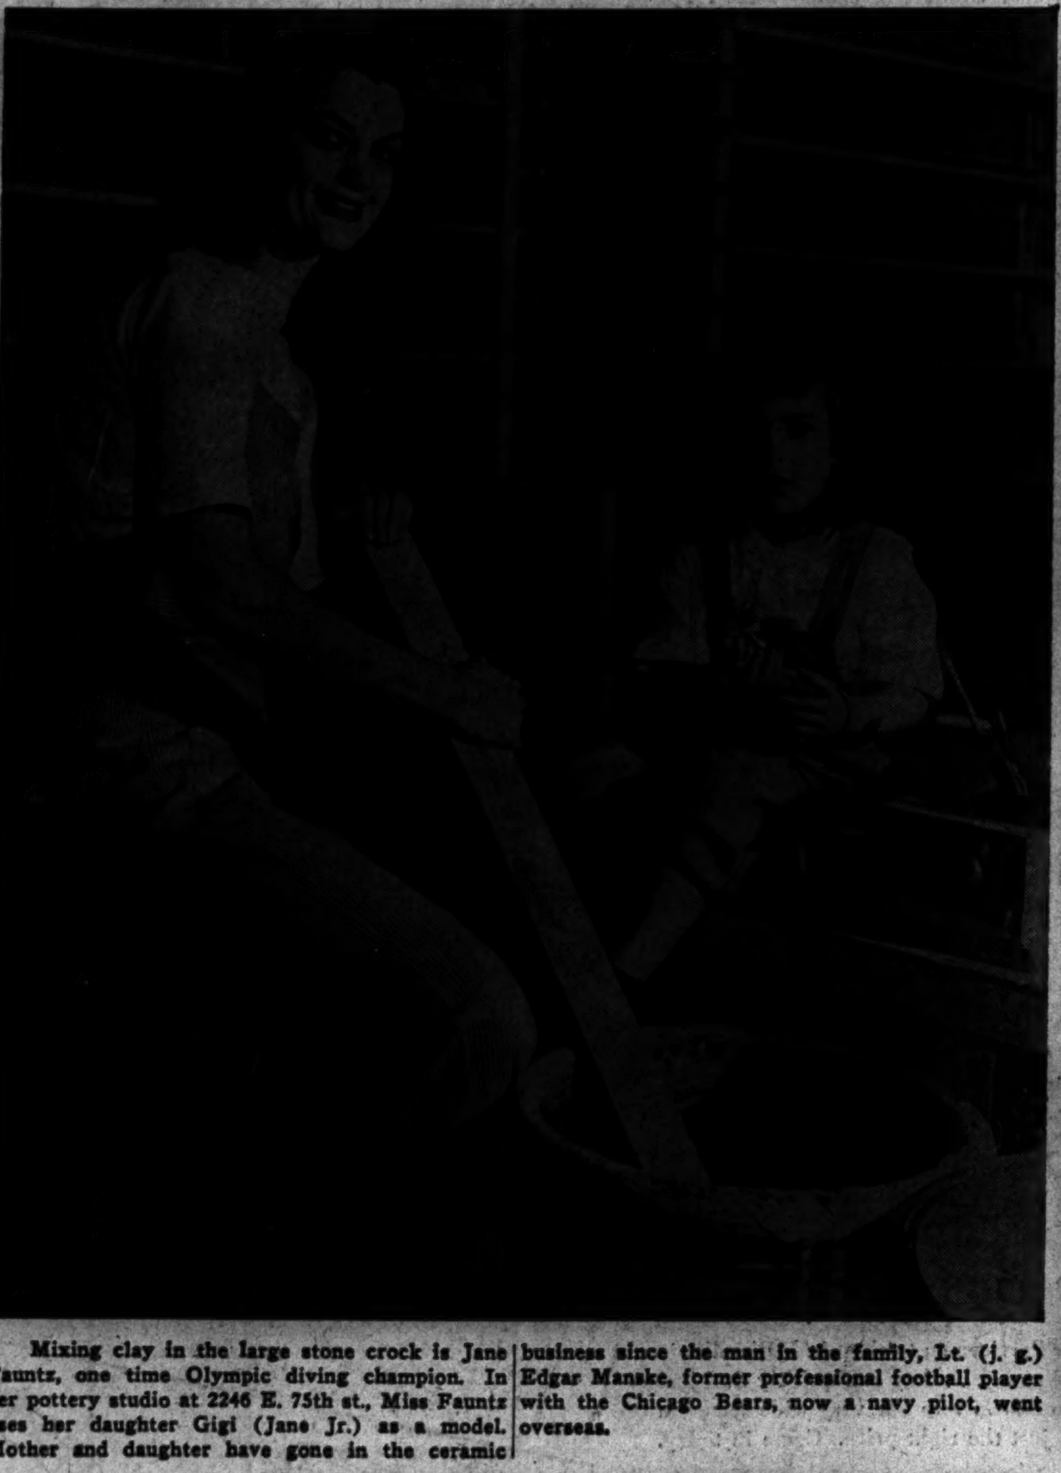
Studio Creates Gay, Impish Dolls Characteristic of Folks You May Know



Mixing clay in the large stone crock is Jane Fauntz, one time Olympic diving champion. In her pottery studio at 2246 E. 75th st., Miss Fauntz uses her daughter Gigi (Jane Jr.) as a model. Mother and daughter have gone in the ceramic business since the man in the family, Lt. (j. g.) Edgar Manske, former professional football player with the Chicago Bears, now a navy pilot, went overseas.

Nearly all Jane Fauntz's figures have names, usually taken from Gigi's nursery school friends, who unconsciously were their models. The dolls are sculptured, and then the mold is made. A few of the dolls (left to right) are Sassy Suzy, with tongue protruding; Butch, the baby; Lucy; Sis and Bud, who sit on the shelf edge; Michael, also with tongue out; Rosebud, stooping over, and Gigi.

The clay is poured into the mold, left for an hour or so, and then removed. The figures still lack those individual details which characterize Miss Fauntz's work. There are four girls working in the studio, and each adds touches to the figures. Mrs. Robert C. Taylor (left), 1631 E. 67th st., taking her turn at filling and opening of molds, said the girls can turn out 30 or 40 figures a day. After preliminaries are over, the dolls are dipped in a clear glaze, in this case by Mrs. Alfred M. Goodman, 7009 S. Crandon av.

Olympic Diver Plunges Into World of Art

BY JANET PECK

Behind the opaqued windows of a vacant appearing store at 2246 E. 75th st., industry is being wooed. Beauty and brains are hard at work with clay, nimble fingers, various makeshift instruments [such as cookie cutters and lipstick tops] and two good sized kilns. The results are Jane Fauntz ceramic originals.

Guiding artist behind the clever little boy and girl figures, and angelpuss pins, is Jane Fauntz herself, one time Olympic diving champion and model, now a war wife with a 3 year old daughter. Her husband, Edgar [Eggs] Manske, former All-American football player of Northwestern university and for seven years with the Chicago Bears, is a navy pilot in the Pacific—while mommy is a sculptress and Gigi [Jane Jr.] the model.

It's an Old Interest

To some it may seem a bit unusual, an athlete turning artist. But in this case, the athlete merely returned to her first talent, which she had studied at the University of Illinois and then abandoned for an aquatic career. While she and Gigi were living in California where Lt. Manske was stationed she again took up working with clay.

"Out there it seemed the natural thing to do to keep one's self occupied," she said. "Many housewives made pottery as a hobby, taking it to the local high school to be fired in a kiln." With her, however, making pottery soon became more than a hobby. Gigi's poses had looked so "darn cute" to her mother she decided to model them.

The sassy little angel pins which resulted soon found buyers. She quickly developed a small business and soon had earned enough to purchase her own kiln.

When Lt. Manske was shipped out a year later mommy and Gigi came home to grandma, and it was decided [by mommy] that the business should come too; it ought to do well here because "people in the midwest seemed so far behind California people where ceramics are concerned." During this last year with the aid of four girl friends on the pay roll she is able to turn out 30 or 40 figures a day.

The "Feminine" Touch

No longer limited to images of her daughter, the figures are named for the child modeled. There's Sassy Suzy with long blonde hair and huge hair ribbons, saucily sticking her tongue out at the world. And Michael, Gigi's special friend at nursery school, and Butch, the baby with the inquiring look.

Miss Fauntz sculpts the original from which the mold is made. After that it would be a simple matter of pouring in the clay except that every girl in the studio is intent on experimenting with feminine details such as appliqued clay rick-rack trim on the edge of the doll's skirt, large colorful hair, and under chin ribbons.

When the lieutenant flies home, will the studio survive? Will the business grow into a big one? Will Jane Fauntz originals become a by-word? "We hope so," fervently sighs the artist, "but that remains to be seen."

Half the fun of making the figures, Margaret Stewart, 7433 Luella av., insists, is experimenting with such feminine details on the dolls as appliqued clay rick-rack trim on the skirt's edge, colorful hair and under-chin ribbons, gay little bonnets, pinafores, and polka dotted sun suits. The girls have discovered that the top of a baking powder can cuts just right for a hat.

Mrs. A. E. Jacobsen, 7511 Yates av., is finishing the bust of a Balinese woman. "I haven't decided just what to do with her yet," she said. "Perhaps I'll have a mold made and put her into quantity production."

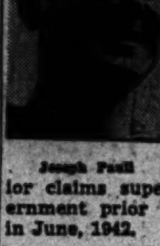
Lt. Herrick

John Herrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Herrick, 5465 Kimbark av., was given a battlefield promotion to second lieutenant. An infantryman, Herrick frequently acted in an officer's capacity during his division's successful campaigns for Metz and Saarlautern. He was cited for his work as a forward mortar observer for which he received the bronze star medal. Lt. Herrick is a graduate of Hyde Park High school and has three brothers in service: Sgt. Richard, in the air forces and Arthur and Robert, both machinist mates 1st class in the navy.

Pvt. John Krutzler Jr., 7225 Jeffery av., has been authorized to wear the air crew member aviation badge, it was announced recently at his base in Reno, Nev. This badge signifies that Pvt. Krutzler is one of two enlisted men in a five man crew operating a C-46, largest twin engine cargo plane in the world.

The oak leaf cluster recently was added to the bronze star medal of Sgt. George W. Cooper, brother of Miss Claire L. Cooper, 6706 Cornell av. He has been overseas 24 months and wears, in addition to the bronze star and cluster, the Purple Heart, and the combat infantryman's badge. He took part in the Sicilian, Naples-Foggia, Rome-Arno, South France, and German campaigns.



Joseph Paull

Coast Guardsman Joseph F. Paull, quartermaster 2d class, of 6414 Dorchester av., recently was home on leave after 20 months' sea service. He participated in six invasions in the South Pacific while serving aboard an LST. Paull is a graduate of Tilden Technical High school and was employed as senior claims supervisor for the government prior to entering service in June, 1942.

Pvt. Frank S. Tarvin, 2227 E. 70th st., is now at the General hospital at Camp Carson, Colo.

Sgt. Prunkle

Sgt. Anton J. Prunkle, 10429 Maryland av., recently was awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received in action with an infantry division in the Philippines. Sgt. Prunkle, whose wife, Julia, and mother, Mrs. Mary Prunkle, reside at the Maryland av. address, won the bronze star medal at Bougainville. He has been overseas 40 months and is a veteran of Guadalcanal.

MOUNT CARMEL HIGH GETS TWO NEW SUPERIORS

Frs. Alexis, Howard in New Jobs

Father Alexis

Two new superiors recently were appointed for Mount Carmel High school, 6400 Dante av., by the very Rev. Matthew T. O'Neill, recently reëlected provincial of the Chicago province of Carmelites. They are the Rev. Alexis E. McCarthy, named principal of the high school, and the Rev. Howard E. Rafferty, prior of St. Cyril monastery, 6428 Dante av.

Father Alexis, son of Mrs. Florence J. McCarthy, 7221 Princeton av., is a graduate of St. Carthage grammar school and Mount Carmel High school. He studied at Loras college, Dubuque, Ia., and later at Mount Carmel college, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Gets Psychology Degree

After completing theology at Whitefriars Hall, Washington, D. C., he was ordained to the priesthood in 1941. In 1942 he was awarded a degree in psychology by Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C. He is the youngest principal ever to be appointed to this high school.

For the last three years Father Alexis has acted as principal of discipline, and director of the Queen of Carmel auxiliary. He also is chairman of the Mount Carmel building fund. His new duties began with the opening of summer school in which 250 boys are enrolled. He will be presented officially to parents and friends of the school at a reception this fall.

Prefect of Studies

Father Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rafferty, 1537 E. 76th st., has been prefect of studies at the school for the last five years as well as moderator of the Mount Carmel Mothers club. He was graduated from St. Lawrence grammar school and attended Mount Carmel college, Niagara Falls, Can. He took his theological studies at St. Albert's International college in Rome, Italy, until the war in September, 1939, forced him to leave.

In December, 1939, he was ordained to the priesthood. Since then he has taken special courses at Northwestern university and at the University of Illinois.

WOMAN PARK COP IS RETIRED; AWARD WINNER

Sarah Allen Quits to Take a Rest

After 20 years of gun tot'n, a pistol packin' mama has laid her pistol down. . . . Policewoman Sarah Allen, 118 E. 42d st., has retired. "Twenty years is a long time to walk a beat," she said, "I'm just plain tuckered out."

Mrs. Allen first joined the park district force in 1925, on a temporary basis. Her first assignment was at the 29th street beach where one of her jobs was to see that flippant young flappers wore bathing suits more conservative than their characters. In fact, an old newspaper photo in her scrapbook, shows her measuring one of the little sirens "just for a gag."

Wins Tribune Award

As a feminine badge-wearer, Mrs. Allen in no way resembles the usual mental picture of a policewoman. . . . raw boned, grim faced, hard boiled. As if attesting to this, are the many times gay young blades innocently wolfing thru the parks have found they have tried to "become acquainted" with the wrong gal, when it was her.

Mrs. Allen was given the Chicago Tribune Hero award in June, 1939 for killing a man while acting in the line of duty. It was the first time she had ever fired her pistol during 14 years on the beat, but her training at the police marksmanship school undoubtedly saved her life.

She had just queried the powerfully built man as to what he was doing in the park, when he sprang at her. No match for him, she did manage to hang on to her purse in which she carried her gun. The man struck her in the face knocking out four teeth, and was winding up for a second blow when she quickly drew her gun and shot him.

Has Confidence In Gun

"It was the narrowest escape I've ever had," she said, but declared she was not frightened. "As long as I had my gun with me I was never afraid." Mrs. Allen also commented that after years of serving in parks and observing people she got so she could pretty well tell a person with wrong intentions from an innocent one.

During her years of duty, she has made many friends in various parks thruout the city. And to her not the least of these is her 13 year old dog, Skippy. "Mother was always bringing home some hungry stray, or taking food out with her on her job to feed them," said her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Bolton. "Adults, children, and animals, all seemed to like her."

Mrs. Allen, plans to take a complete rest and perhaps in the fall to return to her native town in Ohio near where she owns a small farm.

Avalon Park library is presenting a weekly story hour for children at 10:30 a. m. Saturdays in the Avalon park fieldhouse.

PUBLIC SCHOOL HONOR PUPILS COLLECT BONUS

Win Scholarships to Colleges

Forty-three honor students in six south side public high schools by attending to their studies earned rich dividends—in some cases totaling hundreds of dollars. Their dividends were paid in the form of scholarships, some earned by competitive examination, others on the basis of scholarship and school activities.

The University of Chicago led in the number of grants awarded with six given to the university, and five to undergraduates to attend the college. Illinois Institute of Technology granted four; Ripon [Wis.] college, four; and Morgan Park Junior college, Coe college in Cedar Rapids, Ia., Rockford [Ill.] college, Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, and Oberlin [O.] college, two each.

The following schools awarded one each: Northwestern university; Barat college in Lake Forest, Ill.; Pembroke college of Brown university, Providence, R. I.; Western college at Oxford, O.; Art institute, Central Y; Purdue university at Lafayette, Ind., the University of Illinois, and the Tobe-Coburn School of Fashion Design.

17 at Hyde Park High

Of the 17 Hyde Park students awarded scholarships, Elliot Silverstein won three—to U. of C., M. I. T., and Illinois Tech. Lester Ford won awards from Chicago and Oberlin.

Other U. of C. winners were George Herz and Howard Dessent. College scholarships were given sophomores David Kahn, Gunther Hollander, and Mary Ann Ash, and to juniors Jean Romano and Roalda Jensen.

Jerome Krinsky was given a grant to M. I. T., and Thomas Humphreys a half scholarship to Oberlin. Harry Marcado received a scholarship to the school of fire prevention at Illinois Tech.

Receives Brown Award

Rockford scholarship went to Sylvia Jones, and Grace Louise Sherman won a grant to Western. Jean Ricks won an award to Pembroke at Brown, and Elizabeth Carle was given an award to Coe.

A 20 month scholarship in fashion design was given Frances Beers. Honors were given two other Hyde Park students as follows: Richard Fireman, a $200 war bond and $25 in cash as second prize in an Americanism essay contest, and Charles Mincer a $25 war bond for a memorial day essay.

At Hirsch High school the Jane Orr Long memorial award to Morgan Park was given to Audrey Bieringer. Other scholarship winners were Gladys Conley, to Coe, and Gilbert Koohn, an alternate award to Illinois Tech.

Receive Other Honors

American Legion awards were given Florence Greenleaf and Wesley Barnes, while the Bausch and Lomb Science award was given Carolyn Johnson. Brevet commissions were given Robert Crist, Richard Wadoz, Charles Manos, and Donald Bergman.

Eight Tilden Technical High school students were awarded scholarships by three universities. They are: Russell Moy and Donald Ursich, Illinois Tech; Clarence Anderson, Purdue; Roy A. Berg Jr., University of Illinois, and Anthony Aurelia, Elliott Knauff, George Knudsen, and Robert Kuehne, $100 R. O. T. C. awards to Ripon.

South Shore Winners

Two South Shore High school students won grants to the University of Chicago. They are David Larson and Marilyn Weintraub. Katherine Winter won a $500 scholarship to Barat, and Lorraine Portnoy won the chance to attend the Art institute. The Northwestern scholarship went to Doris Wippern. Jean Lindsey won a $200 award to Rockford.

Margie Ozetich, a graduate of Bowen High school, won a half tuition scholarship in the competitive examinations to Morgan Park. At Du Sable High school, Yolande McGehee won a half scholarship to Central Y.

STAYS IN SHELL FIELD TO DIRECT GUNS, ROUT FOE

Bronze Stars Awarded Many South Siders

Lt. Albert Bogen

During the height of the Nazi's last winter offensive Lt. Albert W. Bogen of 7007 Merrill av., an artillery observer, displayed coolness and judgment by which he saved his company's position and won the bronze star medal.

When the enemy threatened to overrun his unit he advanced thru a field of fire to an unprotected post from which he called for and directed artillery supporting his cannon company.

Capt. Richard T. Knowles, whose wife and daughter live at 1951 S. Avers av., and whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Knowles live at 7337 Eberhart av., recently received a similar award for meritorious service with a tank destroyer group in France and Germany.

Keeps Medics Supplied

"On many occasions," his citation reads, "Capt. Knowles exposed himself to artillery, mortar, and small arms fire. Making almost daily trips to the frontline tank destroyer battalions, he was greatly responsible for the successful completion of their mission."

Assigned to headquarters of a medical supply officer, Chief Warrant Officer Walter C. Desmond, 7227 Dobson av., was awarded the bronze star, with the following citation: "He at all times demonstrated unusual ability and efficiency in the maintenance and distribution of medical supplies within the division and attached units. At no time during this period was any division medical installation without supplies to enable it to function efficiently."

Repairs Vehicles Under Fire

Sgt. Stanley J. Wisniewski, son of Mrs. Anne Wisniewski, 13434 Buffalo av., was given the bronze star for service in combat on the 5th army front in Italy. As motor sergeant in a cavalry reconnaissance squadron serving in an armored division, Corp. Wisniewski effected repairs and evacuated disabled vehicles many times while under fire.

The bronze star was awarded Lt. Ernest P. Santangelo, son of Mrs. Susan Santangelo, 10003 Commercial av., for "heroic achievement while serving with a tank destroyer battalion in Germany." Lt. Santangelo has been in service five years and overseas two. In addition to the above decoration he also wears the Purple Heart. His brother, Pasqual B. Santangelo, seaman 1st class, is overseas with the coast guard.

Open New Library

The Chicago library has opened a new sub-branch in the Atgeld Gardens housing project, 192d st. and Ellis av. Miss Frances Howland and Mrs. Mae Rochelle will be in charge.

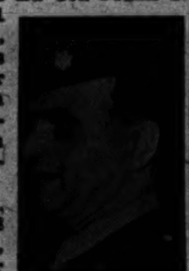
air field from advanced communications courses. They are Corp. Robert T. Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Evans, Gary, and Corp. Walter E. Stevenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Stevenson, Hammond.

Lt. Alfred H. Thoman Jr., 7836 Jeffery av., recently returned from the ETO for duty as pilot instructor at the Dyersburg [Tex.] army air field. While serving with the 8th air force in England Lt. Thomas was awarded the air medal with three clusters. He is a graduate of South Shore High school.



Col. Chevalier

The bronze star medal recently was presented to Lt. Col. Frank C. Chevalier of 8241 Blackstone av., army signal corps liaison officer with the French forces, for meritorious service in military operations.

Capt. Fred J. Curtis, 5638 Blackstone av., pilot of a Super Fortress based on Saipan, recently was awarded the oak leaf cluster to the distinguished flying cross for participating in a series of heavy incendiary bombing missions against Japan. The citation said, "In spite of weariness and fatigue physical and mental strain, and hazardous flying conditions, Capt. Curtis displayed such courage and skill as to reflect great credit upon himself and the army air forces." Capt. Curtis is a graduate of Hyde Park High school.

Recently promoted to lieutenant colonel with the 20th AAF in the Pacific is William E. Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boyd, 4126 Berkeley av. Col. Boyd is assistant chief of staff for operations and training with Super Fortress elements in the Mariannas. Prior to entering service he attended the University of Illinois and the University of Colorado. His wife, Mrs. Agnes Boyd, resides in Denver, Colo.

Corp. Fred Snekser, formerly of 7537 Mackinaw av., recently was awarded the purple heart for wounds received in action at Okinawa. Fully recovered, he has returned to duty with his infantry division. A regimental radio operator, Corp. Snekser has been in the army 44 months and fought on Attu, Kwajalein, and Leyte.

In the cast of "Hi Yank" an all soldier show, which is touring the Mediterranean theater, is Corp. Arthur A. Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Adams, 8335 Luella av. A former R. O. T. C. instructor at Hyde Park High school, he has been overseas more than five months. Prior to his stage assignment he was an infantryman.

William Clinton Shannon, gunner's mate 3d class, son of John Shannon, 7712 Cornell av., a veteran of 13 months overseas, has been admitted to the Great Lakes naval hospital. His wife resides at Watertown, Wis. A brother, Sgt. John J. Shannon, is in the army.

For the entertainment of patients of the Camp Carson [Colo.] hospital center, Pvt. Robert J. Heer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Heer, 7249 Coles av., played the leading role in "The Perils of Fanny," by Eugene O'Neill. Heer is assigned to the hospital center as director of the music department of the educational reconditioning section. A graduate of Hyde Park High school, he attended Northwestern university prior to entering service. holds the air medal with two clusters and five battle stars. He will report to Miami, Fla., July 2.

Wins Appointment

William Kneen, son of Mrs. Hazel L. Kneen, 7519 Coles av., recently was appointed graduate assistant for the summer term at the Illinois Institute of Technology.

WAR FUND AIDS ARE NAMED FOR SOUTH DISTRICTS

David L. Sutton, 8126 Cottage Grove av., and Joseph B. Hurley, 815 E. 93d st., recently were appointed co-directors of the south side for the 1945 Community and War Fund campaign, it was announced by James R. Sterling, chairman of the fund's city division.

Mrs. Henry T. Ricketts, 5607 Kenwood av., who last year headed the south side women's division, and Mrs. Russell Bealmear, 10719 Avenue B, have been appointed to the women's cabinet, Sterling announced.

He explained that the women's division has been absorbed by the city division, which this year will include both men and women solicitors. The volunteers will canvass the area between State st. and the lake and from 60th st. to the south city limits. The drive will open Oct. 1.

Mrs. Ricketts, who also is chairman of the Hyde Park-Kenwood section of the women's special gifts division, announced that prospective assignments have been made to the volunteers on her committee. This group will go to work early in September and complete its solicitation before the city-wide drive begins.

Mrs. C. Arthur Howe and Miss Jane Dubbs, both of the South Shore Country club, are in charge of the gifts solicitation in the South Shore area.

CLOSE BRANCH OF HYDE PARK HIGH SCHOOL

Hyde Park High school's branch building at 57th st. and Kenwood av., has been closed permanently, it recently was announced by the board of education. Beginning with the fall term, all students will attend school at the main building, 6220 Stony Island av.

In closing the branch the board pointed out that the building was constructed as the old Ray elementary school and later converted. The building has become too dilapidated to be used any longer, it was said.

TEACHER FILLS NEIGHBORHOOD ROLE OF 'ANGEL'

Becomes 'The Law' at Parents' Wish

Ruth Blue

The neighborhood of Federal st. at 4100 south has been described by some of the residents as the wrong side of the tracks. Backed up against the railroad, it is a treeless avenue lined with frame houses. Over this community Miss Ruth Blue unofficially but authoritatively presides.

She is assistant principal and teacher at the Hartigan school. She keeps not only students of her classroom in line but also all of the youngsters in the school and neighborhood.

Called Angel of District

Known as the angel of Federal st., she was so dubbed by the grandmother of a boy accused by neighbors of attempting to rob their house. Knowing the circumstances of the case, she determinedly set out for court, where she indignantly inquired of the complainants what they had in their house worth stealing. "You are," she reminded them, "no better off financially than this boy's family; what do you have any one would want to steal?"

Parents in the community invite and often urge her discipline on their offspring, and the children accept it unresentfully, as if sensing it was for their own good. All the incorrigibles of the school are placed under her all-seeing eye, for they will mind her when every one else has failed.

"She has been at the school nearly 25 years," reported Mrs. Goldie Walden, office clerk, "and both the youngsters and their parents—many of whom she, had in her classes—love and trust her. They call on her with their personal, economic, health, and even spiritual problems.

Warns Against Environment

One thing she tries to imbue in each child is the importance of rising above his environment. "I remind them," she said, "when we go on excursions to parks and museums that they have to be well behaved to overcome the impression created by their community, and I rarely have trouble with them." Never one to dwell on a child's bad qualities, she always speaks, rather, of his good ones.

She has received scores of letters as well as pictures from former students. Some are service men, some in the business world, others away at school. She even has received mail from ex-pupils who ended up in the penitentiary and who lament to her the fact they didn't heed her advice.

Open Play Area for Children of Hyde Park

A new Hyde Park district summer playground recently was opened for children 6 to 16 under the auspices of the University of Chicago and various Hyde Park organizations. Located on the tract north of the U. of C. fieldhouse, 56th st. and University av., it is under direction of Nelson Norgren, associate professor of physical education.

Professional supervision thruout most of each day has been planned. The playground will be open from 10 a. m. to 8:30 p. m. on weekdays, and from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. on Saturdays. The field will be equipped with at least two regulation softball diamonds, a volley ball court, horseshoe pits, and two baskets for basketball.

Plans for the playground were made by the university, Hyde Park business men, and officials of the Hyde Park Neighborhood club.

On the executive committee in charge of the playground are Dr. Leslie Pennington, Elmer Donahue, Sidney Stein Jr., Mrs. Magnus Rosenberg, Mrs. Bonita Schausen, Ald. Moss [5th], John B. Allen, Mrs. Jack Dreyfus, Louis Harris, Stephen Baumann, and Robert VanderWal.

SAVING OF PAPER WILL CONTINUE THRU SUMMER

To enable Chicagoans to continue their contributions of vital waste paper for military use and war industries, 205 city, school, and park playgrounds have been designated collection centers for the summer months. Weekly collections at each point will be substituted for school term collections by pupils thruout the city.

A marked area is provided at each playground for the paper, which may be brought at any time during the week. The summer pickups, under the sponsorship of the Chicago Waste Paper Campaign committee, will continue until Aug. 25.

List Pickup Points

The schedule for pickups at south side playgrounds is as follows:

MANY S. SIDE SCOUTS EXCEED GEN. IKE GOALS

Give Special Award to Cub Pack

Final figures in the Gen. Eisenhower Boy Scout waste paper drive show that scouts of the South Shore district contributed 1,616,127 pounds to the total Chicago poundage of 9,778,366, it has been reported by Meyer Fridstein, 5315 Greenwood av., district war service chairman.

Altho the troop sponsored by Temple Isaiah Israel, 51st st. and Greenwood av., led the district with a total of 101,414 pounds collected, all agreed scout officials did right in awarding special credit to a Cub pack which collected no paper at all.

Handicapped Scouts Help

This is the pack sponsored by the La Rabida sanitarium in Jackson park. All the scouts are patients but in spite of their handicaps, the boys decided to aid the collection and spent much of their time sending letters to south side residents urging them to save paper. They were, therefore, qualified to receive the Gen. Eisenhower medal under the special ruling for handicapped scouts. O. D. Chittenden, 6222 Dorchester av., is cubmaster.

Of the 4,940 Scouts in the South Shore area, 1,200 of them became eligible to wear the Gen. Eisenhower medal for collecting 1,000 pounds of paper during the drive. Figures on the number of troops who earned shell containers bearing Gen. Eisenhower's signature for averaging more than 1,000 pounds per registered member, have not been tabulated as yet.

Name Leading Troops

Highest ranking troops on the south side include those sponsored by the following institutions: The Church of Jesus Christ Latter Day Saints, 61st st. and Kenwood av.; SS. Peter and Paul Catholic church, 91st st. and Exchange av.; St. Philip Neri Catholic church, 2132 E. 72d st.; South Shore Presbyterian church, 76th st. and South Shore dr.; Congregation Am Echod, 81st st. and Maryland av.; Hyde Park Baptist church, 69th st. and Harper av.; Parkside Baptist church, 69th st. and Harper av.

Kenwood Interdenominational church, 46th st. and Greenwood av.; Hegewisch community committee, 134th st. and Brandon av.; First Presbyterian church, 64th st. and Kimbark av.; Vincent Methodist church, 91st st. and St. Lawrence av.; St. John Methodist church, 74th st. and Jeffery av., and Hyde Park Methodist church, 54th st. and Blackstone av.

Colonial CORNER

by G. W. Skeeles, Jr.

SO MANY people stop in at Colonial Chapel and express interest in the furnishings and surroundings (of which we're not a little bit proud) that we have long felt the need of advising all these interested people when we have something new to show them or interesting to tell them about.

OBVIOUSLY it would be difficult to write so many people personally, so we're adopting this method of passing the news along to anyone interested enough to read clear down through this chatter. This column will appear once each month, and we hope that you will become a regular reader.

COLONIAL GARDEN is beginning to be a colorful spot right now. The early roses are still in bloom (we have planted many rare varieties). The delphinium are in bud, and already the double petunias show signs of early blooming. Stop by next time you're on Cottage Grove—you can see the garden from the sidewalk.

SO MANY people were interested in the Cleome (Spider Plant) which bloomed so spectacularly last summer, that we replanted it in profusion this year. If you should have an opportunity, The Cleome should be in bloom in a week or so.

ARMY HOSPITAL PUTS IN 'QUIET' RADIO SYSTEM

Percy Jones Is First; 33 Others Follow

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A four channel radio and public address system has been installed at the Percy Jones General hospital at Battle Creek, Mich. The hospital is the first of army hospitals to be so equipped and plans are made to make similar installations in 33 other general hospitals. Outstanding network programs are picked up in the hospital's control room and sent out over two channels while live shows from an adjoining radio station go out thru the other two channels. Thus patients have a choice of four programs.

Individual "hushatone" receivers are used. The receivers—about five inches in diameter and three-quarters of an inch thinck—are turned on by pulling a string hanging from a rotary switch above the head of the bed. Various channels are tuned in by pulling the same cord. The program of any patient's choice cannot be heard by the man in an adjoining bed. He can safely choose another program if he desires.

Push Plans for FM

While most of the frequency modulation interests were not in agreement with the federal communications commission's new allocations for FM—from 88-106 megacycles in R. C. Cosgrove, president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, has announced that "all of us will bend our backs behind the new allocation so that we can give FM to the public at the earliest possible date."

Prof. Edwin H. Armstrong, inventor of FM, who opposed moving it from its present location, has stated that "FM will start going forward immediately that licenses are issued for the 400 or more applications on file. . . . If action is taken promptly, then in spite of the handicap imposed by the shift of the band, FM will be a major factor in post-war employment."

The Stromberg-Carlson company, one of the pioneer FM makers, has announced that it has swung into immediate action toward producing an FM receiver to meet the new FCC allocation.

Speed Is Promised

The Hallicrafters company has filed application with the WPB and OPA in Washington for spot authorization to manufacture 250,000 FM converters which make the present FM sets capable of receiving on the new 88-106 megacycle band. Some 400,000 pre-war FM sets are in the hands of the public.

Meanwhile, Paul Porter, chairman of the FCC, has announced that the commission will "move with all possible speed" to revise existing regulations and standards for the operation of FM, television, and facsimile in the new allocations.

The FCC chief said that the commission expects to schedule a meeting sometime this month to formulate the industry's proposals for rules and standards.

Vera Vague Is Guest of Frances Langford

Vera Vague will be a guest on the Frances Langford show when it is aired over WMAQ-NBC from the A. A. F. redistribution center in Santa Ana, Cal., at 7 o'clock tonight. Miss Langford will sing "I Should Care," "Star Dust," and a medley from "Oklahoma." Spike Jones and his City Slickers will present a novelty arrangement of "The Fireman Song" from the musical comedy, "Up in Central Park."

Discussion of Russia on N. U. Review Stand

"Russia and Central Europe" will be the topic for the Northwestern Reviewing Stand on W-G-N-Mutual at 10:30 a. m. today. Albert Parry, Joseph Martinek, and Edmund Sawacki will participate.

New Army Radio

Pvt. George B. Keil, 4846 N. Clark st., listens to the new "quiet" type of radio installed at Percy Jones General hospital.

DVORAK'S MUSIC TO BE PLAYED BY PHILHARMONIC

Works by Anton Dvorak and Bedrich Smetana, Bohemian composers, will be presented by the New York Philharmonic orchestra, conducted by George Szell, on WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. Dvorak's Symphony No. 5 in E minor and three of his Slavonic Dances, and Smetana's Symphonic Poem, "The Moldau" will be heard. Dr. John G. Kirkwood of Cornell university will speak during intermission.

FIRST OF TWO U. OF C. CONCERTS ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Two concerts will be presented during the summer quarter at the University of Chicago. The first will be given at 8:30 p. m. Friday in Mandel hall, 5714 University av., by the Albeneri trio under auspices of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge foundation. The second program is scheduled for 8:30 p. m. July 25, and will be given by the Philharmonic string quartet.

NBC Symphony Offers Grieg Program Today

Ania Dorfmann, pianist, will be soloist with the NBC Symphony orchestra in an all-Grieg program to be heard over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. Miss Dorfmann will play Grieg's Piano Concerto in A minor. Dr. Frank Black will direct the orchestra in Norwegian Dances No. 2 in A minor and No. 3 in G minor, and four movements from the "Peer Gynt" Suite No. 1.

Chicago Philharmonic to Air Schumann Work

The Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, will air Schumann's Symphony No. 2 in C major over W-G-N and WGNB Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock. The program also will include Bach's six Brandenberg Concertos and de Falla's Spanish Dance No. 1.

VARIED MUSIC ON THEATER OF AIR SATURDAY

Varied musical moods and tempo will mark the summer concert to be presented on the Theater of the Air from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak. Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra. Soloists will be Angelo Raffaelli, tenor; Ruth Slater, contralto, and Penny Perry, soprano.

Included in the entertainment will be "Musetta's Waltz" from "La Boheme" to be sung by Miss Perry; "Nina" by Raffaelli. The concert orchestra will present "Espana Rhapsody" and "Scherzo in G Minor" from "Octette." "Home to Our Mountains" will be sung by Miss Slater and Raffaelli, and "Sleeping Beauty Waltz" by the chorus. Miss Perry and chorus will sing "Romany Life" from the "Fortune Teller."

John Barclay will be the narrator and John Mallow, the announcer. Jack La Frandre, writer-producer of the series, will direct the performance.

BE SURE, BE SAFE WITH FHA LOANS
TO BUY OR REFINANCE

Safety and security in the matter of loans are the two things you'll look for first if you're buying or refinancing a home. And, you'll find them both in FHA Loans—with low, easier payments.

FHA Loans are surer and safer because they are U. S. Government investigated and approved. You are protected in another way, too. The government approves the valuation of the property—and arranges payments to suit your pocketbook. Under no circumstances will they allow you to take an obligation in excess of your ability to pay—which means freedom from all financial worries.

FHA Loans are the streamlined loans! Any of the officers of this bank will give you full particulars if you drop in. On the other hand, if you can't come in during banking hours, phone us. We'll gladly call at your home in the evening. There will be no obligation.

TWO U. OF C. MEN JOIN SCHOOLS OF ARMY IN EUROPE

Professors Given Leave Until Next January

Two University of Chicago professors have been appointed to university study centers of the army in the European theater of operations. They are John Dale Russell, 5632 Kenwood av., associate dean of the division of social sciences, and Merle C. Coulter, 1316 E. 54th st., professor of botany.

Russell has been appointed to the faculty of the center near Paris, France, and Coulter to the faculty at the Shrivenham, England, center. Both will be on leave from the university until next January.

Will Serve 4,000 Persons

Accommodating 4,000 service men and women, the study centers have been established as a part of a comprehensive program for occupational United States forces and troops waiting transportation back to the United States. The faculty will include 250 members, one-third to be drawn from the army and the remainder from accredited colleges and universities in this country.

"The range of courses to be offered will be relatively complete at the freshman and sophomore level, and will include such advanced courses as staff and facilities permit," Prof. Russell stated. "Classes will be held five days a week over a period of eight weeks, and students will take three classes daily." Prof. Russell, known for his educational administrative work, has been on the University of Chicago faculty since 1931.

Develops University Systems

He has received nation-wide recognition for studies of college accrediting procedures, educational financing, and vocational education. A veteran of World War I., he served 16 months with the A. E. F. He holds three degrees from the University of Indiana at Bloomington.

Prof. Coulter, internationally known biologist, received his doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Chicago and first was appointed to the faculty in 1921. As chairman of the committee of the biological sciences survey course in the College of the University, he is one of the original planners of the course.

His book, "The Story of the Plant Kingdom," has been adopted as a standard reference work on plant genetics at the university and other institutions. He also has contributed a chapter on plant life to "The World and Man as Science Sees Them." He collaborated with his father in writing "Where Evolution and Religion Meet."

The university study center near Paris will open Aug. 1, and at Shrivenham, July 15.

Paragraphs About People You May Know

SUSAN HANDLER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Handler, 6951 Merrill av., recently appeared on the commencement program of the Boguslawski College of Music, in an original reading called "The Story of a Great Man." The youngest artist to appear on the program, Miss Handler dedicated the dramatization to the founder and former president of the school, Mossaiye Boguslawski.

Susan Handler

Frank De Clements, 8213 Calumet av., recently retired after 43 years with the Commonwealth Edison company. He started his career in 1902 as a substation apprentice and was a switchboard operator at Fisk Generating station, 1111 W. Cermak rd., when he left active service.

ALAN J. GRANT, son of Mrs. Mary Grant, 2546 E. 77th st., and Meyer Gilden, son of Mr. Mrs. Samuel Gilden, 9000 Houston av., recently were pledged to Eta Kappa Nu, honorary electrical fraternity at Illinois Institute of Technology. Grant, a graduate of South Shore High school, is a member of the navy V-12 unit, managing editor of the student newspaper, and a member of the Chess club, and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. Gilden, a Bowen High school graduate, is a member of Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and the rifle team.

Blackened spaces on the map denote location of the 36,600 acres of the forest preserve and highways leading to them from all parts of the city. The recreation areas may easily be reached by street cars, by elevated and electric lines, and by buses and steam trains, as well as by automobiles.

along which moccasined Indians once stealthily trod. Bicyclists are safe from dangers of the street. Horseback riders have their choice of paths in native woodland, forest clearing, or wide open spaces.

The only "don't" at the preserves is "don't destroy."

Clayton F. Smith, president of the forest preserve commissioners, emphasizes that the people should consider the preserves as their property and keep in mind the thought of preservation.

Future generations will want to vacation there, too.

SERGEANT GIVEN LEGION OF MERIT POSTHUMOUSLY

Sgt. Roy W. Both, son of Mrs. May Both, 6714 Bennett av., who was killed last fall when the B-24 in which he was traveling from Alaska to his base in the Aleutians crashed, recently was awarded the Legion of Merit posthumously.

Sgt. Both was cited for his part in helping design and build a tandem aerial camera mount which proved so helpful in piercing the Aleutian fog during photographic reconnaissance missions that it was adapted to all B-24's operating in the Kuriles. He also aided in improving night cameras which increased the accuracy of photographing results of bombing missions.

TRADE SCHOOL WILL GRADUATE 98 ON FRIDAY

Washburne Trade school, 1225 Sedgwick st., will graduate 98 students at 8 p. m. Friday in the school auditorium.

Lino Salvadori, mayor of Washburne Civic council, will open the program with the pledge of allegiance, which will be followed by the "Star Spangled Banner" played by the school band. Colors will be posted by Louis Agresto, Carrol Goress, John Hovorka, and Isidore Sorczak of the guard.

Guests will be welcomed by Elmer Frelka, class president, who also was chosen outstanding graduate. Gene Randell, Robert Skup, and Marie Baert will participate in the panel discussion "Challenge to Youth." Class Secretary Betty Jane Flick will present the class gift which will be accepted by Angeline Greco in the name of the February, 1946, class.

"Prayer" by Stephen Vincent Benet will be read by Lorraine Gerzon. A musical program will be presented by the Washburne band and Girls' choir with Anne Marie Leahy as accompanist. Drummers John Janik and Richard Cutting, and Buglers Ralph Iverson and Henry Theiner will assist.

Ushers will be William Beyer, Bruce Brant, Paul Deyerler Frank Drong, John Hovorka, John Kulla, Edward McLagan, Frank Markiewicz, Ernest Moore, Peter Paulus, Paul Przyborski, Frank Salay, Joseph Salerno, Richard Svorboda, Stanley Trojanowicz, and Dale Vanander, all lower classmen.

Preserves Visited by 15 Million Yearly

The forest preserve district of Cook county is the largest area of its kind in the United States within a metropolitan area. It was established in 1915 "to protect and preserve the flora, fauna, and scenic beauties, and to restore, restock protect, and preserve the natural condition, for the purpose of the education, pleasure, and recreation of the public."

The acres dedicated to posterity border the Des Plaines river, the north branches of the Chicago river, the Skokie marsh, Salt creek, Thorn creek, and other inland bodies of water.

Since 1929, a program of improvement to care for large crowds adequately without injury to landscape has been put into effect. The district now has more than 15,000,000 visitors yearly.

Married Recently

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sherwood

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sottman, 6942 Clyde av., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Virginia, to Kenneth Sherwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sherwood, 5142 Ingleside av. CANVAS PAINT WILL ADD NEW LIFE TO HOME

Rugs, Awnings Are Two Types of Uses

BY LOUISE BARGELT

There are paints especially made for use on canvas articles which can be applied to the tapes of your venetian blinds when they need freshening. They will not shrink the fabric or crack when the blind is pulled up. Such treatment will preserve as well as decorate the tapes. Both blinds and tapes should be clean and free of all dust so that paint will not streak when applied.

If you have porch chairs, cushions, gliders or other articles which are exposed to constant rubbing, there are clear liquid overcoatings available which can be applied after you have given these articles a coat of paint. The overcoating will seal in the pigments.

Before painting a grass or fiber rug with this type of paint for canvas articles, sweep and clean it well. Weave or darn any worn place and spread newspapers on a flat surface to cover an area a little larger than the rug. If the rug is very old and porous, use a coat of starch sizing first. [To make this sizing, blend one cup of starch with one cup of water and pour this mixture into two quarts of boiling water. Bring to a smooth paste and you will have enough sizing for a 6 by 9 rug.] When the rug is completely dry, go over it with a dry scrubbing brush to restore its gloss.

Two popular treatments for canvas tops on cars are black or tan. However, if the top is badly discolored, it is better to use black.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, July 9

This has been one of the worst seasons for insects and it behooves all gardeners to spray or dust regularly if the insects are to be kept under control. With all the bulletins that are available, it is amazing that many gardeners fail to realize the necessity of spraying early and often.

Some gardeners use stomach poisons for sucking insects when only a contact spray should be used; stomach poisons are used when worms or beetles that actually eat the leaves are present.

Tuesday, July 10

All tropical vegetables and decorative plants should be making a fine growth at this time, for they revel in hot weather. However, they need moisture for full development. Liquid manure is excellent when it can be prepared. It supplies some plant food and moisture at the roots, where it does the most good.

Wednesday, July 11

Order pansy seed for immediate sowing. The seed will grow quickly and the young plants can be transplanted in September in coldframes. In spring they will have made a fine growth and can be planted in the garden area.

There is nothing quite as satisfactory as the hearts ease, for they are fine in beds or for cutting. The plants can be cut back now and may send out new flowering stems. In mild locations they will winter outdoors if given slight protection.

Thursday, July 12

Many inquiries are received as to the exact time house plants should be watered. Water when the soil is dry and the plants need water. Clay pots dry out rather rapidly, and when the soil is dry the pot sounds hollow or gives off a ringing sound when tapped with a knife.

Friday, July 13

Give chrysanthemums a slight application of plant food and plenty of water. Watch for pests and spray accordingly. It is a good time to make cuttings for next winter's flowering in the windows of the home.

Cuttings from the handsomely marked coleus, begonias, flowering varieties, geraniums, and others will have time to grow into fine plants before cold weather, but keep all flowers removed and shift whenever necessary, but do not overpot.

Saturday, July 14

Keep the lawn mowed at 1½ inches. It will be much more attractive than when cut shorter. If necessary rake grass clippings from the lawn, for if too many clippings are present it will cause the grass to turn brown.

The clippings are useful for mulching if no weed seeds are present. Remove and destroy if unfit to use as a mulch or for composting.

U. OF C. TO OPEN BOOK FORUMS AT S. SIDE LIBRARIES

Eighteen south side residents who have been training in the Hutchins-Adler method of studying the great books at the University of Chicago will present a discussion course in six south side communities next fall under the auspices of the University of Chicago and the Chicago libraries.

This original program will be presented at Chatham, South Chicago, South Shore, Washington Park, Woodlawn, and East Chicago public libraries and in 35 other communities. In each discussion group there will be two moderators or leaders to avoid the danger of a single teacher doing the teaching. Their questions will be designed to stimulate argument. In a series of biweekly lectures they will discuss the works of such authors as Plato, Aristotle, Voltaire, Marx, Plutarch, and Machiavelli.

In preparation for the fall seminar leaders are attending lectures in the method of discussion leadership and the use of the classics in a liberal education under Mortimer J. Adler, professor of the philosophy of law at the University of Chicago.

South siders taking courses include: Mrs. Catherine Campbell, 9038 Essex av.; Albert H. Chapman, 7143 Cornell av.; Mrs. Theodore E. Crawley, 359 E. 56th st.; Don F. Datisman, Gary; Mrs. R. E. Dean, 7425 South Shore dr.; Miss Marie de Roulet, 7908 Langley av.; Mrs. Russell Gaunt, Gary; Miss Vivian Harsh, 55 E. 46th st.; Miss Louis Keller, 220 W. 5th av., Gary; Mrs. Genevieve Kreten, 8035 Luella av.; Paul Lange, Gary.

Ernest L. Rea, 8127 Ingleside av.; Miss Dorothy Sabel, 5100 Cornell av.; Mrs. W. W. Smith, East Chicago; Miss Ezelyn Starsted, East Chicago, and Miss Mary M. Taggart, 5642 Harper av. Two other south siders who will teach the course in southwest Chicago are Miss Mary C. Budd, 6715 Oglesby av., and Mrs. Lawrence W. Carlson, 4340 Drexel blvd.

CIRCUS OF BOOK READING OPENS FOR CHILDREN

Clowns, Balloons Are Rewards

"You can have a circus with books," is the slogan of a Chicago public library summer reading game which is being played in young people's departments in libraries thruout the west side.

In each children's room a gaily dressed dancing clown, posted on a bulletin board, offers an incentive to vacation reading. As the days go by, he will be surrounded with miniature clowns placed there by children participating in the game.

Pick Books for Every One

Books to be read in the game have been selected by children's librarians with reference to age groups and special interests. Youngsters who want to learn about children in other lands, boys who are interested in aviation or sports, and boys and girls with a taste for adventure, all will find that a reading menu designed to appeal to their individual tastes.

Tent meetings will be held each week so that children can report on the books they have read. At each meeting librarians will suggest new books which may be included in the game.

As each child joins, he will receive a miniature clown which will be placed on the bulletin board. For every book read and reported on, his clown will be allowed to carry a colored balloon. At the end of the summer each library will post an honor roll, with a roster of names of children who have completed the game.

Legler Schedules Meetings

At Legler library, 115 S. Pulaski rd., tent meetings will be conducted by Mrs. Mabel Schweikert and Miss Marie Simonetta at 10 a. m. every Saturday. During the first half hour children will listen to the "Let's Pretend" radio broadcast. After the program boys and girls will give book reports.

At Austin library, 5615 Race av., Miss Dorothy Bauerle, children's librarian, has planned two tent meetings each week. The first will be held at 2 p. m. on Tuesdays for children from the first to fourth grades. The second will be at 2 p. m. Wednesdays for boys and girls from the fifth to eighth grades. Miss Bauerle is also conducting a story hour at Sayre park day camp at 2 p. m. on Fridays.

Plan Four Meetings Weekly

Mrs. Camille Thornell and Miss Muriel Bouchier will lead four meetings a week at 10 a. m. at Douglas library, 13th and S. Homan av. Children of the third and fourth grades will meet on Mondays, pupils of the fifth and sixth grades on Tuesdays, and those of the seventh and eighth grades on Wednesdays. First and second graders will meet on Saturday mornings.

Douglas library is conducting a story hour at Howland day school at 1 p. m. on Fridays.

Tent meetings will be held at Lewis Institute library at 10:30 a. m. Saturdays.

WING OF SANTAY PLANT WILL ADD 20,000 SQ. FEET

Addition of a new wing to the Santay Corp., 351-357 N. Crawford av., manufacturers and assemblers of electro-mechanical units, will provide two and a half times more floor space by adding 20,000 square feet.

In 1919, Daniel Szantay and several associates founded the company to make tools and dies. Subsequently, they manufactured refrigerator parts, automotive specialty items, and pioneered injection molding and plastic molds. In 1940, the corporation received an award in modern plastic competition.

The corporation was presented with the army-navy E last March.

MATTHEW DEPEDERS HAVE GOLDEN PARTY; BARBECUE A LAMB

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Depeder, 4063 Cermak rd., recently celebrated their 50th wedding at a surprise dinner party in the home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Stakich, Cicero.

Matthew Depeder

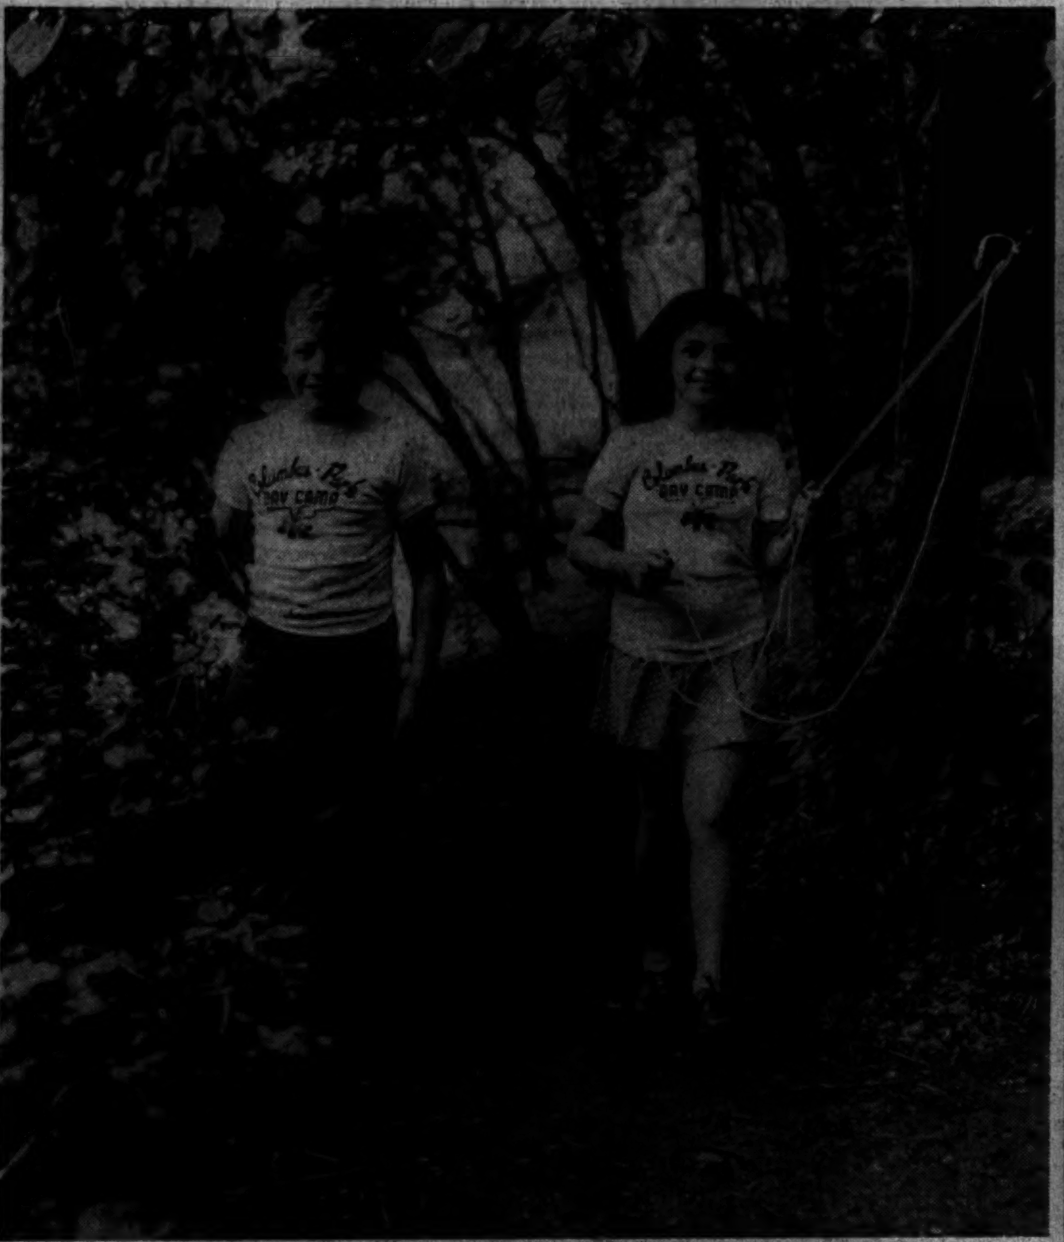
Mrs. Depeder

Nearly 100 friends of the couple attended the celebration at which the Yugoslavian tradition of barbecuing a lamb was observed.

A retired conductor for the Chicago Surface Lines, Depeder was born in Kraljevica, Yugoslavia, 70 years ago and came to America at the age of six. Later, he returned to his native land and married his childhood sweetheart, Vinci Jagodich.

The couple, residents of the west side for 50 years, were the parents of four sons and four daughters, now deceased. Depeder is the former secretary of the Croation Fraternal Union of America.

Games, Fishing, and Alfresco Dining Intrigue Young Campers



Leonard Teven and Mary Ann Del Guidice, members of the summer day camp at Columbus park, 500 S. Central av., are on their way to the man made lagoon in the park, where they hope to catch enough carp and sunfish for several meals.

Martin Merel measures the distance to the peg, while Shirley Shapiro (center), and Shirley Siegel wait impatiently to begin pitching horseshoes. The children have elected the game as part of their camp program.

PURPLE HEARTS AWARDED VETS OF WEST AREAS

Two Wounded in the Combat on Cebu

For wounds received during the battle for Cebu Island in the Pacific, the Purple Heart has been awarded to Sgt. Irving P. Drum, 612 S. Taylor av., Oak Park. A member of the Americal division's 132d infantry, he is a veteran of the Guadalcanal, Bougainville, and Philippine campaigns.

Sgt. Calvert

Sgt. Drum

Overseas 40 months, Sgt. Drum also wears the bronze star medal for heroic achievement in action against the Japanese in the northern Solomons.

The Purple Heart also has been awarded to Sgt. Harlan A. Calvert, 1014 Jackson blvd., who, like Sgt. Drum, was wounded in combat on Cebu. The presentation was made shortly after Sgt. Calvert returned from the front lines to prepare for embarkation to the United States under the army's readjustment program.

Berwynite Is Wounded

Another west sider who recently merited the Purple Heart is Sgt. Gene Aloisio, Berwyn. Wounded by shrapnel while directing machine gune fire on a Nazi gun position near Weinheim, Germany, he is convalescing at a general hospital in England.

"My machine gun squad was about 700 yards from the German guns," Sgt. Aloisio said. "I ordered the men to fire, but the Nazis turned their anti-aircraft guns on us. A shell hit the building I was in, and the shrapnel sent me reeling back. The sergeant was flown to England. He previously had been awarded a bronze star for directing artillery fire on a Nazi mechanized unit.

Evacuated recently by air from France to the United States, is another resident of this area, who has won the Purple Heart and an oak leaf cluster. He is Sgt. Louis Persak, 2031 21st st., who is recovering from shrapnel wounds and burns received when a phosporous grenade exploded between his feet.

In Armored Division

Entering the army in November, 1942, he was transferred to the European theater in October, 1944.

Also a recipient of the Purple Heart is Sgt. John Micatha, 1342 Cullerton av. A mortar section leader with the 7th infantry division in the Pacific, he participated in the Aleutians, Marshalls, and Leyte campaigns, receiving the Purple Heart for wounds received on Leyte. He later took part in the action on Okinawa, where he was again wounded. He recently received the cluster to his Purple Heart.

Cokes-Me-Inn

Cokes-Me-Inn, Glenn Ellyn youth center, will be open Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday nights during the summer months.

STUDENT FUND HONORS MEMORY OF SGT. GOLBUS

A Soldier's Insurance Starts Trust

Honoring their son, who was killed in action last December, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Golbus, 5525 Washington blvd., recently established the Sgt. Robert B. Golbus Memorial Scholarship fund.

The endowment will provide two annual scholarships for university students. The awards will be granted for achievement in good citizenship, without regard to race, creed, or color.

Valued at $400 Each

The two scholarships, valued at $400 each, will be made available to students at Northwestern university or at such other university as the fund's trustees may designate.

The trustees will be a representative of the Golbus family, a representative of Northwestern university, and Dr. A. L. Sachar, national director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel foundations.

Sgt. Golbus was born in Chicago July 6, 1925. He was killed in action in Germany while leading a patrol. A graduate of Austin High school, he enlisted in the army in September, 1943, after completing a year and a half at Northwestern university.

Receives Bronze Star

He received the bronze star medal for heroism and was posthumously awarded the Purple Heart. He is buried in Holland.

Mr. and Mrs. Golbus set up the fund from the $10,000 insurance policy carried by Sgt. Golbus, adding to it by contributions of their own and by gifts from friends of the family.

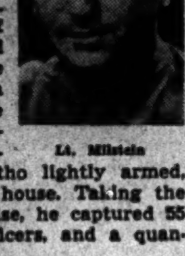
Mr. Golbus is a member and former president of Austin B'nai B'rith lodge. His wife is a member of the Austin B'nai B'rith Women.

Regina Isabellans Will Give Benefit Dinner

Regina council, Ladies of Isabella, will give a benefit dinner at 6:30 p. m. Thursday at the Home Arts Guild, 205 N. Michigan av. Miss Clara Kloss is grand lady, and Mrs. Anna G. Flynn, arrangements chairman. Proceeds will be used for philanthropic work.

LT. IRVING MILSTEIN IS DECORATED FOR SEIZING 57 GERMANS

For heroic action in Germany, the silver star has been awarded to Lt. Irving E. Milstein, Berwyn. While leading his platoon, Lt. Milstein was informed of a house containing a number of Nazis.



Lt. Milstein

While two of his men covered his advance, the officer crept to a window where he overheard a German plan of reorganization. Altho lightly armed, he entered the house. Taking the enemy by surprise, he captured 55 soldiers, two officers, and a quantity of material.

In service since Feb. 4, 1942, Lt. Milstein has also been awarded the purple heart for wounds received in combat March 29.

HOLD SUMMER CHURCH SCHOOL IN NAPERVILLE

Under auspices of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago and the Naperville Council of Religion, a vacation laboratory school will be conducted in Naperville from July 23 thru Aug. 1.

Various age groups will meet in different Protestant churches of Naperville during the period from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. daily, excepting Saturday and Sunday. Each group will be under leadership of an expert whose work will be observed by student-teacher enrollees in the school.

It will be the first school of its kind conducted in Naperville or the Chicago area.

George L. Lane Named Glen Oak Club Manager

George L. Lane, 155 Linden av., Oak Park, has been appointed manager of Glen Oak country club, between Lombard and Glen Ellyn. In order to accept the position, Mr. Lane has resigned from the managership of Oak Park club, a post he has held since 1932.

NAME 1945 WAR FUND LEADERS FOR WEST SIDE

Ernest A. Otto Heads Area Workers

West side leaders for the 1945 Community and War Fund campaign have been appointed as an initial step in the city-wide drive which will get under way Oct. 1, James R. Sterling, city division chairman, has announced.

Heading the campaign in this area will be Ernest A. Otto, manager of Wieboldt's department store, 106 S. Ashland av.

Will Canvass Community

Mrs. A. A. Weiner, 3108 Douglas blvd., and Mrs. Frank Radvanovsky, 4429 Cullerton st., have been appointed to the Women's cabinet, which will be part of the city division, Sterling said. The division will canvass west side homes and smaller businesses to collect funds for war related and home front relief.

The solicitors will work within the area bounded by the western city limits, North av., Western av., and the drainage canal.

Name Suburban Leaders

In the west suburban area, Stuart W. Cochran, 933 Pleasant st., Oak Park, chairman of the suburban division including outlying areas in Cook, Lake, and Du Page counties, announced the appointments of a regional chairman and six district chairmen.

He named W. Y. Barber, River Forest, as regional leader. The following are district chairmen: Herbert E. Schnadt, Bartlett; George R. Murphy, West Chicago; Harrison Robillard, Elmhurst; Byron S. Powell, Wheaton; Chester M. Carson, Melrose Park, and Ernest A. Pender, La Grange.

List Fund Beneficiaries

The Community and War Fund represents the National War Fund thruout Cook, Lake, and Du Page counties. During the campaign funds will be raised for the U. S. O., United Seamen's Service, War Prisoners Aid, American Field service, and 16 allied relief and refugee rescue agencies.

In Chicago, funds also are raised for the 187 health and welfare agencies of the Community Fund. Money subscribed in the suburban areas goes only to suburban chests and charities of the war related agencies.

WEST SIDE GIRLS REHEARSE DANCE FETE TUESDAY

West area girls participating in the dance pageant, "Buckingham Fountain," will meet at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning in the Ideal studios, 3907 Madison st., for their first rehearsal. Miss Mayblossom Macdonald will direct the pageant, which will be given Saturday night, Aug. 18, at the 16th annual Chicago Music festival in Soldiers' field.

MEMORABILE FROM STATUE OF LIBERTY SHOWN

An exhibit of banquet menus and other items associated with the unveiling of the Statue of Liberty and belonging to O. Andreas Garson, 937 Ontario st., Oak Park, is being held at the Oak Park library.

The collection includes one of the original invitations sent by President Cleveland for the statue's unveiling Oct. 28, 1886; a menu from the banquet given Frederick Bartholdi, sculptor of the statue, by the Grand Army of the Republic Nov. 2, 1886, and an invitation and banquet menu for the farewell party given the French delegation sent to present the statue to America.

The exhibit will continue until July 15.

The Rev. Waichulis Says 1st Mass in Melrose Park

The Rev. Robert J. Waichulis said his first mass recently at Our Lady of Mount Carmel church in Melrose Park. Father Waichulis was born in Melrose Park, Aug. 3, 1918. He graduated from Our Lady of Mount Carmel grammar school in 1932, from the University of Notre Dame in 1941, and from the Catholic university in Washington, D. C., this year. He was ordained at the Sacred Heart church, Notre Dame, Ind.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Promotion to lieutenant colonel was announced recently in Italy for Edward J. Culleton, husband of Mrs. Helen Culleton, 704 Highland av., Oak Park. Called to active duty in December, 1940, he was transferred overseas in November, 1942. He is serving with the 12th air force.

Col. Culleton

Sgt. James Coats, son of the Rev. Frank Coats and Mrs. Coats, 251 N. Kedzie av., has returned from Europe where he served with the 8th air force. Son of the pastor of the Garfield Park Methodist church, his arrival in Chicago was an especially joyous occasion, for he saw his 16 month old daughter, Dawn Irene, for the first time. He is stationed temporarily at Camp Grant awaiting reassignment to the Pacific theater. His brother, Lt. Frank Coats, is a pilot serving with the air forces at Waycross, Ga.

After 12 months in the European theater, Corp. Sylvester A. Heck, Downers Grove, is now at an army redistribution station in Miami Beach, Fla. A member of a corps of engineers, he has been awarded the European campaign ribbon with a battle star.

FOREST SHADE OFFERS SOLACE TO CITY WEARY

Chicago's Fringe: A Cool Green

(Fourth of a series of articles telling of interesting places available to Chicagoans who are vacationing at home due to war time travel restrictions.)

BY ONEY FRED SWEET

In the good old summer time Chicagoans may vacation in the country with a minimum of travel for the forest preserve district of Cook county is a green fringe at the city's edge.

From the loop to the farthest point in the preserves—Deer Grove, Quintens and Dundee rds.—is no more than 30 miles. Dan Ryan woods, 87th st. and Western av., and Caldwell woods, Milwaukee and Devon avs., are no more than 10 miles out. So far as offering any reminder of office and shop routine or household tasks, the woods and waters might well be thousands of miles away.

Nature Has Soothing Message

But a holiday in the preserves does evoke memories of other carefree hours in the out-of-doors. The good earth and the great sky have not changed. The birds have all come back. The shade lies deep beneath the old oak trees and all about there is the clean smell of growing things. A summer's day close to nature is as it has always been and the troubles of man have not altered its soothing message.

For golfers there are 18 hole courses at Northwestern, Harms rd., and Simpson st., Indian Boundary, Forest Preserve dr. and Cumberland av., and Edgebrook, Central and Devon avs. Billy Caldwell course of nine holes is at Caldwell av., north of Elston av.

Swimmers may take on sunburn at Emmett Whealan pool, Milwaukee and Devon avs.; Cermak pool, 7600 Ogden av., Lyons, and Green Lake pool, 159th st. and Torrence av.

Fish Await Anglers

There are plenty of places along the winding banks of the placid Des Plaines, where, in the companionship of serene surroundings, you can lazily wait for the fish to bite. They're all by your side again—the gay winged butterfly that flits to a happy landing on your floating cork, the curious turtle that pokes its head above the stream's calm surface, the reflection in the water of, let us hope, a kindly cloud.

Fishing is permitted in all of the streams in the district, either from the banks or from boats. Ten fishing boats were placed in Maple lake three years ago; today the demand has been met for 60.

Today the aroma of coffee in the brewing will blend with the fragrant summer breeze at many a picnic spot in the preserves. Families, churches, lodges, and other groups have applied for permits if they number more than 25. They have been assigned to certain areas according to their needs. There are 96 large groves from which to make a selection.

Tables and benches have been provided. Open air fireplaces also are a part of the picnic facilities. From deep wells at convenient locations water may be drawn for drinking and making the coffee and lemonade—and for putting out the camp fire.

Children's Shouts Echo

The children will play games that call for freedom and the echo of their shouts will be accepted uncomplainingly by friendly foliage alongside the open field. The old folks will rest and visit and look on. And there'll be at least a layer cake to lift from the hamper, even tho the sandwich meat is skimpier than of yore.

There'll be some neighborhood groups that will bring along their musicians and their playing of the "squeeze box" or the zither will lend a gypsy touch to the day of escape.

There'll be dancing couples on many of the 75 platforms scattered thruout the preserves.

If the weather is fair an estimated half million persons will enjoy the preserves today, but there will be plenty of space to absorb a half million more.

Historic Site Restored

The historically minded will be interested in the site of the Old Chicago Portage, 1673-1836, that has been restored at Harlem av. and 47th st. It marks the west end of a strip of land used as the carrying or connecting place uniting the waters of the St. Lawrence with those of the Mississippi river. With the portage are associated such names as Joliet, Marquette, La Salle, and other explorers, and it had much to do with determining the site of Chicago.

Most of the vast acreage is maintained in its native state. Wild flowers have been protected. The toads and the turtles, the hawks and the owls, the chipmunks and the squirrels continue to scamper or fly about as in the days of the horse and buggy when their environs were remote and inaccessible to most city dwellers. Way before that, when there were no white men in the vicinity.

At Trailside museum, Chicago and Thatcher avs., there are on exhibition the living or mounted species of the creatures that make the preserves their habitat. Here interested persons may make a closer study of their furred and feathered friends. Wounded birds are hospitalized, and there is a cage where children may enjoy the tamed animals and birds for playmates.

Hikers may take the same trails

COMPILE RECORD OF SCOUT TROOPS IN PAPER DRIVE

Legion Sponsored Group Leads West Side

Final figures on the Gen. Eisenhower Boy Scout waste paper collection show that Scouts of the west side district contributed 1,712,226 pounds to the total Chicago poundage of 9,778,366, Edward Lhotka, district war service chairman, has reported.

Leading troop in the district is No. 202, with a record of 68,650 pounds. Raymond Baldacci, 2414 S. Oakley av., is scoutmaster of the group, which is sponsored by McCormick American Legion post, 2530 Blue Island av.

Church Troops Rank High

Second place in the district was won by the troop sponsored by St. Angela's Holy Name society, 5780 Potomac av. Members collected 55,825 pounds. John F. Hickey, 825 Clarence av., is scoutmaster.

Third and fourth place honors went to troops 348 and 369, respectively. The Rev. Jerome Riordan reports that troop 348, sponsored by St. Mel's Catholic church, 22 N. Kildare av., collected 53,700 pounds. Troop 369, sponsored by Austin Presbyterian church, Fulton st. and Waller av., collected 51,891 pounds under the leadership of Scoutmaster Harold Swenson, 908 N. Waller av.

A collection of 45,450 pounds brought fifth place honors to troop 261, sponsored by St. Roman's Catholic church, 2313 S. Washtenaw av. Brice Veasman, 2651 W. 25th st., is scoutmaster.

Scouts Win Medals

Approximately 1,250 scouts, each of whom collected 1,000 pounds or more during the campaign period, will be awarded a Gen. Eisenhower medal. Every troop which averaged more than 1,000 pounds per member will receive a World War II. shell container with a citation signed by Gen. Eisenhower.

In addition to the groups winning special honors, the following troops collected over 40,000 pounds of paper during the drive: Troop 269, sponsored by the Lawndale Boys' club, 2801 S. Ridgeway av., 45,000 pounds; troop 328, Melin-Romer American Legion post, 5320 Division st., 41,491 pounds, and troop 329, also sponsored by Melin-Romer post, 41,606 pounds.

Work of Other Troops

The following troops collected 33,000 pounds or over: Troop 270, sponsored by Tabernacle Baptist church, 3300 Monroe st., 39,000 pounds; troop 244, Our Lady of Sorrow Catholic church, 3121 Jackson blvd., 38,000 pounds; troop 363, Millard Congregational church, 2301 S. Central Park av., 37,873 pounds; Mary Queen of Heaven Catholic church, 5300 24th pl., 35,125 pounds; troop 299, sponsored by a group of citizens, 3359 18th st., 33,858 pounds; troop 330, sponsored by Douglas Park residents, 14th and Albany av., 33,406 pounds, and troop 248, Halsted Street Institutional church, 1935 S. Halsted st., 33,000 pounds.

Seven troops each collected 25,000 pounds or over, while 13 troops each collected over 20,000 pounds.

JANE HYDE

The engagement of Jane Hyde to Capt. William J. Korber Jr., whose parents reside at 719 S. Clarence av., Oak Park, has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hyde of Cincinnati, O., formerly of Chicago. Miss Hyde was graduated from the University of Cincinnati where she was a member of Chi Omega sorority. Capt. Korber, a graduate of the University of Illinois, recently returned from India where he was stationed for two years with the army air forces.

TOTAL 319 YEARS AT THIS FAMILY REUNION OF FOUR

Two brothers and two sisters, all past 75, who had not been together for many years, recently met in a pleasant reunion at the home of Mrs. John Mischnick, Bellwood. At the reunion were Mrs. Mischnick, her sister, Caroline Rudorf, and her brothers, William and Carl Meyer.

Mrs. Mischnick, 75, and her husband plan to celebrate their 56th wedding in September. Carl Meyer, 78, has resided at Welcome, Minn. Mrs. Rudorf, 80, wife of the late Dr. Paul Rudorf, is a resident of La Grange. William Meyer, 86, recently retired to Lemont after conducting a farm near Downers Grove for 50 years.

Carl Meyer and Mrs. Rudorf are moving to Fresno, Cal., and the reunion was arranged as a farewell party.

SAVING OF PAPER WILL CONTINUE THRU SUMMER

To enable Chicagoans to continue their contributions of vital waste paper for military use and war industries, 205 city, school, and park playgrounds have been designated collection centers for the summer months. Weekly collections at each point will be substituted for school term collections by pupils thruout the city.

A marked area is provided at each playground for the paper, which may be brought at any time during the week. The summer pickups, under the sponsorship of the Chicago Waste Paper Campaign committee, will continue until Aug. 25.

List Pickup Points

BUSINESS MEN BROADEN VISION BY U. OF C. STUDY

Lots of Work, but Worth Effort, They Say

Company executives, to be successful, should have an over-all knowledge of business administration—such is the belief of business executives who recently were graduated in the first class of the executive program at the University of Chicago.

Alfred S. Oskamp, Glen Ellyn, priorities analyst and research assistant of the Chicago Association of Commerce, enrolled in the class to gain knowledge he believed would help him in his particular phase of business. Oskamp, who holds a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Wisconsin, termed the course "quite a stint of effort," but said it had been well worth the many hours of study.

Oskamp further said that he felt his association with the men who represented 20 or more diverse businesses was as informative as the course itself.

Also Tended Home

Effie M. Morse, 1944 W. Monroe st., assistant to the president of Foote Brothers Gear and Machine corporation, one of the three women who received certificates, said, "I joined the executive program to learn the theory of business administration.

Miss Morse, who spent approximately 20 hours each week in home study, said the men students had quite an advantage over her, for most of them had wives who took care of their homes, while she had to keep up her apartment in addition to her school and business activities. She holds a bachelor of arts degree in English and history from the University of Chicago.

Returning to school was no new experience for Irving C. Lambert, Berwyn, price specialist for Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, Inc. However, Lambert who attended the Y. M. C. A. night high school and has studied in evening programs at the University of Chicago since 1925, defined the course "as different type of experience in night school work."

"Broadened Viewpoints."

Lambert believes that one of the major features of the course was that it gave a broad point of view of the responsibilities of business men. He said it afforded a better understanding of the problems which will confront business men within the next five or 10 years.

Lambert, who has already begun to put some of his newly acquired knowledge to work in a study of economics in the price field, intends to return to the university in the fall for more study.

Edward H. Mueller, Elmhurst, executive vice president of V. Mueller & Co., manufacturers of surgical instruments, agrees with Oskamp on the fact that the most important feature of the course was the coverage of all phases of business administration. Mueller, who has attended several evening courses, characterized the program as "excellent" and believes it was a benefit to all.

Tell of Lighter Side

Altho the two years of night study in the unprecedented evening program spelled study, work, and sacrifice of time for the students, there was a lighter side. There were extracurricular activities, such as poker parties and gatherings in the smoking room at which the students discussed their business problems and the formation of an alumni association.

Classes, which will resume in the fall, are held two evenings a week and students are expected to put in from 12 to 15 hours a week in outside work. Requirements for attendance are a substantial business experience at an executive level and three letters of recommendation, including one from the employer.

Students who completed the course are eligible for a master degree in business administration. For those who did not hold bachelor degrees and wished a master degree, an examination was given. If the student passed, he too was eligible for the master degree. Master degrees will be conferred at the summer convocation of the university.

CHILDREN'S DAY CAMP OPENED AT COLUMBUS PARK

Offer Crafts, Nature Lore Program

A summer filled with the adventures of rustic life is in store for 300 children, between the ages of 8 and 15, attending the Columbus park summer day camp, 500 S. Central av. Learning nature lore and acquiring proficiency in crafts is the goal of the campers who will spend their vacations on the 144 acres of rolling prairie.

Their day will begin at 9 a. m. and continue until 5 p. m. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. Saturdays will be devoted to trips and tours to points of interest, and Thursday evenings campfires, cook-outs, and other group activities will be held.

Campers Constantly Supervised

Under constant supervision, a schedule of play and instruction is followed by the campers. Each child may choose his own program of sports and crafts.

Among the activities offered are artcrafts, clay modeling, croquet, first aid instruction, sandcraft, moving pictures, shuffleboard, horseshoes, track and field events, hikes, hobby shows, singing games, swimming, and fishing in the park lagoon.

War Gardens Available

War gardens also are included in the program offered to children and their families. Plots are allotted according to the size of the family and gardening instructions are provided by Mrs. Magda Carrao of the Chicago Horticultural society, in coöperation with the Chicago park district.

Alfresco dining is part of the camper's daily schedule. Children bring their lunches and purchase milk at the camp.

$2 Registration Fee

A $2 registration fee is charged to defray the expense of materials used in the craft classes, uniform T-shirts issued to each camper, awards to be given at the end of the camp period, and other incidentals. The camp closes Aug. 30.

One of the events now being formulated will be a boxing tournament for the campers, at which war veterans will be the spectators. Another event will be a softball tournament for camp alumni.

Erwin Weiner, park supervisor, will be assisted by James F. Kelly, men's physical instructor; Miss Frances Kaplan, girls' physical instructor; Miss Marguerite Spellman, artcraft instructor; Frank Sturmer, woodcraft instructor; Miss June Ruzicka, dramatics instructor; Miss Jane Goldberg, assistant girls' physical instructor, and volunteer counselors.

Beautification with flowers and shrubs in Glen Ellyn to greet homecoming service men and women is a project of the civic committee of the Glen Ellyn Garden clubs.

Record Scout Trek to Camp Delavan Begins

The 1945 camping season is on at Camp Delavan where 169 members of the west suburban council of the Boy Scouts of America are enjoying a two week period beside Lake Delavan near Delavan, Wis.

Mrs. Iva Williams of the home economics department of Argo High school is camp chef.

Swimming and boating on the waterfront are supervised by R. S. Anderson, athletic coach of the Lincoln [Ill.] High school. R. V. Minton, principal of Stockton [Ill.] High school, who has been waterfront director at the camp the last two years, is camp director.

Elmer Stetcher of Oak Park again is serving as assistant camp director.

Under the Buddy system each patrol table has a schedule which assures each camper an opportunity of sharing dining room responsibilities. Each day the duty schedule rotates.

The season will close Aug. 22. It will be a record breaking season for attendance. To date, 1,251 camper weeks have been reserved by Scouts thruout the west suburban council area. There are still some vacancies for the fifth period, Aug. 8-22.

HONOR DIRECTOR OF LIONS CLUBS INTERNATIONAL

Edgar M. Elbert of Maywood recently was presented a scroll as a testimonial of his outstanding work during the last two years as director of International Lions.

During his term of office, Elbert traveled more than 30,000 miles for the organization, and has visited Lions clubs in Canada as well as all the 48 states.

Elbert is a past president of the Maywood Lions club and was a delegate to the international conferences of the club in Havana in 1940, Mexico City in 1935, and Toronto in 1942. He was made director of International Lions at its Cleveland convention two years ago. His term expires Sept. 10.

Parish in Berwyn Forms Catholic Veterans Post

8 MORTON HIGH GIRLS ACCEPTED BY MUSIC CAMP

Summer scholarships to the National Music camp at Interlochen, Mich., have been awarded eight students, all girls, of Morton High school, Cicero.

Recipients of the awards are Jetta Vasak, Ruth Ann Shuma, Elizabeth Sharman, Grace Peterka, Arlene Vilimovsky, Ann Marie Vydra, Nancy Steiner, and Laura Mae Sturdevant.

Supt. William P. MacLean, who presented the awards, declared this is the first time any school has sent eight scholars to Interlochen for a single season.

Boys Waive Their Rights

The all-girl roster of scholarship winners resulted from the fact that eligible boy contestants at Morton are soon to enter military service. They therefore waived their rights in favor of the young women who could complete the summer session.

Those receiving honorable mention were Vernon Ripkey, Frank Novak, Francis Dufka, Herbert Fingerhut, Warren Zeiss, Eugene Aldridge, Irene Simo, and Yvonne Aldridge.

The successful contestants were selected on the basis of scholarship, ability, loyalty, coöperation, and period of membership in the school band or orchestra.

A Symphony Each Week

The eight weeks' summer season will extend thru Aug. 26. Campers are under the direction of a faculty of 50 musicians and educators drawn from colleges, universities, and school systems thruout the United States. Interlochen is said to be unique in the field of music and related arts, for it is believed to be the only center in the country which produces a symphony each week by teen-age musicians.

The Morton High school scholarship winners were trained under the direction of Louis M. Blaha, head of the music department and conductor of the orchestra. He has been a member of the staff for 15 years. The band and orchestra have won national honors under his leadership.

ARMY HOSPITAL PUTS IN 'QUIET' RADIO SYSTEM

Percy Jones Is First; 33 Others Follow

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A four channel radio and public address system has been installed at the Percy Jones General hospital at Battle Creek, Mich. The hospital is the first of army hospitals to be so equipped and plans are made to make similar installations in 33 other general hospitals. Outstanding network programs are picked up in the hospital's control room and sent out over two channels while live shows from an adjoining radio station go out thru the other two channels. Thus patients have a choice of four programs.

Individual "hushatone" receivers are used. The receivers—about five inches in diameter and three-quarters of an inch thinck—are turned on by pulling a string hanging from a rotary switch above the head of the bed. Various channels are tuned in by pulling the same cord. The program of any patient's choice cannot be heard by the man in an adjoining bed. He can safely choose another program if he desires.

Push Plans for FM

While most of the frequency modulation interests were not in agreement with the federal communications commission's new allocations for FM—from 88-106 megacycles in R. C. Cosgrove, president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, has announced that "all of us will bend our backs behind the new allocation so that we can give FM to the public at the earliest possible date."

Prof. Edwin H. Armstrong, inventor of FM, who opposed moving it from its present location, has stated that "FM will start going forward immediately that licenses are issued for the 400 or more applications on file. . . . If action is taken promptly, then in spite of the handicap imposed by the shift of the band, FM will be a major factor in post-war employment."

The Stromberg-Carlson company, one of the pioneer FM makers, has announced that it has swung into immediate action toward producing an FM receiver to meet the new FCC allocation.

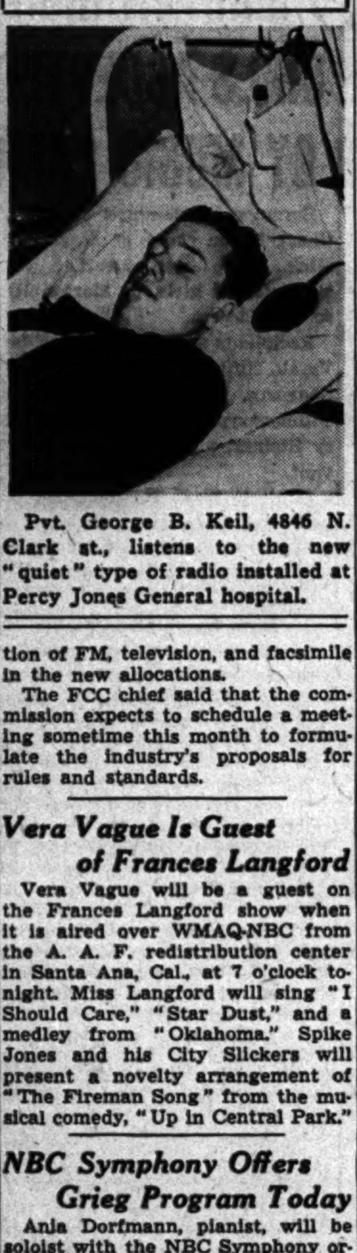
Speed Is Promised

The Hallicrafters company has filed application with the WPB and OPA in Washington for spot authorization to manufacture 250,000 FM converters which make the present FM sets capable of receiving on the new 88-106 megacycle band. Some 400,000 pre-war FM sets are in the hands of the public.

Meanwhile, Paul Porter, chairman of the FCC, has announced that the commission will "move with all possible speed" to revise existing regulations and standards for the operation of FM, television, and facsimile in the new allocations.

The FCC chief said that the commission expects to schedule a meeting sometime this month to formulate the industry's proposals for rules and standards.

New Army Radio



Pvt. George B. Keil, 4846 N. Clark st., listens to the new "quiet" type of radio installed at Percy Jones General hospital.

Vera Vague Is Guest of Frances Langford

Vera Vague will be a guest on the Frances Langford show when it is aired over WMAQ-NBC from the A. A. F. redistribution center in Santa Ana, Cal., at 7 o'clock tonight. Miss Langford will sing "I Should Care," "Star Dust," and a medley from "Oklahoma." Spike Jones and his City Slickers will present a novelty arrangement of "The Fireman Song" from the musical comedy, "Up in Central Park."

NBC Symphony Offers Grieg Program Today

Ania Dorfmann, pianist, will be soloist with the NBC Symphony orchestra in an all-Grieg program to be heard over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. Miss Dorfmann will play Grieg's Piano Concerto in A minor. Dr. Frank Black will direct the orchestra in Norwegian Dances No. 2 in A minor and No. 3 in G minor, and four movements from the "Peer Gynt" Suite No. 1.

Chicago Philharmonic to Air Schumann Work

The Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, will air Schumann's Symphony No. 2 in C major over W-G-N and WGNB Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock. The program also will include Bach's six Brandenberg Concertos and de Falla's Spanish Dance No. 1.

Sylvia Sidney on WBBM

Sylvia Sidney will star in "Broken Destiny," drama to be presented on Silver Theater over WBBM-CBS at 5 p. m. today.

PLAN CLASSICAL BOOK FORUMS TO OPEN NEXT FALL

With 24 business and professional men, housewives, and other west side residents as leaders, a discussion course in literature will be offered in libraries and schools next fall under the auspices of the University of Chicago, the public libraries, and J. Sterling Morton High school.

Under the direction of Mortimer J. Adler, originator with President Robert M. Hutchins of the university's book study method, the 24 leaders are being trained, with others selected from over the Chicago area, in discussion leadership and the use of classics in a liberal education.

List Course Locations

West side residents may attend the autumn course at Austin, Douglas, Legler, Toman, La Grange, and Oak Park public libraries, and J. Sterling Morton High school. The program, first of its kind, will also be conducted in 35 other communities.

Chicagoans who will serve as leaders include Mrs. F. Percy Boynton, 219 N. Mayfield av.; Miss Anne Danagger, 1046 N. Waller av.; Mrs. E. H. Dearmont, 1012 N. Monitor av.; Roderick A. Ginsburg, 2756 26th st.; Robert F. Kozelka, 3515 26th st.; Irving Meisel, 358 S. Hamlin av.; Miss Clara Reaum, 127 S. Mason av., and B. F. Scott, 1021 N. Parkside av.

Name Other Leaders

Oak Park residents who will take part are Miss Mary A. Ayers, 823 Lake st.; Mrs. Frank C. Borwell, 411 Ontario st.; Miss Grace A. Chapman, 1046 Woodbine av.; C. V. Giddings, 216 S. Scoville av., and Kenneth A. Sperbeck, 1125 Highland av.

From other suburbs are Dr. Leonard C. Borland, River Forest; Miss Catherine Callahan and Miss Frances Pope, Berwyn; Frank W. Burkman and L. B. Mann, Hinsdale; Miss Aileen C. Daugherty, Miss Beverly Saunders, and Mrs. George S. Young, La Grange; Mrs. E. A. Dungan, Downers Grove; L. G. Hutchison, Western Springs, and Clark Logan, Riverside.

PARK CONCERTS WILL INCLUDE MAJORETTES

The Elaine Hausner Majorettes will perform at free outdoor choral concerts, sponsored by the park district in conjunction with the Choral and Instrumental Music association, in Garfield park this summer.

Concerts will be presented at 8:30 p. m. each Tuesday, beginning this week and ending Aug. 28. The Chicago Christian High school choir will give the opening concert.

Succeeding choral programs will be offered by the Burlington Booster Choral club, July 17; the Pullman Choral society, July 24; the Monumental Baptist Glee club, July 31; the Chicago and North Western Railway Company Choral club, Aug. 7; the Echo chorus, Aug. 14, and the Garfield Park Community chorus, Aug. 28.

DVORAK'S MUSIC TO BE PLAYED BY PHILHARMONIC

Works by Anton Dvorak and Bedrich Smetana, Bohemian composers, will be presented by the New York Philharmonic orchestra, conducted by George Szell, on WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. Dvorak's Symphony No. 5 in E minor and three of his Slavonic Dances, and Smetana's Symphonic Poem, "The Moldau" will be heard. Dr. John G. Kirkwood of Cornell university will speak during intermission.

Hope Community Church

Miss Mary Wellcome, a missionary to India recently returned to this country, will deliver the Sunday worship sermon today at Hope Community church, 4104 Grenshaw st.

QUARTERLY REPORT TO THE COMMUNITY

During the first six months of 1945, the 8,000 firms and families who save or invest funds or finance homes through Second Federal accomplished through this means much of benefit to themselves, to the community and to the nation.

Purchases of War Bonds here totaled more than $265,000 during the six months just past. Every bond is a "bond" with your fighting men overseas, for your purchases have put the best equipment in the world in their hands.

$2,055,000 in savings and investments were placed with Second Federal during these last six months. These funds have enabled us to purchase more than a million dollars worth of government bonds and to loan other thousands for home construction or purchases; building security for the saver and for the community as a whole.

Hundreds of families, firms and institutions were introduced to the many advantages of saving at Second Federal. In these last six months 904 thrift-wise families (average 6 per day) have embarked on a savings plan that assures a secure future and happier living.

Second Federal's convenient and economical plans financed 197 homes and other residential properties during the half-year just past, even during these times of minimum new construction.

Your community financial headquarters is served by 26 members of the community. Their wages are spent in neighborhood stores, contributed to community organizations. And more than 5,000 others share the dividend amounting to more than $68,000 for the first half of this year, alone.

You, too, can benefit by joining those who do business here in person or by mail. Use any of the services reported above, or the others too numerous to mention here. Write or come in with your* problems . . . let us help you as we help others.

MARK 80TH YEAR OF LUTHERANS IN FOREST PARK

50 Churches Invited to Attend Services

First Evangelical and Reformed church, Forest Park, will celebrate its 80th anniversary with a series of services this month.

Fifty pastors and congregations of the Evangelical and Reformed church of the Chicago area have been invited to a synodical service at 8 p. m. July 18 when anniversary services will be opened with an address by Dr. William L. Rest, former president of the northern Illinois synod and pastor of Immanuel church, 7000 Michigan av.

Plan Community Service

A Forest Park community service will be held at 8 p. m., July 19. The Rev. Louis Sittler, pastor of St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran church of Forest Park, will speak. The Rev. William J. Cramer of Maywood will assist in the liturgical portion of the service. Members of church, civic, fraternal, and other organizations of Forest Park will be special guests.

Friday night, July 20, will be homecoming night for former members and friends of the congregation who now are located elsewhere. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Walter W. Kieker, son of the Rev. W. F. Kieker, pastor of the church. The Rev. Marcus J. Englemann of Maywood will speak.

Women Will Serve

Henrietta K. Murphy will direct the choir. Women's circles of the church will serve refreshments in the parlors.

The anniversary celebration will be concluded Sunday morning, July 22, when at 10:45 o'clock the speaker will be Dr. Louis Goebel, president of the Evangelical and Reformed Churches of America. Dr. Goebel expects to leave soon for Europe on a church mission.

Blackened spaces on the map denote location of the 36,600 acres of the forest preserve and highways leading to them from all parts of the city. The recreation areas may easily be reached by street cars, by elevated and electric lines, and by buses and steam trains, as well as by automobiles.

along which moccasined Indians once stealthily trod. Bicyclists are safe from dangers of the street. Horseback riders have their choice of paths in native woodland, forest clearing, or wide open spaces.

The only "don't" at the preserves is "don't destroy."

Clayton F. Smith, president of the forest preserve commissioners, emphasizes that the people should consider the preserves as their property and keep in mind the thought of preservation.

Future generations will want to vacation there, too.

Preserves Visited by 15 Million Yearly

The forest preserve district of Cook county is the largest area of its kind in the United States within a metropolitan area. It was established in 1915 "to protect and preserve the flora, fauna, and scenic beauties, and to restore, restock protect, and preserve the natural condition, for the purpose of the education, pleasure, and recreation of the public."

The acres dedicated to posterity border the Des Plaines river, the north branches of the Chicago river, the Skokie marsh, Salt creek, Thorn creek, and other inland bodies of water.

Since 1929, a program of improvement to care for large crowds adequately without injury to landscape has been put into effect. The district now has more than 15,000,000 visitors yearly.

Will Wed in Fall

DOROTHY FISHER

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Fisher, 221 N. Humphrey av., Oak Park, announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Anne, to Sgt. Herbert M. Williams, son of Linton B. Williams, 919 N. Taylor av., Oak Park. Miss Fisher attended Trinity High school and Loyola university. Sgt. Williams, who is stationed at Romulus, Mich., recently returned to the United States after serving two and a half years in the European and Mediterranean theaters. The wedding will take place Sept. 5.

HE PAINTS SIGNS THAT SPED GIs ACROSS EUROPE

Turns Out 100,000 with Aid of Frenchmen

More than 100,000 placards, including posters proclaiming "Off Limits to Military Personnel," "Ten Miles to Paris," and "Danger, Mines," have been made in Europe under the direction of Sgt. Carl G. Schubert, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Schubert, 4742 Van Buren st.

Painted with captured German materials on captured German wood, the placards have helped to direct movements of military personnel in the battles of Normandy, France, and Germany. They have guided the Red Ball and the White Ball express highways all the way to the front lines.

Sixteen Frenchmen Aid Him

Sixteen French civilian sign painters and artists worked under the supervision of Sgt. Schubert. Stationed in the Paris area in a Seine station of the 604th engineers' camouflage battalion, their activities have covered almost all of the communications zone activities in the European theater. Every unit landing on D-day, according to army authorities, was equipped with signs turned out by Sgt. Schubert and his crew.

Sgt. Schubert joined the British army with a group of American volunteers shortly after the attack on Pearl Harbor. With the Desert Rats of the British 7th division, he was at the fall of Tobruk. He also fought with the 4th Indian division, and with Australian, New Zealand, Free French forces, and South African forces. Later he was transferred to the 9th army.

Hopes with 87 Points

In 1943 Sgt. Schubert returned to the United States. After a month in Chicago he reported for duty with the American army. When he arrived in England he was assigned to the 604th battalion.

Since he has amassed a total of 87 points Sgt. Schubert expects to return to civilian life soon. Before the war he worked for his father as an advertising artist and layout man. His buddies in Paris are putting up bets as to whether father or son will be boss when the sergeant gets home.

PARENTS GET RECENT LETTER OF PVT. OTIS KILLED ON OKINAWA

Arthur Otis

Pvt. Arthur Frederic Otis Jr., 19, Glen Ellyn, was killed in action June 20 on Okinawa, his parents have been notified. Pvt. Otis was a member of the 22d regiment of the 6th marine division.

In a recent letter to his parents Pvt. Otis said he was one of 15 volunteers from his platoon for the infantry. "I'm doing just about what the infantry is supposed to do, marching up hills, getting shot at, shooting Nips, marching up more hills, and eating C rations," the letter read. He continued, "Seventy-four days is a long time for one operation. I've been a little sick but I'm okay now. I'll make out all right. I think you can chalk at least two of the little beggars down in the family album."

A graduate of the Glenbard High school and a former student at the University of Illinois, Pvt. Otis also is survived by two sisters, Mary Isabelle and Patricia Anne.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, July 9

This has been one of the worst seasons for insects and it behooves all gardeners to spray or dust regularly if the insects are to be kept under control. With all the bulletins that are available, it is amazing that many gardeners fail to realize the necessity of spraying early and often.

Some gardeners use stomach poisons for sucking insects when only a contact spray should be used; stomach poisons are used when worms or beetles that actually eat the leaves are present.

Tuesday, July 10

All tropical vegetables and decorative plants should be making a fine growth at this time, for they revel in hot weather. However, they need moisture for full development. Liquid manure is excellent when it can be prepared. It supplies some plant food and moisture at the roots, where it does the most good.

Wednesday, July 11

Order pansy seed for immediate sowing. The seed will grow quickly and the young plants can be transplanted in September in coldframes. In spring they will have made a fine growth and can be planted in the garden area.

There is nothing quite as satisfactory as the hearts ease, for they are fine in beds or for cutting. The plants can be cut back now and may send out new flowering stems. In mild locations they will winter outdoors if given slight protection.

Thursday, July 12

Many inquiries are received as to the exact time house plants should be watered. Water when the soil is dry and the plants need water. Clay pots dry out rather rapidly, and when the soil is dry the pot sounds hollow or gives off a ringing sound when tapped with a knife.

Friday, July 13

Give chrysanthemums a slight application of plant food and plenty of water. Watch for pests and spray accordingly. It is a good time to make cuttings for next winter's flowering in the windows of the home.

Cuttings from the handsomely marked coleus, begonias, flowering varieties, geraniums, and others will have time to grow into fine plants before cold weather, but keep all flowers removed and shift whenever necessary, but do not overpot.

Saturday, July 14

Keep the lawn mowed at 1½ inches. It will be much more attractive than when cut shorter. If necessary rake grass clippings from the lawn, for if too many clippings are present it will cause the grass to turn brown.

The clippings are useful for mulching if no weed seeds are present. Remove and destroy if unfit to use as a mulch or for composting.

BUSINESS MEN OF BROOKFIELD TO PLAN PICNIC

In planning the annual picnic of the Brookfield Business Men's association, the picnic executive committee will meet at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday night at the Hollywood Community hall. This year's picnic will be held at Bergman's grove, 24th st. and Des Plaines av., North Riverside, Sept. 9.

The association expects the picnic will be the most successful it has yet held. Announcement is made that tickets for the outing may be obtained from any Brookfield merchant. The program will include music, games, dancing, and refreshments.

Members of the executive committee are A. W. Strandquist, chairman; Jerry Krnoul, treasurer; John Clifton, Frank Hansen, Leonard Ivey, Joseph Jecman, Stanley Land, Frank Nemec, Fred Papacek, Irving V. Rezny, Roy E. Schuett, Robert Tlapa, and William Willms, president of the association.

Members of the subcommittees are Irving V. Rezny and Leonard Ivey, publicity; John Clifton, Wesley Kurth, and Roy Schuett, games and prizes; Frank Hansen, Stanley Land, and Frank Nemec, refreshments; Fred Papacek, Irving V. Rezny, and William Willms, tickets and gate; John Clifton, Stanley Land, and Roy Schuett, music and entertainment; Michael Colgrass, license; Mrs. Frank Hansen, Mrs. A. W. Strandquist, and Robert Tlapa, food, and Mrs. Dora Gillespie, Leonard Ivey, and Joseph Jecman, games.

Berwyn Son's Trophies of War Shown in Store

War trophies recently displayed in the Turek Hardware store in Berwyn attracted much interest. Most of the articles were taken during the German drive last December and included guns, insignia, flags, banners, and a sniper's jacket. They were sent from the E. T. O. to Mrs. Maria Kubista by her son, Lt. Robert T. Kubista.

CARNIVAL WEEK TO OPEN TODAY AT ST. ODILLO'S

St. Odillo's church, Berwyn, of which the Rev. William J. Roberts is pastor, will conduct an outdoor carnival, today thru Saturday at Cermak rd. and Home av., Berwyn.

The carnival will feature nightly turtle races, booths, rides, and refreshments.

Mrs. James P. Hasset, Frank Shay, and Lysle K. Goyette are cochairmen in charge.

Oak Park Playgrounds Will Hold Track Meet

A track meet, sponsored by the Oak Park playgrounds, will be held Saturday in the Oak Park-River Forest Township High school stadium. The meet is one of a series of events sponsored by the playgrounds during vacation months. Handcraft, games, athletics, story telling, and dancing are among the activities in which boys and girls may participate.

INFANTS' HOME TO OPEN 2 NEW FLOORS BY 1946

An 18 Year Dream of Zion Daughters

A dream which the Daughters of Zion had 18 years ago when they built a four story infants' home at 1401 N. California av. to care for 200 babies and small children will be realized next January, Mrs. Aaron Ader, president, recently announced when the goal of the $100,000 home completion drive was reached.

The interior of the third and fourth floors was left unfinished 18 years ago when funds ran out. For the last six months the Daughters of Zion under chairmanship of Samuel A. Hoffman have campaigned for $85,000 to complete the home and an additional $15,000 for landscaping.

Maintained by 16 Agencies

Electrical and plaster work on the third floor already have been completed. Work on the top floor, which will be named for the late President Roosevelt, will begin some time this summer. Plans are that both floors will be furnished and ready for occupancy by Jan. 1.

The nonsectarian home now accommodating approximately 45 children will be large enough to care for 200 children. Funds for maintaining the home come from 16 affiliated auxiliaries.

New plans for the fireproof building include 25 dormitory rooms each of which will house four children, enlarged hospital facilities with doctor's quarters, an examining room, isolation rooms for children entering the home, dining rooms, kitchens, and open porches.

Both floors will have solariums extending the entire length of the building facing California av. Small play rooms will be located thruout the building. Plans also include a large general indoor play room occupying 4,200 square feet at the rear of the building on the top floor.

Accept One Out of 10

Mrs. Ader reported that the home, recently received as a member of the Council of Social Agencies of Chicago, has never lost a child. It was one of the infant homes that did not close during the depression period of the '30s. Demands have been so great that only one out of every 10 children referred to the home has been accepted.

Only those children who have no one to support them are admitted. A few of the children are foundlings. They are referred to the home from the Red Cross, other social agencies, hospitals, and the juvenile court.

The average stay for a child at the home is 18 months. In all cases adjustments are made for him before he reaches his sixth birthday. "We like to have the child settled in a foster home by that time so there won't be any conflicts when he starts to school," Mrs. Ader explained.

War Makes Need Greater

When war came Mrs. Ader and home officials felt the home must be completed at once. The need for caring for orphaned children has always been great, she said, but especially will this be true during the post-war period when a number of children of war marriages will not be wanted. There also will be the children whose service men fathers have been killed in action and whose mothers will be forced to work for a living, thereby leaving the child alone unless there are relatives or friends to look after him.

One of the most recent war time cases at the home is that of a 26 month old girl whose mother died recently leaving no one to take her in. Her father is serving in the Philippines. The Daughters of Zion were the first to offer her a home. She will remain there until her father makes further arrangements or until he is discharged from service.

LANDS B-17 SAFELY WITH SINGLE ENGINE; REWARDED WITH D.F.C.

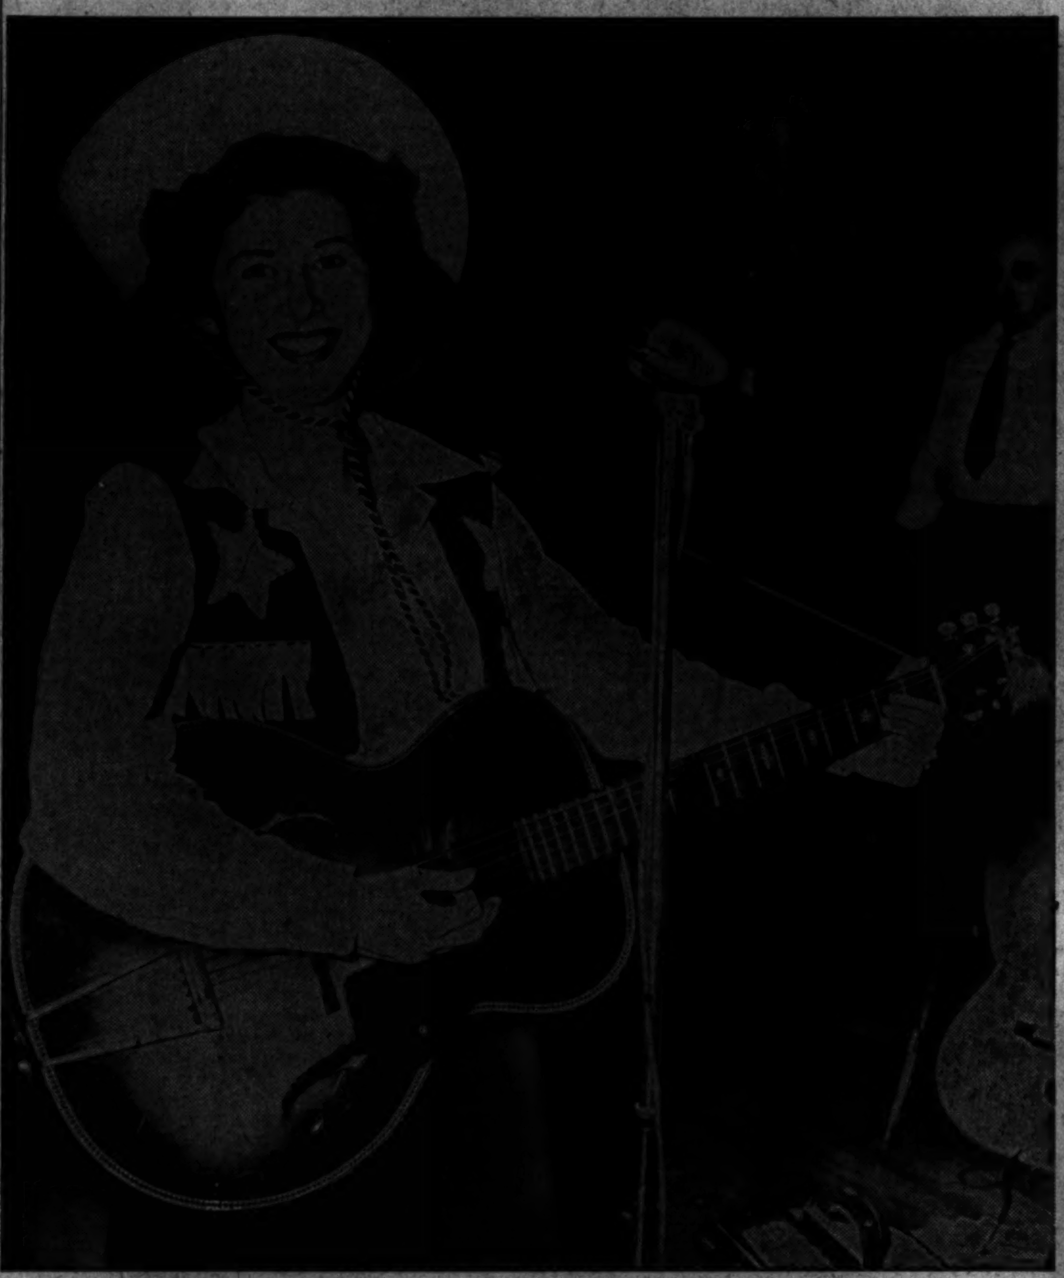
Sgt. Weller

Lt. Thomas L. Weller, husband of Mrs. Loraine H. Weller, 3201 George st., recently was awarded the distinguished flying cross for extraordinary achievement in aerial flight in the Mediterranean theater of war.

Altho two engines were damaged simultaneously by anti-aircraft fire, Weller flew his B-17 on a bombing run over an enemy airdrome in Austria on the remaining two engines. Leaving the target, Weller was aware he couldn't keep sufficient altitude to clear the high mountains ahead so he left formation to fly a different route. The ship was attacked by enemy fighters and more anti-aircraft fire which knocked out a third engine. On the last engine, Weller managed to keep the ship aloft until he reached the open sea where he landed without injury to the crew.

In the air forces since June, 1940, and overseas since May, 1944, he also wears the Purple Heart and air medal. He is now assistant adjutant of a 15th air force service command air service group in Italy.

Sayre Park Square Dancers Show Rug Cutters Niceties of Vigorous Hoe-Down



Square dancing and hillbilly singing go together like bread and molasses, says Ruth Brouton, 3240 Neenah av. After learning to "promenade," she took up the guitar. While dancers at the Dude Ranch festival at Sayre park rested, Ruth strummed her guitar and sang of the tough ridin' cowgirl.

Approximately 150 couples, decked in 10 gallon hats, chaps, and ruffles, shuffled over the tennis courts at Sayre park while the fiddlers raced thru "hoe-down" standbys like "Turkey in the Straw," "Golden Slippers," and "Wearing of the Green." Square dance classes are held weekly at the park.

John Dolce, supervisor, who did the calling, had a knotty problem in picking the most typical cowgirl. Five selected by applause of the dancers (left to right) are: Gladys Conklin, 2910 N. Nordica av.; Mary Gallagher, 4624 Dickens av.; Ruth Brouton; Helen Milewski, 933 N. Lawndale av., and Masy Ann Gillespie, 557 N. Waller av.

Swing Your Partners to the Reel's Air

Jitterbugging bobby soxers took a back seat recently when 150 square dance enthusiasts danced under the light of the moon and several hundred colored lanterns at Sayre park.

And, Kipling to the contrary, east and west met on the tennis courts, accustomed to briefer costumes, as genteel ladies in lace pantaloons promenaded with courtly gentlemen, and cow girls "dos a dos-ed" with their two-gun partners.

The occasion was the annual Dude Ranch day, engineered in hoe-down style by John Dolce, park supervisor, who did the calling. Like Dolce, most of the dancers were "city slickers" who had never been closer than a movie to a square dance until a few years ago. Dolce, oddly enough, learned square dancing as part of his physical education, and he's been teaching the reels and polkas for 10 years.

For the Long Winded

However, watching the dancers from 16 to 60 responding to Dolce's "join your hands and once around," explains why the dance is taught in physical education and listed in the library under sports. Graceful and colorful, it also is hard on the short-of-breath. A lone fiddler can wear down three dancers.

With a sigh for the old days and glad of an excuse to sit down and catch his breath, Dolce mourned that rural areas are, for the most part, bereft of the old hoe-downs. They have given them the never-mind treatment for some years now, along with church socials and dobbin, in favor of movies and the automobile.

Dubbing every old fashioned dance a square dance bans you from the inner circle, the dancers soon let you know. Square dances, strictly speaking, are those dances done in square formation, and most of them were hatched in European courts. For instance, Dolce recalled the quadrille originated in the French court ballet, and that some of the phrases in the dance calls, such as "dos a dos" [Americanized to "do ce do"] are French. "Dos a dos" means back to back. It is supposed many of the phrases sailed over here with French troops in the Revolutionary war.

Says Popularity Growing

Square dance headquarters have migrated to the cities, Dolce said, where the dances have become increasingly popular. The reason, he said, is that swinging your partner—and everybody else's in the set—makes for sociability. To bear out the truth of his statement he forthwith presented Miss Marcia Trost, 5349 Wilson av., last year's festival queen, and her fiance, Edward Rosol, 1339 W. 19th st. They met at one of the weekly dances at the park.

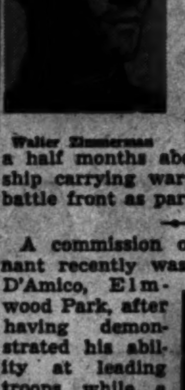
To put a final western touch to the scene, whenever Dolce wound up a set with the usual "lead your partner to a chair, you know where and I don't care," the dancers would retire to the crowd's fringe to roast weenies. While Ruth Brouton, 3240 Neenah av., in fringed leather skirt and high boots, strummed her guitar by the campfires singing about the tough ridin' lassie, a "She Bucaroo."

Lindblom Choir

The Lindblom High school choir of 70 voices will present a concert at the Methodist camp ground, Des Plaines, at 3:30 p. m. today.

Few enthusiasts had been no closer than a movie to a square dance until a few years ago when they started attending park classes. Dressed for the occasion and just finishing the "dos-a-dos" (left to right) are: G. R. Wamsley, 1644 New England av.; Mrs. Marvin Phillips, Lombard, and Mr. and Mrs. John Millar, 626 Latrobe av. They learned to swing their partners five years ago.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

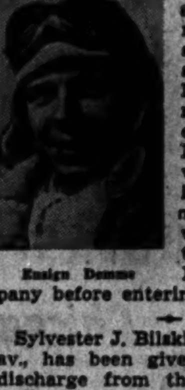


Walter Zimmerman

Walter Zimmerman Jr., whose father lives at 1742 N. Harding av., recently was graduated from the Merchant Marine academy at Kings Point, N. Y. Qualified as a third assistant engineer, he received a reserve ensign's commission. A graduate of Lane Technical High school, Zimmerman served eight and a half months aboard a merchant ship carrying war supplies to the battle front as part of his training.

John D'Amico

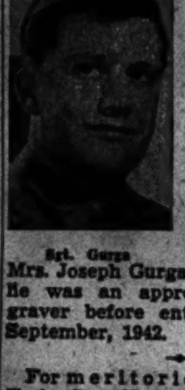
A commission of second lieutenant recently was given John B. D'Amico, Elmwood Park, after having demonstrated his ability at leading troops while a technical sergeant with the 87th [Golden Acorn] infantry division in Europe. Presentation of the gold bar was made at Bassenheim, Ger-Germany.



Ensign Demme

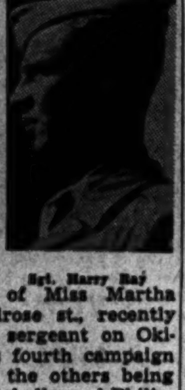
Walter A. Demme, 4504 Schubert av., recently was cited as honor student of his class at the naval primary flight instructor's school at New Orleans, La. Ensign Demme is a graduate of Kelvyn Park High school where he won letters in all major sports. He was employed by the Aetna Fire Insurance company before entering the navy.

Sylvester J. Bilski, 2538 California av., has been given an honorable discharge from the army at the AAF regional hospital, near Spokane, Wash. In service since January, 1943, he served 22 months with the 10th air force in India as a technical sergeant.



Sgt. Gurga

Staff Sgt. Raymond L. Gurga, bombardment group photographer, recently was commended in England for the "complete pictorial coverage and superior photographic quality" of his contribution to the group's monthly history. His wife, Virginia, lives at 4142 Crystal st. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gurga, 4244 Thomas st., he was an apprentice photo engraver before entering service in September, 1942.



Sgt. Harry Ray

For meritorious achievement, Tech. Sgt. Harry A. Ray, 2745 N. Menard av., was awarded the air medal in ceremonies at Heidelberg, Germany. Sgt. Ray is a pilot in the 167th liaison squadron of the 6th army group.

Veteran of 22 months of amphibian warfare in the Pacific, Robert H. George, brother of Miss Martha George, 4032 Melrose st., recently was promoted to sergeant on Okinawa. This is his fourth campaign against the Japs, the others being the Aleutians, Marshalls, and Philippines.

After winning the Purple Heart and silver star as a P-40 pilot in Europe, Lt. Robert S. Sederberg, son of Mrs. Mary Sederberg, 5565 Forest Glen av., recently returned to win his college sweetheart, Miss Kay Wright of Champaign. They were married recently and are now in Florida. Sederberg was credited with two probable hits before his leg was shattered by shell fragments.

What's a dude ranch without a camp fire? Near close of the festival, the dancers rallied round their fires to roast wieners. Two couples singeing red points (left) are Mr. and Mrs. George Bernhardt, and Mr. and Mrs. George K. Hopper, all of Elmwood Park.

ALUMNI OF 1920 AT CONCORDIA HOLDS REUNION

The 25th anniversary of the 1920 graduating class from Concordia Teachers college, River Forest, is being marked by a two day celebration which began yesterday afternoon with a homecoming celebration at the college and an anniversary banquet at an Oak Park hotel.

An informal lawn party will be given this afternoon and evening at the home of a class member, Ervin Brunn, 6315 N. Sayre av., Norwood Park, for the 30 alumni attending the celebration.

Other members of the class living in the Chicago area include William J. Eggers, 2730 N. Marmora av.; Adolph H. Kramer, Melrose Park; Walter Lauing, Des Plaines; John C. Wohlfeil, Elgin; Walter Voight, Crystal Lake, and John G. Rieck, 4543 N. Bernard st., chairman of the anniversary committee.

Regina Isabellans Will Give Benefit Dinner

Regina council, Ladies of Isabella, will give a benefit dinner at 6:30 p. m. Thursday at the Home Arts Guild, 205 N. Michigan av. Miss Clara Kloss is grand lady, and Mrs. Anna G. Flynn, arrangements chairman. Proceeds will be used for philanthropic work.

UNVEIL PLAQUES TO 2 SOLDIERS FROM N. W. SIDE

Plaques honoring two service men who were killed in action were recently dedicated by the Belmont-Cragin OCD. The men honored are Frank J. Janus, technician 5th grade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ignatius Janus, 5234 Eddy st., who was killed in February, and Pvt. Edward A. Krentz, husband of Mrs. Julia Krentz, 5304 Newport av. He is survived by a daughter, Patricia, also.

The plaque to Janus is at the northeast corner of Lockwood av. and Eddy st., the one to Krentz at the northwest corner of Newport and Lockwood avs.

N. W. SIDE GIRLS REHEARSE DANCE FETE TUESDAY

Northwest area girls participating in the dance pageant, "Buckingham Fountain," will meet at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning in the Ideal studios, 3907 Madison st., for their first rehearsal. Miss Mayblossom Macdonald will direct the pageant, which will be given Saturday night, Aug. 18, at the 16th annual Chicago Music Festival in Soldiers' field.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

FRED WOEHRMAN, Park Ridge, recently completed 40 years in the meter department of the Commonwealth Edison company. Starting as a meter reader in 1905, he later tested, repaired, and installed meters. Since 1916 he has been a clerk.

Woehrman has two sons, both in service. Pvt. Edward, now at Santa Ana, Cal., served in London, France, and Belgium for more than two years. Sgt. Clyde took part in the invasions of Casablanca, Algeria, Tunisia, Sicily, France, Belgium, and Holland. Wounded in the battle of St. Lo, Clyde wears the Purple Heart. After a 60 day furlough at home he returned to Europe shortly before V-E day and now is in Germany.

ILLINOIS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY has awarded scholarships to three northwest siders who competed in the high school achievement examinations recently. They are: Louis Baker, 4446 Deming pl., Kelvyn Park High school; Edward Hense, 4903 N. Tripp av., and Norri Surri, 2903 Belmont av., both of Schurz High school. The three were winners in the engineering division. The alternate chosen was Morto Meniroff, 2405 N. Ridgeway av., Lane Tech High school. Marshall Malina, 3722 N. Central Park av., Von Steuben High school, qualified as an alternate in the arts and sciences division.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Lenz, long time Chicago residents now residing at Salem, Wis., observed their golden wedding recently at the home of their son, Carl Lenz, Park Ridge, with a dinner for relatives and friends. The couple's only daughter, Miss Pauline Lenz, of Los Angeles, Cal., was present also.

Miss Betsy McCoy, Des Plaines, was among the graduates who received the bachelor of arts degree recently from Lawrence college, Appleton, Wis. She was a member of the a cappella choir and Delta Gamma sorority.

Kiwanis Club

The Kiwanis club of Edison and Norwood Park will make its annual visit to Bartlett Tuesday as the guest of Danny Von Jenef.

FOREST SHADE OFFERS SOLACE TO CITY WEARY

Chicago's Fringe: A Cool Green

(Fourth of a series of articles telling of interesting places available to Chicagoans who are vacationing at home due to war time travel restrictions.)

BY ONEY FRED SWEET

In the good old summer time Chicagoans may vacation in the country with a minimum of travel for the forest preserve district of Cook county is a green fringe at the city's edge.

From the loop to the farthest point in the preserves—Deer Grove, Quintens and Dundee rds.—is no more than 30 miles. Dan Ryan woods, 87th st. and Western av., and Caldwell woods, Milwaukee and Devon avs., are no more than 10 miles out. So far as offering any reminder of office and shop routine or household tasks, the woods and waters might well be thousands of miles away.

Nature Has Soothing Message

But a holiday in the preserves does evoke memories of other care-free hours in the out-of-doors. The good earth and the great sky have not changed. The birds have all come back. The shade lies deep beneath the old oak trees and all about there is the clean smell of growing things. A summer's day close to nature is as it has always been and the troubles of man have not altered its soothing message.

For golfers there are 18 hole courses at Northwestern, Harms rd. and Simpson st., Indian Boundary, Forest Preserve dr. and Cumberland av., and Edgebrook, Central and Devon avs. Billy Caldwell course of nine holes is at Caldwell av., north of Elston av.

Swimmers may take on sunburn at Emmett Whealan pool, Milwaukee and Devon avs.; Cermak pool, 7600 Ogden av., Lyons, and Green Lake pool, 159th st. and Torrence av.

Fish Await Anglers

There are plenty of places along the winding banks of the placid Des Plaines, where, in the companionship of serene surroundings, you can lazily wait for the fish to bite. They're all by your side again—the gay winged butterfly that flits to a happy landing on your floating cork, the curious turtle that pokes its head above the stream's calm surface, the reflection in the water of, let us hope, a kindly cloud.

Fishing is permitted in all of the streams in the district, either from the banks or from boats. Ten fishing boats were placed in Maple lake three years ago; today the demand has been met for 60.

Today the aroma of coffee in the brewing will blend with the fragrant summer breeze at many a picnic spot in the preserves. Families, churches, lodges, and other groups have applied for permits if they number more than 25. They have been assigned to certain areas according to their needs. There are 96 large groves from which to make a selection.

Tables and benches have been provided. Open air fireplaces also are a part of the picnic facilities. From deep wells at convenient locations water may be drawn for drinking and making the coffee and lemonade—and for putting out the camp fire.

Children's Shouts Echo

The children will play games that call for freedom and the echo of their shouts will be accepted uncomplainingly by friendly foliage alongside the open field. The old folks will rest and visit and look on. And there'll be at least a layer cake to lift from the hamper, even tho the sandwich meat is skimpier than of yore.

There'll be some neighborhood groups that will bring along their musicians and their playing of the "squeeze box" or the zither will lend a gypsy touch to the day of escape.

There'll be dancing couples on many of the 75 platforms scattered thruout the preserves.

If the weather is fair an estimated half million persons will enjoy the preserves today, but there will be plenty of space to absorb a half million more.

Historic Site Restored

The historically minded will be interested in the site of the Old Chicago Portage, 1673-1836, that has been restored at Harlem av. and 47th st. It marks the west end of a strip of land used as the carrying or connecting place uniting the waters of the St. Lawrence with those of the Mississippi river. With the portage are associated such names as Joliet, Marquette, La Salle, and other explorers, and it had much to do with determining the site of Chicago.

Most of the vast acreage is maintained in its native state. Wild flowers have been protected. The toads and the turtles, the hawks and the owls, the chipmunks and the squirrels continue to scamper or fly about as in the days of the horse and buggy when their environs were remote and inaccessible to most city dwellers. Way before that, when there were no white men in the vicinity.

At Trailside museum, Chicago and Thatcher avs., there are on exhibition the living or mounted species of the creatures that make the preserves their habitat. Here interested persons may make a closer study of their furred and feathered friends. Wounded birds are hospitalized, and there is a cage where children may enjoy the tamed animals and birds for playmates.

Hikers may take the same trails

VARIED MUSIC ON THEATER OF AIR SATURDAY

Varied musical moods and tempo will mark the summer concert to be presented on the Theater of the Air from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak. Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra. Soloists will be Angelo Raffaelli, tenor; Ruth Slater, contralto, and Penny Perry, soprano.

Included in the entertainment will be "Musetta's Waltz" from "La Boheme" to be sung by Miss Perry; "Nina" by Raffaelli. The concert orchestra will present "Espana Rhapsody" and "Scherzo in G Minor" from "Octette." "Home to Our Mountains" will be sung by Miss Slater and Raffaelli, and "Sleeping Beauty Waltz" by the chorus. Miss Perry and chorus will sing "Romany Life" from the "Fortune Teller."

John Barclay will be the narrator and John Mallow, the announcer. Jack La Frandre, writer-producer of the series, will direct the performance.

ARMY HOSPITAL PUTS IN 'QUIET' RADIO SYSTEM

Percy Jones Is First; 33 Others Follow

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A four channel radio and public address system has been installed at the Percy Jones General hospital at Battle Creek, Mich. The hospital is the first of army hospitals to be so equipped and plans are made to make similar installations in 33 other general hospitals. Outstanding network programs are picked up in the hospital's control room and sent out over two channels while live shows from an adjoining radio station go out thru the other two channels. Thus patients have a choice of four programs.

Individual "hushatone" receivers are used. The receivers—about five inches in diameter and three-quarters of an inch thinck—are turned on by pulling a string hanging from a rotary switch above the head of the bed. Various channels are tuned in by pulling the same cord. The program of any patient's choice cannot be heard by the man in an adjoining bed. He can safely choose another program if he desires.

Push Plans for FM

While most of the frequency modulation interests were not in agreement with the federal communications commission's new allocations for FM—from 88-106 megacycles in R. C. Cosgrove, president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, has announced that "all of us will bend our backs behind the new allocation so that we can give FM to the public at the earliest possible date."

Prof. Edwin H. Armstrong, inventor of FM, who opposed moving it from its present location, has stated that "FM will start going forward immediately that licenses are issued for the 400 or more applications on file. . . . If action is taken promptly, then in spite of the handicap imposed by the shift of the band, FM will be a major factor in post-war employment."

The Stromberg-Carlson company, one of the pioneer FM makers, has announced that it has swung into immediate action toward producing an FM receiver to meet the new FCC allocation.

Speed Is Promised

The Hallicrafters company has filed application with the WPB and OPA in Washington for spot authorization to manufacture 250,000 FM converters which make the present FM sets capable of receiving on the new 88-106 megacycle band. Some 400,000 pre-war FM sets are in the hands of the public.

Meanwhile, Paul Porter, chairman of the FCC, has announced that the commission will "move with all possible speed" to revise existing regulations and standards for the operation of FM, television, and facsimile in the new allocations.

The FCC chief said that the commission expects to schedule a meeting sometime this month to formulate the industry's proposals for rules and standards.

Vera Vague Is Guest of Frances Langford

Vera Vague will be a guest on the Frances Langford show when it is aired over WMAQ-NBC from the A. A. F. redistribution center in Santa Ana, Cal., at 7 o'clock tonight. Miss Langford will sing "I Should Care," "Star Dust," and a medley from "Oklahoma." Spike Jones and his City Slickers will present a novelty arrangement of "The Fireman Song" from the musical comedy, "Up in Central Park."

Chicago Philharmonic to Air Schumann Work

The Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, will air Schumann's Symphony No. 2 in C major over W-G-N and WGNB Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock. The program also will include Bach's six Brandenberg Concertos and de Falla's Spanish Dance No. 1.

CIRCUS OF BOOK READING OPENS FOR CHILDREN

Clowns and Balloons Are Rewards

Chicago public library branches are conducting a reading course for grammar school children this summer which provides a vacationlike atmosphere for those unable to leave the city. With the slogan "You Can Have a Circus with Books" each branch has decorated their windows with a large, colorful clown and other circus paraphernalia.

Clowns hold paper balloons upon which the name and school of each pupil enrolled in the program will be written. The courses, most of which already have opened, will continue thru Aug. 31. Each child must read six books to complete the program, credit for which will apply on school work if the book is approved by the library.

Various age groups will attend weekly meetings to give reports, hear reviews, and discuss their reading under the direction of children's librarians.

Story Telling at Humboldt

Seventh and 8th grade pupils at Humboldt library, 1541 N. California av., will report and discuss books they have read at 2 p. m. each Thursday. Mrs. Lillian Neu, children's librarian, will tell stories to 1st, 2d, and 3d grade children at 10 a. m. on Saturdays. Pupils in the 4th, 5th, and 6th grades will meet weekly at 2 p. m. Friday.

Miss Adah Anderson, Humboldt librarian, reports that favorite books are: "Tetter Church Mouse," by Margot Austin; "Don't Count Your Chicks," by Ingri Aulaire; "Mary Poppins Opens the Door," by Pamela Travers, and "The Sea Snake," by Steven Meade.

From 2 to 5 p. m. on Tuesdays and Thursday pupils enrolled at the Independence Park library, 3718 Irving Park rd., will meet outdoors to hear stories told by Mrs. Lucille Tate, children's librarian. Pupils in the 1st thru the 4th grades will meet Wednesdays at 1 p. m. at the library to discuss books. Fifth and 6th graders will meet at 2 p. m. Wednesdays, to be followed at 3 p. m. by those in the 7th and 8th grades making reports.

"Pinocchio" One Favorite

Books most often called for, according to Miss Rebecca McKesson, librarian, are "Pinocchio," by Carlo Lorenzini, and "Bambi" and "Bambi's Children," by Felix Salten.

Puppet shows and dramatization of stories and books by the children will be a part of the program planned by Miss Gertrude Husenetter, librarian of the Northwestown library, 1615 N. Pulaski rd. Pupils of the 3d, 4th, and 5th grades will meet at 2:30 p. m. on Thursdays. On Fridays at the same hour intermediate pupils will make reports. Miss R. S. Levenson is children's librarian.

Intermediate pupils enrolled at Kosciuszko library, 2732 N. Avers av., will meet at 1:30 p. m. on Thursdays preceded by the younger children discussing books at 11 a. m. with Miss Marie Will, children's librarian. Miss Rose Lipschutz is in charge of the branch.

Will Discuss Biographies

Round table discussions and a study of biographical sketches of authors will be a part of the meetings of the circus club at the Albany Park library, 3536 Lawndale av. Pupils in the 3d and 4th grades will meet at 11 a. m. Saturdays, the 5th and 6th grades at 3 p. m. Tuesday, and the 7th and 8th, 3 p. m. Friday. Miss Charlotte Olson is in charge of children's activities.

An outdoor meeting for all Albany Park members will be held at Eugene Field park at 1:30 p. m. Thursdays. The sub-branch, Mayfair, 4725 N. Kenneth av., will have general discussion meetings for all ages every Wednesday afternoon.

Plans of Portage Park

Mrs. A. J. Petrie, children's librarian at Portage Park library, 5253 Irving Park rd., will conduct meetings for all grammar school pupils at 2 p. m. on Wednesdays. Mrs. Dorothy Smith is librarian.

Seventh and 8th graders at Logan Square library, 3248 Fullerton av., will have a reading round table each Monday at 2 p. m. Pupils of the 5th and 6th grades will discuss books at 2 p. m. on Fridays. Those in the 1st thru the 4th grades will meet for a story hour each Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. with Miss Marie Will, children's librarian, in charge. Miss Helen M. La Berge is head librarian.

NBC Symphony Offers Grieg Program Today

Ania Dorfmann, pianist, will be soloist with the NBC Symphony orchestra in an all-Grieg program to be heard over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. Miss Dorfmann will play Grieg's Piano Concerto in A minor. THREE GOLDEN, 55TH WEDDING ARE OBSERVED

Couples Are Feted by Sons, Daughters

A total of 205 years of married life recently was observed as one northwest side couple marked its 55th anniversary, and three others golden weddings.

Three daughters, a son, four grandchildren, and a great-grandson and a hundred friends attended the open house celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lindberg, 5315 Nelson st., on their 55th anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindberg, 80 and 79 respectively, were born in Sweden and came to this country as children. They lived in Austin 35 years before moving to the Nelson st. address 12 years ago.

Grandson in Air Forces

Their daughters are Mrs. Charles Koegelreider, Mrs. Joseph Lica, and Mrs. William Berndt. The son is Albert C. Lindberg. Their only grandson, Tech. Sgt. Charles A. Lindberg recently returned from duty with the 8th air force, wearing the air medal with five oak leaf clusters.

Another open house party was held at 5117 Deming pl. in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George Bloedel's 50th wedding. Bloedel, for many years in the grocery and meat market business on the west and northwest sides, was born in Russia of German parents, and came to America in 1890. Mrs. Bloedel was born in Germany and came to Chicago in 1893. They have lived on Deming pl. for 10 years.

They have three sons, three daughters, and 11 grandchildren. The sons are the Rev. Hugo Bloedel, pastor of Gloria Dei Lutheran church, 53d st. and S. Major av.; Staff Sgt. George Bloedel Jr., who has been in the Southwest Pacific for three years, and Arthur. Daughters are Wanda, Lydia, and Mrs. Gertrude Rohde, of Norwood Park.

Service Men in Family

Three of the grandchildren in service are Staff Sgt. Hugo Bloedel Jr., recently returned to this country from Italy; Tech. Sgt. Donald Bloedel, now in Florida after duty with the 8th air force, and Robert Romadka, radioman 3d class, on an LCT at Okinawa.

Mr. and Mrs. John Klooster, 4225 N. Ridgeway av., celebrated their golden wedding with a dinner party at a loop hotel with their family. Klooster, born in 1874, near Groningen, Netherlands, came to Chicago as a child. Mrs. Klooster was born here in 1874 and was married in 1895. Their two sons and daughter, Bert, Raymond, and Mrs. Ruth Laurie, and five grandchildren attended the dinner.

About a hundred friends helped Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cripe celebrate their anniversary with open house at their home, 5369 Lawrence av. Both were born in Goshen, Ind., where they were married in 1898. A retired carpenter, Cripe has lived at the Lawrence av. address for the past eight years.

along which moccasined Indians once stealthily trod. Bicyclists are safe from dangers of the street. Horseback riders have their choice of paths in native woodland, forest clearing, or wide open spaces.

The only "don't" at the preserves is "don't destroy."

Clayton F. Smith, president of the forest preserve commissioners, emphasizes that the people should consider the preserves as their property and keep in mind the thought of preservation.

Future generations will want to vacation there, too.

Win Legion Awards

Arlene Peters, 6147 Cornelia av., and Paul Jersild, 3703 Dickens av., were given the Kosciuszko American Legion post awards for scholarship at graduation ceremonies recently at Jehovah Evangelical Lutheran school.

Preserves Visited by 15 Million Yearly

The forest preserve district of Cook county is the largest area of its kind in the United States within a metropolitan area. It was established in 1915 "to protect and preserve the flora, fauna, and scenic beauties, and to restore, restock protect, and preserve the natural condition, for the purpose of the education, pleasure, and recreation of the public."

The acres dedicated to posterity border the Des Plaines river, the north branches of the Chicago river, the Skokie marsh, Salt creek, Thorn creek, and other inland bodies of water.

Since 1923, a program of improvement to care for large crowds adequately without injury to landscape has been put into effect. The district now has more than 15,000,000 visitors yearly.

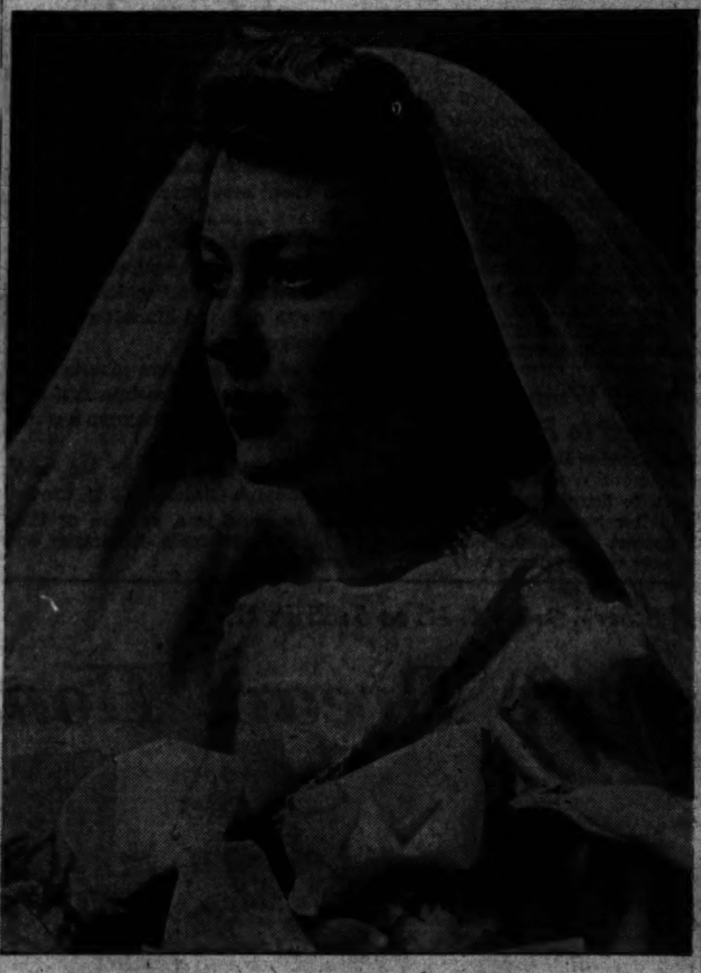
Husband in Submarine Service



MRS. JOHN COCHRAN GRAHAM
[Stafford Photo]

Mrs. John Cochran Graham, the former Shirley Kent, has made her home in New London, Conn., since her recent marriage to Petty Officer Graham. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Kent, 5418 Kimball av., she attended Mundelein college. The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy G. Graham of Ironton, O., recently returned from three years duty with the submarine service in the Pacific.

Blackened spaces on the map denote location of the 36,600 acres of the forest preserve and highways leading to them from all parts of the city. The recreation areas may easily be reached by street cars, by elevated and electric lines, and by buses and steam trains, as well as by automobiles.

NINE N. W. SIDE WOMEN CAPPED AS NURSES' AIDS

Nine northwest side women recently were capped as Red Cross volunteer nurses' aids in graduations at two hospitals.

Mrs. Theodore Furmeister, 5747 Cornelia av., and Miss Mary Lamprell, 1700 Meade av., were capped at St. Elizabeth's hospital. Mrs. Carl Betz, Park Ridge; Mrs. Noble Field, 2651 Mobile av.; Mrs. Fred Rahn, 5600 N. Kedvale av.; Mrs. William Skibbe, 7704 North Shore av.; Mrs. Thomas Biancato, 2201 N. Keeler av.; Mrs. Jason De Silva, 2146 Narragansett av., and Mrs. Clarence Fewer, 4814 Nelson av., completed the courses at Cook county hospital.

Mrs. Arthur H. Spiegel, chairman of the Chicago nurses' aid corps, stressing the need for more volunteers, announced that a new accelerated course will begin at Red Cross headquarters, 529 S. Wabash av., after July 4 to accommodate teachers and college students during their vacation periods.

WAR FUND AIDS APPOINTED FOR NORTHWEST SIDE

George Schuermann of 5531 Dakin av. and Louis S. Thebault of 4639 Milwaukee av. have been appointed co-directors of the northwest side 1945 Community and War Fund campaign which will begin Oct. 1, James R. Sterling, chairman of the fund's city division, has announced.

Assisting in the drive will be Mrs. George E. Olson, 4332 N. Kedvale av., and Miss Adele Lagodzinski, 1309 N. Ashland av. The city division will include both men and women who will solicit funds from smaller businesses and residences, Sterling said. In the past the most residential canvassing has been done by women.

Geographical boundaries for northwest side workers will be the city limits on the west and north, North av. on the south, and Western av. on the east.

Elmer H. Franzen of Itasca has been named northwest suburban chairman. His district chairmen will be Evan Evans, Barrington; Fred W. Gieseke Jr., Arlington Heights; Albert Sachtleben, Norwood Park township, and Roy A. Paulson, Itasca.

Appointment of community chairmen for northwest suburbs to date includes: W. A. Ernsting, Bensenville; John O. Baumler, Itasca; E. W. Gieseke, Roselle, and Mrs. Anna M. Meehan, Wood Dale.

Communities participating will include: Park Ridge, Elmwood Park, River Grove, Franklin Park, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Barrington, Lake Zurich, Wauconda, Schaumburg, Prospect Heights, Norwood Park township; Bensenville, Schiller Park, Orchard Place, Fairview, Elk Grove, Wood Dale, Itasca, Ontarioville, and Roselle.

The campaign represents the national war fund thruout Cook, Lake, and Du Page counties, raising money for the U.S.O., U.S.O.-camp shows, United Seamen's service, war prisoners' aid, American field service, and 16 allied relief and refugee rescue agencies.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, July 9

This has been one of the worst seasons for insects and it behooves all gardeners to spray or dust regularly if the insects are to be kept under control. With all the bulletins that are available, it is amazing that many gardeners fail to realize the necessity of spraying early and often.

Some gardeners use stomach poisons for sucking insects when only a contact spray should be used; stomach poisons are used when worms or beetles that actually eat the leaves are present.

Tuesday, July 10

All tropical vegetables and decorative plants should be making a fine growth at this time, for they revel in hot weather. However, they need moisture for full development. Liquid manure is excellent when it can be prepared. It supplies some plant food and moisture at the roots, where it does the most good.

Wednesday, July 11

Order pansy seed for immediate sowing. The seed will grow quickly and the young plants can be transplanted in September in coldframes. In spring they will have made a fine growth and can be planted in the garden area.

There is nothing quite as satisfactory as the hearts ease, for they are fine in beds or for cutting. The plants can be cut back now and may send out new flowering stems. In mild locations they will winter outdoors if given slight protection.

Thursday, July 12

Many inquiries are received as to the exact time house plants should be watered. Water when the soil is dry and the plants need water. Clay pots dry out rather rapidly, and when the soil is dry the pot sounds hollow or gives off a ringing sound when tapped with a knife.

Friday, July 13

Give chrysanthemums a slight application of plant food and plenty of water. Watch for pests and spray accordingly. It is a good time to make cuttings for next winter's flowering in the windows of the home.

Cuttings from the handsomely marked coleus, begonias, flowering varieties, geraniums, and others will have time to grow into fine plants before cold weather, but keep all flowers removed and shift whenever necessary, but do not overpot.

Saturday, July 14

Keep the lawn mowed at 1½ inches. It will be much more attractive than when cut shorter. If necessary rake grass clippings from the lawn, for if too many clippings are present it will cause the grass to turn brown.

The clippings are useful for mulching if no weed seeds are present. Remove and destroy if unfit to use as a mulch or for composting.

GEN. IKE MEDALS EARNED BY 1,100 N.W. SIDE SCOUTS

Final figures in the Gen. Eisenhower-Boy Scout waste paper collection drive show that Cub and Boy Scouts of the northwest district contributed 1,731,578 pounds to the city's total of 9,778,366, J. Sinclair Armstrong, district war service chairman of Boy Scouts, has announced. More than 1,100 Scouts will receive the medals.

Leading units in the district was pack 3154, sponsored by the Scouts' Parents auxiliary, which brought in 80,015 pounds. W. W. Beseke, 5310 Drummond pl., is the cubmaster. Second place for collecting 64,637 pounds went to troop 65, sponsored by St. Philomena Roman Catholic church, of which E. G. Gehrke, 1941 N. Harding av., is scoutmaster.

Troop 27, sponsored by a neighborhood business men's group, placed third with 64,450 pounds, Scoutmaster Frederick Jewell, 3409 N. Courtland av., reported. A collection of 55,727 pounds brought fourth place to troop 20, sponsored by Emmaus Methodist church, 4117 Pierce av. Stone Soderstrom, 4222 Potomac st., leads the group.

Each Scout who collected 1,000 pounds or more during the campaign in March and April will be awarded a Gen. Eisenhower medal. Troops which averaged more than 1,000 pounds per registered boy member will receive a World War II. shell container signed by the general.

Delay in the manufacture of the medals may mean that many Scouts will not receive them until August, C. A. Koehler, director of war service, said. Certificates of merit will be issued in the meantime.

Belmont Woman's Club Board to Plan for Year.

Mrs. Charles Hansen, president of the Belmont Woman's club, will be hostess to board members Wednesday in her home, 5401 Melrose st., at a dessert luncheon. Plans for the club year will be discussed.

Marine Sheds Last Vestige of Civvy Days

After 39 months in the marines including 23 months overseas, Staff Sgt. John Olnick finally decided his battered house slippers—the last vestige of his pre-service life—had seen their best days.

With a group of friends as pall bearers and himself as chief mourner, Olnick gave the slippers decent burial on a South Pacific isle and forthwith declared himself at last a full fledged marine.

One of the mourners piously predicted "No doubt the slippers'll get to heaven 'cause Johnny sure wore the hell out of 'em."

Johnny is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Olnick, 3900 N. Christiana av., and is a veteran of the 3d marine division's campaigns on Guam and Iwo.

FOREST SHADE OFFERS SOLACE TO CITY WEARY

Chicago's Fringe: A Cool Green

(Fourth of a series of articles telling of interesting places available to Chicagoans who are vacationing at home due to war-time travel restrictions.)

BY ONEY FRED SWEET

In the good old summer time Chicagoans may vacation in the country with a minimum of travel for the forest preserve district of Cook county is a green fringe at the city's edge.

From the loop to the farthest point in the preserves—Deer Grove, Quintens and Dundee rds.—is no more than 30 miles. Dan Ryan woods, 87th st. and Western av., and Caldwell woods, Milwaukee and Devon avs., are no more than 10 miles out. So far as offering any reminder of office and shop routine or household tasks, the woods and waters might well be thousands of miles away.

Nature Has Soothing Message

But a holiday in the preserves does evoke memories of other carefree hours in the out-of-doors. The good earth and the great sky have not changed. The birds have all come back. The shade lies deep beneath the old oak trees and all about there is the clean smell of growing things. A summer's day close to nature is as it has always been and the troubles of man have not altered its soothing message.

For golfers there are 18 hole courses at Northwestern, Harms rd. and Simpson st., Indian Boundary, Forest Preserve dr. and Cumberland av., and Edgebrook, Central and Devon avs. Billy Caldwell course of nine holes is at Caldwell av., north of Elston av.

Swimmers may take on sunburn at Emmett Whealan pool, Milwaukee and Devon avs.; Cermak pool, 7600 Ogden av., Lyons, and Green Lake pool, 159th st. and Torrence av.

Fish Await Anglers

There are plenty of places along the winding banks of the placid Des Plaines, where, in the companionship of serene surroundings, you can lazily wait for the fish to bite. They're all by your side again—the gay winged butterfly that flits to a happy landing on your floating cork, the curious turtle that pokes its head above the stream's calm surface, the reflection in the water of, let us hope, a kindly cloud.

Fishing is permitted in all of the streams in the district, either from the banks or from boats. Ten fishing boats were placed in Maple lake three years ago; today the demand has been met for 60.

Today the aroma of coffee in the brewing will blend with the fragrant summer breeze at many a picnic spot in the preserves. Families, churches, lodges, and other groups have applied for permits if they number more than 25. They have been assigned to certain areas according to their needs. There are 96 large groves from which to make a selection.

Tables and benches have been provided. Open air fireplaces also are a part of the picnic facilities. From deep wells at convenient locations water may be drawn for drinking and making the coffee and lemonade—and for putting out the camp fire.

Children's Shouts Echo

The children will play games that call for freedom and the echo of their shouts will be accepted uncomplainingly by friendly foliage alongside the open field. The old folks will rest and visit and look on. And there'll be at least a layer cake to lift from the hamper, even tho the sandwich meat is skimpier than of yore.

There'll be some neighborhood groups that will bring along their musicians and their playing of the "squeeze box" or the zither will lend a gypsy touch to the day of escape.

There'll be dancing couples on many of the 75 platforms scattered thruout the preserves.

If the weather is fair an estimated half million persons will enjoy the preserves today, but there will be plenty of space to absorb a half million more.

Historic Site Restored

The historically minded will be interested in the site of the Old Chicago Portage, 1673-1836, that has been restored at Harlem av. and 47th st. It marks the west end of a strip of land used as the carrying or connecting place uniting the waters of the St. Lawrence with those of the Mississippi river. With the portage are associated such names as Joliet, Marquette, La Salle, and other explorers, and it had much to do with determining the site of Chicago.

Most of the vast acreage is maintained in its native state. Wild flowers have been protected. The toads and the turtles, the hawks and the owls, the chipmunks and the squirrels continue to scamper or fly about as in the days of the horse and buggy when their environs were remote and inaccessible to most city dwellers. Way before that, when there were no white men in the vicinity.

At Trailside museum, Chicago and Thatcher avs., there are on exhibition the living or mounted species of the creatures that make the preserves their habitat. Here interested persons may make a closer study of their furred and feathered friends. Wounded birds are hospitalized, and there is a cage where children may enjoy the tamed animals and birds for playmates.

Hikers may take the same trails

'Pop' Solves Transportation Problems Satisfactorily for His Grandsons

Donald Carstens has his own ideas on how one of the villages, which are part of his grandfather's huge model railroad system, should be set up. While he can't help in the construction of locomotives or cars, he does his share by helping to arrange the 40 Lilliputian houses. In the background is a 6 foot long tunnel, made from furnace clinkers. (Story on page 2)

Henry J. Carstens, Donald's grandfather and known to the boy as Pop, has been working on a model boat when he hasn't been constructing new equipment for the model railroad. The ship will be 37 inches long and 27 inches high, and it will be delivered as a gift to a friend in Hudson Bay. Carstens has been working on the model for more than a year and foresees another year's work.

Robert Carstens, Donald's brother, is 8 years old, but the intricacies of the switchboard panel which operates the trains in the basement of the Carstens' home, at 6737 Morgan st., do not puzzle him. He knows just which of the nine dials to turn when he wants the trains to operate. [TRIBUNE Photo by Julius Gantter]

WOMAN PARK COP IS RETIRED; AWARD WINNER

Sarah Allen Quits to Take a Rest

After 20 years of gun tot'n, a pistol packin' mama has laid her pistol down. . . . Policewoman Sarah Allen, 118 E. 42d st., has retired. "Twenty years is a long time to walk a beat," she said, "I'm just plain tuckered out."

Mrs. Allen first joined the park district force in 1925, on a temporary basis. Her first assignment was at the 29th street beach where one of her jobs was to see that flippant young flappers wore bathing suits more conservative than their characters. In fact, an old newspaper photo in her scrapbook, shows her measuring one of the little sirens "just for a gag."

Wins Tribune Award

As a feminine badge-wearer, Mrs. Allen in no way resembles the usual mental picture of a policewoman. . . . raw boned, grim faced, hard boiled. As if attesting to this, are the many times gay young blades innocently wolfing thru the parks have found they have tried to "become acquainted" with the wrong gal, when it was her.

Mrs. Allen was given the Chicago Tribune Hero award in June, 1939 for killing a man while acting in the line of duty. It was the first time she had ever fired her pistol during 14 years on the beat, but her training at the police marksmanship school undoubtedly saved her life.

She had just queried the powerfully built man as to what he was doing in the park, when he sprang at her. No match for him, she did manage to hang on to her purse in which she carried her gun. The man struck her in the face knocking out four teeth, and was winding up for a second blow when she quickly drew her gun and shot him.

Has Confidence In Gun

"It was the narrowest escape I've ever had," she said, but declared she was not frightened. "As long as I had my gun with me I was never afraid." Mrs. Allen also commented that after years of serving in parks and observing people she got so she could pretty well tell a person with wrong intentions from an innocent one.

During her years of duty, she has made many friends in various parks thruout the city. And to her not the least of these is her 13 year old dog, Skippy. "Mother was always bringing home some hungry stray, or taking food out with her on her job to feed them," said her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Bolton. "Adults, children, and animals, all seemed to like her."

Mrs. Allen, plans to take a complete rest and perhaps in the fall to return to her native town in Ohio near where she owns a small farm.

CLARK SMITH CITED FOR SERVICE ABOARD PACIFIC SUBMARINE

Clark S. Smith, 11133 Talman av., torpedoman's mate, 2d class, aboard a submarine in the Pacific, has been awarded a letter of commendation with ribbon. The letter read, "for his exceptional skill and proficiency at his battle station, thereby assisting his commanding officer in attacks which resulted in the sinking or damaging of enemy vessels totaling more than 40,000 tons. His coolness and devotion to duty contributed much to the success of his vessel." The award was made by Adm. Nimitz. Smith's wife lives at the Talman av. address and his mother, Mrs. Carl Harmon, lives in Walnut, Ill.

MOUNT CARMEL HIGH GETS TWO NEW SUPERIORS

Frs. Alexis, Howard in New Jobs

Two new superiors recently were appointed for Mount Carmel High school, 6400 Dante av., by the very Rev. Matthew T. O'Neill, recently reelected provincial of the Chicago province of Carmelites. They are the Rev. Alexis E. McCarthy, named principal of the high school, and the Rev. Howard E. Rafferty, prior of St. Cyril monastery, 6428 Dante av.

Father Alexis

Father Alexis, son of Mrs. Florence J. McCarthy, 7221 Princeton av., is a graduate of St. Carthage grammar school and Mount Carmel High school. He studied at Loras college, Dubuque, Ia., and later at Mount Carmel college, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Gets Psychology Degree

After completing theology at Whitefriars Hall, Washington, D. C., he was ordained to the priesthood in 1941. In 1942 he was awarded a degree in psychology by Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C. He is the youngest principal ever to be appointed to this high school.

For the last three years Father Alexis has acted as principal of discipline, and director of the Queen of Carmel auxiliary. He also is chairman of the Mount Carmel building fund. His new duties began with the opening of summer school in which 350 boys are enrolled. He will be presented officially to parents and friends of the school at a reception this fall.

Prefect of Studies

Father Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rafferty, 1537 E. 76th st., has been prefect of studies at the school for the last five years as well as moderator of the Mount Carmel Mothers club. He was graduated from St. Lawrence grammar school and attended Mount Carmel college, Niagara Falls, Can. He took his theological studies at St. Albert's International college in Rome, Italy, until the war in September, 1939, forced him to leave.

In December, 1939, he was ordained to the priesthood. Since then he has taken special courses at Northwestern university and at the University of Illinois.

Scholarships Given Two Southwest Side Students

Rita Prindiville, Homewood, and Eugenia Petropoulis, 3215 64th pl., students at National College of Education, Evanston, have been awarded one year scholarships by the school for excellence in student teaching.

Church Seeks $75,000 to Build in Blue Island

Community Evangelical church of Blue Island has opened a drive for $75,000 to build a new church at the southwest corner of 120th st. and Irving av. Title to the property has been obtained but the congregation does not expect to build until the $75,000 goal is reached. The Rev. Emil Helm, pastor, hopes to break ground by 1947.

Services are being conducted now in a bungalow church at 120th st. and Gregory av. The parsonage is located five blocks away. The congregation plans to sell both the present church and parsonage. Money realized from this sale will be used to build the proposed parsonage adjoining the new church.

Proposed plan of the new church calls for an exterior of Lannon stone. The auditorium will seat 300 with accommodations for an overflow of 200. An auditorium, dining room, class rooms, and kitchen will be in the basement. The second floor will have class rooms, office, supply storage rooms, and janitor's quarters.

The church was organized in 1923 as a member of the Evangelical and Reformed church synod. In 1927, the Rev. Mr. Helm became pastor. A congregation of 200 families attends the two Sunday services and the Wednesday prayer service. More than 225 are enrolled in the Sunday school. John Link, superintendent; Mrs. Florence Gurgel, and Mrs. Herbert Swanson are in charge of the junior intermediate, primary, and beginning classes, respectively.

Other church organizations include a choir of 40 voices under direction of Richard Hamsa, who is organist, a Woman's guild, a Men's brotherhood, and two young people's societies. A consistory of 10 is the governing body of the church.

TRADE LEADERS VALUE RETURN TO COLLEGE LIFE

Find Courses Lead to Better Jobs

Three southwest siders were members of the first class of business executives to be graduated from the University of Chicago's executive program after two years of night study in all phases of business administration. They are: Crosby L. Brownson, 9111 Hoyne av.; William E. Heaton, Blue Island, and Donald A. Nightingale, 8933 Leavitt st.

Twenty-seven executives in manufacturing companies, railroads, department stores, banks, oil companies, air lines, real estate companies and other types of business finished the course.

Finds It Hard Work

Brownson is a buyer and assistant to the president of the Reliable Packing company. He took the course at the suggestion of his employer who became interested in it thru his friendship with Willard J. Graham, director of the executive program. Because he did not possess a bachelor's degree, Brownson took the university's regular entrance examinations.

Altho the classes were held in an informal manner, Brownson put in an average of 15 hours of homework per week. Because he did not enter with a degree, he must prepare a thesis to be eligible for a master's degree in business administration.

"I'm glad I took it but I would not want to go thru another two years like it," said Brownson. "The best recommendation I can offer is that the program helps to keep one out of a rut as well as keeping up to date on methods in business." He intends to take other courses in the fall.

It's Practical, Says Executive

When Marshall Field & Co. decided to select men for this experimental program, William Heaton of Blue Island, assistant in the executive offices, was chosen. Previously he had obtained a Ph. B. from the University of Chicago so he was given an M. B. A. at the end of the course.

Heaton says that he was sold on the course at the beginning when he saw how practical it was. "Everything I studied I was able to use in my work." He also points out that while the students learned the theory behind the various phases in business administration, the professors found themselves becoming acquainted as never before, with the practical problems confronting the business executive. Another indication of the value of the course, says Heaton, is the fact that almost one half of the students were given promotions during the two year period.

Plans Further Study

The informality with which the classes were conducted was an asset, too, claims Heaton. Like most of the others, he intends continuing school and may take the Great Books course.

Donald Nightingale, 8933 Leavitt st., of the advertising department of THE TRIBUNE, also attended the course. Holder of a B. A. degree from the university, he declared himself enthusiastic.

An indication of the enthusiasm of the class was seen in the formation of an alumni association. Edwin Helmer, president of the Barat-Cravens company, is the president.

RETIRES TO LIFE OF MODEL SHIP, TRAIN BUILDING

Pop May Be Found in His Workshop

BY ANDREW MURPHY

If you ever are searching for Pop Carstens, his family probably will tell you "he's down in the hole." That's the way they refer to the neat basement workshop where he spends most of his time building model boats and trains.

One part of the basement in the Carstens two story flat building at 6737 Morgan st. is walled off to make a large room. Here Henry J. Carstens—or Pop, as his family and friends call him—has fitted up an elaborate workshop in one half the room and a large table with a model railroad in the other half. It is here that Pop, who because of his build, the merry twinkle in his eyes, and his occupation, would remind you of Santa Claus, surrounded by the toys and tools of his workshop.

Railroad His Chief Pride

Chief project of Pop is the model railroad constructed on a table 23 by 5 feet. Everything from the table to the engine's tender was made by Pop on a ¼th to a foot scale. Thus, if you are 6 feet tall you would be three quarters of an inch in height, according to Carsten's scale, just the right size to live in the miniature houses in the village or to ride on the trains.

Cost of material used in this model came to more than $600, but because of the labor put into it and fun he and his family derive from it, Pop says he would not part with it for 10 times the money. Nor is the model completed yet. Carstens says a model railroad like this is never completed, really. "There always is something more to be added." At present he is building tiny telephone poles and 40 semaphore signals that will light and control the trains.

Gets Idea at Chicago Fair

A display of model railroads at the Century of Progress first interested Carstens in the hobby's possibilities. Shortly afterwards he purchased his first kit, a Hudson type engine, the most common steam type locomotive.

Since then Pop has constructed three other steam type Hudson locomotives, a passenger type Pacific steam engine and a diesel type engine. He also has built to scale a tender or coal car for each locomotive plus rolling stock: 10 refrigerator cars, two hopper cars, three gondolas, three flat cars, three oil tanks, one box car, one stock car, four cabooses, two passenger coaches, and a maintenance car.

Flat equipment includes 125 feet of brass track with ties made of fiber. The roadbed is of processed material covered with glue and bird gravel to resemble the real thing. Even the spikes are constructed to scale. A miniature counter-part of the real thing, they are ½ an inch long. Nine switches control train movements. If a train approaches an open switch, a red light flashes and the train is stopped automatically.

Makes Farm and Factory

A girder type bridge 17 inches long and a 6 foot tunnel made from clinkers add interest to the landscaping. A realistic background for swiftly moving trains is provided by 40 city type houses; a farm with barn, silo, corn crib, hen house, and well; and a factory building, grain elevator, coal chute, flood light tower, two water tanks, roads, and a signboard.

The train system is operated from a switchboard in the center of the table. Here trains can be started, reversed, or stopped; switches can be opened or closed, and speed of the engines controlled. Devised and constructed by Carstens, it consists of 11 dials, four rheostats, and gauges which tell the speed of the train and the amount of electricity being used. By pulling a cord which operates a compressed air unit a miniature train whistle can be blown. The unit was built by Pop from an old converted refrigerator motor and can generate up to 90 pounds of air altho only 30 pounds are needed for the whistle.

Constructs Ship Models

Carstens also has built two large clipper type ships and now is working on a model Flying Cloud, a sailing vessel originally built in 1851. The two earlier models were scaled ½ inch to the foot. The Flying Cloud will be ⅛th inch to the foot.

During the last year he has worked 350 hours on the boat and it is only half completed. Pop hopes to have it ready by July, 1946, to present to a friend in the Hudson bay country. He figures he could sell it for a minimum of a $1,000 when completed.

Pop also makes picture frames and furniture. "That's to keep the women folk happy," he explains. "When they complain too much about all the time I spend in the 'hole,' I generally make something for their use upstairs." Mrs. Carstens is especially proud of the Martha Washington sewing cabinet and the telephone table her husband built.

Values Tools at $2,000

Pop is as proud of his tool collection as he is of his models. He says the tools cost him more than $2,000 before the war and are unobtainable now. They include every type of screw driver, wrench, and hammer that a first class hardware store could have, in addition to a collection of electrical scroll, jig, circular, and band saws, and lathe and sander.

Each of the many small articles is carefully stored in small boxes and envelopes. "You have to have an orderly system with these things or you'd be sunk," says Carstens. Among the many tiny labeled boxes is one marked "diamond dust" which, Pop hastens to explain, is ground glass used to simulate snow for winter scenes.

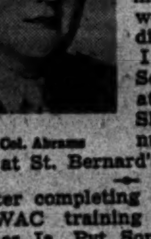
Grandsons to Get Train Set

Henry Carstens has lived at his present address for 36 years, the same length of time he worked for the Edison company from which he retired as an electrician last May. He plans to devote most of his time to perfecting and enlarging his train set and enjoying it with his two grandsons, Donald, 10, and Robert, 8, who live with their parents on the second floor.

Carstens enjoys having his grandsons play with his trains, declaring, "These grandsons of mine know how to operate the railroad system as good as I do and they are careful with it. Some day they're going to own it."

Pop always goes to great pains to show neighbors who drop in all of its many features. That's probably why the "hole" always has plenty of visitors.

American Women at War



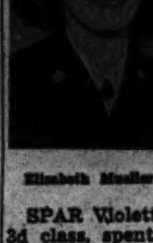
Lt. Col. Abrams

Sara Abrams, 8037 Paulina st., member of the Loyola medical unit serving with the 108th general hospital in Paris, France, has been promoted to lieutenant colonel. Prior to enlistment Col. Abrams was assistant director at the Illinois State School of Psychiatric Nursing. She received her nursing education at St. Bernard's hospital.

After completing her first phase of WAC training at Fort Des Moines, Ia., Pvt. Sophie E. Witkowski, sister of Mrs. Lottie Sunta, 2950 Throop st., has begun technical training at Wakeman Hospital center, Camp Atterbury, Ind. Upon completion of training she will be assigned to duty in an army general hospital.

Lt. Blanche Campbell, daughter of Mrs. Mary Campbell, 8243 Emerald av., recently arrived at La Guardia field, N. Y., aboard an air transport command plane after 29 months' service as a nurse in the China-Burma-India theater. After a leave she expects to be reassigned to another unit.

Lt. Ruth Patricia Lynch, commanding officer of the WAC detachment at Fort McDowell, Angel Island, Cal., is a member of the third class of student officers assigned to the WAC school for personnel administration at Purdue university, La Fayette, Ind. Lt. Lynch attended Calumet High school and was secretary prior to her enlistment in November, 1942. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Lynch, lives at 8551 Ashland av.



Elisabeth Mueller

Elisabeth Mueller, seaman second class, has completed her SPAR boot training at the Manhattan Beach training station, New York City, and is attending storekeeper school at the coast guard training station in the same city. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mueller, 7018 Normal blvd.

SPAR Violette R. Kaizer, yeoman 3d class, spent a 10 day leave recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Kaizer, 5728 S. Hermitage av. She has since returned to St. Louis, Mo., where she awaits a new assignment. Before joining the SPARS Yeoman Kaizer was president of the Thursday Night Girls club at the service men's center, 176 W. Washington blvd.

Among the American military personnel celebrating V-E day in the shadow of the royal palace where the Germans signed the unconditional surrender treaty which meant the end of war in Italy were Corp. Stella C. Goldikas, 12204 Union av.; Sgt. Bernice E. Yarline, 10209 Morgan st., and Corp. Lillian Ginejko, Joliet. They also heard prayers of thanksgiving offered by chaplains and speeches by high ranking military officials.

Among nine WAVES reporting for duty at Pearl Harbor recently was Josephine M. Folta, first class seaman, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Folta, live in Glenwood. She was graduated from Bloom Township High school and was a laboratory assistant in Chicago Heights before entering service.

CHURCH TO HOLD SERVICES IN NEW PROPERTY SOON

The newly formed First Christian church of Blue Island soon will use the two story building and frame residence at Gregory st. and Burr Oak av. as its church building and parsonage. The property was purchased for $15,000 by A. C. Azar, board member, with the approval of the board. Other board members are Ralph W. Wallace and Arch W. Parker.

The first floor of the building will be used for church services and the second floor will house the Sunday school. The frame residence will be the home of the Rev. Jake Warner, formerly of Hammond, who recently became pastor.

Church to Get Deed

The deed to the property will be turned over to the church when it becomes more firmly established, Azar said, and can finance the property itself. Until then he will make the mortgage and interest payments. He will not charge the church any interest, Azar explained. Later the church will build a separate building.

The congregation hopes to hold its first services in the property before September, after the present tenants have vacated. At present services are being held in the Masonic temple.

Composed of 2 Groups

The new congregation is composed of two groups which separated from the Blue Island Church of Christ. One group withdrew 10 years ago, the other separated last April.

When the second group withdrew, representatives of the two parties decided to unite. Membership of the congregation now numbers almost 100.

Calumet Pool

The swimming pool at Calumet High school, 8135 May st., will be open from noon to 4 p. m. on Mondays and Tuesdays for girls' swimming. Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays have been set aside for boys.

LEGION OF MERIT GIVEN S.W. SIDER FOR INVENTION

Invention of a bombing computer now used in combat has earned the Legion of Merit for Capt. Thomas B. Gist Jr., 9411 Pleasant av.

The device is used by the lead bombardier of a formation. It can solve automatically any of 10 conditions which affect bombing calculations.

Commissioned in October, 1942, Capt. Gist was stationed at Wright field, O., and at the manufacturer's factories during development of the computing device.

St. Barnabas School Wins Honors in Track Contest

Junior athletes of St. Barnabas school took first place recently in a grade school track meet sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Southwest Chicago, Morgan Park Military academy, and the Beverly Y. M. C. A. Fort Dearborn and Clissold schools were in second and third places.

TEACHER FILLS ROLE OF 'ANGEL' IN NEIGHBORHOOD

The neighborhood of Federal st. at 4100 south has been described by some of the residents as the wrong side of the tracks. Backed up against the railroad, it is a treeless avenue lined with frame houses. Over this community Miss Ruth Blue unofficially but authoritatively presides.

Ruth Blue

She is assistant principal and teacher at the Hartigan school. She keeps not only students of her classroom in line but also all of the youngsters in the school and neighborhood.

Called Angel of District

Known as the angel of Federal st., she was so dubbed by the grandmother of a boy accused by neighbors of attempting to rob their house. Knowing the circumstances of the case, she determinedly set out for court, where she indignantly inquired of the complainants what they had in their house worth stealing. "You are," she reminded them, "no better off financially than this boy's family; what do you have any one would want to steal?"

Parents in the community invite and often urge her discipline on their offspring, and the children accept it unresentfully, as if sensing it was for their own good. All the incorrigibles of the school are placed under her all-seeing eye, for they will mind her when every one else has failed.

"She has been at the school nearly 25 years," reported Mrs. Goldie Walden, office clerk, "and both the youngsters and their parents—many of whom she had in her classes—love and trust her. They call on her with their personal, economic, health, and even spiritual problems.

Warns Against Environment

One thing she tries to imbue in each child is the importance of rising above his environment. "I remind them," she said, "when we go on excursions to parks and museums that they have to be well behaved, to overcome the impression created by their community, and I rarely have trouble with them." Never one to dwell on a child's bad qualities, she always speaks, rather, of his good ones.

She has received scores of letters as well as pictures from former students. Some are service men, some in the business world, others away at school. She even has received mail from ex-pupils who ended up in the penitentiary and who lament to her the fact they didn't heed her advice.

Street Markers

Experimental street designations have been erected on Maple and Greenwood avs., between Burr Oak av. and Vermont st. in Blue Island. Street names are molded in concrete at the top of concrete posts.

LT. MORGAN FITCH JR. BACK AFTER DUTY ON FLATTOP AT OKINAWA

After participating in the Luzon and Okinawa invasions as radio officer of a carrier based squadron, Lt. [j. g.] Morgan L. Fitch Jr., whose parents reside at 9531 Longwood dr., has returned to the United States. He expects to spend a leave with his parents soon.

Lt. Fitch

Reaching the West Pacific combat zone last fall, Fitch's squadron was assigned first to convoy troopships into Leyte gulf. His carrier later moved on to Lingayen gulf where it helped support the invasion of Luzon. During Okinawa operations Fitch went on several bombing missions as technical observer.

Fitch was graduated from the Ilinois Institute of Technology and was commissioned in the reserve in April, 1943.

VARIED MUSIC ON THEATER OF AIR SATURDAY

Varied musical moods and tempo will mark the summer concert to be presented on the Theater of the Air from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak. Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra. Soloists will be Angelo Raffaelli, tenor; Ruth Slater, contralto, and Penny Perry, soprano.

Included in the entertainment will be "Musetta's Waltz" from "La Boheme" to be sung by Miss Perry; "Nina" by Raffaelli. The concert orchestra will present "Espana Rhapsody" and "Scherzo in G Minor" from "Octette." "Home to Our Mountains" will be sung by Miss Slater and Raffaelli, and "Sleeping Beauty Waltz" by the chorus. Miss Perry and chorus will sing "Romany Life" from the "Fortune Teller."

John Barclay will be the narrator and John Mallow, the announcer. Jack La Frandre, writer-producer of the series, will direct the performance.

Sylvia Sidney on WBBM

Sylvia Sidney will star in "Broken Destiny," drama to be presented on Silver Theater over WBBM-CBS at 5 p. m. today.

ARMY HOSPITAL PUTS IN 'QUIET' RADIO SYSTEM

Percy Jones Is First; 33 Others Follow

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A four channel radio and public address system has been installed at the Percy Jones General hospital at Battle Creek, Mich. The hospital is the first of army hospitals to be so equipped and plans are made to make similar installations in 33 other general hospitals. Outstanding network programs are picked up in the hospital's control room and sent out over two channels while live shows from an adjoining radio station go out thru the other two channels. Thus patients have a choice of four programs.

Individual "hushatone" receivers are used. The receivers—about five inches in diameter and three-quarters of an inch thinck—are turned on by pulling a string hanging from a rotary switch above the head of the bed. Various channels are tuned in by pulling the same cord. The program of any patient's choice cannot be heard by the man in an adjoining bed. He can safely choose another program if he desires.

Push Plans for FM

While most of the frequency modulation interests were not in agreement with the federal communications commission's new allocations for FM—from 88-106 megacycles in R. C. Cosgrove, president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, has announced that "all of us will bend our backs behind the new allocation so that we can give FM to the public at the earliest possible date."

Prof. Edwin H. Armstrong, inventor of FM, who opposed moving it from its present location, has stated that "FM will start going forward immediately that licenses are issued for the 400 or more applications on file. . . . If action is taken promptly, then in spite of the handicap imposed by the shift of the band, FM will be a major factor in post-war employment."

The Stromberg-Carlson company, one of the pioneer FM makers, has announced that it has swung into immediate action toward producing an FM receiver to meet the new FCC allocation.

Speed Is Promised

The Hallicrafters company has filed application with the WPB and OPA in Washington for spot authorization to manufacture 250,000 FM converters which make the present FM sets capable of receiving on the new 88-106 megacycle band. Some 400,000 pre-war FM sets are in the hands of the public.

Meanwhile, Paul Porter, chairman of the FCC, has announced that the commission will "move with all possible speed" to revise existing regulations and standards for the operation of FM, television, and facsimile in the new allocations.

The FCC chief said that the commission expects to schedule a meeting sometime this month to formulate the industry's proposals for rules and standards.

Chicago Philharmonic to Air Schumann Work

The Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, will air Schumann's Symphony No. 2 in C major over W-G-N and WGNB Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock. The program also will include Bach's six Brandenberg Concertos and de Falla's Spanish Dance No. 1.

Jap Surrender to Be Round Table Subject

The University of Chicago Round Table over WMAQ-NBC at 10:30 a. m. today will discuss "Terms or Unconditional Surrender for Japan." Speakers will include Prof. Owen Lattimore, and Paul Hutchinson.

New Army Radio

Pvt. George B. Keil, 4846 N. Clark st., listens to the new "quiet" type of radio installed at Percy Jones General hospital.

Discussion of Russia on N. U. Review Stand

"Russia and Central Europe" will be the topic for the Northwestern Reviewing Stand on W-G-N-Mutual at 10:30 a. m. today. Albert Parry, Joseph Martinek, and Edmund Sawacki will participate.

Colonial CORNER

by G. W. Skeeles, Jr.

SO MANY people stop in at Colonial Chapel and express interest in the furnishings and surroundings (of which we're not a little bit proud) that we have long felt the need of advising all these interested people when we have something new to show them or interesting to tell them about.

OBVIOUSLY it would be difficult to write so many people personally, so we're adopting this method of passing the news along to anyone interested enough to read clear down through this chatter. This column will appear once each month, and we hope that you will become a regular reader.

COLONIAL GARDEN is beginning to be a colorful spot right now. The early roses are still in bloom (we have planted many rare varieties). The delphinium are in bud, and already the double petunias show signs of early blooming. Stop by next time you're on Cottage Grove—you can see the garden from the sidewalk.

SO MANY people were interested in the Cleome (Spider Plant) which bloomed so spectacularly last summer, that we replanted it in profusion this year. If you should have an opportunity, The Cleome should be in bloom in a week or so.

SAVING OF PAPER WILL CONTINUE THRU SUMMER

Name Collection Points for S. W. Side

To enable Chicagoans to continue their contributions of vital waste paper for military use and war industries, 205 city, school, and park playgrounds have been designated collection centers for the summer months. Weekly collections at each point will be substituted for school term collections by pupils thruout the city.

A marked area is provided at each playground for the paper, which may be brought at any time during the week. The summer pickups, under the sponsorship of the Chicago waste paper campaign committee, will continue until Aug. 25.

List Pickup Points

The schedule for pickups at southwest area playgrounds is as follows:

Tuesday—Palmer park, 111th st. and Indiana av.; Ridge park, 96th st. and Longwood dr.; West Pullman park, 123d st. and Stewart av., and State Athletic playground, 96th pl. and Wabash av.

Wednesday—Foster park, 83d st. and Loomis blvd.; Auburn park, Normal av. and 81st st.; Ryder school, Lowe av. and 88th st.; Cornell square, 51st and Wood sts.; Davis square, 45th st. and Marshfield av.; McKinley park, 39th st. and Western av.; Burroughs school, 36th st. and Washtenaw av.; Copernicus school, 60th and Throop sts.; Davis school, 39th st. and Albany av.; Boyce Athletic playground, 647 Root st.; Byrne, 5920 S. SCOUTS BEAT QUOTA

Final figures tabulated on the Gen. Eisenhower Boy Scout waste paper collection show that Scouts of the southwest district contributed 2,674,069 pounds to the total Chicago poundage of 9,778,336, according to Harry Noble, 1040 E. 80th st., district war service chairman.

Leading troop in the district is troop 649 sponsored by St. Cajetan's church, 112th st. and Artesian av. Under the direction of Scoutmaster E. A. Master, 7029 Ada st., a total of 130,307 pounds was collected. Second place honors, with 104,250 pounds, go to troop 431, sponsored by the Archer Road Kiwanis club. Robert Kraskiewicz, 2421 Rice st., is Scoutmaster.

List Other Leaders

Third, fourth, and fifth place honors go to Sea Scout Ship 5657, sponsored by the Auburn Park Methodist church; troop 420, sponsored by the Modern Woodmen of America, and troop 607, sponsored by Bethany Union church.

Each Scout who collected 1,000 pounds or more during the campaign period, March 1 to April 30, will be awarded a Gen. Eisenhower medal. Every troop which averaged more than 1,000 pounds per member will receive a World War II. shell container and a citation signed by the general.

Nature Beckons Picnickers

Blackened spaces on the map denote location of the 36,600 acres of the forest preserve and highways leading to them from all parts of the city. The recreation areas may be reached easily by all forms of transportation.

Preserves Visited by 15 Million Yearly

The forest preserve district of Cook county is the largest area of its kind in the United States within a metropolitan area. It was established in 1915 "to protect and preserve the flora, fauna, and scenic beauties, and to restore, restock protect, and preserve the natural condition, for the purpose of the education, pleasure, and recreation of the public."

The acres dedicated to posterity border the Des Plaines river, the north branches of the Chicago river, the Skokie marsh, Salt creek, Thorn creek, and other inland bodies of water.

Since 1929, a program of improvement to care for large crowds adequately without injury to landscape has been put into effect. The district now has more than 15,000,000 visitors yearly.

S. W. Side Baptist Church Opens Vacation School

Vacation school at Morgan Park Baptist church, 110th st. and Bell av., will be held daily, Monday thru Friday, until July 20. Courses offered include Bible study, music, games, and handicraft work for children 4 to 12. Children are eligible to enroll whether they attend the church or not. Mrs. Walter Christensen, 2350 W. 110th st., president of the Mother's club, said trained directors will be in charge. A small tuition fee will be charged.

along which moccasined Indians once stealthily trod. Bicyclists are safe from dangers of the street. Horseback riders have their choice of paths in native woodland, forest clearing, or wide open spaces.

The only "don't" at the preserves is "don't destroy."

Clayton F. Smith, president of the forest preserve commissioners, emphasizes that the people should consider the preserves as their property and keep in mind the thought of preservation.

BE SURE, BE SAFE WITH

FHA LOANS

TO BUY OR REFINANCE

Safety and security in the matter of loans are the two things you'll look for first if you're buying or refinancing a home. And, you'll find them both in FHA Loans—with low, easier payments.

FHA Loans are surer and safer because they are U. S. Government investigated and approved. You are protected in another way, too. The government approves the valuation of the property—and arranges payments to suit your pocketbook. Under no circumstances will they allow you to take an obligation in excess of your ability to pay—which means freedom from all financial worries.

FHA Loans are the streamlined loans! Any of the officers of this bank will give you full particulars if you drop in. On the other hand, if you can't come in during banking hours, phone us. We'll gladly call at your home in the evening. There will be no obligation.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, July 9

This has been one of the worst seasons for insects and it behooves all gardeners to spray or dust regularly if the insects are to be kept under control. With all the bulletins that are available, it is amazing that many gardeners fail to realize the necessity of spraying early and often.

Some gardeners use stomach poisons for sucking insects when only a contact spray should be used; stomach poisons are used when worms or beetles that actually eat the leaves are present.

Tuesday, July 10

All tropical vegetables and decorative plants should be making a fine growth at this time, for they revel in hot weather. However, they need moisture for full development. Liquid manure is excellent when it can be prepared. It supplies some plant food and moisture at the roots, where it does the most good.

Wednesday, July 11

Order pansy seed for immediate sowing. The seed will grow quickly and the young plants can be transplanted in September in coldframes. In spring they will have made a fine growth and can be planted in the garden area.

There is nothing quite as satisfactory as the hearts ease, for they are fine in beds or for cutting. The plants can be cut back now and may send out new flowering stems. In mild locations they will winter outdoors if given slight protection.

Thursday, July 12

Many inquiries are received as to the exact time house plants should be watered. Water when the soil is dry and the plants need water. Clay pots dry out rather rapidly, and when the soil is dry the pot sounds hollow or gives off a ringing sound when tapped with a knife.

Friday, July 13

Give chrysanthemums a slight application of plant food and plenty of water. Watch for pests and spray accordingly. It is a good time to make cuttings for next winter's flowering in the windows of the home.

Cuttings from the handsomely marked coleus, begonias, flowering varieties, geraniums, and others will have time to grow into fine plants before cold weather, but keep all flowers removed and shift whenever necessary, but do not overpot.

Saturday, July 14

Keep the lawn mowed at 1½ inches. It will be much more attractive than when cut shorter. If necessary rake grass clippings from the lawn, for if too many clippings are present it will cause the grass to turn brown.

The clippings are useful for mulching if no weed seeds are present. Remove and destroy if unfit to use as a mulch or for composting.

CANVAS PAINT WILL ADD NEW LIFE TO HOME

BY LOUISE BARGELT

There are paints especially made for use on canvas articles which can be applied to the tapes of your venetian blinds when they need freshening. They will not shrink the fabric or crack when the blind is pulled up. Such treatment will preserve as well as decorate the tapes. Both blinds and tapes should be clean and free of all dust so that paint will not streak when applied.

If you have porch chairs, cushions, gliders or other articles which are exposed to constant rubbing, there are clear liquid overcoatings available which can be applied after you have given these articles a coat of paint. The overcoating will seal in the pigments.

Before painting a grass or fiber rug with this type of paint for canvas articles, sweep and clean it well. Weave or darn any worn place and spread newspapers on a flat surface to cover an area a little larger than the rug. If the rug is very old and porous, use a coat of starch sizing first. [To make this sizing, blend one cup of starch with one cup of water and pour this mixture into two quarts of boiling water. Bring to a smooth paste and you will have enough sizing for a 6 by 9 rug.] When the rug is completely dry, go over it with a dry scrubbing brush to restore its gloss.

Should you be painting your awnings you can obtain a pleasant effect by painting the shabby inside or underneath side of your awnings. If the awnings are over terraces or porches or the underside of garden parasols you can give them a shade in strong contrast to that used on the outside. For awnings at windows, a pale sky blue on the underside would be attractive or you could paint the underside to match the color scheme of the room.

Two popular treatments for canvas tops on cars are black or tan. However, if the top is badly discolored, it is better to use black.

At Least 2 Musicals on Horizon for Late Summer

'Carmen Jones' Is Due Aug. 25 at Erlanger

By Claudia Cassidy

Late summer ought to be good for at least two musicals, one of them Billy Rose's "Carmen Jones," due at the Erlanger Aug. 25, the other a still unidentified fiesta destined to launch the rehabilitated Majestic on its new career as the Shubert. Gossip and guesswork, two of the theater's mainstays, incline toward Olsen and Johnson in "Laffing Room Only," a project both possible and plausible, while a minority school of thought holds out for a special troupe of "Up in Central Park."

At any rate, the theater itself begins to take on a gala sound. It has all new seats, elevators to the balconies, air conditioning, a color scheme of ivory, rose, and gold, new lighting and modern stage equipment, and remodeled dressing rooms for the actors. This sounds a bit like what Louis Lotito has been doing to several New York houses. I'm convinced that the way he cleaned up the Morosco had a lot to do with the instant success of "The Voice of the Turtle." The show probably would have triumphed in a barn, but it did it no harm to hold forth in a fresh theater all white and gold and crimson, touched with crystal and carpeted with garlands of flowers. In a place like that you just naturally expect to have fun.

Considering that we waited three seasons for "Carmen Jones," I suppose we will have to call it a classic. It ran a solid year on [and in the] Broadway and was restaged by Hassard Short for a brief City Center engagement before it set out on the tour pointed toward Chicago. It has been on the west coast rending limb from limb every previous theatrical record established by such husky hits as "This Is the Army," "Winged Victory," and "Lady in the Dark," the Billy Rose has kept the prices moderate. In Chicago Mr. Rose cannot hope to challenge the grosses set up by those other shows in the huge Civic Opera house. His Erlanger aim obviously is to try for a long run a la "Oklahoma!" and I say more power to him. Half the charm of "Carmen Jones" is lost if you can't understand Oscar Hammerstein's lyrics.

Even after all this time Mr. Rose has clung to many of the original cast. Muriel Smith is still the Carmen, with Inez Matthews as alternate. Le Vern Hutchersen has replaced Luther Saxon as Joe [Don José], with Napoleon Reed, known here from Negro opera, as alternate. Elton J. Warren and Carlotta Franzell still take care of Cindy Lou [Micaela in Bizet code], and Glenn Bryant stands by Husky Miller [Escamillo]. Cosy Cole still beats the drums, and Buck and Bubbles will be in the quintet, one of the high spots of a clever production no doubt still shining in the gleam of Raoul Pené Du Bois' décor.

The location of the twin theaters came in handy last Monday night when Vivian Vance took over Betty Lawford's role in the Selwyn's "The Voice of the Turtle" at the very hour Beverly Chambers was stepping into Augusta Dabney's shoes at the Harris' "Dear Ruth." Reviewers could and did slip back and forth between scenes, wondering, perhaps, if their mental notes jibed with those the producers were making from the back rows. Alfred de Liagre Jr. of "Turtle" fame can relax where Vivian Vance is concerned. Miss Vance is a tall comedienne with an upswept outburst of curls and a rangy bounce that takes laughter in its stride. The audience took to her on sight and whooped with such glee at sight of her outrageous pink mousseline headpiece that the management wrote off its cost with a sigh of relief. Give her a performance or two to dovetail her timing to audience reaction and there's an expert Olive for you. I suspect that Mr. de Liagre's notes held firm injunctions to K. T. Stevens and Hugh Marlowe to do a little relaxing on their own account and slip back into the ease of unforced performance. My own notes added a hope that between makeup and lighting they eventually can make Miss Stevens look as pretty onstage as offstage.

Next door, at "Dear Ruth," the house was packed and the audience in an uproar, so perhaps Joseph Hyman, co-producer with Bernard Hart, was happy back of that poker face. If so, his notes and mine disagreed about Beverly Chambers. This was a Cinderella story where the slipper didn't fit. In her first major role, won by a minor miracle when she got a week's chance to step from understudy into the part of Christine in "I Remember Mama," Miss Chambers made an unfortunately drab début. She wasn't a heroine who simply had to run away with the hero if romance was to survive but a colorless stand-in for a star who hadn't arrived. Maybe something can be done—at any rate, it's worth trying. I had a feeling they had tried to make Miss Chambers as much like Miss Dabney as possible, and all they had achieved was to erase her own personality, if any. More vivid clothes and makeup, a flattering hairdo, direction that makes her stand and speak on the stage as if her presence is important, even vital—all these would help. After that, and minus first night nerves, it's up to Miss Chambers to prove herself an actress.

My "Dear Ruth" notes also held such items as [a] audience having wonderful time; [b] wonder why Leona Powers has given up acting for mugging; [c] Herbert Evers is still good, but it takes two to make a love affair; and [d] pin star on Jimmy Holden's dressing room for that expertly appealing performance as Sgt. Chuck Vincent. That's the way to look at a girl when you are marrying her.

Enough Riverview Fun for an Eight-Hour Day

Some one with a mathematical mind and a stop watch has figured out that if a Riverview park patron took in all the rides along the two mile midway, stopping now and then for a hot dog and a rest, it would cover a full eight hour day. The rides include the world famous Bobs, the authentic Pair-O-Chutes, the Flying Turns, the new Looper, and many others.

"Life with Father," Erlanger, 7th week. Return engagement of play by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, after book by Clarence Day, with Carl Benton Reid and Betty Linley. Nightly except Sunday; Wednesday and Saturday matinees; $3, $2.40, $1.80, $1.20.

COMING

"Carmen Jones," to the Erlanger Aug. 25. Billy Rose's Negro version of Bizet's "Carmen" with book and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein II., and music arrangements by Robert Russell Bennett.

Real Smokes and Gum Bring Right Reaction

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Actors portraying American prisoners of war in a Jap camp in "First Man Into Tokyo," were to exclaim with delighted surprise when they opened some Red Cross boxes. Director Gordon Douglas got the reaction he wanted on the first take by putting real gum and cigarets in each box.

Notes of the Theater

Leland Hayward was sufficiently encouraged by his producing venture with "A Bell for Adano" to keep a speculative foot on Broadway as well as in Hollywood. He has acquired a play called "The Talbot Story," written by Ivan Goff and Ben Roberts, sergeants in the army, and Geraldine Fitzgerald will play the heroine whose living room overlooks the golden gate bridge.

The second annual Rocky Mountain Summer Arts festival, to be held at the University of Denver July 16 to 25, will feature Purcell's opera, "Dido and Aeneas," and the play, "Family Portrait," which Judith Anderson acted on Broadway. Robert Schmitz will appear in piano recital and there will be exhibitions of paintings and sculpture, with lectures by some of the artists.

Restoration of the Playwrights' Company to fall activity should help swing the theater back to normal in quality of production. Its season will open late in September with Robert E. Sherwood's first play in five years, "Out of Hell," which takes its title from these lines in Milton's "Paradise Lost":

> "Long is the way
> And hard, that out of hell leads > up to light."

Spencer Tracy has just been announced for the leading role, after long negotiation. The Sherwood play will mark his return to the stage after 15 years absence—his last part was Killer Mears in "The Last Mile." Following the Sherwood play on the Playwrights' list will be Elmer Rice's "Dream Girl" and Maxwell Anderson's "Girl of Lorraine," with Ingrid Bergman and Raymond Massey. Jo Mielziner will design all three productions. The fourth may be a new comedy by S. N. Behrman, whose "Dunnigan's Daughter" was released by the Playwrights to the Theater Guild.

"Life With Father" had more than one adventure before it settled down for an Erlanger summer. In the pre-Chicago tour of 48 weeks spent visiting 75 cities the troupe experienced some exciting moments. There was, for instance, the time the Fort Worth, Tex., matinee had been canceled. The trip from Dallas to Fort Worth was made by bus, the stars to follow by car. As the bus passed the theater in Ft. Worth, the company manager saw to his consternation that the sign read "Matinée Today." Hasty telephone calls to Dallas found that 'Father' or Carl Benton Reid was visiting an airplane factory, while 'Mother' or Betty Linley, true to form, was in a beauty shop. They started out as fast as possible, but the audience got impatient and said so. Asked if it would wait for the stars, it shouted "No!" Asked if it would take the alternates until the stars appeared, it graciously acquiesced. And that was how Fort Worth saw two Fathers and two Vinnies in one afternoon.

'Anecdotage,' or Tall Tales From Opera and Music

AT the risk of changing the column title to "Anecdotage," I would like to tell you a few tales, tall and otherwise, that have been piling up on my desk to the consternation of tidy visitors, who are growing slightly popeyed in a generous effort not to notice the clutter. One of them—the tales, I mean, not the tidy visitors—is an inquiry from O. F. Long of Evanston, who would like to know more about that Auditorium night in 1903 when Marcella Sembrich and Fritzi Scheff met head-on in "The Magic Flute," with repercussions.

"About two seasons ago, in reviewing the Met's performance of 'The Magic Flute,'" he writes [and let me point out in instant extenuation that Mr. Long is two seasons late, while my own delay is a mere two weeks] "you recalled that Mme. Sembrich many years earlier had become miffed and had gone on a sort of sitdown strike toward the finale because of the prolonged applause for Fritzi Scheff's Papagena. Friends of Sembrich gave another explanation which we read next day, about misunderstood hisses. I remember all this and, believe it or not, thrilled at your reference, because I was in the audience. But I have always remembered that the late Karleton Hackett told me in connection with the episode that 20 years or so still earlier the shoe had been on the other foot; that Sembrich was the much applauded Papagena and that Mme. [or Mlle.] ———? got miffed and refused to sing further, or appear in the final ensemble. Do you know from any source who was the Mme. or Mlle. of this earlier situation?"

Fritzi Scheff

Marcella Sembrich

Sorry, Mr. Long, I don't, and I was not recalling but repeating the Chicago episode. Edward Moore's "Forty Years of Opera" goes back farther than I do. His story relates that the audience went on applauding Scheff and Campanari for the "Pa-pa-pageno" duet even after Sembrich began to sing, whereupon she left the stage and the house. Scheff and Campanari encored the duet, but the closing ensemble had to be cut. Knowing Mr. Moore's care in preparing the book, I'll stick by it, as, having known the fastidious Karleton Hackett, I am sure any incident he described to you was correct to the last detail. Perhaps some reader can help us out on the mysterious Mme. or Mlle., and she has my sympathy, confronted by a newcomer who could sing Mozart the way the records say Sembrich could.

Sembrich's début, of course, was made at Athens in "Puritani," and "Lucia" served her at Dresden and at the Metropolitan. Perhaps the incident occurred at Dresden, for Gustav Kobbé's reminiscences mention jealousies in the company had finally caused the young singer to ask for her release. And after she joined the Met, do you know what she interpolated in the lesson scene of the "Barber"? Nothing short of the aria of the Queen of the Night. Imagine that Mozartean cauldron boiling up out of Rossini!

There was another time that Sembrich walked out of an opera house, tho I would like to remind you here that she was no holty-toity diva. Remember when the men of the Metropolitan orchestra lost their instruments in the San Francisco earthquake, how despite her own losses she gave a benefit concert to replace them? And remember the fabulous scenes of her farewell when she determined to retire before "there can be the afterglow of pity"? Well, if you ask me, this earlier walkout was eminently justified. It was in 1902 when the Metropolitan gave a gala to outdo all galas in honor of Prince Henry of Prussia, the kaiser's brother. Riches galore were spread out for him, but maybe the prince didn't care for opera. He came late—to a theater which entwined the American flag and the Prussian eagle in what must have been a rare design—and missed Gadski, Schumann-Heink, and a few others in an act of "Lohengrin." He seems to have caught an act of "Carmen" with Calvé and Scotti, but walked out somewhere between "Aida" with Eames, Homer, and Journet, and "Tannhäuser" with Ternina and Van Dyck. Sembrich, scheduled to sing the first act of "La Traviata" in advance of a morsel from "Le Cid," walked out, too. Not that I blame either Sembrich or Prince Henry. I just thank Irving Kolodin for recording the plushy episode in his story of the Met.

One Anecdote Leads to Another

At this rate of decline, that pile on my desk isn't much diminished, but you know how one anecdote leads to another. Anyway, this one is boiled down for you by Nicolai Malko, the Russian conductor now in charge of the Grant Park Symphony orchestra. It concerns the celebrated English critic, Edwin Evans, who recently died.

"One day we had luncheon together," writes Malko. "Evans, who looked like Falstaff and likely knew how to enjoy his food and drink, was very jovial and brilliant company. Suddenly he roared like a thunderstorm, 'I know everything in Russian music up to the 1917 revolution.' He suggested that I give him a test. I did and he answered all the questions perfectly. Then he started to quiz me and would dig out the most unknown compositions, such as the symphony by Balakirev, which by chance I had conducted. When I asked him who would ever need to know all that insignificant music he laughed and said, 'I told you I know everything in Russian music.' Diaghileff knew about it and once told me, 'I admire you for knowing Russian music so well, but I hate you because you know not only good Russian music but also everything bad!'"

Reaction in Defense of Richard Strauss

Some time ago when I printed Corp. Klaus Mann's just, but in a way, perhaps justly contemptuous interview with Richard Strauss, I hoped for a reaction on the other side. One came from the Rev. John K. Ryan of the Catholic University of America at Washington. He wants to know why Corp. Mann didn't ask about "Der Friedenstag," Strauss' opera presented in Munich in 1938. "Both in libretto [Joseph Gregor] and in music," he writes, "the opera is a protest against the senselessness of European war and a genuine praise of peace. It would make a fitting part of a celebration of peace and victory. When the Manns were leaving Hitler's Germany, Strauss had the courage to compose a work of art unequivocal in its praise of peace and good will." And that's another facet in the still incomplete portrait of a composer isolated rather than inundated by a world at war.

Seven Native Born Artists Are Soloists

By Albert Goldberg

Grant Park programs for the current period might well be subtitled "Young America Week," with seven native born artists ranging from Metropolitan opera star to debutante appearing as soloists, the orchestral programs listing compositions by two young American composers and the exuberantly youthful, sailors of the navy's "Happy Hour" doing their musical trick on their next to the last appearance on the Thursday night programs.

Eleanor Steber is the "Met" star, well remembered here from appearances with the New York organization during the last three seasons and for a single Grant park concert last summer. She is a native of Wheeling, W. Va., and her entry into the Valhalla of opera singers was, like so many of her young American colleagues, thru the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air, in 1940. Since then she has essayed a wide variety of roles, including Sophie in "Der Rosenkavalier," Donna Elvira in "Don Giovanni," and Eva in "Die Meistersinger." She will appear on Friday night under the direction of Nicolai Malko, her contributions ranging from the classic "With Verdure Clad," from Haydn's "Creation," thru the waltz song from "Romeo and Juliet," to "Out of My Dreams," from "Oklahoma!" Mr. Malko lists a semi-novelty on this program, the only known symphony by Georges Bizet, composer of "Carmen," a youthful work in classic style discovered in recent years in the library of the Paris Conservatoire. It has been heard but once previously in Chicago, during the 52d season of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Selma Kaye, a rising young dramatic soprano who made her debut here with the Chicago Opera company last fall in "Il Trovatore" and is scheduled to repeat the performance twice next season, will be Mr. Malko's soloist on Wednesday night. She will be heard in "Ritorna vincitor" from "Aida," and a group of songs with piano accompaniment. Mr. Malko gives the orchestral spot of honor on this program to Schubert's "Unfinished," prefaced by the "Symphonic Overture" of Remi Gassmann, Chicago composer, critic, and faculty member of the University of Chicago. Mr. Gassmann's piece was written for and performed during the golden anniversary season of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and was selected by Heitor Villa-Lobos during his recent visit here for performance in his native Brazil.

FRIDAY SOLOIST

Eleanor Steber, Metropolitan Opera soprano who appears as soloist Friday evening in free concert by the Grant Park Symphony orchestra under the direction of Nicolai Malko.

Another young American singer, a native Chicagoan who has been heard with the Chicago Opera and elsewhere, is Margery Mayer, a contralto who sings with Cavallo's Symphonic band on Saturday. She will offer the aria "Amour, viens aider" from "Samson and Delilah" and a group of songs with piano accompaniment.

Tonight another Chicago contralto, Winifred Heckman, will sing "O mio Fernando" from "La Favorita" with the Grant Park Symphony orchestra, having been one of a group of young artists chosen for this honor in auditions sponsored by the concert management of the park. Fritz Siegal, the orchestra's young concertmaster, but no stranger to the local concert stage, appears on the same program in Wieniawski's popular Concerto in D minor. Two more audition-selected Chicago artists are scheduled for next Sunday night's concert, Lydia Smutny, pianist, and La Julia Rhea, Negro dramatic soprano.

The navy's "Happy Hour" again will dispense its varied ministrations on Thursday night, with Charles Libove appearing as violin soloist, Jack Kilty singing popular songs, and Frank Miller conducting the concert orchestra in numbers by Offenbach and Gould.

Ravinia's second week brings Erich Leinsdorf of the Cleveland orchestra and the Metropolitan opera to conduct the four concerts by the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Dorothy Maynor, celebrated Negro soprano, will be his soloist on Tuesday and Saturday nights.

With the exception of Brahms' Third Symphony, Miss Maynor will participate in each item of Tuesday's program, singing the two songs of Clärchen in Beethoven's incidental music for Goethe's "Egmont," the bravura aria from Weber's "Der Freischütz," and three songs by Richard Strauss. Her contributions to the Saturday program also will be extensive, consisting of an excerpt from one of Mozart's several masses, an aria from Haydn's oratorio, "The Seasons," Duparc's song, "L'Invitation au Voyage," and arias from Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" and Charpentier's "Louise."

Grads Urged to Take Part in Government

By The Rev. John Evans

A warning against the danger inherent in public apathy toward government was made by Gov. Ralph E. Gates of Indiana in his address at the 71st commencement exercises of Valparaiso university.

"This apathy and its attendant evils can and must be conquered, and it now becomes your responsibility to bring the American people and its government closer together if government is to fulfill its assigned functions," he told the graduating class.

Because government needs intelligent direction, Gov. Gates continued, and such direction cannot be obtained except by personally sustained effort, he urged graduates continually to educate themselves in the processes of government, be active in agencies fostering coöperation with government and finally become themselves a vital part of government.

"As our economic structure has grown more complex and government necessarily more involved, people have become divorced from government and have given less personal attention to it," he said. Calling for more self-reliance and individualism he pointed out that the greater the public apathy the greater the dependence of the individual on government.

As a partial answer to the problem, Gov. Gates asked for more courses in political science in high schools and colleges under teachers with practical experience in politics.

Michigan State college students probably are least affected by the nation-wide cigaret shortage than any other comparable group because of the no-smoking-on-the-campus tradition dating back to the founding of the college in 1855. Among 15 rules of conduct for students, printed in 1858, was the following: "The use of tobacco and other narcotics, being disapproved of under all circumstances, is forbidden in any of the college buildings." Today, tho there is no rule banning smoking and students are permitted to smoke in their rooms, lounges and students' union, they still adhere to the 90 year old campus tradition.

Empire Room's Summertime Revue Called Best Ever

It's Fun, It's Riotous, It's Packing 'Em In

By Will Davidson

Nick Brewster
[Kriegsmann photo]

You've never seen a show in the Empire room like the righteous riot they are staging there now. The Palmer House has presented a long list of superb entertainers, and it has built around them many an outstanding revue. But for sheer fun and energetic entertainment, mark down the new Summer Time show as the best of the lot.

Don't only take my word for it. The customers during the first week of the Patsy Kelly-Barry Wood-Eddie Oliver-Eddie Peabody show have crowded in and spent money to a larger extent [$1,000] than they did for Hildegarde's best opening week. And well they might. Hildy attempted to pass off mildewed material. The fabulous foursome knows entertainment values and makes full use of them.

Merriel Abbott's show starts with her young, leggy line doing a breezy, gay number, "Musical Memories." It involves special dances to illustrate memorable musicians, and the girls are gowned colorfully in some of Ralph Moni's best costumes. Then comes Joe Casky, whom you may remember as member of the dance team, Crawford and Casky. Joe's elongated and loose jointed tap routine is the sort I like and he does a nice job.

Barry Wood is next, and if you know him from radio or stage appearances you know that he is a quiet sort of guy with a pleasant voice. He does such numbers as "I Feel a Song Coming On" in a relaxing way, gets going in "June Is Busting Out All Over," and then hits a wonderful stride as straight man when Patsy Kelly comes barrelling out on the stage.

If there's anybody here who hasn't seen Kelly, she's a rough and ready comedienne who ranges from ringside to bandstand in her raucous and rib tickling antics. She's fast and funny, and she gets wonderful assistance from Wood and Eddie Oliver and Eddie's musicians. You can't describe this show adequately—you just have to say it is superb. Don't miss it.

The Kelly-Wood-Oliver riot is followed by Eddie Peabody, who has been playing banjo since the third dynasty following the flood, and has never been in better form. I don't quite go along with Ashton Stevens in his love of the banjo [except as played by such past greats as Johnny St. Cyr of the asceptic style and the impeccable beat] but I readily acknowledge Peabody's mastery of that typical American instrument. He is a showman, and reaps the rewards of showmanship. I could do with less of his self-exploitation, however. Eddie winds up his stint with the Abbott girls doing a banjo bit on their own, and it is a good number.

Give Eddie Oliver a long, low bow for playing a superb show, and for doing a wonderful job as straight man in the Kelly-Wood spree. Give his boys credit for their histrionics, too—for they are no small part of the evening's fun. This is a very good band, with good arrangements and a pleasant instrumentation.

A warm bit of praise, too, goes to Sig Chakow for his brilliant backdrop and general lighting effects; to Hessie Smith for the music; to Ralph Moni for the costumes, and to Eddie Nolan for the dance numbers which he directed with Miss Abbott. To Miss Abbott goes the largest wreath for having the vision to see the possibilities in such a show.

You remember him as Nick Brodeur, the second piano player who stole the show from Eddy Duchin several years ago in the Empire room. He was so good Merriel Abbott signed him to head a small intermission band. Later Nick played at the Drake, then went into the navy. Now he is out, and on the verge of a big build-up. They've changed his last name to Brewster, and he is playing again in Camellia house of the Drake.

Nick has a strong and lively band—one with a versatility that makes it ideal for this room where light dinner music is the order of the day until 9 p. m., and where a bit of boogie-woogie comes in handy in the later hours. Nick and his group do both well. Nick sings, too, in a soft voice that surprises you when he turns it on his own composition "Midway Island Blues." This number was composed during his six months trick on the Pacific island, and it is very good boogie blues. You are going to hear a lot about Nick in the years to come—you'll enjoy hearing him now.

It definitely is Joe E. Lewis for the Chez Friday. They were trying to get Lena Horne, but will have to wait. Arthur Lee Simpkins, the splendid singer, holds over. Friday also is the day that Carl Schreiber opens in the American room of the La Salle hotel, and Elizabeth Talbot-Martin in the Mayfair room of the Blackstone.

Wednesday is Harry Cool's big night, when he makes his debut at the Blackhawk. He'll have Helene and Hayes, dance team, and Jack Herbert, the amusing magician, in the show.

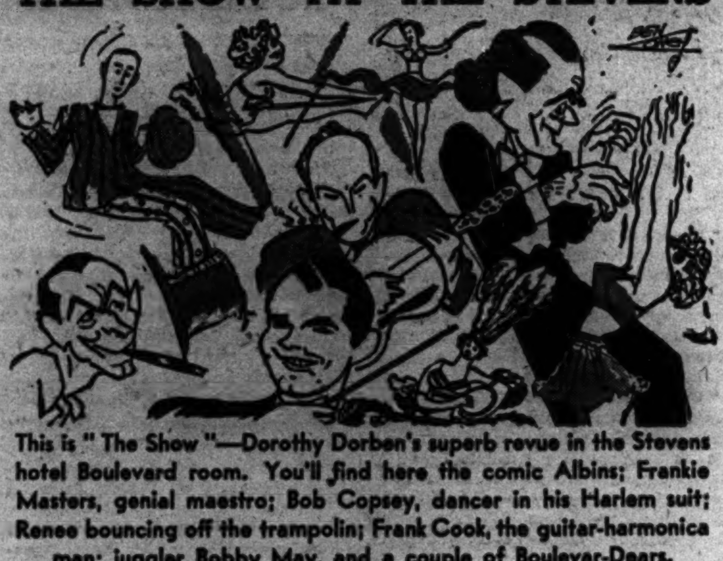
Boswelling the Bistros:

Henry King returns to the Aragon ballroom for a long stay on July 17, which will be good news to the north side fans.

The Milt Herth trio will be the first unit of entertainment in the Congress casino when the Congress hotel reopens next month. . . . Sandra Starr, the pianist of the Bal Masque room in the Hotel Continental, is back after an illness of three weeks.

I can't feel too sorry for those people who bemoan their financial condition while sipping the bubbly in swank night spots. Just paupers—pauper Heidsieck.

'THE SHOW' AT THE STEVENS



This is "The Show"—Dorothy Dorben's superb revue in the Stevens hotel Boulevard room. You'll find here the comic Albins; Frankie Masters, genial maestro; Bob Copsey, dancer in his Harlem suit; Renee bouncing off the trampolin; Frank Cook, the guitar-harmonica man; juggler Bobby May, and a couple of Boulevar-Dears.

A Little About the Movies on City's Screens

"A Royal Scandal." The merry goings-on in the court of Catherine II. of Russia, portrayed by Tallulah Bankhead, makes this film skim. Others in the cast are William Eythe, a young officer with whom the Czarina is intrigued, her attendant, Anne Baxter, and Charles Coburn, the chancellor. Garrick.

"The Cheaters." An extravagant family gone broke strives to hide a young actress from the authorities so they may inherit the money their rich uncle left to the girl. A Christmas week-end with the girl and a poor stranger brings the film to a happy ending. Joseph Schildkraut has the star role. Oriental.

"The Corn Is Green." Bette Davis in the disguise of a school marm for this film opens a school in a coal mining town despite opposition from a mine owner. She has one prize pupil, John Dall, who gets a chance to go to college. The story is based on the stage play of the same title. State-Lake.

"A Medal for Benny." The story written by John Steinbeck tells of Benny, who is a military hero, and his home folk who inhabit a little town in southern California. Dorothy Lamour, Arturo de Cordova and J. Carrol Naish have leading roles. Chicago.

"The Clock." Beneath the big clock in Grand Central station romance blooms between Alice and Corp. Joe as quickly as a shot from cupid's arrow. In the course of Joe's 48 hour furlough they marry and return to the clock for farewells. Judy Garland and Robert Walker star. United Artists.

"Those Endearing Young Charms." Laraine Day, a clerk in a department store, is introduced to Robert Young, known to all his friends as a Casanova who leaves a trail of broken hearts behind him. How Laraine captures his heart is the plot of the story. Palace.

"Wonder Man." Portraying the roles of twin brothers, one a studious little man and the other a night-club singer, is funster Danny Kaye. Along with him is a large cast, including Virginia Mayo and dancer Vera-Ellyn. Woods.

"Diamond Horseshoe." Twentieth Century Fox's anniversary picture stars Betty Grable and Dick Haymes. It's a technicolor musical and the plot of the story centers in and about the night club, Diamond Horseshoe. William Gaxton and Beatrice Kay also have top billing. McVickers, Capitol.

"Nob Hill." Peggy Ann Garner arrives from Ireland to make her home with George Raft. She becomes fast friends with Joan Bennett on board ship and introduces her to Raft. There's a love match with Vivian Blaine making a triangle and a political election to move the story along. Roosevelt.

"A Song to Remember." Beautifully filmed in technicolor, this picture unfolds the love story of Frederick Chopin [Cornel Wilde], the noted composer and pianist, and Mme. George Sand [Merle Oberon], a writer. Much of Chopin's music is in the film. Apollo.

'ROYAL SCANDAL'

Tallulah Bankhead is an impetuous Russsian czarina in "A Royal Scandal." At the Garrick.

Film Inebriate of Long Standing Now Teetotaler

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — Sammy Blum is celebrating 18 years of playing plain and fancy drunks on stage and screen by portraying a teetotaler in "Mama Loves Papa." Sammy has a card index of 1,256 varieties of inebriates from which he selects his characterizations.

Vaudeville

Chicago theater. Skinnay Ennis, maestro of the Bob Hope radio show appears with his orchestra in the program's stellar spot. Carmene is the band's vocalist and there are feature turns by the instrumentalists Monty Kelly, Abe Aaron, and Earl Sturgis. Ollie O'Toole, the impressionist who has been announcer and performer with Horace Heidt and his Musical Knights for the last six years, presents a range of characterizations varying from six to sixty. A puppet show, Walton and O'Rourke, and the dancing Stanton sisters complete the bill.

Oriental theater. "Champagne music" is again dispensed by Lawrence Welk and his orchestra. In his new musical revue the maestro introduces two singing personalities, Joan Mowery, "the champagne lady," and Bob Donet. Harmony and humor are added to the bill by the Three Radio Aces and the comedy team of Tommy Hanlon Jr. and Jean.

Critic Praises Generosity of Stage Players

By John Chapman

NEW YORK [Special] —The actor is a more than ordinarily fortunate human being because he has something everybody wants. He provides amusement, release, fun, thrills, all ready-made for the rest of us. Because of this happy quality of his trade, he is one of the most put-upon of individuals. Since he has what everybody wants, everybody tries to get as much as possible for free.

Is there a charity in need of money? Naturally. Are there soldiers to be entertained in camps, in foxholes, in hospitals? Obviously. Are there war loan drives? There have been seven. Whenever any money-raising enterprise comes up one thinks immediately and solely of the actor—and by actor I mean singers, musicians, and radio stars, as well as movie and stage players.

A real actor "gives"—presents something of himself to you every time he performs. He may be a tightwad so far as money is concerned, altho not many of his profession are, but he nevertheless must have a certain kind of generosity, a willingness to give this something of himself, to be an actor at all. Most actors also give something besides their personal quality; they give time.

Thanks to Alan Corelli and the theater authority, the benefit racket has been cut to next to nothing. No longer must the actor entertain at smokers for cops, politicians, or income tax men. Now, when he works for nothing for a charity, he has the satisfaction of knowing that he is also working for himself and his own kind—for the theater authority rightfully demands a percentage of the gate and this money goes to the players' own charities.

Cutting down the benefit racket greatly eased the strain on the player and made it possible for him to have an occasional night off. But the war has intensified the strain beyond anything it has been since the first World war. And the actor gives, cheerfully and unstintingly. A few have managed to duck out from under and have remained uncoöperative and ungenerous, but they are few and they are not missed.

A week ago our little town of Westport, Conn., had its war bond show, just as it has in the years just passed. This meant putting the arm on the entertainment world—asking it to work and work hard so that songs, dances, and sketches could be auctioned off to the highest bond bidders.

Around Westport there is considerable talent. It is taken for granted that such neighbors as James Melton, Richard Rodgers, Colonel Stoopnagle, and Lily Pons will appear if they can. But there isn't enough talent to make a full, balanced show, so anybody who has any influence or acquaintance with show business must put the lug on outside help.

I put the lug on Frank Fay, of "Harvey"; on Adam Carroll, the pianist and composer, and on Betty Kean, a Hollywood-Broadway singer and dancer. They came to Westport on a scorching afternoon. They got soaked in a thunderstorm at a picnic before the show. Then they worked for three and a half hours.

Somebody else put the arm on Jimmy Melton. Jimmy had a broadcast which ended at 10 p. m. in New York. In a state police car he made the 55 miles from studio to the outdoor stage on the town green in lightning time, and brought with him Carol Hollister, his accompanist. They were out of the cops' car and up on the stage putting out songs within two minutes.

Somebody else put the bee on radio's Mary Margaret McBride. Mary Margaret had a Sunday date in Washington—but she flew to New York, took a steaming train to Norwalk, waited half an hour for the Red Cross motor corps to pick her up and bring her to Westport. And, like the others, she gave. She also bought $10,000 worth of bonds.

It was a fine evening, both as a bond-selling pitch and as entertainment. In murderous heat Fay and Stoopnagle, as masters of ceremony and auctioneers, kept the show moving. George Randol of "Anna Lucasta," David Brooks of "Bloomer Girl," and many others gave what they had—themselves—and then, cheerful but wilted, took the last night train back to the city.

There was drama as well as entertainment—drama provided by a fighting man. Col. Henry Mucci of the Rangers, the man who headed that amazing expedition behind Japanese lines to rescue 500-odd prisoners from Bataan, was there to make a talk about a fighting man's need of tools to fight with. Handsome, electrically intense, and neighbor from Bridgeport, he was plainly, simply thrilling.

Mucci, too, wanted to give. He offered his colonel's eagles for auction. Then he got a better idea. He offered his own most highly prized souvenir, a Jap officer's sword, which he promised to ship from Denver to the highest bidder. Here Fay stepped in with a showman's instinct for catching an audience's sympathy. Nobody, he said he felt, would think of depriving the colonel of his "chickens" or of his sword, but everybody, he was sure, would like to bid on them and then let the colonel keep them.

Fay was right. The souvenirs brought $101,000 from many bidders. Afterward Mucci gave his eagles to two little girls in the front row of the audience and everybody else was just as happy and warm inside as the girls were.

Well, the Westport bond pitch was just one of hundreds and thousands which have been held all over the country. Hospital wards, Red Cross drives, innumerable benefits are working every actor just as hard as he will work, and always these drives are asking for more. The working player has no such thing as a day off any more, and neither does the one who is "at liberty."

The rest of us can do two things: Enjoy what we are being given and then say "thanks," real, heartfelt thanks. That's all we can do, because there is as yet no official, national symbol of gratitude for the people of the theater. We don't hang an army-navy "E" on an actor the way we do on a war factory.

Music Notes

The Society of American Musicians announces that July 15 will be the final date for entry into the auditions to choose a song recitalist to appear at Orchestra hall next season in the vocal series sponsored by the Adult Education council. First auditions will be held in October. Application blanks may be obtained from Edwin J. Gemmer, 501 Kimball bldg.

The Albeneri Trio will be presented as the first concert of the summer quarter of the University of Chicago in Mandel hall on Friday at 8:30. The program will consist of Haydn's Trio No. 1, in G major; Beethoven's "Archduke" trio, Opus 97, and the Trio in C major by Brahms, Opus 87.

Konrad Neuger, chorusmaster of the Metropolitan Opera and the Chicago Civic Opera, will conduct the summer choral clinic at Northwestern university on Wednesday and Friday, and will lecture on the place of the chorus in operatic performance.

Richard Czerwonky, violinist, and Magdalen Massmann, pianist, will give a joint recital in the De Paul university summer series on Friday at 2:30 in the Little theater, 64 E. Lake st.

The sixth annual American Negro Music festival will be held at White Sox ball park on Friday evening, July 20. Lionel Hampton and his orchestra will be the headline feature of the program, and the band leader will be presented with the Chicago Defender trophy as the "most outstanding band of the year."

'CALL OF THE WILD'

Clark Gable's "The Call of the Wild," a re-issue, is on the screen at the Grand this week.

Two young musicians from Ohio, Paula Lechner, dramatic soprano, of Cincinnati, and Eunice Podis, pianist, of Cleveland Heights, won the 1945 biennial young artists auditions of the National Federation of Music Clubs. Each will receive a $1,000 award and an appearance with the General Motors Symphony of the Air, under Frank Black's direction.

BOOK NEWS AND REVIEWS

Story Written for an Invalid Makes a Novel

"PICCOLA," by Helen La Penta. [Harper, $2.]

Reviewed by Maureen Daly

It is a rare and interesting event when an author can capture the thoughts and impressions of a small child without cloying those memories with the sentimental residue that usually lingers with childhood.

Helen LaPenta

Helen La Penta has managed that rare thing. Her first novel is a delightful story of the child, Piccola, her early years in an Italian convent, several leisurely, magnificent months with her grandparents in the hills of Italy and the account of her adjustment to life in America with her New England father.

The story has a rare and delightful quality—it is written with the feeling of a small child walking between high hedges with an acute, bewildering sense of height and mystery and an intimate, surprised delight at the small leaves and low branches near at hand.

Author La Penta began to write "Piccola," two or three pages at a time, to entertain a sick friend who was confined indoors for a long period.

At the same time she had an idea it might emerge as her first novel. Perhaps this lack of original plan explains the charming, unself-conscious perfection of the first half of the book.

Last Days of Virgil Detailed in Prose Poem

"THE DEATH OF VIRGIL," by Hermann Broch. [Pantheon, $5.50.]

Reviewed by John Abbot Clark

According to the prosaic and tight-lipped Encyclopaedia Britannica, "After the Aeneid was finished but not finally corrected, Virgil set out for Athens, intending to pass three years in Greece and Asia and to devote that time to perfecting the poem. At Athens he met Augustus, and was persuaded by him to return with him to Italy. While visiting Megara under a burning sun, he was seized with illness, and, as he continued his voyage without interruption, he grew rapidly worse, and died on Sept. 21, 19 B. C., a few days after landing at Brundisium."

"The Death of Virgil" is a philosophical prose poem, running to nearly 500 pages, which covers [and for page after page it frequently and quite literally, almost suffocatingly, does just that] those last few days of Virgil's life. Despite its many faults—and they are anything but minor — this is a serious and ambitious performance. The subject is one of great nobility and enduring appeal. The background of Caesareanism has many uncomfortably suggestive meanings for our present day world.

But, but—well, here's an ounce of quotation instead: "The space of non-recollection absorbed further stretches of recollection, nevertheless it remained within the domain of the latter, more and more unified with it, and both spaces united to form a second memory-space within the first one, a space in which the transparency and inclusiveness of memory were so intensified, so deeply embedded, were so much a doubling of existence to a new integration, that the soft leaden colored stillness of the waters and the stillness spread over them as their soft, golden reflection were joined to a new unity — memory within memory——"

Unless you can stand long, long stretches of writing like this, "The Death of Virgil" is not for you.

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

IF Adm. Halsey really wants to knock the Japs for a row of brick bathhouses, when he rides Hirohito's white horse in the victory parade thru the streets of Tokyo, let him pilot the royal animal up and down Atago-yama, a 100 foot hill in the heart of the city. He will have to be a good rider—as good as the late Buffalo Bill—but if he makes it he will give the superstitious natives something to talk about for a century or two. Apparently the feat has been performed only twice in recorded history.

Everybody who has visited Tokyo probably remembers Atago-yama for the wonderful view it affords of the city. On the summit stands [or stood formerly, as the case may be] the Shinto shrine of one Kagutsuchi-no-Mikoto, just now a faintly embarrassed deity, I should imagine, since it is his duty to protect people and houses against fire. Two flights of steps ascend the eminence; the steeper flight is a veritable Jacob's ladder numbering 86 steps, known as the "male steps," while a somewhat less vertical flight, for sissies, is called the "female steps." Your commentator, always a sissy where violent exercise is concerned, climbed the female flight.

Heavenward Horsemanship

It is to the male flight, however, that tradition attaches. In January, 1634, it is related—my information is borrowed from George Caiger's "Tell Me About Tokyo," published by the Hokuseido Press in 1939—some plum blossoms on the hilltop caught the eye of Iyemitsu, third of the Tokugawa Shoguns, as he was returning from a visit to the Shiba mausoleum. He commanded one of his mounted retainers to ride up the steps and bring him a nosegay, and the rider failed. Several other horsemen then tried and were defeated before Magaki Heikuro, a henchman of the lord of Takamutsu, won applause and a reward for getting up and down safely.

The feat remained unrivaled, according to Caiger, until Nov. 8, 1925, when a military groom named Iwaki Yoshio repeated it, but did not get any plum blossoms.

With a little practice riding up and down stairs, Adm. Halsey might become the Paul Revere of a new dispensation.

Woollcott Becomes a Legend

The amazing legend of Alexander Woollcott has been assembled in covers, as you have heard, and ranks with the best examples of its kind. The story may now be read and enjoyed like the chronicles of Bluebeard, Tyl Eulenspiegl, Paul Bunyan, Reynard the Fox, and other paladins of fact and fable whose exploits have colored the literature of nations and mitigated the monotony of existence on our planet. Of these eponymous champions, Woollcott was not the least improbable. It is a pity, perhaps, that he did not write just one great book to justify the legend; but that isn't really important. His own story, which he lived, as his publishers assert, is unquestionably a masterpiece. There has been nothing quite like him in the world since Petronius Arbiter.

"A. Woollcott: His Life and His World," by Samuel Hopkins Adams [Reynal & Hitchcock], is an immensely competent life-and-times, and one of the most persistently readable of recent books. Just as an example of its flavor, here is a partial list of the nicknames by which Woollcott was called, at one time and another: Cream Puff, First Grave Digger, der Fuehrer, Gila Monster, God's Big Brother, Ilex, Louisa M. Woollcott, Old Untouchable, Putt, Putrid, Seidlitz Powder, Slimer, Stentor. And he has been compared to such various celebrities as Beau Brummell, Billy Sunday, Cagliostro, Disraeli, Buddha, Donald Duck, St. Francis of Assisi, Ishmael, Moody and Sankey, Robespierre, Samuel Johnson, Peter the Hermit, Shylock, Teddy Roosevelt, Peck's Bad Boy, and the Emperor Nero. No exclamation point, please; it would be an anticlimax.

Woollcott's estimate of himself, in one of his humbler moments, is apt and revealing. "I'm a pretty trivial, rootless person," he once wrote to a friend, "a fellow of motley and diffused affections, permanently adrift." But as a boy of 10 he had characterized the man he was to become even more accurately when, at a children's party, the guests were invited to set down on paper their dearest ambitions.

"I would rather be a Fabbulous Monster," wrote little Aleck Woollcott.

A Soft Intellectual Game

If you like intellectual games that make the least possible call on the intellect, as I do, you may like the exercise invented by the late Dr. John Sampson, once librarian at the University of Liverpool. He thought it fun to take a famous poem and see how far it could be boiled down, by successive excisions, with very little alteration of its own words and without metrical difficulty. His prime example was Gray's "Elegy in a Country Churchyard," thus:

"The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea,
The plowman homeward plods his weary way
And leaves the world to darkness and to me."

"The curfew tolls the knell of day,
The lowing herd winds o'er the lea,
The plowman homeward plods his way
And leaves the world to dark and me."

"The curfew tolls the knell of day,
The herd winds o'er the lea,
The plowman homeward plods his way
And leaves the world to me."

At this point there are two further reductions which, I regret to say, I do not have; but possibly you can work them out for yourself. Dr. Sampson's final stanza is necessarily the most audacious:

"Dusk tolls,
Herds flee,
Hinds scoot:
Not me."

It may be that we have here a hint as to the future of poetry when the "digest" idea is carried to its logical conclusion.

A Princely Gift

George Steele Seymour reports that Miss Vivian Irene Milner of Kinsley, Kas., a life member of the Order of Bookfellows, has given the Bookfellow library a complete set of the publications of the Limited Editions club, and the means to continue the subscription indefinitely—a princely gift.

ROMANCE SET AGAINST BACKGROUND OF WAR

Molnar's Wit and Charm in Love Drama

"FAREWELL MY HEART," by Ferenc Molnar. [Simon & Schuster, $2.]

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan

Take the pattern of any typical tragic romance, from the middle ages on, impose upon it a typical mid-20th century social anxiety, embellish with wit, great technical precision and dexterity, and Molnar's positive charm—and you get, perhaps not too surprisingly, the new little novel, "Farewell My Heart."

Ferenc Molnar

This is the story [in essence told thousands of times before] of the tormented, star-crossed lovers; their relationship is treated as a moral drama; it runs thru the traditional suffering and the adulterous union to the ultimate and traditional release in death. It is nearly always glowing, almost sure-fire material.

But the lovers here are a young girl and a middle aged man, both refugees; thus they add to the standard romantic pattern the conflicts of youth versus age and of old world versus new. And tho most of the action takes place in New York, the real background, the horrible Europe of 1939-'40, makes the love affair stand out in disturbing relief against a vast continental scene of anonymous suffering. These are lovers posed against a swarming mass of martyred innocents; this is romance seen in perspective.

Yet the perspective is not quite long enough to be completely satisfying. Maybe it is a question of point of view, of altitude or angle. Anyhow, one feels, despite Molnar's tenderness and his frequent wisdom, a failure here of full and final vision. Perhaps it is the failure to which romance of this kind is predisposed, a deficiency of moral insight which results from setting up, like a brazen image, the concept of tragic passion as an absolute.

Two Writers Tell of a New Canada

"CANADA: NEW WORLD POWER," by Louisa W. Peat. [Robert M. McBride, $3.]

"LEFT TURN,, CANADA," by M. J. Coldwell. [Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $2.75.]

First hand observations and impressions of Mrs. Peat, a Canadian by marriage, make up a large part of her picture of the United States' vibrant northern neighbor. To be sure, she introduces many official statistics and much generalized information, but her book remains a somewhat subjective and distinctly warm-hearted interpretation. Familiarity with the United States enables her to answer specifically many questions which Americans often ask: about the French, the wide open spaces, the zombies, the Doukhobors, and such.

The recent Liberal victory in Canada's election made Mr. Coldwell's title seem more wishful than prophetic. He is the leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth federation in the dominion parliament. Hence he is qualified to speak authoritatively about the program of this moderate socialist movement. He speaks with candor and clarity.

Some Best Sellers Keep Up Popularity for Many Years

"FIFTY YEARS OF BEST SELLERS: 1895-1945," by Alice Payne Hackett. (Bowker, $3.)

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Alice Payne Hackett, associate editor of Publishers' Weekly, the trade paper of the book publishing and selling business, has done a service not only for the readers of her magazine but for historians of American life and culture as well in compiling the lists of the best sellers among the books printed during the last half century. She has also inadvertently provided one of the best literary conversation pieces in this listing of the best sellers of the past, for there is something about the mention of the title of any book which many people have read which instantly starts conversation about the different readers' reactions to it. Best sellers somehow stir best talkers to conversation, in condemnation or in praise, but always in exhortation.

This book, however, is designed as a reference book and not a bombshell for conversation, and as such it is vastly useful to workers in the field of books. It is claimed that clever analyzers will be able to figure out from these statistics what qualities make a book a best seller, what all popular books have in common.

Miss Hackett does not analyze her statistics, altho she does in one section tell what have been best seller subjects. The Bible leads, alphabetically and actually, and she then discusses with the strict severity of a statistician: comic books; cook books [the Boston Cooking School Cook Book is the top flight seller with sales of 2,157,575 thru 1944]; crossword puzzle books [1,822,000 sold to date]; detective stories ["just about 25 per cent of all the new fiction published in the United States each year is made up of mystery and detective stories"]; dictionaries [total sales of Funk & Wagnalls, for instance, 4,371,000]; dime novels [one of which, "Maum Guinea," appearing at the same time, actually rivaled "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which sold over a million copies]; Emily Post's book, "Etiquette," has a sales record of 666,675 since 1922. The government printing office issued in 1938, 221 million copies of pamphlets and books exclusive of the Congressional Record; 1,500,000 copies of one income tax help at $1 a copy were sold in 1943, and 2 million of another the same year.

Juveniles are perennially best sellers. In the past the sales of the Horatio Alger series were estimated at between 120 and 250 million copies, and of the Oz books at five million. Fabulous sales piled up for other memories of our childhood.

Among poets Edgar Guest seems to have had the greatest sales, altho Stephen Vincent Benet and Edna St. Vincent Millay, two of the country's really great poets, also appear on the annual lists. Religious books sell quietly but consistently and some we never even heard the titles of have piled up sales of a couple of millions. Shakespeare sells more than any other book except the Bible, but statistics are not available. One school book, "The Blue-Back Speller," published by Noah Webster in 1790, has had sales estimated at over 100 million copies. Of all war books, of both the first and second war, "All Quiet on the Western Front" holds the record, but "See Here, Private Hargrove," with 2,500,000 copies sold, is near the top.

After each year's lists of best sellers Alice Hackett has given a brief but vivid background of American life which was either reflected in or reflected the best sellers.

Novel by James Ullman Is Expected to Be Sensation

By Harry Hansen

New York

THERE are rays of hope on the horizon and the prospects for good reading in the fall are excellent. One of the surprises, I have no doubt, will be James Ramsey Ullman's first novel, "The White Tower," which the J. B. Lippincott company announces for September. It has been chosen by the Book of the Month club. It is one of the few successful attempts to unite a philosophical theme with action, both growing out of the war altho not actually dependent on it. It will also demonstrate that when an author has special knowledge of a profession or art he can make good use of it in an imaginative work.

Mr. Ullman's specialty is mountain climbing, and he has written two books about it. "The White Tower" makes use of that specialty, for the title is the name of a Swiss mountain, which the Swiss call Weissturm. If it were pure German it would be Der Weisse Turm, but the Swiss have a way of contracting such German names. I don't believe there is actually a white tower in Switzerland, but there are plenty of mountains and localities that resemble those Mr. Ullman has described. He is that rare specimen, an author with ideas who has a command of writing technique. He produced a play, "Men in White," which practically put the Group Theatre on its feet, started the whole vogue of plays about doctors, and won the Pulitzer prize. It opened in 1933 and later went into motion pictures. Harold Clurman, in his remarkable history of the Group Theatre, "The Fervent Years," calls it "our most finished production." Mr. Ullman also has been a writer of short stories, and an ambulance driver attached to the Desert Rat division of the British army in North Africa. "The White Tower" is his first novel.

Brilliant New Novel

Another good novel, called brilliant by some of the few who have read advance copies, is Josephine Pinckney's "Three o'Clock Dinner," which Viking press will issue in September. Miss Pinckney's short stories have won her a wide audience. The new book is described as a comedy of manners and will deal with an emotional situation in one of America's cities most favored by authors—Charleston, S. C., and oddly enough, it will be the Literary Guild's October selection, so that it will compete with Mr. Ullman's book for attention. That makes two novels about Charleston—and chiefly about women—chosen by the Literary Guild in the space of a few months. The other was Robert Molloy's "Pride's Way."

Steamboat on the Congo

I am also looking forward to Ben Lucien Burman's new novel, "Rooster Crows for Day," which E. P. Dutton & Co. will publish late in August. Ben Burman returned a few weeks ago from the Mississippi delta country — he is always in close touch with his subject matter. He told me how he had profited from his trips along the Mississippi and on the Congo to write a tale that will connect both rivers, for it deals with the experiences of an American youth who operates a steamboat on the Congo. Steamboats from the United States are often sent abroad, and there is an entertaining story about one that was moved across the Andes mountains in pieces by mule train. Ben has an ear for the picturesque and authentic vernacular of the river men and his stories about them are invariably choice bits of character sketching. He discovered the steamboat on the Congo when he went there to write newspaper correspondence about Gen. De Gaulle, when that soldier was leading a forlorn hope at Brazzaville. He described how that discovery excited him in "Miracle on the Congo."

Anthologies Go Rolling Along

Everybody's doing it—making anthologies. To make an anthology of other people's writings you begin with one story by O. Henry and one by Dorothy Parker; then dip into the grab bag. Authors of popular short stories are suddenly getting money for rights of reproduction in anthologies and discovering that forgotten tales—if ever an author can forget his children—are in demand again. Until a few years ago editors of anthologies announced that the stories were the "best" of this or that category. Now they no longer do that. Charles Grayson, editor of "Half-a-Hundred: Stories by Great American Authors," emphasized the greatness of the authors, not the stories. Bennett Cerf opens his new book, "Modern American Short Stories," with the announcement that the book is solely for entertainment and it is not a textbook or pretentious survey of the short story. Both Mr. Cerf and H. Allen Smith, whose "Desert Island Decameron" is an anthology of mixed breed, stories, articles, etc., confess that one object of editing an anthology is to make money. I'm glad the boys are frank these days.

A Copyright Failure

Miss Hilda Livingston of Grosset & Dunlap writes me that this house is one of the publishers of Charles M. Sheldon's "In His Steps." She says: "I was very much interested in your story about this in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of June 24. Dr. Sheldon failed to hit the jackpot on this book because of an oversight on his part of the copyright laws. This threw the book in the public domain immediately and altho more than 40 different publishers are putting out various editions of "In His Steps" ranging in price from 25 cents to $1, Grosset & Dunlap is the only company which ever paid Dr. Sheldon any royalties on this book. It is the company's policy to pay royalties on all its titles which are in the public domain. It seems a great shame that Dr. Sheldon's lack of business experience prevents him from fully enjoying the great success of his book. Now in his 80s, he is living in Topeka, Kas., and aside from the small pension that he receives I believe the royalties are his only income. He expressed his thanks to us in his book, "The History of 'In His Steps.'"

Walden Pond Is Not What It Used to Be

"WALDEN REVISITED," by George F. Whicher. [Packard & Co., $2.]

Reviewed by Frederic Babcock

One hundred and sixty-nine years ago last Wednesday a few sturdy Americans got together in Philadelphia and declared their independence from an empire overseas. One hundred years ago last Wednesday another sturdy American made his own declaration for independence of thought and conduct. He did it by separating himself from the rest of the world and moving into the shack he had built on the shores of Walden pond, not far from Concord, Mass.

Long unrecognized, in recent years Henry David Thoreau has become the god of a cult of urban residents who would like to follow him into the wilderness but who haven't the nerve to do so. We who have joined the cult like to think of him as America's most original writer and thinker. We believe his "Walden" will stand as one of the classics of all time.

The centennial of the start of Thoreau's adventure in living has been marked by quite a few articles, nearly all of them extolling his experiment and the writings that resulted from it. Only a week ago one magazine depicted, in full color, the pond as it looks — or as we might wish it looked — today, "its waters as crystal clear as ever."

In the face of these encomiums, it is both disturbing and disillusioning to learn, from such an authority as George F. Whicher of Amherst, that the scene of the two year adventure isn't what it used to be.

"A glance at the ground," says Prof. Whicher, "where bottle caps and torn papers mingle with the dry pine needles, or a whiff, not of a chance traveler's pipe but of a passing motor car's exhaust, brings back the insistent realities of an era of speed and waste. Tho Walden pond is preserved as a state reservation, it is no longer a refuge of the spirit. Free enterprise has exploited its bathing beach as a location of hot dog stands and amusement booths."

The professor speaks right out in meeting and says the pond has been corrupted by the bathers. But, he adds: "Of more concern than the state of Walden's water or the beauty of its shores is the moral heritage of human freedom and loyalty to principle that descends from Thoreau. Nothing could be more opposite to the totalitarian doctrines of our times than the transcendentalist's belief in the dignity of man and the supremacy of individual conscience over a debased collective authority."

For the rest of its 93 pages "Walden Revisited" is much more pleasant going. The author reviews Thoreau's career and gives his writings their proper place in world literature. The book, sponsored, designed, and printed in Chicago, is a highly worth while contribution to the lore of Thoreau. And it will provide you with a couple of hours of fascinating reading — whether or not you agree that the New England individualist was this country's ablest advocate of freedom of thought and freedom of speech.

OPA Provides Peg for New Western

"WHO WANTS TO LIVE FOREVER?" by William MacLeod Raine. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.]

Like most of the Hollywood westerns where tough hombres with big guns do a lot of shooting but seldom hit any one, Raine's 36th quick triggered tale of hard riding bad men gives the reader plenty of bullets but few casualties. But it's an exciting and timely tale of black market cattle rustling in Arizona, and, of course, there's a pretty gal ranch owner who hates the likable hero in the first chapter, and—you guessed it—loves him in the last.

Foreign Politics Made Clearer to American Reader

"BACKGROUNDS OF CONFLICT," by Kurt London. [Macmillan, $5.]

Reviewed by Hans J. Morgenthau

It is widely believed that this is a revolutionary and ideological war of democracy against totalitarianism, despite the fact that Argentina, Poland, Russia, and Greece are members of the united nations, and Finland fought on the side of the axis. One might also cite against this belief President Roosevelt's statement that this is a "war of survival" and Mr. Churchill's disclaimers of the ideological character of this war.

The author of this book is convinced that the conflict of our age is essentially a conflict of ideas, and he sets out to clarify them. In several sections he deals with the history, philosophy, and practice of government in Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy, Japan, the soviet union, Vichy France, the British Commonwealth of Nations, and the United States. The great merit of this exposition over similar discussions is the simplicity of presentation and the wealth of the factual material which are adduced in support of its points. Many American discussions of European political philosophies suffer from an excess of abstractness. This volume contains a wealth of information and of lucid analyses easily accessible to the average reader. It is, therefore, a welcome addition to the American literature of foreign "isms."

Three Time Winner

With the selection of his latest novel, "The Black Rose," as the September choice of the Literary Guild, Thomas B. Costain becomes a three time winner. His "For My Great Folly" was a 1942 selection of the Book League of America, and his "Ride With Me" was a People's Book club choice of 1944.

High Quality Is Found in War Poetry

"THE WAR POETS," edited by Oscar Williams. [John Day, $5.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle

This is an admirable and very often exciting collection of poems by soldiers of this war and the first World war, and by civilians who are writing about the war. There is no trash, as in so many anthologies. Indeed, considering the timeliness of many of these poems, the general level is amazingly high. One thing stands out above all else: surely no wars have ever been fought by men so conscious of what they were doing, so aware of the whole situation of their lives, so able to express their response.

It cannot be proved, but it appears to me that the English poets of the last war were superior to ours, but that in this war the American poets are far ahead both in imaginativeness and in actual close feeling for word and action and detail. Nothing in the book is any better than Shapiro's "Elegy for a Dead Soldier," with its grave and matter-of-fact lament for an ordinary man dignified by the implications of his death. The profoundly American part of the poem is the stanza in which Shapiro says that what matters finally is always the individual, the single personality, not the mass, the group submerging the solitary person:

"However others calculate the cost,
To us the final aggregate is one
One with a name, one transferred to the blest;
And tho another stoops and takes the gun,
We cannot add the second to the first."

Intense and frightening above all other poems is "Terror" by Robert Penn Warren, with its acute sense not only of the immense fury of the times, but of our inadequacy to become men and women as big as our own terror.

DEADLINE NEXT SUNDAY

Sunday, July 15, is the deadline for receipt of entries in two contests sponsored by The Chicago Tribune. Only men and women in the American armed forces are eligible to compete. Romance and a Small Bit of History

"WESTWARD THE RIVER," by Dale Van Every. [Putnam, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil

Altho this novel centers around the historical intrigues for control of the Mississippi valley in the early days of the republic, it is not so much an historical novel as it is the story of a period; specifically, the year 1794. The river of the title is the Ohio, with its flatboats, keelboats, and rafts carrying a flow of migration and commerce west to the Mississippi and thence down to New Orleans.

The heroine of the story is Sarah Kingsley, whose loyalist father fled to England during the revolution, leaving most of his goods and wealth behind him. But he is not content to remain in England; he wants to be a planter in the Louisiana territory, and he goes to New Orleans ahead of his daughter, who later arrives in Philadelphia to collect an inheritance with which to rebuild the family fortunes.

To get to her father as quickly as possible, Sarah takes passage on the first boat downriver from Pittsburgh, which happens to be the flatboat of Noah, a frontiersman taking a cargo of live stock to the west. Involved in a scheme to put Gen. George Rogers Clark, neglected hero of Vincennes, at the head of a backwoods army to wrest Louisiana from the Spanish, Sarah carries money for Clark in the bottom of her trunk.

In the course of their adventuresome trip down the Ohio, Noah and Sarah fall in love, as was predictable from the beginning, and everything turns out for the best.

The historical element is subordinate to the story's main objective—the love affair of a rough frontiersman and a gently bred girl, but it's prominent enough to give another good picture of early American life. But it also is obtrusive enough to make one wish that some one would write the complete story of river travel in the days before the steamboats came, without having to drag in Gen. Clark, or Aaron Burr and Blennerhasset, or the other glamorous historical characters of those times.

It was never quite clear in my mind why the girl had to be involved in the political intrigue—it seemed to me more or less unnecessary. But the story is vivid, fast in pace, and a pleasant bit of light reading. On those counts it is a success. However, the motivation is shallow and even narrative skill and excellent characterization can't lift it above mediocrity.

A Sensitive Story of a Small Child

"DARK MEDALLION," by Dorothy Langley. [Simon & Schuster, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan

The delicate strains of a remembered melody, the sad and lovely shades of a sunset, the falling of autumn leaves—these things are as easy to describe as the quality of beauty that permeates this story.

It is about a little girl, whose world is made up of Aunty, Uncle Jay, Grandma Crittenden, a lot of cruel children, and Grandma Price in the offing. The girl is an orphan; it is Aunty who cares for her. Aunty has made the child the sum and substance of her own tragic existence. Aunty's companions are not people but books, for people have failed her and she lives in the world that is contained in the shabby and fast failing library of the Crittenden home.

Aunty loses the battle against her own weakness and the child is left with Grandma Crittenden to maintain the precarious life of the house. Grandma, frail, southern, and very feminine, talks to the flowers in her garden and feeds her chickens and doesn't know what it's all about. And finally, thru a set of strange circumstances, the child is taken to Grandma Price, a competent, practical woman, who puts her straight on the advantages of leading a well ordered life.

The wonderful denouement of this exquisite and sensitive story is that Aunty cannot be forgotten. Her words and her outlook live on in the child's mind. She keeps the faith. And when the child realizes that she can live according to Grandma Price's neat standards and can still return to the life Aunty gave her, she enters the half open door of accomplishment and knows where her happiness lies.

Of such fragile and indestructible stuff is this beautiful story fashioned. Like "The Green Years," it is made up of moods. Dorothy Langley is that rare person, a creative artist.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock

IT was just about a year ago that the public began hearing rumors of a novel called "Forever Amber" and scheduled for publication in the fall of 1944. . . . Nobody seemed to know what the title meant, and nobody had ever heard of the author, Kathleen Winsor. . . . As everybody knows by this time, the book made publishing history. . . . It has sold by the hundreds of thousands, and it would have sold even more if the publisher, Macmillan, had been able to get more paper.

In his column today Harry Hansen tells of another book that may hang up new sales records. . . . Like Miss Winsor's opus, it is a first novel, but its author, James Ramsey Ullman, is far from being an unknown. . . . He produced the play, "Men in White," which won the Pulitzer prize, and he wrote a nonfiction book on mountain climbing, "High Conquest." . . . Two months from now Lippincott will launch his latest, "The White Tower." . . . Among the more or less fantastic claims made for it is that it is the greatest novel to be published by Lippincott in the 109 years it has been in business.

Some time in August Alfred A. Knopf will bring out H. L. Mencken's "Supplement One to the American Language." . . . It includes a large amount of new material that Mencken has gathered since the appearance of his best seller. . . . Prof. R. Carlyle Buley of the University of Indiana and Prof. Richard Hofstadter of the University of Maryland last week were named the winners of the 1945 Knopf fellowship in history. . . , They will split the $5,000 award. . . . A native of Indiana, Prof. Buley has taught in both Illinois and Wisconsin, and he got his Ph. D. at the University of Wisconsin. . . . With the aid of the fellowship he will complete his work on "The Old Northwest, 1815-1840." . . . Prof. Hofstadter proposes to write "Men and Ideas in American Politics."

Of course you remember Laurette Taylor and her magnificent performance in "The Glass Menagerie." . . . Her Chicago success is now being duplicated in New York—and the natural consequence is, of course, an autobiography. . . . Farrar & Rinehart have signed her up.

Department of corrections and mental aberrations: Last Sunday this observer, engrossed in the fact that July 4, 1945, would mark the centenary of the start of Henry David Thoreau's life at Walden, related in this column that "Prof. William Ellery Channing" would be honored posthumously this fall by the publication of his love poem. . . . In my addled condition I addled the names of Ellery Channing, Thoreau's lifelong friend, and William Ellery Leonard, campus celebrity at the University of Wisconsin. . . . Thanks to Georg K. F. Mann of Glen Ellyn, Roger Hazelton of River Forest, D. A. Leavitt of Madison, Wis.; Elizabeth Zutt of Evansville, Ind.; W. S. T. of Chicago, and many others, I heard about my error as soon as the paper was off the presses. . . . "Looks like two men against time," said Mr. Leavitt. . . . Joe liked ice hockey, and Carol was devoted to figure skating, and just as new skates came their way, along came new friends who were experts in these specialties.	An excellent sport story for the middle grade reader.
"UNCLE BENNIE GOES VISITING," by Emma L. Brock. [Knopf, $2.]	Uncle Bennie had a grocery in town, but one day he closed it up and went to the country to visit a niece. He helped in the garden, did all the odd jobs and always had time for fun with the children.	A simple, attractive little book for small readers. Pictures by the author.
"POGO'S TRAIN RIDE," by Jo and Ernest Norling. [Holt, $1.25.]	John and his dog Pogo have their adventures this time in the caboose of a freight train. They learn about the roundhouse, the different kinds of cars, and the men who run the trains, as well as the workings of the locomotives.	Excellent drawings and attractive end pages of detail will hold the children's interest long after they know the story by heart. Pre-school children will enjoy the pictures as well as third and fourth graders who can read for themselves.

That Girl FROM Memphis

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery

ON second thought this column has decided not to ask for its money back. After all, a time may come when every man is a king, with a side of beef and some hams and fowl in his quick-freeze locker, a cwt. of sugar in his pantry, and plenty of vintage wines and cognacs in his deep-delved cellar.

And in that far day the thin little book of Maj. Joseph Tilden's "Recipes for Epicures," which now ranks as nothing but poetry, glorifying the unattainable, will be worth its weight in butter.

My first meeting with Tilden, who has been dead for half a century or more, took place last week on page 3 of his book, which I found on the second shelf from the top in a Michigan av. hole-in-the-wall. It described an onion soup in prose more beautiful than a sonnet, but all I could do was to groan and go hungry to bed.

> "Place six ounces of butter in a large sauce pan over the fire, and stir into it four large white onions cut up, not sliced. Stew this very slowly for one hour, stirring frequently. Add salt, pepper, cayenne, and about one quart of stock, and cook one hour longer. Then stir into the mixture one and a half cups of milk and simmer for a few minutes. Have ready a tureen. In it beat the yolks of four eggs with two tablespoons of grated Parmesan cheese. Stir the hot soup into this, beating until it thickens a little. A slice of toasted French bread should be placed in each plate, and the soup poured over it."

That's all. But—six ounces of butter!

Well, as I have said, I shall not ask for my money back. With luck I may live until butchers and grocers post splendid placards reading: "Now it can be sold."

• • •

In that golden time I may even try a Yorkshire recipe which begins—

> Fry in butter several small tenderloin steaks, with two onions sliced and one cucumber sliced——

Or I may essay a Filet of Beef a la Rossini, or Pheasant a la Savarin, or a Hot Zabaglione [which is mostly eggs and sugar and orange peel and champagne], or a cake of sugar and butter and eggs and not much else. Or I'll concoct a punch with lemons, a quart of brandy, a quart of rum, a quart of Madeira and two pounds of lump sugar.

Archestratus was a cook and a poet. All cooks are poets and vice versa. Archestratus flourished circa 330 B. C. and traveled over all the known world, seeking new foods. He was a sad man because there were some delicacies that could not be found at all times and places. "Yet," he said bravely, "we may at least talk about them at all times."

Isaac D'Israeli, who introduced me to Archestratus, also supplies me [thru his essay on Ancient Cookery and Cooks] with this:

> These cooks of the ancients carried their art to the most whimsical perfection. They were able to serve up a whole pig boiled on one side and roasted on the other. The cook who performed this feat defied his guests to learn how he was able to stuff the belly with an olio, composed of thrushes and other birds, slices of the matrices of a sow, the yolks of eggs, the bellies of hens with their soft eggs, flavored with a rich juice, and minced meats highly spiced.

"Our curiosity may be excited to inquire," observes D'Israeli, "whether the patrons of the gastric art were as great enthusiasts as its professors."

The elder Pliny is D'Israeli's authority for one bit of lore which should be pleasing to lovers of fair play, for its theme is that the creatures that died to make a feast for men were first feasted to their own delight, and there is special praise for the "flesh of young foxes" which have been fed with grapes.

Fine Poetry in New Book of Derleth's

"THE EDGE OF NIGHT," by August Derleth. [Decker, $2.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle

August Derleth

This seems to me the finest collection of August Derleth's poems up to this time. Here are the virtues his verse has always had—the liveliness of phrasing, the accuracy of observation of nature, the strong sense of individual men and women, the lyrical movement of the line. There are, in addition, qualities not present so markedly in the earlier books—a greater restraint, less uncontrolled piling up of words which smear the intended effect, less dependence on a certain strident shouting of the meaning.

There is a collection of Spoon River-like poems about people which has much knowledge of the village and a sharp insight into personality. There is less of the earlier tendency to generalize and moralize about experience, and more willingness to let the described situation speak for itself.

Above all, there is a sense of the special landscape and attitude and individuality of the Midwest that is unhappily rare at the moment. Corn crib, sparrow, black oak, field mouse, are all here with rightness and ease. There are fewer of those lines of sentimental triteness which marred many of the poems in Derleth's other books, but there are still too many—"the lonely heart can rejoice in youth like this, beautiful and young as April is."

It is an excellent thing for this part of the country to have August Derleth sticking close to it like a hazel burr, keeping his eyes and his hands open and his mouth full of the plain, clean words.

Story Shows Moral Decay of Italians

"THE PINE TREE AND THE MOLE," by Ezio Taddei. [Dial Press, $2.50.]

Reviewed by James Gray

Here is a curious glimpse of chaos. Ezio Taddei has isolated a fragment of the story of Italy's political, economic, and moral collapse, following World War I., in the city of Livorno. He shows us how anarchists, workers, socialists, fatuous members of the upper middle class, returning soldiers stewed together, rather sluggishly for the most part, in this untidy container of the miseries of an urban section of the human race.

On its political side, this is a story of shabby bargaining and mean betrayals with the middle class parasites helping the scum of Fascism to rise to the top of the stew. On its social side, it is a story of equally painful treacheries. Again the middle class plays an unattractive role as it consorts covertly with the slightly more honest thieves of the underworld to satisfy its perverse yearning after the nastier vices.

Italy, which was theoretically on the winning side in World War I., actually followed the same pattern of degeneration as did Germany. If Taddei's book had appeared at the same time when Hans Fallada in "Little Man, What Now?" and Remarque in "Three Comrades" were anatomizing the decay of German society, it might have seemed highly significant, tho we should probably have ignored its meaning as we ignored the meaning of other such studies. Now, I think, it comes too late to be anything other than a depressing footnote to a record that is already dismally well understood. Taddei is not a sufficiently brilliant artist, either as analyst of political movements or as creator of character, to turn the revealing light of intellectual passion into these dusty corners of the human heart.

Woodrow Wilson and the Great Betrayal
By Thomas A. Bailey

The dramatic story of Wilson's fight for American approval of Versailles and the League of Nations is fraught with implications for today. Here Professor Bailey tells that interesting and tragic story, and gives an honest, searching appraisal of the many political, national, and economic forces which brought about the great betrayal. $3.50

Professor of History at Stanford University since 1930, Thomas A. Bailey is also the author of Woodrow Wilson and the Lost Peace, which the Springfield Republican called "fascinating reading, dramatic, swiftly moving, full of human interest." These words apply equally well to his new book.

Let us not repeat our former mistakes!

Chicago Leader Writes Story of Her Long Career

"MY CARAVAN OF YEARS," by Goldie Stone. [Bloch, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Dr. Felix A. Levy

Autobiography is a rarity in Jewish life, particularly the story of a woman's career. Prior to recent times, there was only one such book, written a few hundred years ago. That gave an account of the simple, everyday existence, at home and in her husband's business, of Glueckel of Hameln. Mrs. Stone has done very much the same as did her predecessor. Her recital is that of a plain, large hearted, interested, and arresting personality, whose presence was felt in home and community.

The young eastern European immigrant has gone far in her three score years. Transplanted from the old to the new world, she brought to the latter a fine religious tradition which she never lost and a highly moral sensitivity that impelled her to labor for the welfare of her fellows. She received from America the opportunity to do for herself by doing for others. Mrs. Stone has meant much to the growth of the Jewish community and human relations generally in Chicago; she has been prominent in welfare work, in the musical world of our city, and in many other activities.

She tells it all naturally, sweetly, and spiritedly. Her memory is long and it has enriched all by its possessor's having reached her "anecdotage." A truly lovely and charming book, the fascination and delight of which all Chicago, especially its Jewish section, should feel.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

THE Midwestern Writers' conference opens at Northwestern university on July 25 and ends with a gala performance after the conference dinner on Saturday evening, when the awards are made by four newspapers, two publishers, and one magazine, as well as by the literary workshops for work done by the conference registrants. . . . The section leaders will be Frederic N. Litten in short stories, Edith Roberts in novels, Paul Engle in poetry, R. E. Wolseley in nonfiction, Phyllis Whitney in juveniles, and Elmo Scott Watson in radio scripts. . . . Among the guest speakers will be Lt. Lloyd Wendt, U. S. N. R., whose first novel, "Bright Tomorrow," has just been published, but whose name appears on two other books, one, the scholarly but amusing historical record of political corruption in the Hinky Dink and Bathhouse John days of Chicago's 1st ward, "Lords of the Levee." . . . Others are Walter S. Campbell, head of the increasingly popular and successful English department at the University of Oklahoma, who writes under the name of Stanley Vestal; Jack Conroy, one of the editors of the new magazine about to dazzle us, called The Chicagoer; William Heyliger, the popular author of some 60 books for boys; Jeremy Ingalls, whose monumental poem, "Tahl," [261,000 lines] has just been published by Alfred A. Knopf. . . . It took "Tahl" 13 years and three months to get finished after the basic idea for it was settled in Miss Ingalls' mind. . . . She is at present doing graduate work in Chinese cultural subjects at the University of Chicago on a scholarship given by the Chinese ministry of education. . . . Genevieve Forbes Herrick, assistant chief, book and magazine section, OWI, will be another guest speaker.

Guests of Honor

At the final evening at the conference dinner the guests of honor will be Alice Manning Dickey, founder of the Midwestern Writers' Conference association, and Elisabeth Fontaine, founder of the Annual Writers' conference, which are uniting for the first time this year to form a comprehensive midwest conference sponsored by Northwestern university. . . . Also guests of honor at the dinner will be the speakers of the evening when the winners of the awards will be announced by editors of the publications giving the awards. . . . Two famous novelists will close the evening: Lt. [j. g.] Jesse Stuart, U. S. N. R., Kentucky poet and author of the tremendously popular novel, "Taps for Private Tussie," and Homer Croy, whose "West of the Water Tower" is still read in popular reprints, altho it was first published in 1923.

Origin of Famous Motto

Here is the final raveling of the tangled web of fact about that quotation over Bernard Shaw's fireplace when he lived in Adelphi Terrace. . . . It is erroneously credited to Shaw in Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations," but was actually put over the fireplace by a, as it turns out, highly literate butcher [used generically and not with a capital as a relative of your Spotlighter, whose name, incidentally, was borne by the distinguished Greek scholar who was the front half of the famous Butcher and Lang team of translators of the Iliad]. . . . That fact was passed on to me thru Carl Brisson, to whom Shaw pointed out the plaque and wondered whether to move it as he was about to leave Adelphi Terrace. . . . Now, in Chicago, Ill., a man who knows his classics, Stewart Owen, tells me—and proves it—that it was an old motto of Marischal college, Aberdeen university [Scotland], and reads: "Thay haif said. Quhat say thay. Lat thame say."

Recently I had a letter from another famous Britisher, Gen. Sir Ernest Swinton, who invented the tanks in the first World war and also wrote some delightful short stories about that war, one volume called "The Green Curve," another called "The Green Tab Dope" [very military title, the green tab being the shoulder tab color of British artillery officers]. . . . He says: "'The Green Curve,' new edition, is going strong over here. I am trying to persuade Doubleday, Doran to bring out a new edition in the U. S. A. One of my yarns just describes Ike Eisenhower's position before Rundstedt attacked."

Shaw Wouldn't Talk Books

I often think of those two famous Britishers in connection with one another. . . . One year when I was in London I lunched with Bernard Shaw one day and with Gen. Swinton [as he was called then] the next. . . . I had been so disappointed because Shaw, who was leaving for his first trip to soviet Russia the next day, wouldn't talk about anything except his trip. . . . I wanted him, of course, to talk about writing, not politics. . . . I was leaving for home the day after lunching with Gen. Swinton, and I said with exasperation, "I wish Shaw were traveling to America with me instead of to Russia with Lady Astor [plus others]. I'd make him talk about books." . . . Gen. Swinton has a delicious sense of humor, but I wasn't prepared for what happened when, on the boat, I fished out of a huge box of excelsior a bust of the long bearded traveler to Russia and a card taunting me, "Here he is—make him talk."

Not a Cash Crop

In upper New York state Herman Petersen, author of "Country Chronicle," settled down on a farm to write. . . . When a neighbor farmer stopped by for a little reconnoitering and asked, "Goin' to keep some cows?" Mr. Petersen was ashamed to admit he was going to keep ideas only, and replied that he hadn't rightly thought about raisin' cows. . . . "Keep chickens, mebbe?" said the farmer. . . . When the answer to that was no, also, the farmer insisted, "What be ye agoin' to raise then?" Mr. P. brightly said, "I'm going to raise children." . . . "Around here, we consider that a side line," commented the farmer, and drove off.

BETTY SMITH
"Lay your hands upon a copy by whatever means at your command."—Boston Globe. Now it's yours as a gift!

Yours FREE

with Dollar Book Club membership

this laughing, loving story that has captivated millions of readers and inspired a great Hollywood triumph!

A NATION of readers has hugged A Tree Grows in Brooklyn to its bosom. The presses haven't stopped pounding to keep pace with its enormous popularity. In its first year it outsold any novel ever published—including Gone With the Wind and Anthony Adverse. Now you may have it for just one penny with your first selection from the Dollar Book Club!

This is the story of the Nolans, the lusty, struggling, undaunted Nolans who managed to wrest happiness, humor and love from their tenement-bound, poverty-ridden lives. It is the story of young Francie, who learned in her early years that the simple things of life—eating enough, keeping clothed and being able to go to school—were not easy to get. But to Francie and her brother Neeley, the world was a shining place and every day too short for the adventures it held. So it was, too, for her father—Johnny, the singing waiter, who didn't earn much but spread sunshine wherever he went. So it was even for Katie, their young mother, who worked hard but dreamed happy dreams for the family. And to gay, affectionate Aunt Sissy, life was lived for laughter, even if her marriages were many and mysterious.

A Tree Grows in Brooklyn is rich in its probing of the human heart, tender and frank and uproarious in its details, packed with drama and romance. "Excitingly beautiful," said the Chicago Sun. It's yours FREE if you accept this membership offer.

WHEN the matter of waiting was referred to Donna Diego she definitely overruled the idea of putting off the wedding until the war was over. She was of the gloomy opinion that there never would be peace again in our time. She also pointed out to her son-in-law privately that if Diana delayed very long she would be past 30, which to her mind seemed like a deadline for hope.

So the preparations went forward apace. Her father continued to mutter faint objections, mostly to Diana herself, and it was to make a final protest that he had come to her room that morning.

"I really believe," he hinted darkly, "that I can influence your grandmother to give you a few years in which we find the young womanhood you've never had time for."

"I'll tell you, Superman," Diana said, "you might be able to influence grandmother, as you boast, but I'm the one who cannot be derailed from the course of true love. Even if it were not too late to talk about it I would still be of the same opinion. Let's get the blooming fuss jolly well over with and go on about our separate lives. A family can't be held together in one house forever, you know. You take Donna Diego and I'll take Henri and we'll see who has to yell 'Uncle' first."

"But, Mutt, you don't really love this Frenchman."

"How in heck should you know anything about that? You like him well enough yourself to offer to go with him on that little parachute trip to Paris."

"That's different—just a middle aged man's desire to get into one more adventure before it's too late."

"Maybe I have the same idea. Life with Henri doesn't sound like monotony."

"But marriage——"

"Let me alone!" Diana spoke a little sharply. Dammit, a girl shouldn't be argued with about a step that can't be untaken—not with her wedding only a few hours away.

They might almost have quarreled. That would have been too bad.

Fortunately, or so it seemed at the time, they were interrupted.

There was a tap on the door. It was Angus, the butler, Diana knew. Strange the way you can identify the step of people whom you know very well, and even the way they rap on an inanimate wooden panel. Her sister, Rhoda, for instance, always pounded furiously as if she were being pursued by a fire-spitting dragon, even when all she wanted was to borrow Diana's best silk stockings.

Diana thought Angus had come to announce that her breakfast coffee was ready and she said, "I'll be along in about five minutes."

Instead of going away he spoke again. "Sorry, Miss Diana, but I'd like to speak to you for a moment."

There was unaccustomed agitation in his voice.

"Come in, Angus," she told him. Then, after a glance at his blood-drained face, she asked, "What on earth is the matter?"

"Will you come down to the hall immediately, Miss Diana? That woman—the cateress—I'm afraid she's seriously ill."

It was natural that he should have spoken to Diana rather than to her father. She was the one to whom all household emergencies where invariably referred.

But her father took the lead in going downstairs. He may have had a premonition that it was more serious even than Angus suggested.

Lady Baltimore lay on the floor in the front hallway not so very far back of the door, which stood slightly ajar. Near her was a large overstuffed tapestry seat cushion that belonged on a davenport which, with a matching chair, was the sole furniture of the entryway. This cushion was on the floor also—the other two were still in place on the davenport.

Diana saw all this as she looked down over the rail at the bend in the staircase. Her view of the layout was like an aerial photograph or a diagram in one dimension.

Besides the woman herself and the cushion there were several oblong and square cardboard boxes piled, more or less carelessly, near the door. These were obviously delivered from local florists which had not yet been unpacked by the servants.

Lady Baltimore's knees were bent and, as she lay on her back, her clothing had slipped up above the top of one of her stockings. That seemed strange in a person whose austere dignity was greater than her consciousness of her physical attractiveness. Mr. Pyneglass, who reached her while Diana was still on the stairs, pulled down her dress the first thing. After that he bent over her bosom and laid his ear to her breast.

Even before he lifted his head Diana knew that he was not hearing anything. The color of the woman's face, the uplifted corners of her mouth, all told the same story. She had seen the same expression on the face of her mother only too often. In her case there had always been remedies immediately at hand and all but once they had saved her.

This was different and too late.

Her father, from long dependence on the unlikelihood that Diana would faint, told her bluntly, "She's dead."

Diana knew that, of course. Angus uttered an exclamation of well trained dismay.

"Shall I do something, sir?" he asked Mr. Pyneglass.

"Not for just a moment," the latter told him abstractedly. He was still kneeling beside the body of Lady Baltimore. "It seems to me that this is a most unfortunate time and place for anything like this to happen. It will upset Donna Diego considerably."

Diana looked at him curiously. It is one thing to be regarded as an equal partner by your father and a horse of a slightly different hue always to be background music and never a solo passage. After all, this was her wedding day, presumably the most important occasion in her life. Why didn't some one run around in circles fearing that she would be upset? Perhaps she wouldn't be—she probably wouldn't because she felt that efficient coldness coming on that always hit her in an emergency—but it would be nice if some one just once expected her to be feminine.

"What's going to upset me?" Donna Diego herself, from the stair landing where Diana had recently stood, demanded. "Nothing the matter except the woman's dead, is there? I've seen death before and I'll probably be dead myself before long. Nothing very upsetting about that."

Diana's grandmother was a very fragile looking person. Appearances were deceiving in her case. She had more energy than Diana herself. But she was small, birdlike in her movements and her head with its carefully coiffed white hair was always held very high on her slender neck. The contours of her body, which were once markedly feminine, had shrunk to the indefinite straight lines of age. Time, in the process of erasing her, had first rubbed out her sex contours.

She came on downstairs and looked the situation over from close at hand. "She's the cateress, isn't she? I've seen her in the house before. Well, I suppose we can get some one else to take her place."

"You mean and go on with the wedding, ma'am?" asked Angus, whose sense of the proprieties was even greater than Emily Post's—probably from having been nurtured on the moors of Scotland.

"Why not?" Donna Diego demanded. "If I had died this morning I would certainly expect you to proceed with the ceremony. Death can happen at any time, but a wedding has to be planned in advance."

Angus was a bit stubborn. He was a privileged character, too, having been with the family a long time. "I was thinking about how Capt. De Bayonne might take it, ma'am. He's not an American, you know, no more than I am and in Europe among the better classes ——"

"That will do," said Donna Diego. She had never harbored the idea that there are any "better classes" than the descendants of the original settlers of California, especially the Andovallo family. "Besides," she added, "we will not tell Capt. De Bayonne or the guests. This is strictly a private affair which has nothing whatever to do with the wedding." She addressed her son-in-law specifically. "What happened to the woman, Trueman? Did she fall downstairs?"

"No," said Mr. Pyneglass abstractedly. "I think she was choked to death."

"Very likely—probably got a chicken bone in her throat," Diana Diego conceded. "Shouldn't have been eating between meals." This seemed to settle the cause of death as far as Donna Diego was concerned. She went on briskly. "We'll have to get the body out of the hall before any of the guests arrive. Angus and one of the chauffeurs can put it in the basement." As any one could see all that Donna Diego needed was a pair of boots for wading in blood and she would have made an excellent pirate captain.

There was a tapping on the door. It was not customary for any one to rap there. Usually a guest pressed the botton, which agitated the buzzer in the service quarters.

Angus started toward the door.

Mr. Pyneglass hastily rose from his knees and reached out a detaining hand. "Wait a minute."

But the door swung wide anyway. It had been standing slightly ajar and the impact of knuckles on its panels had probably been all the force needed to make it move the rest of the way on its hinges.

Naturally every one looked toward the doorway.

Two men were framed in the entrance, one tall and thin, the other nondescriptly medium as to height, girth, and expression. Both wore the cutaway coats and striped trousers of wedding guests. Carnations in lapels, even. Their clothing was entirely dry. Evidently it had stopped raining as suddenly as it had begun—a custom more tropical than Californian.

They stood there a moment apparently as much surprised as any one by what the open door had mutually revealed.

Diana had not seen either of the gentlemen before and assumed that they must be friends of Henri's who had arrived too soon.

Her father was under no such illusion. He seemed to know one of the men at least. He spoke to him, the tall thin one, still in that tone of speculative abstraction which had characterized him since he had first found Lady Baltimore's body on the floor.

"O, hello, Smith," he said. "I wasn't expecting you quite so early."

The tall thin man coughed apologetically. "As a matter of fact we are apparently a little late. Trouble seems to have arrived first."

As they entered the hall the man named Smith limped a little—his left leg.

"Who are these men?" Donna Diego demanded with scarcely veiled hostility. "I should think they would have the decency to go away."

"Pardon me, Donna." Her son-in-law was always courteous to her. "This gentleman is Mr. Seven Smith, head of the Personal Protective corporation and the other ——?" He looked inquiringly at Smith.

"Horace Morse," he supplied briefly, "one of my operatives."

Mr. Pyneglass completed the introduction explaining that the Personal Protective corporation had been commissioned to furnish men to keep an eye on the wedding presents during the ceremony and reception.

Smith pushed the door shut after him. He did not put his hand on the knob, altho he was not ostentatious about it.

Without any one suggesting it he leaned over the motionless form of the cateress. He did not touch her nor even listen to her breathing. As he straightened up from examining her features he looked around hastily.

"Who did it?" he asked.

"Who did what?" Donna Diego demanded testily.

"Killed this woman," Seven Smith replied. "I thought you knew she hadn't died a natural death. Probably she was suffocated with that cushion." He pointed to the davenport seat which lay on the floor near her head. "Don't touch it, please," he told Angus, who started to pick up the overstuffed contraption and replace it where it belonged.

"But we shall have to tidy up the place," said Angus. "There is to be a wedding here very shortly."

"Yes, I know," said Smith. "That is, I know there was to have been a wedding."

"And still is to be one," supplemented Donna Diego shortly.

Mr. Smith elevated his eyebrows in surprise. "I suppose it can be done," he said, "but with a house full of police and reporters it might be difficult."

"We were not intending to tell any one she had died until after the ceremony was over," Donna Diego explained in a more kindly manner, rather in the way an empress would speak to her subjects over an international hookup to account for a matter of imperialistic policy.

"I am afraid," said Trueman Pyneglass with a very tired tone in his voice, "that if this is murder and not just an accidental death as I supposed, it will be pretty difficult to delay action."

"But we must," Donna Diego insisted. "With Captain de Bayonne leaving immediately after the ceremony, there's no time to postpone the marriage. And the wedding must not take place with a police investigation going on. There is enough confusion about a wedding anyway. Besides, I don't know what Captain de Bayonne would think of a household where such things could occur. Already his opinion of Americans is that we have little sense of the proprieties." She turned to her son-in-law. "Trueman," she said severely, "you hired these men. They have to do as you say. They simply can't come in here upsetting all our arrangements this way. Tell them to go somewhere and come back later."

"I'm afraid it is not so easy as all that, Donna," said Mr. Pyneglass, still wearily. "What has happened isn't our private affair. It's a serious crime which comes under the jurisdiction of the district attorney's office. The police department wouldn't be very much pleased if we should fail to notify them of a murder until several hours after we had discovered the corpse."

Donna Diego looked at him impatiently. "I think they did things better when I was a girl," she said. "The law nowadays is administered by the wrong people. Safety and honor were in better hands when gentlemen attended to it themselves. What we need in San Francisco is a committee of about 50 men with horses and perhaps lariats."

She seemed to think that she had said the final word on this subject and turned to go up the stairs. At the landing she looked down. "I am sure, Trueman, that you will be able to arrange with these gentlemen to take care of this affair with as little commotion as possible. After all, we scarcely know this woman. Of course, I am sorry that she is dead and if the fact that she was killed on these premises renders us in any way liable we shall be very glad to make a suitable settlement to the heirs. Aside from that I can see no necessity for any further action this morning. I shall assume that the arrangements for the wedding will go forward exactly as planned."

She continued on up the stairs and disappeared around the bend at the second floor.

Mr. Pyneglass looked at Seven Smith and held out his hands in the gesture which means, "You see how it is."

If Donna Diego had stayed on the scene very likely no one, certainly not Diana nor her father, would have taken part in the illogical, illegal and entirely fantastic scheme which governed their actions for the next four or five hours. In her presence they would have resisted her whim. Absent, her wish dominated them to such an extent that they made an attempt to grant it. The illusion of her authority which they had built up in their minds was more real when they could not see how old and fragile she really was.

Diana had nothing to do with what immediately followed. No one paid any more attention to her than if she hadn't been around. The apron did the trick as far as the detectives were concerned just as it had concealed her identity from Arthur Weeks, the prince of pastry, a little earlier. To men, including detectives, a woman is apparently classified according to the clothing, make-up and gadgets she wears. Diana had on an apron, no make-up to speak of and no jewelry. That automatically classified her as one of the help without any further camouflage. Like Angus, she just stood around.

Mr. Pyneglass made the first tentative concession to Donna Diego's parting injunction. "I don't suppose there is any way we could keep this under cover for a few hours, is there, Smith?"

Surprisingly enough Detective Smith did not say flatly, "No." Instead he replied, "As you know, Mr. Pyneglass, I owe what little prosperity I have entirely to you."

"That has nothing whatever to do with the case," Mr. Pyneglass denied, "even if it were true. It merely occurred to me that since you were once a lieutenant of the metropolitan police you might be able to make some arrangement with the precinct so that——"

Smith was laughing silently. Mr. Pyneglass stopped talking and asked the obvious question with a glance.

"When I quit the cops I was under a cloud," Smith explained. "A cloud of wrath, suspicion, and disgrace."

"Not deserved, I'm sure."

"I'm not offering an alibi, but merely pointing out that a kind word from me would have no effect on the police except to make them suspicious because you are a friend of mine."

Pyneglass was discouraged. "I suppose that if nothing can be done I'd better telephone the homicide bureau."

"I didn't say that nothing could be done," declared Smith. He really liked his employer and wanted to help him. "What I was pointing out is that my relationship to the police and the district attorney's office would be a disadvantage to you. Frankly I don't think the police would postpone action in a case like this no matter who requested it. There is only one way to avoid a commotion right now and a lot of subsequent trouble with the authorities later."

He paused, but evidently only to phrase his thoughts. No one asked him to explain. He did anyway: "What would have to be done would be to find out how this woman died before any one notified the police at all. If we turned in a solution complete with murderer we might keep out of jail ourselves."

Pyneglass grasped at the straw. "Can you do it?"

"I haven't the least idea," Smith returned. "I haven't the technical resources which are at the disposal of the police. But in a crime of primitive violence like this—no shooting nor poisoning, in other words—ballistic and chemical experts might not be much help. My advantage over the routine investigation is singleness of purpose plus a considerable confidence in my mental abilities as compared to those of my recently ex-superiors."

"What happens if you fail to dig up a culprit?"

"I'd have to change my address from San Francisco to San Quentin. After all, it's only just across the bay."

Pyneglass vetoed the idea. "I can't have you risking the penitentiary merely to spare my family an inconvenience."

Smith smiled. "I can't claim to be entirely unselfish in offering to try to clear up this matter. For a year I've been doing nothing but making out office reports about protective services. Frankly, I'm bored and my teeth are getting dull. I think that I'm probably a better hunter than I am a watchdog. Actually I'd like to have a try at this. In all likelihood it's very out of my routine for a few hours. simple, but it will at least lift me The fact that there might be a penalty for failure really makes it more interesting."

What Has Gone Before

On her wedding day Diana Pyneglass slips down the back stairs to burn old love letters. Wedding preparations under the supervision of Lady Baltimore, cateress with mysterious past, and her assistant, Arthur Weeks, are under way. At the incinerator Diana finds some one has been burning papers before her. Back in her room, she sees her father sprawled on her bed. There is a close bond between them. Diana notices his shoes are wet. He is anxious to know if she really wants to go thru with the ceremony. Because of her mother's semi-invalidism, Diana assumed many of the household responsibilities. After the mother's death her Spanish grandmother, Donna Diego, who rules the family, comes to live with them and plans to bring about Diana's marriage to some one socially eligible. Diana's fiance, Henri de Bayonne, a Frenchman entrusted with a secret mission in the United States, meets with the grandmother's approval. Diana favors an early wedding, but her father would like her to wait.

All 3 Novels COMPLETE in This One Volume!

YES, IT'S TRUE! This grand feast of suspense-packed mystery reading is yours to enjoy FREE. Erle Stanley Gardner (creator of the great Perry Mason) — Ngaio Marsh — and Margery Allingham are three of the most famous names in mysterydom. And the very LATEST detective novel of each (described below) is selling everywhere right now for $2.00.

But, as a new member of the Detective Book Club, you receive ALL THREE of them FREE in this single handsome gift volume — a $6.00 value if bought separately!

Yet this is NOT a heavy, awkward, "jumbo" book. Its handy size and large, clear print are perfect for comfortable hour-after-hour reading pleasure. Here is a "triple-decker treat" for every mystery fan. Accept it now—as your trial-membership gift from the Detective Book Club!

A golddigger almost digs PERRY MASON'S grave — in this NEWEST GARDNER thriller —

THE CASE OF THE GOLDDIGGER'S PURSE

THE CASE OF THE GOLDDIGGER'S PURSE

WHEN PERRY MASON'S streamlined secretary, Della Street, looked inside the blonde golddigger's purse, she spied a roll of bills big enough to choke a sword-swallower . . . AND the gun that killed Harrison Faulkner!

Mason and Della (for reasons of their own) fail to let the police in on their secret. Then—too late—it dawns on them that Della's fingerprints are on the gun. The police hold the golddigger AND Mason AND Della for murder. Mason has to solve the disappearances of (1) "The Fish of Death," (2) the medicine formula, (3) the vanishing bullet, and (4) the real murderer!

FIVE MILLION Erle Stanley Gardner books were sold last year alone! As you watch Perry Mason fit together this macabre jig-saw puzzle, you'll quickly know why!

World's first "died-in-the-wool" murder victim — in NGAIO MARSH'S NEWEST Baffler

DIED IN THE WOOL

YOU MAY NOT speak so lightly of being a "dyed-in-the-wool" mystery fan after this. You will remember Florence Rubrick!

While the guests at her great New Zealand sheep ranch supposedly searched the dark garden path for her missing brooch — while the Dunkirk veteran supposedly "blacked out" — while the young musician supposedly played Bach's "Art of Fugue" inside — Florence Rubrick DIED IN THE WOOL! Some horribly literal-minded killer stuffed her unconscious body down into the freshly-sheared fleece in the wool press — and baled her up!

Now follow the famous Inspector Alleyn — or steal a march on him if you can! — as he goes over the swiftly fading murder trail. You'll have a murderous tussle with quite a few baffling questions and clues . . . in this first novel by the great Ngaio Marsh in 2 years!

Poof! Murder is a mere trifle — in this NEWEST MARGERY ALLINGHAM triumph

PEARLS BEFORE SWINE

IMPORTANT? A modest murder like this? Poof! Compared to the great secret plot slowly gripping London, the poisoning of a flyweight flirt like Moppett Lewis seems a mere bagatelle . . .

But sleuth Albert Campion suddenly senses that it — and the deucedly odd events which follow it — are all separate fingers of the same giant menacing hand. For what else would explain Campion's being chloroformed in "the taxi with the sawed-off door handles"? The peculiar re-appearance of the rare wine in a restaurant owned by the murdered woman's husband? That strange wedding "gift" of a faded paper rose and imitation pearls?

Where would you go from here? Maybe you can beat Margery Allingham's noted sleuth to the exciting solution. But you'll have to look sharp and think fast, for this is the author's first novel in four years — and one of the craftiest crimes she's ever created!

'93 World Fair Reunion to Be Held Tuesday

By Irene Steyskal

Once upon a time a Chicago young enough to enjoy and half believe the world's golden myths of a classic past raised a city of white splendor within its borders. It stood near the blue waters of the lake southward, its buildings of noble line, its domed temples, its Ionic colonnades spread over 700 suave and spacious acres—a city, so the story goes, having that quality of beauty found in inspired poetry or music. Those who wrote of it in those days called it the Ivory City. To the less fanciful historian it was the World's Columbian exposition.

It could be that the perspective of half a century invests the old Fair with the perfection of legend. But the fact remains that, while the old timers can shrug off many a subsequent achievement—even A Century of Progress, that triumph to modern science and utility—the stately and idyllic Columbian exposition persists in the memory as the city where dreams came true.

In these later years devotion to the memory of the old fair has evolved a cult and each summer sees the faithful returning, pilgrims headed for Mecca, to the site of their Ivory City. Tuesday morning of this week will find the 93ers gathered in reunion again in Jackson park.

Performers, workers or those who saw the Columbian exposition only as visitors—all will be welcomed by the organized circle known as the Association of '93ers to the informal picnic reunion held under its auspices. Mrs. May W. Gibson, the 82 year old president of the association whose husband was the official photographer of the exposition, explains that the gathering is not a planned party. Every one brings his own lunch. Such entertainment as is provided is spontaneous—old songs, dances, harmonica music, recitations, stories. Some make a dress-up event of the picnic, coming in gay nineties finery they wore to the fair.

From the intersection of 63d st. and Stony Island av. there will be signs to direct the picnickers to the meeting place, about two blocks' distance in the park. Association members plan to arrive about 10 o'clock.

Perhaps old friends will be able to persuade Charles N. French, lawyer by profession and the association's official poet, to read his descriptive verses on the Columbian exposition entitled "Dream City." Mr. French recalls that the idea for the poem came the unforgetable evening at the fair when the Viking ship arrived from Norway, gliding over gleaming water to the rhythmic stroke of many oars, a ghost ship out of a Norse legend. Chicagoans still can see that replica under a sheltering roof in Lincoln park.

Another expected at the reunion is Lee Ladanyi. Mr. Ladanyi, a slight, stoop shouldered figure, is 90 now, but he operated one of the most adventurous entertainment features at the fair. He had the balloon that carried the daring aloft for the price of $4. Enterprising Mr. Ladanyi also was the proprietor of the Trukin Turkish Village restaurant on the grounds.

Mrs. Eloise T. Mason who sold "thousands and thousands" of tickets on the Rock Island line to fair visitors, and answered many more questions than that, plans to be at the picnic. And John J. Elliott, who had the practical job of superintending the plumbing for the exposition, will be there. But it was work that produced spectacular magic. The late James O'Donnell Bennett, in a TRIBUNE story recounting his recollections of the fair, wrote eloquently of the fountains—"rushing fountains like cataracts."

He recalled, "At night they spouted multicolored torrents that shed the lights of witchery over golden domes and along white colonnades and thru the openings of the peristyle which was the majestic water gate of the fair." And he added the characteristic humorous anecdote of the young English reporter, Robert Fielding Giveen, who questioned, "What do you think of that, Givvy?" shrilled an enthusiastic. "I say, positively hydraulic, positively hydraulic."

At the reunion will be one remembered by those who frequented the entertainment places as a "serpentine dancer." The "Peerless Annabella" of the fair's grotto, she is Mrs. Annabelle Whitford Buchan who can still stir old friends in the '93ers association to tears and smiles with her songs and stories of that year when Chicago was the capital of the world.

Art Institute Plans Weekly Outdoor Sketching Classes

Beauty spots of Chicago will provide canvas material for members of the Art Institute enrolled in the institute's free weekly outdoor sketch class, to be conducted this summer under the direction of Dudley Crafts Watson. The Lincoln park boathouse will be visited by the class at its opening session, set for 10 o'clock Tuesday. Each week's locale has been selected with an eye to practicality—where there will be shelter in case of rain. Classes will continue each Tuesday morning thru August, from 10 until 12 o'clock, and other points to be visited include the Humboldt park pavilion, the Washington park boathouse, Wooded Island in Jackson park, the 55th st. shore pavilion in Jackson park, the Garfield park pavilion, and the terraces of the Art institute.

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

Percy B. Eckhart's opening night remark at Ravinia Park that the Festival association hoped the new varnishing job on pavilion's seats had dried sufficiently caused a number of uncomfortable wiggles among the feminine members of the audience who had brought out their prettiest summer frocks for the concert. Not worried, however, by the possible threat of "sticking" to the seats was Mrs. Donald A. K. Brown, who heard the first part of the concert seated on the steps leading up to the pavilion, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Ivo Meucci and Massimo Freccia, who will be the fourth week Ravinia conductor. Her summery print was stenciled all over in a lacy navy and white pattern, and the small bow at her neckline was outlined in navy lace. Her large cartwheel of navy straw was crownless, with a knot of yellow and white daisies at the back. Outside of a few Ravinia "regulars" who appeared in dinner gowns, most of the hundreds who snapped up every seat in the little pavilion and spilled over onto blankets and camp chairs in the surrounding meadows preferred to dress informally. Among the exceptions were Miss Mary Lois Everitt and Miss Barbara Dick, wearing wide skirted summer dance frocks. Miss Everitt's, cut with a tight midriff and little sleeves, was of narrow stripes in navy, pale blue, and white. Miss Dick's smooth coat of tan was offset strikingly by a filmy white gown with narrow straps over the shoulders, appliqued in bright flowers which matched a single coral rose in her hair.

"The hat of Elizabeth Arden Is really the heart of a garden," quipped a spectator at the Arlington races at Washington Park one day last week, upon being inspired by Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham's fanciful chapeau to write a poem about it. Mrs. Graham, who as Elizabeth Arden has been responsible for glamorizing countless American women, needed no fashion pointers when she turned up at the track to cheer for some of the entries from her Maine Chance stables. Looking years younger than on her last visit to Chicago, she topped her smart coiffure with a hat resembling an inverted bowl 10 inches in diameter, from which spilled a profusion of violets, cornflowers, pink roses, and narcissus. Yards of yellow-green maline starting from the center of the crown were looped up into a balloonlike snood, which ended at the nape of her neck. The merest edging of her rose-colored blouse showed at the neckline of her dark blue silk faille suit, cut with an elongated jacket. High platformed blue sandals, real nylons, and a double strand of pearls completed this eye-catching costume. Mrs. Warren Wright, whose stable had a winner that day, as did Mrs. Graham's, matched the spirit of the day with a navy silk dress printed in red, green, and white jockeys and horses. Mrs. Mitchell McKeown, whose white silk dress was printed in window-pane checks, shaded her face with a floppy brimmed black hat, open crowned. Also in a black hat, this one with a narrow brim, was Mrs. Ednyfed Williams, who wore one of the new black cover-all dresses with long sleeves and high neckline, and her handsome ruby and diamond earrings.

One of the prettiest frocks in the Post and Paddock club that day was Mrs. George Getz Jr.'s. She appeared in pale blue linen and a crownless white hat laden with daisies. The high crowned white hat worn by her sister-in-law, Mrs. A. G. Cox Atwater, was a cascade of valley lilies, complementing a soft gown of pale beige wool. The luscious red cherries bobbing on Mrs. Wesley Dixon's black hat looked good enough to eat. Her dress was of blue and white print, with the white predominating. Mrs. Benjamin R. Brown, whose costumes usually are demure, startled her friends that day by appearing in a hat of crimson and bright green glazed straw, shaped like an old-fashioned school bell; a vivid red and green print gown, and red shoes.

Costume of the Week: Mrs. Howard Linn's attractive town costume in green and white tones which she often wears on warm summer days. It consists of a white crepe dress scrolled in bright green, a hip length box jacket of soft wool in a deeper shade of green, and a little hat decked in bright red and bright green geraniums.

Dorothy Olson Marries Sgt. George E. Toothill

In a candlelight ceremony June 23 in the Redeemer Lutheran church Miss Dorothy Marguerite Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Olson of Hinsdale and Sgt. George E. Toothill of the army air forces repeated their wedding vows. Sgt. Toothill, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Toothill of Trenton, N. J., was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania. He formerly was an athletic instructor in Trenton and now is serving in the same position at Truax field, Wis.

Park Ridge School Board Plans Series of Parties

A summer series of parties for students of the Park Ridge School for Girls is being planned by the school's board of directors, which is headed by Mrs. Griswold A. Price. Each board member will be assigned to her a small group of the girls, who will be permitted to plan their own form of entertainment. Beach parties, picnics, museum tours, and visits to other points of interest in Chicago, and luncheons, with attendance at movies afterward, all are on the entertainment list.

Local W. I. V. E. S. Branch Schedules Wednesday Meet

Aims and activities of the W. I. V. E. S., a national organization of wives of service men whose initialed name designates "Wives Insure Victory, Equality, Security," will be described by Mrs. Naomi Nash, national head of the society, when she addresses a meeting of the Chicago Service Men's Wives club at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday. The gathering, which is open to all service men's wives in the Chicago area, will be held in the Loop Center Y. W. C. A., 59 E. Monroe st.

Mrs. Nash's visit here is in connection with a tour she is making of the middle west to interest local community groups in becoming members of the national society of which she is head. W. I. V. E. S. was organized two years ago in New York by a group of nine women who wanted to band together for social reasons, as well as for a more effective program of war service.

American Legion Groups Cancel Summer Schools

Because of transportation curtailments, state departments of the American Legion and the legion auxiliary have canceled for the first time this year their plans for their demonstration summer schools in citizenship training for selected high school students. The boys' school, known as Illini Boys' state was customarily held at Springfield and Illini Girls' state at MacMurray college in Jacksonville. Both were week-long schools.

Fresh from the Hills . . . . Talking Turkey

By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

So you have been toying with the idea of raising turkeys for a living. Well, it can be done. The Homer Grismores of Corydon, Ia., up on the Iowa-Missouri line, can prove it. What's more, the Grismore turkeys are so big, so broad, so laden with white meat they put the old time Thanksgiving bird to shame. Seeing thousands of these birds walking with their queer high step would make any one long for a roaster and platter, but it does no good to throw out hints about holidays or junior home on furlough. Every Grismore turkey is frozen on the claw, so to speak. Uncle Sam has tagged them for his boys and girls in uniform. Even the Grismores get to eat only the young turkeys that break a leg or get their silly necks caught in the fence. These are fried like young chickens and are even a greater delicacy than roast turkey, I hear.

Mr. and Mrs. Grismore were born in the same county where they now have a 1,200 acre turkey farm. They were married in 1926 and, like thousands of young couples of southern Iowa and northern Missouri, started housekeeping on a small farm, with corn, cattle, and chickens as the chief products. In the fall of 1927 they invested $75 in six turkey hens and a gobbler. They must have done well with them for the next year they plunged $4,000 into turkey stock and Iowa farmers do not plunge blindly. In 1929 the truckloads of turkeys they sent to Chicago sold far below the cost of their raising. But, somehow, the Grismores weathered the blow and then when the more-white-meat turkey was sent to this country by an English specialty breeder, the Grismores made another plunge. They sold off their American stock and took on the newcomer, with the idea of improving it still further. About that time Brother Elmer Grismore became interested and joined the organization, then a little later Brother Ernest came into the group and turkey raising became a profession instead of a sideline with the Grismores. Pretty little Mrs. Homer Grismore took charge of the office, after she had taken time out to put another Grismore into the firm. He is young freckle faced David, 13, who drives a bright red tractor all over the place with a big yellow dog wedged into the narrow seat beside him.

When this farm with its big white buildings and swarms of turkeys on rolling green pastures recently lured me off the highway I found about 15 workers [sometimes there are 40], plus the Grismores, grooming drumsticks and white meat. In the long incubators were 7,500 eggs, which have to be turned every four hours, day and night. In the hatchery 1,000 baby turkeys, each worth 85 cents, were pecking their way out of speckled shells into warm humid air. In the laying pens and houses were several thousands of turkey hens, each wearing a protective canvas jacket, with slots thru which the wings were slipped, for after the laying season these plump year old hens must go to market without a blemish on their creamy skins. In another brooder house 7,000 long necked youngsters of 10 weeks were stepping about with that perpetually inquiring expression of the turkey. And out on the range were a number of pens, each containing 3,000 birds who had reached the 12 week stage. When these birds are ready for market they will really be masterpieces. A turkey of this new type, at the age of 7 months, weighs 35 to 38 pounds, where an ordinary turkey would weigh 26 to 27 pounds. He is broader, with a lot more white meat than his rangier cousin, and his thick stocky legs make the sort of drumsticks that father can serve with pride. The new type turkey provides extra profits for his raisers, for he keeps on growing and gaining weight up to the age of 7 or 7½ months, when the ordinary turkey stops at 6 months.

However, any way you look at it, turkey raising has one severe fault. You can't sit under a tree all day and be a successful turkey raiser. For example, turkey eggs must be gathered every 30 minutes from the laying pens and that breaks up a nap and interferes with fishing. Besides that, a turkey is harder to raise than a puny baby. From the egg to axe day, turkeys are easy prey for all the diseases of chickens and nature fixed up some fancy ones specially for our traditional Thanksgiving bird.

At the Grismore farms epidemics and disease are fought constantly with sunshine, fresh air, clean water, scientific feeding, absolute cleanliness, constant attention, sulpha drugs, and all known chicken remedies, with the greatest emphasis on cleanliness. The nurseries being prepared for the thousand baby turkeys were as clean as water and disinfectants were able to make them. Even so, the thousand would not be together, said Mrs. Grismore. Four groups of 250 will be put into the clean, warm brooder house, each group having its own pen, with circular corrugated sidewalks to keep the little fellows from piling up in the corners. A drum type fuel oil brooder stove will keep them warm and they will have special waterers and feeders. For three days they will walk on feed sacks spread over gravel. Then the sacks will be removed and they will spend three days on gravel. From then until they go on the range they will be on shavings like the group of 7,000 I saw in another brooder house. These were lanky youngsters of 10 weeks who spend their nights on roosts like grownup turkeys and their days in sun porches built with wire floors to keep their tender young feet off the ground. Actually turkeys take to roosts at about 10 days of age.

Going on range does not mean the turkeys are turned loose to roam in the woods. Each "range" is an area of perhaps five acres, surrounded by a four foot wire fence. Inside are watering tanks, feeding troughs, and long A-shaped roosts with sheltering roofs and curtains that can be let down in case of bad weather. Examine those tanks and troughs and you will find they are built on sled runners. Even the roosts are in 20 foot sections mounted on runners. After the range has been in use four days workmen bring in tractors, hook them on to the equipment and inside of a couple of hours the whole affair is set up in another fenced area, and the turkeys are gently driven into the new air-conditioned apartment. In four days they will be moved to another range. In 10 months, with several pens of turkeys, a lot of land is covered. And that land will not be used for turkeys for two years. Live stock will run on it during the in-between year.

At the age of 12 weeks the sexes are separated in order that the toms will not wear off their fat faster than they gain it by strutting, gobbling, and showing off before the hens. At the same time the turkeys are vaccinated for pox in that never ending battle for health. And everybody keeps fingers crossed against unpredictable turkey troubles. They remember when hundreds of Grismore turkeys had their crops jammed with grass soon after they went on range. The only relief was to operate. Turkey dressers had a chuckle at Thanksgiving time when they ran across big turkeys with operation scars.

Another time hundreds had their gizzards jammed with a forage green, an inoperable trouble. That time the whole flock was yanked off the green pasture and set down on a plowed field, without a blade of grass or other green stuff. But the most tragic loss occurred when a cold rain came in the midst of a burning Iowa August, with the roost sections set far apart to admit free circulation of air. Before morning 700 Thanksgiving dinners were stiff and stark in death, a total loss because the feathers tightened before the Grismores could get the dressing equipment into operation.

Turkey thieves are another threat to profits. But the Grismores are ready. Each night worker carries a gun and he has been told to shoot first and then ask questions. However, one thief got away with so many turkeys Homer decided a wolf was raiding his flock and took up vigil himself. He caught the thief, a wise old owl, who must have known he would stampede the flock if he flew in. So he flew to the ground, yards away, and walked unnoticed into the pen.

The turkeys' own timidity is another threat to their safety. If an aviator should suddenly decide to circle over this turkey farm at least a regiment would be out a Grismore turkey dinner. The turkeys would be thrown into a panic and would pile up four or five feet deep at the end of the area Hundreds would be smothered before the frightened birds could be calmed. Right now black market operators are the greatest pest. They come to the farm and offer a nickel a pound more than the ceiling price set by the government. But don't expect to get one of these fancy birds by patronizing a black market. Many Grismores are among the Iowans in service and Homer, Elmer, and Ernest won't let them down!

You would enjoy talking turkey with the Grismores, particularly Mr. and Mrs. Homer. They combine all the fine qualities of Iowa farmers, big business men, and good neighbors. If you try to call them turkey experts, they frankly say they don't know all the answers . . . yet! And they are glad to see other turkey raisers making a success of their work. In fact, Homer Grismore sends these three rules to you prospective turkey raisers: 1. Raise turkeys on well drained land. 2. Don't try to raise turkeys with chickens. 3. Remember that even with your best efforts you will have a loss of 15 to 20 per cent of your birds. The best year at the Grismore farms was 11 per cent. Says Homer: "When you dig a hole to bury a dead turkey, don't get in it yourself!"

Chicago Offers Much to Those Who Stay Home This Summer

By Thalia

Chicagoans who decided, even before the five day railroad ticket reservation put a curb on travel, to spend the summer at home need feel no sorrow for their apparent privations, for it looks as tho they might well have a super summer. Travelers recently arriving from New York in a state of liquefaction from the eastern heat even in the elegant country house sections of Long Island and Connecticut were shivering in their sheers in Chicago's lake breezy coolness. And nowhere in the country can more delightful music be heard more delightfully out of doors than along Lake Michigan, both in Chicago and on the north shore.

Ravinia park opened its six weeks' season of orchestral music under the skies a week ago last night with the stars doing their best to live up to the park's slogan of "Music Under the Stars." They had a tussle for awhile with darkening clouds, and in the equipment of many of the evening's guests were an umbrella and a good, serviceable raincoat, but the stars won the skirmish just in time. Apparently everybody who could navigate by train or car to the park did so, for I have never seen it more crowded. The automobile gates from the east were closed well before the concert began and the parking space to the west looked like a swank used car lot in the days when people used to turn their cars in every second year. Every seat under the roof was occupied, the grass within hearing distance was covered with "sitters," and during the intermission the walks and grass plots around the pink petunia bed were as full of people as a rush hour bus.

Everything looked homelike to the devoted Ravinialtes — the petunias, the dramatic green reflections of light among the trees, the Chinese lanterns [which must by this time be in a wonderful state of preservation for they have been the same for years]. Percy B. Eckhart, chairman of Ravinia Festival association, pointed out a few improvements which had been made this year, the most spectacular one the 50 per cent increase in the guarantor's fund and the 30 per cent increase in the number of season coupon book subscribers.

The new fluorescent lighting of the orchestra shell made the white shirted and white gowned players not only gayer looking but cooler, and to add to their comfort showers had also been installed. Mr. Eckhart quipped, "Individually the orchestra will be cooler, but as a group they will be as hot as ever."

The soloists of the evening, Oscar Chausow, violinist [formerly with the Chicago Symphony], and Frank Miller, cellist [formerly with Toscanini's NBC Symphony orchestra], both were listed on the program as musicians second class, which gave everybody a wonderful chance to say that the navy had mismarked them. In their white sailor suits, as they responded to the vociferous applause of the audience and played a long encore without the orchestra, they seemed like two little boys playing their favorite game — and both winning.

A very few of the ladies in the audience wore long dresses. They were among the small number who went to the after concert party given by Mrs. William Sherman Hay in Winnetka for her house guests, Conductor and Mrs. Desire Defauw and the evening's soloists. Everybody else was informally dressed, and few wore hats. I heard one quip, probably familiar to every one but new to me, about the evening as "Desire Under the Elms," but which, of course, would be funnier if Mr. Defauw's first name were pronounced like a psychoanalytical state instead of Day-zeer-ay.

Under the bright stars of Chicago's Grant park the series of summer concerts also offers Chicago-bound music lovers fine music. And anybody who listens to an orchestra in the great open spaces around the Grank park bandshell has a new and special thrill, for the sense of beauty and sylvan peace in that magic circle of music is heightened by the rush of traffic, the very urban tall buildings which seem to support the sky, the triumphantly waving flag, and the slow falling of night's curtain and the city's busy lighting up as the darkness comes. And there is also a deep sense of democracy at work to the strains of the great music of a world too long struggling toward democracy.

How part of the world has been for centuries, Chicago-bound men and women and children can now see graphically in the great Natural History museum still almost always called Field museum. It is another vacation spot Chicago can be proud of. Last week Stanley Field, who has been president of the museum for 37 years, and the Dutch government, thru its Chicago representative, Jan U. Schuurman, consul general, welcomed as many of the 4,350 members of the museum as could accept the invitation to a preview of the exciting panoramic history of Dutch culture.

The exotic little Balinese dancer Devi-Dja and her company from the Den Paser temple in that island of enchantment, gave a special program for the special guests. And to interpret the strange and exciting sights and sounds to the audience there was Prof. Fay Cooper-Cole, chairman of the department of anthropology at the University of Chicago and research associate in Malaysian ethnology at the museum, who further opened the audience's already popping eyes and singing ears.

Strange facts about our own town department. Recently an Astor street menage was augmented by the return of one of its members from a German prison camp and by the week-end leave presence of another flying member and his wife. The feminine head of the household determined to corral the best possible dinner for the great occasion and unable to find a chicken nearer than a coop west of Lake Forest, recklessly asked her market what meat they had. None whatever, was the reply, but they had some squab. She immediately ordered six and called up a few of her friends to tell them what a wonder-

Mrs. John G., Chicago—Why not hasten the era of cooler houses and autos by the use of heat-reflecting paints? The army and navy already have discovered infra-red reflecting properties in many commonly used pigments.

Emily G., Lima, O.—When I want to apply a clear varnish coat to a soiled wood surface I sandpaper surface vigorously to remove all stain or soil.

Mrs. Fred W., St. Louis, Mo.—I use peroxide as a bleach for light scorch stains and to hasten its action I add a teaspoon of borax to a pint of peroxide just before using. I sponge stain with this mixture and rinse thoroly with clear water.

Mrs. Fred H., Indianapolis, Ind.—I make my own dusting cloths. I take squares of soft cloths and put them into a jar which contains a little furniture polish. After cloths are well moistened with the polish I take them out, and let all excess moisture dry. Result—a number of nice dusting cloths.

Mary H., Chicago—We have just "frosted" the glass of our bathroom window. I softened a lump of putty with a little linseed oil and patted this on the window glass. It dried in about 24 hours. I am told this coating is washable, and can be removed later with ammonia.

Mrs. Marion V., Chicago—To use all the space in my kitchen, which is very small, I slip out tray beneath gas burners of my range after dinner is cooked, place it on top of gas burners and use it as a parking spot for soiled dishes.

ful find she had made in the food line.

When she got home that evening after a hard day's work at her war job the cook asked if madam had asked the price of the squab. "No, I was so happy to find something to eat for the boys that I never thought to. Why?"

"Well," said the cook, "Madam had better look at the bill." Five, not six, squab had been sent. The bill was $9.90. She was horrified, telephoned the market promptly, was told to return them if she didn't want them at that price, that there were a hundred unfilled orders for them. [Some of them unquestionably the result of her treasure-sharing telephoning.]

The man of the house was telling about the incident at luncheon the next day to a group of his cronies who thought it was pretty funny, when one of them called over the owner of the restaurant, who happened to be there, and asked him how much squab should be. He didn't know, but called in his buyer who said $2 apiece was outrageous, and then offered with a sardonic grin this suggestion. "If you want pigeons I know where you can get all you want for 25 cents apiece. Only maybe you wouldn't want 'em if you knew where they came from. There's a man that goes around the alleys in the loop with a big sack in his hand and a pocketful of bread crumbs. When nice fat pigeons fly down for a meal he wrings their necks and pops 'em in his sack. I saw him bag 14 the other day. He sells them for a quarter, I hear."

The men at the table immediately constituted themselves an investigating committee and when they met again for luncheon a week later they all swore that there are perceptibly fewer pigeons in the loop.

One of the things that every one who has come back from Italy remarks is the absence of all birds, even of the millions of little song birds that used to warble there. Europeans have for generations eaten song birds. The French consider a great delicacy little bird pies, especially those made of the ortolan, which, in our language, is a bobolink. Famine may have silenced the birds of Italy, but there is something macabre about this loop pigeoneer.

You'd never think to look at her that the young, pretty, blonde haloed Nicole Smagghe is both a doctor and a captain, but she has earned both of those cherished titles by supreme devotion to her ideals. Capt. Smagghe, chic in her French captain's uniform, shared a few of her experiences with some of the members of the Library of International Relations the other day. Her calmness in relating harrowing exploits was probably a native trait, for she could not have done what she did without the greatest courage.

She was a member of the intelligence department of Free French forces, working for four years in France, under the very eyes of the Germans. It was her assignment to find out what the Germans were planning and that assignment often took her inside prescribed lines of the German armies, and into war material factories. She managed to get in by pretending to try to find some young man and give him a message from his aged parents or on some excuse no more easily checked up on. The Germans were really very dumb sometimes, she said. Because she never spoke German they did not suspect her of understanding it. She always made a request which she knew would be refused, she said, but while the refusal was taking place she had seen what she had come to see. She began working in the French underground in 1941, with direct contact with the De Gaulle headquarters in London. Of the 200 workers in the original group, there are only five left. Of the 195 taken by the Germans, 10 were shot immediately and the others were sent to Buchenwald. Her work finally became too dangerous and Gen. De Gaulle ordered her to stop and leave France. She, with five other members of French army intelligence, are on a tour of this country. When she returns to Paris, where her father is a well known lawyer, Capt. Smagghe will resume her work as Dr. Smagghe. She typifies the young spirit of France.

Four Outing Clubs Plan Chicagoland Hikes Today

Four hikes have been scheduled today by outing groups in coöperation with the OCD physical fitness program. The Morton Arboretum will be visited by the West Side Hiking club, with members leaving the Cicero av. station at 11 o'clock. A four mile walk and picnic in the Caldwell forest preserve has been planned by the Outdoor Physical Fitness club, whose 10 o'clock meeting place will be the Gompers park fieldhouse. The North Shore Hiking club will take a morning walk along the Sylvan Lake road, and the Outing club will visit Dam No. 2, meeting at Lawrence and Milwaukee avs. at 10:30. All physical fitness outings are open to the public.

Museum Will Offer Series of Programs

This season the series of summer motion picture and lecture programs for adults presented at the Chicago Natural History [Field] museum will have the more comprehensive title, "Backgrounds of War and Peace," indicating expansion of interest, now that the end of hostilities is in view. Former series dealt exclusively with places in or directly related to battle areas.

A change in time also is made this season. Beginning next week, the series of six programs will be presented on Sunday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock in the James Simpson theater of the museum. Commentary will be by staff lecturers. There will be no admittance fee.

"In the Wake of War," the opening program for next Sunday, shows advanced positions of the battle line, drawing nearer Japan, and films captured from the Japanese are included. Miriam Wood will give an introductory talk.

"War and Peace in the Pacific," scheduled for July 22, is on New Guinea and the Solomons, a program of stills and motion pictures taken on the Crane Pacific expedition. Roberta Cramer will be the commentator.

Films on Korea, Manchuko, and China, "Seeds of Conflict in the East," will be shown on July 29, and Emma Neve will give an introductory talk. For Aug. 5, "Russia and Her People" is scheduled, with a talk by Bert E. Gove. On Aug. 12 the program will be "Rediscovering South America," which will include the Walt Disney film, "The Amazon Awakens." Miss Cramer will be the commentator. The last program on Aug. 19 will be "Meet Your America," and Miss Wood will speak.

Children's free Thursday morning movies at the museum will continue this week with "Orphans of the North," a story of Alaska, with performances at 10 and at 11 o'clock. As a special treat, the July 19 program will be a show by the Proctor puppets.

Scheduled for the following Saturdays, thru Aug. 30, are: July 26, "Land of Liberty"; Aug. 2, "Young Takes to Wings," story of flight from birds to planes; Aug. 9, "King and the Scullery Maid," and cartoon; Aug. 16, "The Passing of Time," time telling from earliest gadgets, and also a cartoon; Aug. 23, "Wedding of Palo," Eskimo life in Greenland, and Aug. 30, an all-cartoon program.

World War Mothers' Fund to Buy Iron Lung

The Illinois World War Mothers have set up an "iron lung" fund committee to raise money for the purchase of a respirator. Mrs. Jewell Organ Coleman, chairman of the philanthropic project, has called a meeting of the committee for 2:30 o'clock Thursday in the Palmer House. Serving with the group as secretary is Mrs. Neva Vander Weyden, and Mrs. Julia Stevens is treasurer. Among the members are Mrs. Mable H. Montgomery, president of the Chicago assembly of the organization; Mrs. Elsie Clausen, and Mrs. Hannah Sullivan. Placement of the respirator when it is procured will be entrusted to Gov. Green, but the donors will designate that it be for the use of service men and women and their families.

Marilyn Fridell Bride of Sgt. R. T. Stymacks

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Fridell of Highland Park announce the marriage May 26 of their daughter, Marilyn Elizabeth, to Sgt. Raymond Thomas Stymacks of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Stymacks of Bronx, N. Y. The wedding took place in the Trinity Episcopal church in Highland Park followed by a garden reception in the home of the bride's parents. Sgt. Stymacks has returned from duty overseas, where he was awarded the distinguished flying cross and the air medal with three clusters. He and his bride are at home in Lebanon, Ill., near his post at Scott field.

Science can help restore youthfulness
to face and throat

Would you like the skin of your face, your throat, to grow younger again? If so, try scientific ENDOCREME. ENDOCREME, with its 7-year record of success, is helping thousands to improve the very skin itself, not merely its superficial appearance. For thousands, it is doing this to a degree heretofore thought impossible. The secret of ENDOCREME'S success is ACTIVOL. This ACTIVOL is the laboratory counterpart of natural, skin-vitalizing substance . . . a substance that decreases with age. Thus, when you apply ENDOCREME, it helps compensate for this loss. Absorbed under the skin's surface, ENDOCREME acts to rebuild cells, tissues. Thus, ageing, dry, coarse, lined skins tend to become fresher, firmer, smoother, more youthfully attractive. How better can you invest your cosmetic dollars? Many report marked improvement in only 30 days.

Eastern Coast Art Societies Plan Exhibits

BEVERLY, MASS. For the first time since Pearl harbor, artists are finding the famed North Shore a paradise. All shore restrictions have been removed, and an artist may make sketches of the sea and shore without being suspected of being a spy. Even the sailing limits which banned one of the favorite subjects, yachts in full sail, are no longer in effect.

From Nahant to the tip end of Cape Ann there are artists' colonies with perhaps those at Marblehead, East Gloucester, Rockport, and Ipswich the best known.

The common love of art is fostered by such societies as the Gloucester Society of Artists, the East Gloucester Art club, the Rockport Society of Artists, the Ipswich Art club, the Beverly Art club, and the Marblehead Art association. During the summer starting after the fourth of July their exhibitions will begin and will continue into October. Here buyers, art lovers, and artists meet at teas and luncheons, and as a result the artists of the North Shore have a bright bit of social life.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett of Chicago, who are at White Hall, their lovely hilltop estate at Chapman's Corner, Beverly Cove, for the summer, have been spending the week at Essex, where their Graftonwood farm, one of the show farms of the North Shore, is located.

North Shore gardens are now at their early summer best. Mrs. William H. Moore of Chicago has one of the finest at her Rockmarge estate at Pride's Crossing. One of the features of the Moore garden is the display of water lilies. Many of these were brought from Africa, where Mrs. Moore often spent the winter before the war. Mrs. Walter D. Denege of Chicago has a colorful garden at her estate, Villa Crest at West Manchester, as has Mrs. Charles C. Clagett [Nancy Leiter] at Edgewater in the west beach colony at Beverly farms. Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris has a garden noted for its beauty at Eagle Head at Manchester, while Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. of Chicago has one of the show gardens of the shore at her Castle Hill estate in Ipswich.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Shepard Leslie of Beverly colony are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Louise Shepard Leslie, to Lt. Harmon W. Hubbard, U. S. A. A. F., son of Mrs. W. W. Hubbard of Bloomington, Ill. Lt. Hubbard was a student of the University of Illinois when he enlisted in the army and at present is stationed at Boca Grande, Fla.

Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane and her daughter, Miss Katherine Lane, well known sculptress, are on from New York for the season at the Chimneys in Manchester.

Miss Eleanora R. Sears, noted sportswoman, is at Edgerock, her Pride's Crossing summer home for the season. Miss Sears recently purchased the property which was for many years the summer home of Mrs. Marshall Field of Chicago and before that the home of the Frederick Moulton Algers of Detroit.

Edward B. Banner of Chicago is at his Grapevine rd. home at Gloucester for the season.

For the first time since January, Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross has announced an opening for women who will be able to devote evening hours, from 6 until 9 o'clock, as volunteers. The assignment—that of canteen aids at Fort Sheridan—carries with it the ever popular privilege of working direct with the service men.

The announcement in nowise means, however, that the urgent need for day time workers has decreased, explained Miss Harriett McLaughlin, chairman of the volunteer special services. Because employed women, since the beginning of the war, have responded in such large numbers to Red Cross calls, applicants for evening work usually have been far in excess of available assignments. The opposite has held true of day time assignments, and the chapter now is in the midst of an intensive recruitment drive for day time workers as drivers in its motor corps division, as hospital aids, and also as canteen aids.

"If we are to give the boys the Red Cross service which they have learned to expect from their contact overseas," said Miss Mc Laughlin, "we must have more volunteers immediately."

Evening training classes for the night canteen work are scheduled Monday, July 23, and Monday, July 30, at Fort Sheridan. Those interested in the assignment, which is open to applicants between the ages of 18 and 50, should go to the Chicago chapter headquarters at 529 S. Wabash av. for an interview Mondays thru Fridays from 9 until 5 o'clock. For the convenience of north shore residents, applicants also will be interviewed from 10 until 4 o'clock on Mondays and Thursdays at the Evanston Red Cross branch, 615 Davis st., Evanston, and special interviews will be granted at the Highland Park Public Service company office from 5 until 7 o'clock Monday night, July 12, and between the same hours on Thursday, July 16.

Mrs. Honriques Crawford, who heads the canteen division, advises that day time aids are being sought to take care of increasing emergency calls from troop and hospital trains. An average of at least two of these trains come into Chicago each day, and the Red Cross attempts to supply the entrained service men with refreshments and fill requests for games and reading materials.

Altho orientation classes for day time canteen aids will not be conducted until Aug. 1, applicants are urged to enroll now at the chapter headquarters. Volunteers able to devote either mornings or afternoons for this work are needed.

Volunteers with the motor corps division also will have the opportunity of working directly with service men. Experienced women drivers are needed with this division to take service men to outings at country clubs, to ball games, boxing matches, and other places of entertainment. The Red Cross also regularly supplies bus service from hospitals to railroad stations for convalescent men able to take out of town trips.

An accelerated course for much needed hospital aids is scheduled for July 16, with applications acceptable anytime before that date.

Scandinavian Students Hosts Today at a Soiree

The Scandinavian group of the International house residence on the University of Chicago campus will assume host duties at a soiree set for 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the residence. Present as guest speaker will be Gosta Franzen, professor of Swedish at the university, who will tell of university life in Sweden. There will be a display of flags of Scandinavian countries, and typical native refreshments will be served. Miss Marianne Aspman is chairman of the host group.

Work by Monet Is Masterpiece of the Month

By Eleanor Jewett

The Masterpiece of the Month for July at the Art institute is an early painting by Claude Monet, a beach scene at Ste-Adresse, France, formerly a small pleasure resort, now a suburb of LeHavre. The painting is installed at the head of the grand staircase. It is one of the most popular of the several Monets owned by the Art institute and many people have bought the very excellent reproduction of it which may be found in the little alcove to the left of the entrance of the museum.

Monet is credited with being the father of French Impressionism. He was a leader in the group that included Renoir, Sisley, Monet, Pissarro and various other painters whose work today is found admirable but at the time it was done was scoffed at and stormed at by an indignant public. Monet is noted for his paintings of water lilies, several magnificent interpretations of this theme are in the institute's permanent collection. Another of his favorite subjects was the sea, returning to it each time, as he said, "with delight."

Those visitors to the Art institute this month who enjoy the beach scene by Monet would do well to go into the further galleries where other paintings by him may be found. It will be time well spent. Many of the loveliest pictures owned by the museum are in the galleries devoted to the works of the great French impressionists. An interesting contrast is afforded to the beauty of the Monets by the different beauty in the modern French collection in adjacent galleries.

To mark the 70th birthday of Carl Milles, the famous Swedish-born sculptor, the Art institute has brought together a group of his works. Many of them are owned by Chicagoans but have never before been exhibited at the Art institute. Perhaps there will be readers of this column who will remember the distinguished exhibit of small sculptures by Milles several years ago at the Arts club. Many of his sea figures were among the beautiful things of that year. Another larger sculpture by Milles may be seen in the Diana fountain, the dominant feature of the Michigan Square building, Michigan av. at Ohio st.

The Art institute owns the well known fountain of the Tritons in McKinlock court. The sculptor has loaned to the museum two monumental works, the "Folke Filbyter" and the "Monument to Genius." The Triton Fountain was given to the Art institute by a group of Chicagoans of Swedish descent. Among them were Charles S. Peterson, Vincent Bendix, Albert I. Appleton, C. E. Carson, E. G. Grundstrom, Herbert Hedman, Adolph Lindstrom, Nels Shoan, and Roy Wilson.

Carl Milles is living now at Bloomfield Hills, Mich., where he is on the faculty of the Cranbrook Academy of Art. An interesting item concerning Mr. Milles is the fact that he was admitted to United States citizenship by special action on V-E day. During the last few years Milles has been working on a tremendous fountain project for a cemetery near Washington, D. C. The work is built upon the theme of reunion after death. Thirty over-life size figures and groups are woven into the project. The models, now almost completed in his Cranbrook studio, suggest that the fountain will be one of the most extraordinary sculpture achievements of our day. Lorado Taft's "Fountain of Time" on Chicago's Midway is possibly a companion masterpiece and, considering size and impressive effect, perhaps the Borglum heads carved on the mountain peaks in Black Hills could be brought into the unique company.

The summer school of the Art institute is now under way and will continue to Aug. 3. The regular school had one of the most satisfactory years in its 79 years of existence. The enrollment for the regular day, night, and Saturday schools reached a total of 5,273 students, the largest enrollment in its history.

The four winners of the foreign traveling scholarships awarded by the Art institute in June, anxious to go to Europe, have been told a trip abroad is out of the question. Three of them, Dote Schultz, Bernice Wilderson, and Nancy Borregaard, the latter of whom wanted to go as far as Tibet, intend now to wait until fall or next winter when perhaps Europe may become feasible. Byron Goto expects to go to South America.

John F. Nachorny is opening a one-man show of landscapes in pastel and oil at the Esquire Little Gallery July 22 to continue to Aug. 4. Nachorny is a member of the Palette and Chisel and of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts. His work is decorative, colorful, and romantic, a combination which makes for attractive pictures.

Many of the Art institute instructors and department heads have scattered for the summer school. Constantine Pougialis is one who is staying, but with an ace up his sleeve in the shape of an anticipated painting trip later in the season to York Harbor, Gloucester, and Boston. Boris Anisfeld is opening his studio at Central City, Colo. Louis Ritman will spend his vacation in Maine and Edmund Giesbert has a cottage among the dunes at Halbert, Mich.

The 35th year of the Saugatuck summer school, affiliated with the Art institute, opened June 25 for a 10 weeks' term. Francis Chapin, its director, is established there. Robert von Neuman of Milwaukee, Richard Bowman, and Rudolph Pen are on the Saugatuck faculty.

Kenneth Shopen, whose animated and colorful water colors lightened several of last winter's shows, is returning to Vermont to paint. Laura von Pappelendam is going to her old home in Keokuk, Ia., where last summer she turned out some delightful canvases. Miss Helen Parker, well known lecturer of the Art institute, is spending some time in the east where, on Cape Cod, she will visit Miss Helen Gunsaulus and Miss Helen Mackenzie.

Katharine Kuh, public relations counsel of the Art institute and curator of the Gallery of Art Interpretation, is spending her vacation in Guatemala, Honduras, Costa Rica, and El Salvador.

Miss Edythe Lucile Glahe, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Glahe of S. Longwood dr., announce her engagement to Lt. Dixon B. Keyser Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Keyser of W. 90th st. Miss Glahe attended the Alabama Polytechnic Institute and now is a student at the University of Chicago. Lt. Keyser, a graduate of the University of Illinois, has returned from 39 months of duty in the southwest Pacific. [Root Photo]

Christian-Jew Group Headed by Mrs. Bowe

Mrs. Augustine J. Bowe of 1120 N. Lake Shore dr. is the new chairman of the women's committee of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews. Actively associated with the round table for several years, Mrs. Bowe formerly was Catholic co-chairman of the women's committee under Mrs. George R. Wilson's chairmanship. Mrs. Wilson turns over the committee to her successor after three years' service, but she will continue with the group as honorary chairman. Mrs. Wilson is a leader in Protestant church activities.

Mrs. Augustine J. Bowe [TRIBUNE Photo]

In Mrs. Bowe, the women of the round table have a chairman of broad cultural interests. She is a board member of the Pan American council, a corporation member of the Library of International Relations, and is associated with the Cercle Francais, of which she was at one time president.

Mrs. Harold W. Ruopp continues as Protestant and Mrs. Harold Lackman as Jewish co-chairman of the committee, and Mrs. Bowe's former place as Catholic co-chairman is taken by Mrs. George J. Aste.

Mrs. Aste is well known as a club woman. She is president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations and is prominently identified with several of the large Catholic philanthropic organizations, one of which is the Big Sisters, a pioneer girl guidance and family welfare society in the city, on whose board she holds office, and another is the auxiliary of the House of the Good Shepherd, of which she is president.

The woman's committee of the round table has named nine liaison members: Mrs. Max Biesenthal, Mrs. Theodore Crowley [formerly secretary], Mrs. Richard M. Hallinan, Mrs. Percy J. Julian, Mrs. Albert K. Orschel, Mrs. Thomas Reynolds, Mrs. Thomas Masuda, Mrs. E. J. Smith, and Miss Thecla Doniat. Mrs. Bernard Brown is secretary.

TO WED FLYER

Shirley Leffler's engagement to Ensign Paul A. Eschenheimer of the navy air forces, son of Louis Eschenheimer of Trenton, Mo., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred O. Leffler of Beverly Hills. Ensign Eschenheimer attended the University of Missouri and has returned from a year of duty in Hawaii. He has reported to the west coast for orders.

Elizabeth Reardon Wed to Navy Lieutenant

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Ann Reardon and Lt. [j. g.] David M. Helman Jr. of the naval reserve took place May 31 on Long Island, N. Y. The bride, daughter of Mrs. John E. Reardon of Oak Park, formerly was an air lines stewardess. She was graduated from the Chicago Teachers' college. Lt. Helman attended Ohio university and the Harvard law school. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Helman of Warren, O.

Barbara Baldwin Wed May 26 to Navy Lieutenant

The marriage of Miss Barbara S. Baldwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler H. Baldwin of Oak Park, and Lt. [j.g.] William E. Cotner of the navy took place May 26 in the Grace church, Oak Park. A reception in the Nineteenth Century Woman's club followed the ceremony which was read by the Rev. Harold Holt. Lt. Cotner is on a six weeks' leave after serving overseas for 20 months aboard a LST. Both he and his bride are graduates of DePauw university. Following a wedding trip they will stop in Mount Carmel, Ill., for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Murrel T. Cotner, before he reports for further orders.

The Cape Cod Colony Set for a Gala Season

CAPE COD, MASS.

Early July's extreme temperatures held no qualms for the fortunate summer residents and visitors at the various beach colonies which make up this "arm of Massachusetts." Since the end of last season, bathing facilities have been in the process of being improved, both along the north and south sides of the peninsula, so that all was in readiness before the great influx of vacationists hit here last week-end, and all were able to find welcome relief in the waters surrounding the land on all sides.

This summer, which many months ago promised to be an even busier season than ever, is definitely an established fact now. All transportation carriers were taxed to capacity during the last week; cottages, hotel, and room accommodations were at a premium. At the special events held on the Fourth of July, the only things missing were the noise and skyline displays of firecrackers. Crowds were as gay as ever, and in some instances, where joyous reunions were being held for returned service men, the occasions were even happier than in those of pre-war days.

Down Bass River—South Yarmouth way [the two villages run into each other and one never knows when one has left Bass River and entered South Yarmouth] there are several Chicago families who have made the cape their permanent home and several other families who have been coming to the cape for many years and are accepted by the "natives" as "almost Cape Codders."

"We had a delightful winter here," said Miss Helen MacKenzie for herself and Miss Helen Gunsaulus, who are Cape Codders in every sense of the words, now. They weathered their first winter on the cape with flying colors, and are looking forward to having visitors from Chicago thruout the summer. Miss Gunsaulus and Miss MacKenzie, both formerly associated with the Art Institute of Chicago and well known for their lectures on art and world affairs, have chosen a charming house on Aiken av., South Yarmouth, for their permanent residence, and have joined whole-heartedly in all affairs of their "home town."

The two women have had as their guest for two weeks Miss Helen Parker of the Art Institute in Chicago and, following her departure, are expecting Miss Annette Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jones of Highland Park.

Miss Gunsaulus' cousin and her husband, Mrs. Charles Gilkey and Dean Gilkey of the University of Chicago, purchased an old Cape Cod home on Aiken av. opposite the Gunsaulus-MacKenzie home and remodeled it. Last year they made several visits to the cape to supervise the work, but this year they have rented it and are taking their vacation in Maine. They do not expect to spend vacations on Cape Cod until 1947, when Dean Gilkey will retire from the university. Then they will spend their time between the cape, Chicago, and Maine, making South Yarmouth their home.

Another Chicagoan who will be on the cape soon is Mrs. George Pond, who recently moved from Chicago to make her home in Milwaukee. She will come to South Yarmouth Wednesday to visit her sister, Mrs. Orlando Hastings.

A Chicago family which has become a familiar sight on the streets of South Yarmouth and sailing and swimming in the waters near the village is the Harry W. Chesley family. For many years Mrs. Chesley and her sons and daughters have been visitors each summer season at their home on Crosby st. in this village. One of the Chesley daughters, Mrs. Charles A. Duncan, and her two children, David, 5, and Mary Chesley, 2, are making South Yarmouth their home for the duration of the war or until Mr. Duncan is out of the marines.

Mrs. Chesley Sr. is in Chicago at the present time, visiting friends, and aiding her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kirby, in moving from Chicago to Valparaiso, Ind. She remained with them for a visit, then went on to Chicago and will come to the Chesley home in South Yarmouth about July 20.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank G. Chesley of Watertown, Mass., a son and daughter-in-law of Mrs. Chesley Sr., are announcing the birth of a second daughter, Margaret, and will visit their sister and mother in South Yarmouth later this summer to introduce the new arrival. With them will come their other daughter, Gretchen, who is no newcomer to the cape, having been a visitor since she was very young.

The Earl Fox family and Mrs. John K. Graves and her family are other Chicagoans who have arrived for the season. Billy, 17; Joyce, 15, and Sarah, 13, the Fox children, are entertaining Nancy Baird of Winnetka, 13, and the four of them are working diligently over their new sailboat, to put it in readiness for the Bass River Yacht club races.

With Mrs. Graves at her River st. home in Bass River is Mrs. Robertson Phillars, who, altho working for the Red Cross Home Service in Boston, comes to the cape just as often as possible. The Graves twins, Alix and Anne, also are in Bass River for the season and have already started racing at the Bass River Yacht club.

Mrs. Russell F. Clark of Chicago and her son, Norman, who were popular visitors in East Dennis last year, returned again this year recently for a brief visit. They were guests of the Virden A. Clark family on Center st. in that village. Mrs. Clark has returned to Chicago for a while, leaving Norman here.

The other son of the Russell Clarks, Malcolm, who broke into news print last year here on the cape when he cycled 90 miles in one day, including a round trip to Provincetown and other places of interest, now is serving with the army in Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Clark will come to East Dennis later this month for a week, and then will sail for London, their former home, where they will settle permanently.

Still further down the cape, in Orleans, another Chicago family has opened its summer home for the season. Prof. and Mrs. John Yellott arrived at their summer home in Pochet, a section of Orleans, and have settled the house and are enjoying a quiet, leisurely vacation. Recent visitor to the cape was the Rev. Jack Mendelsohn, pastor of the Beverly Hills Unitarian church, Beverly Hills, Ill., and former pastor of the Brewster Unitarian church.

Harbor Point Club Opening a Gala Event

HARBOR SPRINGS, MICH.

A week ago Saturday the Harbor Point clubhouse held its opening dinner. In spite of the early season, there was a surprising number of requests for reservations, and the limit, which had been set at 50, was reached several days prior to Saturday. The invitations called for formal dress, and as a result the party was an unusually festive one. Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Pierce had seven Chicago guests at the dinner, Mrs. Henry G. Barkhausen, Mrs. William T. Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Hyman, Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes, and Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Kramer.

As the days go by, more and more summer people arrive. All but three of the 78 cottages on Harbor Point are filled, about as large a number as has been reached for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sudler have arrived with their son, Louis Jr., and are in their little white house on the harbor side of the point. The Sudlers' cottage was remodeled several years ago from an old brown frame house and moved to its present location during the winter over the ice. The lawn and trees in front of the house are especially lovely. Bridal wreath and evergreens surround the front porch, and blue spruce and white birch trees and rose bushes grow near the beach. The rear yard boasts an efficient war garden, hidden from the road by a row of luxuriant syringa bushes.

The William Wallers have opened their cottage, and they and their daughter, Mrs. Fred Farr Thatcher II., are remaining for the summer. Mr. Waller is an amateur gardener of some renown. His landscaping around the Little Harbor club has grown lovelier each year.

The Little Harbor club is not opening this summer in spite of the board of directors' efforts. The man power shortage is too severe to open and operate it satisfactorily. The activity around the club certainly will be missed. However, three of its tennis courts are being put into condition for the summer.

Not far from the Little Harbor club is the old Manierre cottage which Mrs. I. Newton Perry has taken for the summer. The word cottage in this case is really a misnomer, as the house is not only perfectly lovely but quite large. Its size will prove to be an advantage, as Mrs. Perry's two daughters, Mrs. Harold Kneedler and Mrs. Edward Limberg's tiny daughter, will be spending the summer with her.

Other recent arrivals at Harbor Point include Mr. and Mrs. Charles Renshaw, and Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus G. Hill. The Hills have rented the Renshaws' cottage on the point. Mrs. Alan Magary, whose marine lieutenant husband still is overseas, has rented a cottage on the point for herself and her two small sons, Alan Bruce and Douglas.

Every one was delighted to know that Mrs. L. Edward Hart and her two daughters, Jeanette and Daphne, had returned after several years absence to their home just outside the Harbor Point gate. Mrs. Hart's neighbor, Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes, arrived recently.

Marketing in the village of Harbor Springs, which must service not only Harbor Point, but Wequetonsing, and Roaring Brook as well, is something these days. Food is just as difficult to obtain here as in the cities, if not more so. The only advantage, if you can call it that, is, that there are fewer markets to go to. Consequently the search isn't as exhausting. Saturdays generally are a bedlam of basket laden bicycles and wagons lined up on the main street while the owners scurry from store to store.

Part of the Saturday throng last week were Mr. and Mrs. Neil Cowham, whose summer home is quite a ways out on the shore road. A near neighbor of theirs is Mrs. Nathaniel Owings. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Carpenter, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis Jr. were in town shopping that day also. The Carpenters' daughter, Mrs. Peter Seidlitz, and her husband are vacationing with Lt. Seidlitz's parents on Harbor Point.

With the Harbor Point clubhouse opening, automobiles are no longer permitted on the point, so the carriages, and the water taxi, the Pointer, are running once more. There is joy in every small child's heart, as riding the delivery wagons and a Pointer ride are the high points of the season. Bill Perry, the local drayman, usually has as many small fry hanging on his big wagon as he does parcels. Pat and Peter Oram, and Skipper Lamport are ardent devotees of "hitching a ride."

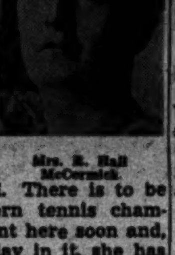
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, July 10, 1897.

Dear Julia: Martha Junior has just been in to show me samples of piqué for her new tennis costume. She asked me to give you her love when she saw I had my letter paper out ready to write you. Sandy has taken a cottage at the Onwentsia club in Lake Forest for the rest of the summer and they hope to play tennis a good deal. There is to be a Women's Western tennis championship tournament here soon and, while she won't play in it, she has been stimulated to try to improve her game.



Mrs. R. Hall McCormick.

Two very important women players are coming from the east—Miss Bessie Moore and Miss Juliette Atkinson, the latter now the national champion, and tennis players speak of them with bated breath. Miss Atkinson has just issued a statement on the subject of the correct tennis costume and Martha is faithfully trying to have her own made accordingly. The skirt must clear the ground by four inches. If properly cut, says the champion, this is sufficiently short. It should be gored in such a way as to have plenty of fullness around the bottom, but very plain about the hips. She thinks a lightweight pique is better than the material known as "duck," and this should be starched to keep it from falling about the feet.

A shirtwaist made of the same material as the skirt is prettiest, she thinks, but any white shirtwaist will do. A colored string tie, with belt to match, is advised, rather than the ribbon stocks which some girls affect. Hosiery should be black—plain, not ribbed or fancy, which she thinks not in good taste. Plain white petticoats are the proper thing, rather than lace or ruffles, which attract attention. Martha was on her way to see Miss Dodd at Field's, for she thinks her the last word in style. The new tailor in that department, Mr. Hess, will do the work on it.

I went to the Art institute today to see a loan exhibition which people are talking about. A number of paintings from the collection of Mr. R. Hall McCormick are there, among them a Gainsborough, a Constable, and a Romney. He has some very fine examples of the most notable painters in his great house at the corner of Rush and Erie sts. Mrs. McCormick is one of my lovely friends. Mr. Cyrus H. McCormick Jr. also has loaned some of his art treasures for this exhibition. I liked "Cupid," by Sir Thomas Lawrence; a landscape by Rosseau, and "The Approaching Storm," by Jules Dupré very much. We really have some fine paintings in Chicago now. I am told that Mrs. Potter Palmer is buying more of the modern school—the impressionists' work. I must say I like the older painters better, but I don't pretend to know much about art.

Now I'll close for this time. Your loving friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES

In nothing more than in sports wear have women's fashions changed since the 90s. The tennis player of today would hardly be able to play in the manifold garments of yesterday.

Aswering Queries

A number of readers have asked recently whether any of the letters in this column have been preserved in book form. Yes. Your book dealer will order for you "The Elegant Eighties" [A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago] which describes life in that glamorous period. John T. McCutcheon's foreword makes this book notable. [It is not for sale at the Tribune Public Service Office.]

The Batesville (Ill.) Dressmaker

[1885]

Mebbe you think it's an easy life,
Gettin' up early, so's to be to work
by 7:30,
An Mis. Simmons.
Her that's got so much money, an'
iron dogs in her yard,
Ast me last week if I couldn't get there a mite earlier!

Eatin' all kinds of meals
Is hard on the stummick, too.
Right now, I'm havin' it pretty good
Because I'm sewin' at the Lanes'
An' she's the best cook in town.
Yestidy we had chicken pie an'
gravy
An' mashed potatoes an' cold slaw
An' the slaw covered with sour cream,
An' the meal ended up with floatin'- island puddin'.

They're all pretty stout, to the Lanes'
But Mr. Lane says he'd ruther have his woman-folks
Calm an' curvous
As to have 'em thin an' nervous,
An' I b'lieve he's right.
I've noticed my fat customers
Is easier to suit
Than the thin ones.

Victorian Keepsake

This little book delights those who love the prose and verse of our fathers. Get it at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 S. Dearborn st., or Tribune Tower. Price 50 cents. By mail, 55 cents. Also at the Public Service Offices, the "When Chicago Was Young Scrapbook," containing oddments from the Foot Notes. Many laughs will be found in it.

Economy Note

Bill Nye being one of this scribe's favorite humorists, the following from his "Own Life Story" pleased her. "A close student of political economy, he studied personal economy at the same time, until he found that he could live on 10 cents a day and his relatives."

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps but not value. The column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Include a stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

The 1 cent value of the Roosevelt memorial series will be placed on first day sale at Hyde Park, N. Y., on July 26 and will go on sale at other postoffices thruout the nation as soon thereafter as distribution will permit. Collectors who desire first day cancellations on covers bearing this stamp may send not to exceed ten addressed envelopes to the postmaster at Hyde Park, N. Y., together with a cash or postal money order remittance to cover the exact cost of the stamps to be affixed. Do not forget that each first day cover must bear at least 3 cents postage.

Do not order unused stamps from the postmaster at Hyde Park but send orders of that kind to the Philatelic agency, Postoffice department, Washington 25, D. C. This agency does not service first or second day covers.

Father Cronin to Be Speaker at Sheil School

Interest at the Sheil School of Social Studies, free adult education center at the Catholic Youth Organization, 31 E. Congress st., is centered this week upon two guest lecturers, the Rev. John F. Cronin of St. Mary's seminary in Baltimore, Md., and Paul Williams, layman active with the Catholic Committee of the South.

Father Cronin, a member of the Society of Priests of St. Sulpice, an educational order teaching exclusively in seminaries, has become widely known outside his class room at St. Mary's. Professor of economics at the seminary, he has been called upon to arbitrate numerous industry-labor disputes, and it is the class sponsored by the Catholic labor alliance at the Sheil school which has arranged for his lecture here.

Speaking at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, Father Cronin will discuss problems of "Government and the Labor Movement." One of the most popular on the summer schedule, the labor class has had overflow attendance at the two previous sessions. The director is Edward Marciniak, instructor in sociology and labor economics at Loyola university.

Mr. Williams will be presented by Nina Polcyn at the weekly Friday night forum, which assembles at 8 o'clock. He will talk on "The Church and the South."

Dr. Ernest Schwartz, director of the Pan American Good Neighbor forum, will continue a series of lectures on "Races and Faces of South America" at 7 o'clock Friday night. At that hour the Rev. John Wellmuth, professor and chairman of the department of philosophy at Loyola university, will give another in a series of discussions on the question, "What Is Philosophy?" Another guest on the summer faculty is Leo Shapiro of the Anti-Defamation league, who has a 6 o'clock Thursday night class on the "History of Prejudice in America."

Chicagoland Weddings

Wedding and engagement announcements must be signed by a member of the family and must bear the address and telephone number of the signer. All names must be printed in full. Announcements must reach the society editor by Tuesday noon preceding Sunday of publication.

Brenda—Will You Step Out With Me Tonight?

I know I've been an awful grouch not taking you any place lately. But after standing all day at my new job, my feet darn near killed me with callouses and burning. Now I've reformed—or rather my feet have—thanks to the medicinal Ice-Mint you advised. Never tried anything that seemed to draw the pain and fire right out so fast—and the way it helps soften callouses is nobody's business! Been able to get some extra overtime money—so what do you say, let's go dancing tonight. You can step on my Ice-Mint feet all you want.

Lady of the House

Wind's in the South

"This heat just takes the tuck out of me," sighed Aunt Ella, as she sank into a chair I knew would be "too soft and too hot" in a minute, "and I haven't had a real vacation in so long I don't even know what it smells like."

"Fish," I prompted. "And—fish. You know Uncle Felix."

Summer, hanging back, simpering and coy and cool for weeks, had rushed at us with all the ardor of south wind and sun, of bubbling mercury and mounting humidity. That always means fishing, or at least fishing talk. By the menfolk.

"There comes a time when men should not think in terms of dollars, strikes, war, black markets, or even a post-war millenium," loudly declaims Uncle Felix. And Joe Pete, lovingly sorting the moth-eaten trout and bass flies he tied in happier days, softly whistles an old refrain of primitive nature—of sun and wind, white water and green hills, camp fires and nights under the stars—and what "they're taking" on the stream today; tho the patched rubber waders and clumpy shoes have dried along with the sere and yellow leaves of that autumn when the four horsemen set out on their mad ride over the world.

When Uncle Felix senses that Aunt Ella may get a bit sharp tongued about it all, he grins and gently quotes from Basse's "Angler's Song"—

"The first men that our Saviour dear
Did choose to wait upon Him here
Blest fishers were . . ."

and Joe Pete, noting the sky and the fair wind, murmurs, "I shall stay him no longer than to wish that if he be an honest angler, the east wind may never blow when he goes afishing."

Perhaps you're vacationing in the dunes, where Lydia Fisher listens to—

Song of the Waves

I walked in the dunes with aching heart,
Joy, for me, a thing apart —
Tho the Milky Way like a rosary hung
And moonbeams into the waves were spun—
While the waters, whispering at my feet
Would over and over their songs repeat —
How the sun had been hid, the low skies grey!
How the wild winds roared as they raced away!
How night had come without a star
Or a friendly moonbeam from afar!
How great tears dropped from weary sky
And a lonely loon gave a ghostly cry.
Yet, this had passed—and day and night
Once more had filled with great delight. . .
A cloak—this music at my feet —
It warmed my soul with rhythm sweet.
I heard, I knew I'd smile again —
The songs had eased my sore heart's pain.

Or with Esther Lloyd Hagg, at home, you "listen" to your neighbor's—

Oriental Poppies

These are the flaming tongues of ecstasy,
Telling a world how lovely it should be,
In silken syllables of God's desire
To light the world and us with lambent fire
For beauty's throne. I listen with suspense
To words of incandescent eloquence,
And pray the suffering world—and I—may heed,
And plant in patterns of bright-glowing seed.

Most of us will be doing the daily chores without thought of vacation, but, like Anne Krakowiak, we may cast occasional baleful looks at that—

Kitchen Clock

O, you little clock on the kitchen wall,
Must you always tick, must you always call?
"O, lady, dear lady, time to make beds,
Tho you haven't finished the bargain ads."
And no sooner I settle with a fashion book,
You dare interrupt: "O, look, lady, look.
These rolls in the pan will surely pop out,
If you don't stop reading what to wear when stout.
Peeping thru the window will not get you to the store,
Tho you found out what your neighbor wore."
Then again your malicious tick seems to say:
"You better start dinner without delay."
Tho with good housekeeping your voice agrees,
Let me do just once what I darn well please.

Helen Virden is up betimes to watch the farm's early—

Awakening

Dawn lifts her sunny head
From the shoulders of the night
And pushes back a shawl of trailing mist.
Then sooty shadows like small fleeing ghosts
Quick gather up their skirts
And run away.

Come now the Idaho potato tycoons [or was it some one in Washington?] and tell us that "hilling" potatoes lessens the yield. When Aunt Ella read that she wailed, "O, the potatoes I hilled in my youth would make a row to the moon! If someone had only told my dad that it was hurting his crops!"

NATURALLY! Clearer, Fairer Smoother Skin with Mercolized Wax Cream

DON'T try to hide darkened, discolored, or weathered skin with layers of foundation and powder. Thousands of smart women use Mercolized Wax Cream, for it contains a special "active" ingredient that really helps nature clear and lighten your skin, gives your complexion an extra translucence and depth, a lovelier natural coloring. Even freckles lighten and fade with Mercolized Wax Cream. You will discover a fairer, lovelier and truly younger looking skin, one that is smoother and firmer. Mercolized Wax Cream helps make and keep your skin looking as young and lovely as your skin can look. That is why faithful users would not trade their lovelier complexions with women years younger. Use only as directed.

STARTLE your skin to fresher loveliness with Saxolite Astringent. Temporarily contracts loose surface skin, reduces prominence of premature fine lines and wrinkles. Removes excess surface oil.

IS disfiguring facial hair one of your problems? With Phelactine Depilatory it stops being a problem. For Phelactine takes hair off and out. NO stubble. Reappearance of hair is delayed.

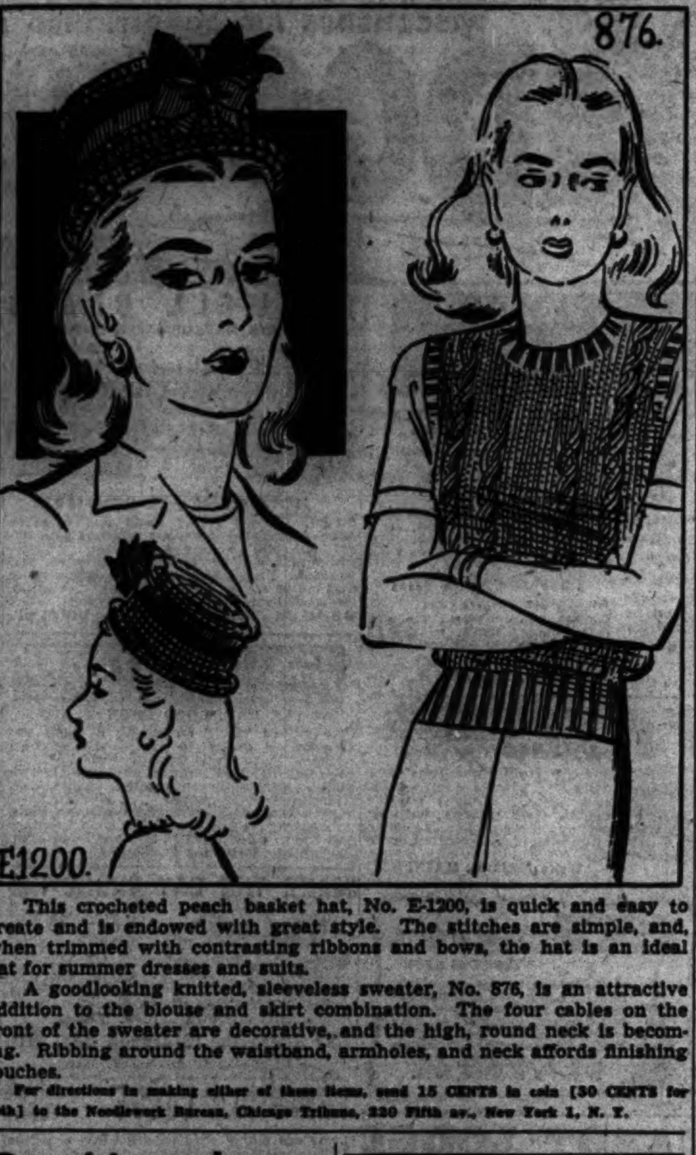
Designs for Needlework

By Ellen Bruce



This crocheted peach basket hat, No. E-1200, is quick and easy to create and is endowed with great style. The stitches are simple, and, when trimmed with contrasting ribbons and bows, the hat is an ideal hat for summer dresses and suits.

A goodlooking knitted, sleeveless sweater, No. 876, is an attractive addition to the blouse and skirt combination. The four cables on the front of the sweater are decorative, and the high, round neck is becoming. Ribbing around the waistband, armholes, and neck affords finishing touches.

For directions in making either of these items, send 15 CENTS in coin [30 CENTS for both] to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Cool Luncheon Table Invites on Torrid Day

By Edith Weigle

On hot summer days nothing is nicer to sit down to than a cool looking luncheon table. And to get that cool effect, use place mats instead of luncheon cloth.

One charming setting we saw recently was all done in crystal and flower colors. Mats were reproductions of Chinese prints, the design being large orange nasturtiums with their round green leaves, and this carried out under a very glossy finish. They were charming in themselves, yet cost only about $3 for a set of four.

Tall beverage glasses were decorated in nasturtiums, some in orange tones, some in green. These were 40 cents each.

The luncheon plates were of clear glass, edged in little crystal balls, very cool looking and pretty, and there were coasters to match. The plain napkins were green.

A very handsome Chinese covered dish, the color of the nasturtiums, was placed at one end of the table, its cover beside it, and white water lilies filling it. At the other end was a white cast iron candle holder for two tall white candles. To complete the Chinese feeling there were several little Chinese pottery figures as decorative notes on the table.

The whole effect was very artistic, yet nothing was at all exorbitant in cost.

Ideal in an outdoor setting would be another table, for its accessories were heavier and much sturdier in quality. Place mats were of the practical, woven cotton variety in a brown and white mixture, with napkins to match. [The 17 piece set was priced at $9.95.]

At each place was a turquoise blue, highly glazed pottery soup bowl on a little plate, and a huge, out-size cup and saucer of the same ware. The tumblers were decorated with little pictures of game birds and were $9 for six.

In the center of the table was a sturdy hurricane lamp having a cork base and a place for one candle. A large, very decorative pottery turtle nearby was a cigaret box. At the end of the table was a handsome old copper bowl massed with green plants.

If you like to make your own place mats here is a clever idea. Get enough crib padding [it's white and quilted] to cut extra large mats, and bind them in white. Then use plain colored cottons for bright appliqués. Cut out a circular piece just the size of the bottom of your glass tumblers and appliqué this at the upper right on the mat and let it act as a coaster for the beverage glass.

At the lower left appliqué three or four little circles, one overlapping the other, as a decoration. You'll find these extra large place mats ideal for informal summer meals, for being padded, they'll protect your table, and you can put your iced tea glasses on them, instead of having to use extra coasters.

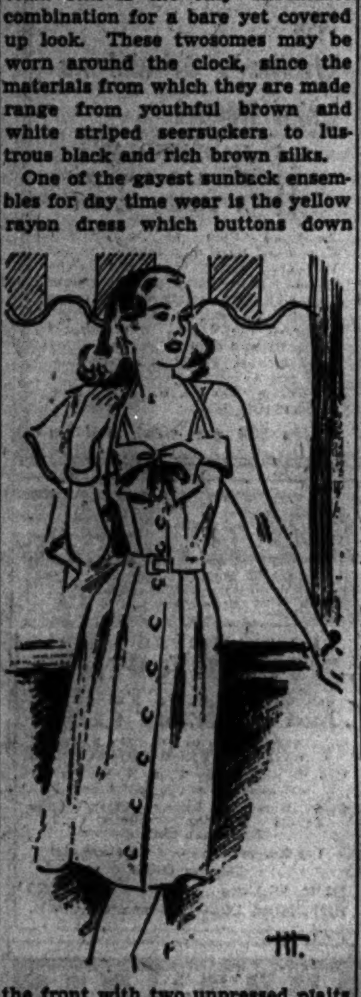
For information on where in Chicago the items mentioned by Miss Weigle may be seen telephone The Tribune Public Service office, Sup. 0800, or write in, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fashions

By Angela

The bolero and sun back dress team still is the only unbeatable combination for a bare yet covered up look. These twosomes may be worn around the clock, since the materials from which they are made range from youthful brown and white striped seersuckers to lustrous black and rich brown silks.

One of the gayest sunback ensembles for day time wear is the yellow rayon dress which buttons down the front with two unpressed plaits in the skirt. The slim bodice is trimmed with a wide band of white pique and tied with a bow at the neck line. The combination of shoulder straps and halter forms a flattering neck line. It is priced under $5.



The brief bolero has tiny cap sleeves and fastens at the high round neck line allowing the white bow of the dress to show thru. The bolero is priced separately and sold under $2.

Fruit Can Be Canned with Less Sugar

By Mary Meade

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

Four to five pounds of sugar will sweeten a bushel of most fruits for canning. Less than that amount may be used if the sugar is stretched with corn sirup or light honey. You'd better have a fondness for honey if you use it in canning, for honey has the habit of flavoring fruits with its own distinct brand of sweetness.

To can fruits in a thin sirup, use 1 cup sugar to from 3 to 5 cups water; or 1 cup sugar and 1 cup corn sirup to 5 or 6 cups water; or ½ cup sugar and ½ cup honey to from 3 to 5 cups water. This is a very thin sirup. A larger proportion of sugar is recommended, especially for tart fruit like plums, if it can be spared. If even less sugar is available, it is wise to can fruits without any sweetening at all, as they'll keep perfectly, even if color and flavor do suffer a little.

From a bushel of apples, apricots, peaches or pears, you can expect from 15 to 22 quart jars of canned fruit. The amount depends upon the size and quality of the fruit. Plums usually yield from 20 to 22 quarts to the bushel.

A trick to make canned fruit seem sweeter is to add a few grains of salt to each quart before sealing. Fruit which is dropped into a salt water solution to prevent discoloration, apples and pears for example, probably shouldn't be salted.

"Cold packing" isn't recommended, except for certain soft berries which break up too much upon being pre-cooked. The hot pack shrinks the fruit so that it packs better, and starts the processing.

Fruit should be well covered with sirup or with boiling water, so that it doesn't become discolored in the jar.

Canned Apples and Applesauce

To prepare apples, pare, quarter, and core fruit, then drop into a light salt water bath, using 1 tablespoon salt to a quart of water. This solution keeps apples from discoloring during preparation. Drain and simmer in water or thin sirup for 5 minutes, pack into sterile jars, and fill to within ½ inch of the top with the water or sirup. Seal and process in boiling water bath for 15 minutes.

To can applesauce, cook the apples until tender in a small amount of water, sweetening or not, as desired. Put thru strainer, bring to boiling point, fill sterile jars to within ½ inch of the top, seal and process in boiling water bath for 10 minutes.

Canning Plums

Plums usually are canned whole. It is well to prick the skin of each plum in several places with a darning needle to prevent splitting during pre-cooking and processing. Cook plums 5 minutes in water or thin or medium sirup. Pack into hot, sterile jars and cover with boiling water or boiling sirup, filling to within ½ inch of the top of the jars. Seal and process in boiling water bath for 15 minutes.

Water should boil over the tops of the jars during the entire time the fruit is in the boiling water bath. A pressure cooker makes a good boiling water bath, but the petcock should be left open so that steam escapes and no pressure is built up.

In choosing any fruit for canning, see that it is firm and just ripe. If under-ripe, the flavor won't be good, and if overripe, the fruit is likely to lose shape and become mushy during processing.

For the latest and best information on canning fruits, vegetables, and meats, send for "War Time Canning Guide," a mimeographed booklet selling for 7 cents, by mail. Address orders to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 spades	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	5 hearts	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Of all the phenomena occurring at the bridge table few are so strange as the psychology of the overbidder. Its strangeness is to be found chiefly in its inconsistency. I have rarely met an overbidder who was not also an underbidder. There are those who always overbid their own hands and underbid their partner's. I have in mind a friend whose face is covered with the scars of 1,100 and 1,400 point sets, who, one evening last week, passed his partner out in opening one bids, twice in the same rubber. On the first hand five odd in spades was made; on the second 13 trick were made on a finesse. "I couldn't see a game, partner," was his comment in both cases. One rarely can in 13 cards.

There are certain positions at the card table that by their very nature call for overbidding tactics and others that naturally call for restraint. The person who has opened with a two bid, should take it easy from that point on, while his partner should really get into action at the sight of any "stuff" at all. The player who has made an informatory double, has usually told his whole story and should take things calmly thereafter, while his partner, who has been forced to bid and has promised nothing, should, as a rule, lean toward the overbidding side. In real life unfortunately the reverse appears to be the case. The two bidder and the doubler keep bidding the same cards over and over again, while their partners as a rule crawl into their shells.

The North of today's hand showed the proper attitude toward what, on the surface, would appear to be a very dull hand, and which most players would treat with contempt. His first response of two no trump promised nothing. When South bid three diamonds he merely returned to three spades which still showed nothing but a preference for spades over diamonds.

South, not content with giving up at game despite North's repeated indications of weakness, now elected to show the ace of hearts. At this point North realized that he had a very vital card that was a sure winner, namely the king of hearts. He therefore showed the first signs of life by telling his partner of that card, and the rest was easy.

Note that North might have had the king of clubs instead of hearts, which would have been of no value to declarer. This illustrates graphically the principle that descriptive bidding is more effective than showing aces and kings wholesale. If South learns that North has one king the information is useless. He must know which king it is.

Cool Ravinia Fashions Are Shown Here

By Rea Seeger

Fashions for the concertgoing enthusiasts headed north to the famous Ravinia concerts are paraded each year for the applause and appreciation of hundreds of women. To capture the spirit of these summer concerts under the stars, summer fashions play an important part.

This summer's Ravinia fashion show was by far the most intriguing of all past shows. Even the washables, those indispensable cottons, almost a great American summer costume, have gone soft and feminine. Such sturdy materials as seersucker have been especially treated to the same skilled dressmaking details as anything of precious all-silk or thin wool.

There are correct fashions for those who go north by train. There are simple, dull black dresses, the first authentic hint of a fall season, and there are the slim two piecers of cotton, and the sharp but stunning combinations of patterned material with plain. The many delicate pastels and the dazzling, all-white shirtwaist dresses look unexpectedly cool and summery topped with bright or pastel coats.

Jackets and coats of summer weight and fresh, fragile colors are most important, as the weather is decidedly capricious. Both long topcoats and the jaunty short affairs that swing around the hipline are favorites, doubling for duty on other occasions.

Evening wraps of feathers, or marabou are the special delight of the debs and sub-debs, and they provide a soft elegance for all the wide skirted dance or dinner dresses of chiffons, lace, and other sheers. Other long evening gowns in summer fabrics, such as ginghams, smooth linens, summer weave rayons, a few airy organdies, and popular eyelet embroidery in white, vivid colors, or pastels, are ideal costumes to wear for opening nights, or when there is a dancing party before or after the concert.

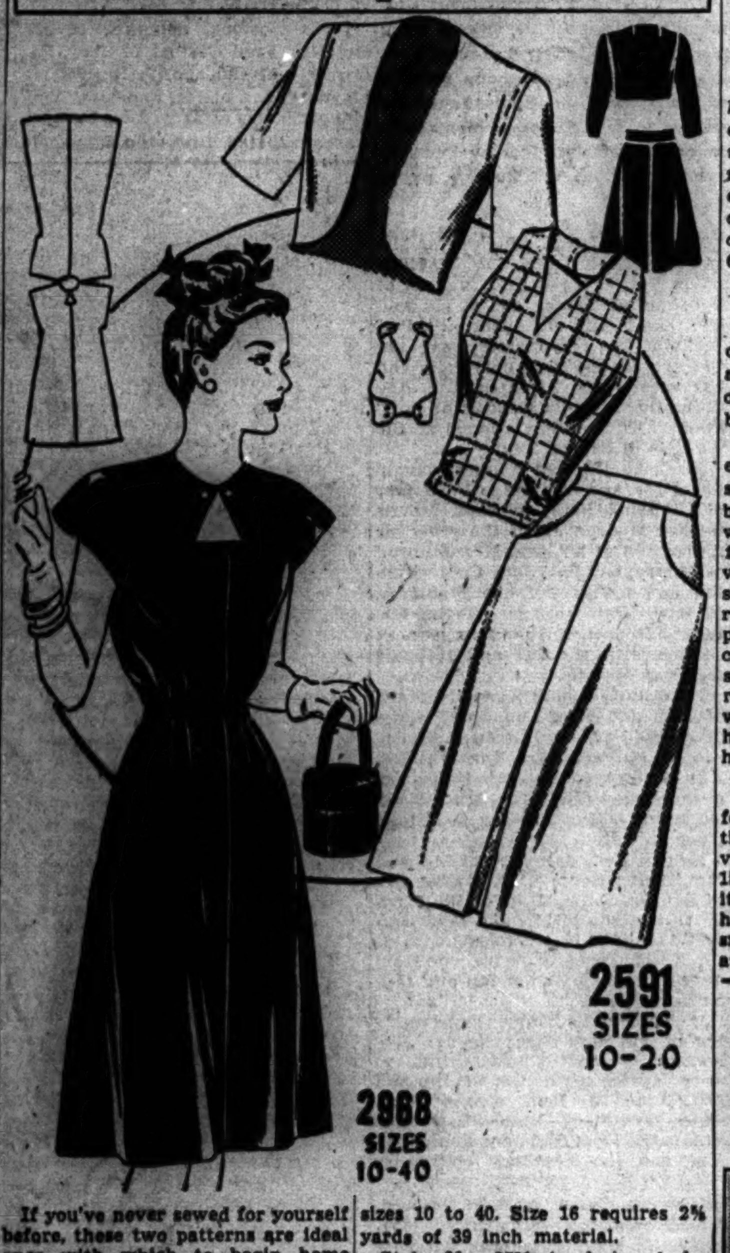
The eyelet cotton dresses in brilliant colors or the swank dark brown, green, or navy shades are effective choices for sultry weather, day or night, as this extremely open meshed cotton material is the best air conditioned summer time material of them all. Because the stuff is so embroidered and decorative, the dresses are extremely simple in silhouette and detail.

No matter how you plan to go out to Ravinia, there are sleek, smooth costumes for train, summer cottons for suburbanites, gala occasion gowns wide of skirt, suits, dresses, floating chiffons, and seersuckers. All are soft, flattering, feminine creations of distinctive charm.

Sketched are four models suitable for Ravinia concerts. These and others are available in a Chicago store. For further information call Superior 0200.

Patterns by Clotilde



If you've never sewed for yourself before, these two patterns are ideal ones with which to begin home dressmaking. Cut in a minimum of sections, the patterns are nevertheless designed for perfect fit and smart lines.

One design has the new kimono shoulders, a fly front effect and good figure-clinging lines. In spun rayons, linens or cottons, this model is a winner, offering plenty of comfort on dog days.

The other pattern makes a three piece outfit styled for coolness and tailored smartness. It consists of a bolero, vestee, and a trim skirt. The three pieces may match or contrast, and all the tubbable materials which tailor well will make up handsomely.

Style No. 2968 is designed for sizes 10 to 40. Size 16 requires 2⅝ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2591 is designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material for bolero suit; ⅝ yard of 35 or 39 inch fabric for gilet.

Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

The summer edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions now is available over the counter of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st. and Tribune Tower lobby, for 15 cents. Twelve cents buys the book if it is ordered with a pattern from the address in the coupon.

A Friend in Need

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer need, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

By Sally Joy Brown

A variety of special needs has come to our attention this week, and we pass a few requests on to our readers, hopeful that they may be supplied.

A reading glass would add interest and pleasure to the long, tiresome days of an invalid, in whose behalf Mrs. A., a social worker, has written. He is a patient who is afflicted with great impairment of vision and derives no benefit whatsoever from reading glasses. Since reading has been one of his greatest pleasures, the deprivation of it has caused him to be dejected and lonesome. If a reader has a strong reading glass which he would be willing to give this man, perhaps his days would pass a little more happily.

An agency which serves and cares for the needy youngsters thruout the state has asked our aid in providing a set of used golf clubs for a 15 year old boy, who has been under its supervision for several years. He has begun earning some money for small personal expenses by caddying at a local golf course and is showing a growing sense of responsibility and independence which is heartening to those concerned with his development. Since working on the links, he has evidenced an interest in golf. If he could have a few clubs of his own he would practice it and receive the double benefit of pleasure in the game and a new confidence in himself.

An opportunity to aid a girl, whose health is imperiled by the lack of adequate sleeping facilites, is offered in the following request sent to us by a caseworker.

"May we ask your help in securing a single bed and mattress for a 15 year old girl? The father is out of the home and the mother has an active tubercular condition. She and her daughter live with relatives and because of the lack of facilities in the home they must share the same bed. This arrangement is unsatisfactory, but the family's income is insufficient to meet more than the bare essentials. If a bed can be located for the girl she will be able to sleep by herself in another room and avoid the hazard of contracting the disease from her mother. The family lives in South Chicago." An offer from the extreme south side can be called for with least expense.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

We hear a great many warnings during the summer about skin protection. But we don't think nearly as much as we should about sun protection for hair.

Too much sun is simply ruinous to normal hair and to hair inclined to be dry. It depletes the hair so completely of the precious natural oil it needs that it becomes unmanageable, brittle, and streaked in color.

Before you go out sunbathing apply a lubricating ointment or lotion to your hair and scalp. If you're out long stretches at a time, by all means wear a covering of some sort on your head, preferably a loose, porous kind of scarf that permits free circulation but that shields the hair shafts from the burning rays.

Brush your hair more often during the sunny season than you do the rest of the year. It will need the extra stimulation, and since you'll be going hatless or almost hatless a lot of the time, it will profit, from the fashion point of view, by acquiring the high luster that is the most important quality hair can have nowadays.

If you go bathing try not to get your hair wet. If you do, you have no choice but to shampoo your hair after every single dip into salt water.

Because it's dustier in summer than in winter, you'll probably have to shampoo oftener than usual. Do so by all means. Accumulated perspiration and grime are detrimental to scalp health and utterly destructive of hair beauty.

Common sense about protecting your hair from the sun, about keeping it clean and well oiled, will save you a great deal of money at summer's end. If you're unwise enough to wind up the hot season with "vacation hair" that's stiff as straw and as streaked in color, you've no chance of success for your fall permanent. You'll have to spend time and money to recondition it—and the chances are excellent that the damage of even one season of neglect and abuse will never quite be undone.

Child Antics Do Not Upset Wise Mother

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Are you discouraged and downhearted at the moment in your mothering?

Here are a few extracts, which may prove comforting or helpful, from a delightfully friendly and contented letter written by the mother of four children, happily married and with very small means to live on:

"I'm putting my ironing aside this morning, because I feel like writing to you.

"It's several years since I wrote to you for advice on baby problems. To tell you the truth, now I feel like a child expert myself. I find children go thru various problems at different ages, and it doesn't do to run a temperature over little upsets. When a mother gets provoked and irritable, unfortunately the whole family reacts the same way. It pays to pout in solitude when there are a lot of little mimics around.

"Of course I don't expect you to remember my letters of woe and pleas for advice in your heaps of mail so I'll give the roll call. First: Joan, aged 7½ years, 56 pounds, an earnest little girl with a lot of freckles, something of a tomboy, fond of active sports, a good swimmer for over two years now, and extremely fond of reading. Her problems were nailbiting and the experience of being the first grandchild in a large interested family and having a very inexperienced mother.

"Then came Don barely a year later, 6½ years old, 48 pounds and an ever increasing appetite. In the first grade, comes home often minus hat, gloves, soles of his shoes, and skin off his nose; enjoys active play, too much so at times, rather leary of water, discovers he's very tired when extra chores appear, but does his regular little jobs cheerfully and well. Brings home a cuss word now and then and regretfully forgets them at the discovery that they don't startle, only disgust us.

"His problem was a rather unfortunate one: My parents seemed to dislike him. Somehow he never could please them. We had sorry scenes when as a little tot, sensing their feelings, he refused to kiss them good-by and usually sulked when they were around. On your advice I took up the role of a diplomat, used slathers of tact, a bit of flattery, refused to make an issue of kisses, ignored the sulks, and had the satisfaction of having my father tell me that Don had turned [ha! ha!] into a fine little man, so thoughtful and so forth! This took a period of several years but it was worth it.

"Third on the list, Sheila is 3½ years old, about 33 pounds, blonde curls, blue eyes, vivid imagination, apes her brother and sister in everything they do, and a regular chatterbox. Shy with strangers, hides her head, won't talk [quite an act—very provoking]. I am trying the ignoring tactics, and usually she snaps out of it and acts the natural little girl again.

"Of course we've had other little problems, but after the second baby I was able to look at them quite calmly. Then Kenneth was born two months ago. We had the same questions as at the time of Sheila's birth—more details asked and happy plans made. When I came home from the hospital the children laughed and cried with joy over their little brother. They watch over him, want to hold him, are interested in his bath and feeding, allow no one to criticize him—altho they informed me confidentially that he has the shape of a frog [my feelings!]. He's one of the blessed infants that sleep all day and night only waking to eat and get bathed. There's something about a baby that does queer things to my heart, like the thrill when the children pray or turn from their play to say, 'Mother, I want to give you a lovin'.'

"We have all been very healthy, thank goodness. A few coughs now and then. The school doctor gives the children a clean bill of health, and so we are all very happy, even tho we have dark financial moments [I should say hours!].

"Forgive this long letter, Mrs. Bevans. When I sat down to write I was feeling as gloomy as the weather but writing always makes me feel more cheerful and now I feel better, tho you're the victim of ever ready pen and paper. I think I'll do my ironing!"

If you are discouraged, hasn't that letter relaxed you?

Chicago Music Festival Lunch Set for Aug. 17

The annual Chicago Music Festival luncheon, always a popular event on the music calendar, is proving no exception to the rule this year if early reservations may be taken as a criterion. Tho provision has been made for 1,600 guests at the luncheon, which has been set for Friday noon, Aug. 17, in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, only a few hundred places remain available at this time, according to Philip Maxwell, director of the Chicago Tribune sponsored festival.

Dr. White Is Renamed Head of A. A. U. W.

Dr. Helen C. White

Tellers at national headquarters of the American Association of University Women in Washington, D. C., last week tabulated ballots in the organization's first presidential election held by mail and announced that Dr. Helen C. White was the winner. It was Dr. Wihte's second consecutive reëlection. The University of Wisconsin's distinguished English professor has headed the association for four years, and the vote of this season continued her in the presidency for a third two-year term.

Among regional vice presidents elected were Mrs. Eric Allen Johnston of Spokane, Wash., wife of the president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who formerly was president of the Spokane branch and has been active in organizing other units in her North Pacific region. In this area, the North Central region, the vote went to Mrs. Emil E. Storkan of Battle Creek, Mich., who, like Dr. White, continues for a third two-year term.

Dean Margaret M. Justin of Kansas State college, former Southwest Central region vice president, was elected first vice president of the association, and Dr. Marion E. Park, president emeritus of Bryn Mawr college, second vice president. The new treasurer is Mrs. Frederick G. Atkinson of Minneapolis, Minn., former chairman of the national A. A. U. W. fellowship committee.

Other regional vice presidents elected were: North Atlantic region, Dr. Josephine B. Glasgow, Albany, N. Y.; South Atlantic, Dr. Gillie A. Larew, Lynchburg, Va.; Southwest Central, Dr. Susan B. Riley, Nashville, Tenn.; Northwest Central, Mrs. Thomas Aron, Crete, Neb.; Southwest Central, Dr. Anna Powell, Denton, Tex.; Rocky Mountain, Mrs. Charles J. Oviatt, Sheridan, Wyo.; South Pacific, Mrs. Edward C. Lanphier, San Mateo, Cal.

Dr. Glasgow, a member of the national A. A. U. W. legislative program committee, was formerly secretary of the New York state division. Dr. Larew is professor of mathematics and acting dean at Randolph Macon Woman's college. Mrs. Aron formerly taught speech at Doane college and the University of Nebraska. A former Texas division president is Dr. Powell, professor of history at North Texas State Teachers college. She is a member of the national A. A. U. W. international relations committee. Mrs. Oviatt is another veteran entering upon a term in her office. Mrs. Lanphier has been president of the California division.

Eight colleges and universities were added to the A. A. U. W. approved list this year upon recommendation of the national committee on membership and maintaining standards. The list is the catalog of schools whose graduates or faculty members, with specified degrees, academic standards, status in the student body or on the faculty, are eligible for membership in the association. Those newly added are Juniata college in Huntingdon, Pa.; Wayne university at Detroit, Mich.; Western Michigan College of Education at Kalamazoo; New Jersey State Teachers college at Montclair; Central Missouri State Teachers college at Warrensburg; Furman university, Greenville, S. C.; College of Mount St. Vincent, New York, and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

A new requirement was voted by which the association goes on record as expecting from all institutions that in no case should any "sacrifice the moral freedom and individual integrity of members of its faculty and staff to any economic, political, or doctrinal end."
